The manufacturers are making very little money from the local market just now, as the retailers are buying no more than they are obliged to, but those who do much of a business in the South and West are benefiting by that fact at this time, goods moving very well in those directions. There has been no great cause for complaint this month, however, traveling men having made fair returns, although reporting things to be "rather quiet." Last week's balmy weather brought visions of spring, and the manufacturers are hoping that a little more of such will cause this market to spruce up.

& Son, has been confined to his home at Womelsdorf for some time, owing to illness, but is now hoping to get out again soon. Business with this firm has been all that could be expected. They are fortunate in the possession of a number of popular brands.

The El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Co. is doing a good out of town business, which is constantly growing under the able direction of Frank Comber whose headquarters are at Second and Arch streets. The firm has one or two new brands in contemplation.

John N. Kolb, manager for the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., sailed from New York yesterday for Amsterdam, where he will take in the inscriptions.

Frank Teller, whose place on Second street, below Walnut, was recently burned out, is temporarily occupying a building on Dock street which he found suitable for immediate occupancy. Meanwhile his factory is being rebuilt as quickly as possible and will have better facilities than ever.

The new firm of Goldsmith and Arndt, distributors in the East for the El Provedo Manufacturing Co. is starting out with a rush and bids fair to break records. Mr. Arndt, who has been well known on the road as a salesman for Julius Hirschberg & Bro., is now on his first trip with a full line of the company's best brands.

Business is coming up very well with the Vicente Portuondo Co., and the men on the road are sending in a splendid lot of orders.

John Hay, Jr., manufactured by Stewart, Newberger & Co., Ltd., has caught on and is hitting the trade just right. The cigar is a worthy son of John Hay.

Bayuk Bros. Cigar Co.'s new brand, BB Blunt, which has recently been put on the market to sell at 5 cents, is duplicating rapidly and the factory is having hard work keeping up with orders. The cigar has a good package and makes an excellent appearance.

ANOTHER TELEPHONE THIEF.

Operated Successfully in Memphis, Tenn., in Spite of Warnings.

The telephone thieves are operating again and in spite of the fact that the trade has been warned time after time, lately, this crook had no difficulty in securing 1,000 cigars by means of a telephone and a bad check.

An order was received a few days ago by Lee Morton, of Memphis, Tenn., for the amount of goods mentioned. The buyer stated that he was unable to come after the purchase himself, but that the firm should send the goods to the Planter's building C. O. D.

The purchase was wrapped up and sent to the place named by a porter. He found the man who had made the order and delivered the cigars. In payment the porter was given a check for $32.87, it is alleged, on the Security Bank. The porter accepted the check, but when it was presented for payment, it was discovered to be worthless. The check was signed by S. A. Coston.

The police were notified and are working on the case.

COMBINE IS BEING SUED.

New Jersey Court is Asked to Dissolve Corporation as Illegal.

The American Tobacco Co. will be investigated in spite of itself, if things keep on in the same direction. Although the Government is apparently not going to do anything just now, the company will be forced to defend itself on another hand by the suit which has been begun in chancery at Trenton, by Richard T. Dana, administrator of the estate of Richard S. Dana, of New York.

This suit is brought in an effort to have the American Tobacco Co. declared to be an illegal corporation and dissolved, because it was formed of the American Tobacco Co., the Consolidated Tobacco Co. and the Continental Tobacco Co. in alleged violation of the law.

The claim is made by Mr. Dana that the stockholders of the original American Tobacco Co. did not give consent in sufficient numbers to validate the consolidation, and declares that he was in this way deprived of his property against his will and judgment The court is asked to summon James B. Duke, Benjamin N. Duke, Oliver H. Payne, Peter A. B. Widener, Thomas F. Ryan, Anthony N. Brady and others, to explain how the merger was formed.

This is the outcome of protests made by a few dissenting stockholders at the time the consolidation was effected, and which were temporarly subdued. It was charged by some at that time, that the deal was a plan to save one of the subsidiary companies from financial stringency at the expense of the others, and those not pleased with the arrangment were, of course, concerned in the supposedly more prosperous companies.

AUSTRALASIA UNDEVELOPED.

It Should be Fertile Territory for American Tobaccco Interests.

Washington, D. C., March 21.

From reports made by American consuls, in British Australasia, American manufacturers are neglecting a splendid opportunity by not pushing their goods more into this territory where they would be eagerly welcomed.

The imports of the area, including New Zealand, exceed $400,000,000 a year, and America's sales for the last four years have averaged about $30,000,000, three times the value of our trade ten years ago, but an extremely small percentage of what it might be.

Last year the Australasians bought $725,000 worth of leaf tobacco and $1,720,000 worth of cigars and cigarettes, instead of buying the class of Philippine goods, the competition of which is so feared by American Tobacco interests

This proves that the market is waiting for development by this trade which should be done on the field by competent representatives. The market is very similar to our own market and can be counted on just as surely, if the United States goods once get fairly in.

While our total sales in this area now exceed those of Germany, they are only about one fifth those of England. The opening of the Panama Canal should have a very important effect on our Australasian sales. Instead of the long rail haul to San Francisco, and a 7,000 mile sail from there to Australasia, wares from our Eastern manufacturing centres can be located on shipboard and sent to Melbourne or to Sidney with an advantage of 3,000 miles in the case of New Orleans.

But there is no reason why American merchants should wait for the opening of this advantage. An extension of present business can be effected by the exercise of a reasonable amount of intelligent business activity. A good many wheels can be set in motion and a considerable number of hands employed if the Australasian market is sought in a business-like manner.

Those who get in now will be on the ground floor when the larger trade opens by and by.

DUMMY BOXES MUST BE DUMMIES.

Revenue Department Says They are Too Much Like Real Thing.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has made a new ruling which appears more important on its face than it really is. The decision relates to the use of dummy cigar boxes, and at first blush it seemed to a number of manufacturers and retailers that the department intended to stop the use of boxes entirely, which is not the case. The rule simply prohibits the manufacturer from stamping the dummy box with his factory number and with the caution notice. Of course the revenue stamp must not be used, so that the proposition is, that if the manufacturer chooses to prepare a box free from all these official designations, he is free to do so, as the government does not concern itself with such a package.

For a long time it has been the practice of manufacturers to supply retailers with these dummy boxes when asked for. The small retailer or perhaps the druggist may want to make an inexpensive display of a certain brand which he can do in no better way than this.

In many cases quite imposing window displays have been framed up with this material, and lately a number of manufacturers have been adding the factory number and caution notice to the box with the idea of making the display look like regular stock.

The revenue department has been cognizant of the matter for some time and the present ruling is a result of its deliberations. Notices have been sent to the trade from Washington to take effect in sixty days.

BUSINESS ALL RIGHT IN THE HUB.

The Spring Spell Has Brought Prosperity to Everybody.

Boston, Mass., March 19.

The weather for the past week has truly been real spring weather, and it naturally was welcomed by the trade. As one retailer remarked, "trade generally is good when I can leave my store door open," and I think this dealer voices the sentiment of the majority of the storekeepers.

The jobbers seem to be complaining of poor collections but the cigar manufacturers are working full forces and as I reported in last week's letter, are doing plenty of effective advertising. Visiting salesmen seem to be contented with the amount of business they secured here during their stay in the Hub.

H. Uday, of Uday Bros., New York, is in town calling on the retailers with a variety line of bits, stems, corncob pipes, etc.

Julius Weiss, with Kaufman Bros. & Bondy, is expected here the coming week. The C. P. F. line of pipes are very popular here.

H. E. Johnson has purchased the cigar store and pool room located at 374 Tremont street.

S Epstein has sold his cigar store at 14 Bedford street to M. Levine.

M. E. Shattuck, a cigar manufacturer of Worcester, Mass, suffered considerable damage by fire yesterday during a $200,000 conflagration which visited that city yesterday morning.

F. R. Ginn expects to make a business trip to New York this coming week.

E. J. Mulligan, with the Menashi Cigarette Co., is kept constantly on the go. His window displays of Menashi cigarettes are very fine and are causing considerable comment. The Menashi is fast becoming the leading seller in 15c package goods. This cigarette is said to contain nothing but the best Turkish tobacco with a very fine blend. The factory is at present overrun with orders and such jobbers as Estabrook & Eaton, D. A Frank & Co., G. F Davenport are doing all they can to make the Menashi popular.

The trade was very much surprised this week to receive a circular letter from the E. Seidenberg Steifel Co., of New York, stating that henceforth, all purchasers of their goods would have to stand all the freight or express charges

Sam Harris, President of the Khedivial Co., spent a few days here this past week going the rounds with Vic Sheppard their local salesman. While here he scooped in quite a bnnch of orders for the Duke of York and Turkish Delights cigarettes.

Thomas Charak, the popular Cambridge jobber, is having quite a run on his Charaks Original Smokers. Leroy Cubanos are also selling well at his establishment.

J. S. Brown, of 8 Washington street, is featurng Grumbler cigars in his window and consequently is selling plenty of them.

At H. E. Lombard's cigar store, on Court street, Leroy Little Cigars are enjoying a good sale. When it comes to making elegant window displays Chester is certainly in a class by himself.

"Innerseal" Ross, the Irvington street tobacconist, is having quite a sale on Virginia Blossom long cut.

S. S. Pierce Co. is displaying in the window of their Tremont street store a number of brands of imported cigars among which are the Eden, and Romeo and Juliet in various sizes.

Kozy cut plug is selling well here. 2½ ounces of tobacco for 5 cents is what the laboring man is looking for. Kozy combines quality and quantity.

L Miller & Sons, New York, announce the following deal: With every thousand of their Puritan Little Cigars they are giving gratis two boxes (24) Leroy Cubanos Cigars, this brings in the retailer an additional profit of 50 cents on each thousand.

L. Bieringer, of Dock Square, intends giving up the manufacturing of his cigars, owing to his large retail trade. He finds it more profitable to purchase his cigars and can also give more attention to his retail customers.

TAX COFFEE INSTEAD OF REMOVING DUTY ON TOBACCO.

Plan on Foot to Place a Small Tax on Coffee Grown Outside Our Possessions, so that Tobacco and Sugar Industries Will Not be Obliged to Make Up Deficit. Good Arguments in Favor of the Bill.

Washington, D. C., March 20.

The tobacco trade will welcome the present agitation of a bill which if its progenitors are successful will come up at the next session of Congress, having for its purpose, the placing of a small tax on foreign coffee in order to make up the deficit, which it is considered important to make up before another Congressional election.

The project is one intended to relieve the tobacco and sugar interests from the imposition of a reduction of duty on tobacco from the Philippines, which has been fought so strenuously by the trade since the proposal was first made by Secretary Taft.

The opposition has become so pronounced that the administration wuold like to avoid any further trouble if possible, and while it is understood in some quarters that the proposed coffee bill originated in the brain of some beet sugar Republicans, it is known to be looked kindly upon by a number of Congressmen and Senators who would like to find some such way out of the difficulty without having to offend the tobacco and sugar industries.

The current expenses of the Government will increase during the next two years, and in view of the decided demand for public improvements, there will be many extra expenses, so that the only way to remove the deficit is to increase the revenue,

There are numerous objections to doing this by internal revenue, and the attention of members of the Senate Committee on Finance and of the Ways and Means Committee turned to coffee and tea as taxable possibilities. Certain suggestions made to the Ways and Means Committee during the hearings on the Curtis bill to reduce the duties on Philippine tobacco and sugar afford what many believe will be an effective answer to any charge of taxing the poor.

This suggestion was that, instead of encouraging the Philippines to compete with American sugar and tobacco interests by giving them free entry to our markets, they should be encouraged to produce subtropical products, which can never be raised in the United States, and which are now imported in large quantities from subtropical countries that take very little from us in return. Rubber, spices and fibres were mentioned, but especially coffee, of which this country imports immense quantities. All of these articles, it was represented, could be produced in our own possessions, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

It was argued that by the imposition of a slight tariff on foreign coffee and admitting coffee from American possessions free the attention of the Philipppines could be diverted to a highly profitable industry. Meanwhile, as it would require some years to develop coffee growing in the islands, the duty would raise large sums of money, afford the desired relief for the United States Treasury and be of inestimable assistance to Porto Rico.

Since it is now considered imperative that some such measure be adopted, the arguments have been considered by the Senators and the members of the Ways and Means Committee and are meeting with much favor. It is argued that, in addition to relieving the Filipinos and the Porto Ricans and, above all, the United States Treasury, an ugly contest with the beet sugar and domestic tobacco interests may then be averted.

On the basis of the present importations of coffee in the United States, it is figured a duty of five cents a pound would yield fully $50,000,000 a year. This is on the assumption that an increase of five cents a pound in price would not cause a curtailment of consumption.

Secretary Taft is to take a party of Senators and Representatives to the Philippines this summer, among them Speaker Cannon, Representative Payne, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and other members of that committee. It is proposed that these gentlemen shall study the possibilities of coffee in the islands while there and it is expected that they will enthuse over the prospect.

In 1871 Congress repealed the duty on coffee in compliance with a general public demand. Brazil immediately imposed an export duty and transferred $8,000,000 per year from the United States Treasury into hers, and the price of coffee remained the same. Since then, it is argued, the United States has lost on Brazilian coffee alone $304,869,852 in revenue, while the Brazilian trade balance against the United States during that period has aggregated $1,328,167,670.

France raises a heavy amount of revenue by a duty on coffee of almost 15 cents a pound; Italy taxes it almost as much as France; Germany at the rate of 5 cents; while England, Austria and other countries derive large revenues from this source. The United States, the greatest coffee consuming nation, alone derives no income from this article.

TOBACCO COMPANIES MERGE.

Tennessee Concerns Consolidate and will do Large Business.

Memphis, Tenn., March 20.

An important consolidation of tobacco companies has just taken place here which is expected to result in much increased business for the enterprise.

The Greeneville (Tenn.) Manufacturing Co., and the Campbell Tobacco Factory have merged and taken into the combination a number of other prominent business men of that place. The authorized capital stock of the merger is $50,000 and the output of the company is estimated at 1,000,000 pounds of tobacco annually.

CHANGES IN CHICAGO DEALERS.

Col. Diffley Opens His New Store, and It's a Dandy.

Chicago, March 18.

Colonel M. W. Diffley has to-day opened his store at 72 Madison street, at which place he has been putting in busy hours for several days past in overseeing the placing of the handsome fixtures which place the establishment among the first in Chicago's up-to-date cigar stores. The location is one in which Mr. Diffley can well feel at home, as it was here that he began business more than twenty years ago.

Last May, however, the owners of the property found it necessary to their interests to construct a modern building on the site and accordingly began work, and are just now completing a structure of eighteen stories, which is an all respects characteristic of the enterprise manifested by the business men of this city. Colonel Diffley was, of course, forced to abandon his favored location for the time, and the present new store, strictly speaking, is but a reopening of the former location.

The furniture throughout is full mahogany, with drawers, vaults and equipments providing the utmost convenience known to tobacco store equipment:

Colonel Diffley never does things by halves. His new place, in short, is a model of durability, neatness and compactness. A modern cigar store in a modern building, in the hands of a man of push and progress fully consistent with the times.

The Commercial Cigar Company is the name of a concern soon to open a fine place in the new Commercial Bank Building at Monroe and Dearborn streets.

It is understood that H. M. Schermerhorn, the popular cigar dealer in the Inter-Ocean Building, will be one of the leading figures in the new enterprise.

Arthur Bergch, late of E. Hoffman & Co., reports a very good business in the wholesale line since beginning for himself. Mr. Bergch spent about twenty-eight years with the above firm and naturally enough is fully conversant with the tobacco business in its various phases. He expects to remove from the temporary quarters in the Northern office building to more commodious quarters in the present location of Knight & Vorman, in Wabash avenue, as soon as that firm vacates the place, which may be about May 15 or before. Mr. Bergch thinks himself in luck to begin as distributor for so popular a line as the Flor de Lovera goods, which he will handle in twenty sizes.

Charles Grand, the well-known dispenser of cigars and wet goods, at 149 Madison street, celebrated his ninth anniversary in business last Wednesday, on which occasion he gave his friends and patrons a memorable reception.

Victor Thorsch, of Bachelor cigar fame, has been among the week's visitors from Allentown, Pa.

Sig. Meyer, the popular manager of the clear Havana department, for the Steele-Wedeles Co., expects to leave today for a brief visit to West Baden and vicinity.

J. D. Berry, of Berry-Suhling & Co., of the good old State of Virginia, has been doing business with the trade during the past few days.

J. M. Logan, of the Cayey-Cagnas Tobacco Co., New York, manufacturers of high-grade Puerto Rican cigars, is a late trade visitor.

Adolph Sechbach, of A. Santella & Co., well-known manufacturers, has returned from his trip to the Middle West after several weeks' absence.

Louis Neuman, formerly of Neuman & Hershorn, will re-enter the tobacco business about April 1. Mr. Neuman has purchased the interest of E. Hoffman, of the well-known firm of E. Hoffman & Co., at Madison street and Fifth avenue, and will henceforth be glad to meet his many friends and former patrons in that popular establishment.

E. G. Dunlap, of Arguellez & Lopez, New York; Samuel M. Chase, of Louis Ash & Co., New York, and James Batterton, of Ruy & Lopez Co., have cheered the trade by their presence during the week.

LANCASTER MARKET UNCHANGED.

Lancaster, Pa., March 20.

The local leaf market practically remains unchanged; holders of old goods do not seem very anxious to dispose of their stock, feeling confident that they have a good investment. There is plenty of inquiry for that class of goods, and it is only the high prices demanded that prevents more sales. Several lots were recently secured by dealers, mostly from country packers.

No general movement is yet possible in new goods, as only bulk sweated goods could be available, and bulk sweating seems confined to a comparatively few, and to larger packers.

Packing, of course, continues active among all who secured any of the crops, but it is a fact that quite a number of packers, particularly in the country sections, did not secure any of the new crops. Deliveries steadily continue, and a very large proportion of the 1904 crop is now in the warehouses of the different packers.

It is somewhat difficult to define the present condition of the cigar industry, which seems to vary in the different sections of the county. Trade is admittedly quiet, but manufacturers are not perturbed, feeling confident that with continued good weather business will soon begin to brighten up considerably—in fact, a good year is anticipated.

A special meeting of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade was to have been held on Thursday evening last, but through some misunderstanding access could not be had to the rooms in which the meeting was to take place. Adjournment was therefore made until the next regular monthly meeting, which occurs on the first Thursday evening of each month. Secretary Long stated that as the charter for the Inspection Co. had not yet been received, not much actual business could have been transacted any way, so that no serious delay was caused.

Mr. Reist, of the Fulton Cigar Co.., is expected back to-day from a business trip among the company's jobbers.

Considerable advertising and much missionary work is now being done on the Red Devil scrap chewing and smoking tobacco, of the Queen City Tobacco Co., of Cincinnati.

One of the bulk show windows of John McLaughlin & Co., wholesale tobacconists on North Queen street, is this week devoted to an artistic display of Frishmuth Bros. & Co.'s Green Goose tobacco, the sales of which are said to be steadily increasing in this section.

The Gleim Cigar Co. is now making active preparations for the early commencement of business. It is a corporation chartered in this State, and the principal members of the company are John S. Gleim, a veteran cigar manufacturer of this city, with whom are associated his two sons, William S. and E. S. William S. Gleim is practically in charge of the business, and will devote his entire time and energy to the manufacturing department, while the company will be represented on the road by thoroughly experienced salesmen. A building has been secured on Water street, between Chestnut and Orange, and is being equipped with all modern improvements and facilities and has room for a large number of hands.

George Stumpf, of Stumpf & Boas, has just returned from a week's business trip.

A. D. Killheffer, of the Eureka cigar factory at Millersville, is employing a force of fifty-five hands, and has a very steady trade.

John Slater, of John Slater & Co., was at the factory headquarters last week, and has just returned to his home at Washington, Pa.

W. E. Shepp, of the York Leaf Tobacco Co., was a visitor in this market last week.

Walter S. Bare, cigar manufacturer at Lititz, is on an extended Western business trip and may go as far as Minneapolis. He is expected to return in about a fortnight.

Luther M. Case, a Connecticut leaf packer, was through this section last week and while here purchased the 24 horse power Winton touring car from J. F. Usner, the well-known cigar manufacturer at Rothsville. Case is to return as soon as the roads are in a fit condition for automobiling to take lessons from Uncle Jeff, under whose expert directions he is likely to develop into a first-class chauffeur. Mr. Usner will buy a 30 horse power Winton car of the 1905 type.

DELIVERIES CONTINUE IN YORK

But Bad Country Roads Considerably Delay Progress.

York, Pa., March 20.

Deliveries of the new crop continue to be made at different points in this county, and it is estimated that only about one half of the crop has so far been delivered. This work was much retarded during the past week, owing to impassable country roads, which have not been in a worse condition for years.

A local tobacco packer gives it as his opinion that some of the buyers of the 1904 tobacco crop will lose money. He says: "They have paid too much for the tobacco and unless they sell it before next fall they will lose money. It will not pay to hold the packing a year or more. Next spring, tobacco planting in York County will likely be more extensive than it was last spring, as the crop has been profitable to the farmer. All farmers will be planting tobacco, and if the yield is anywhere near the average low prices will prevail again, and the 1904 crop connot be offered in competition against the 1905 crop."

But one York firm, so far as could be ascertained, is packing tobacco of the 1904 crop. This will pack 1000 cases, if it is possible to purchase that quantity of the lead. The firm is Augustus Sonneman & Sons, who pack annually from 500 to 1500 cases. They and a few cigar manufacturers in the county are the only local packers of leaf. The bulk of the tobacco grown in York County is shipped to the Lancaster County warehouses for packing.

R. M. Granat, of Gillen & Granat, who has been on a Western business trip of several weeks, is now in Pittsburg on his way East, and will reach York sometime this week.

Red Lion.

A new cigar box factory is to be started at Red Lion in a few weeks. L. W. Jackson, a cigar manufacturer, will be at its head. Mr. Jackson is also interested in the American Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Red Lion, and it is a portion of their building that will be occupied by the box factory. Alterations are now in progress, and the machinery is being installed.

S. S. Sechrist has purchased from T. E. Brooks and D. A. Horn, all right, title and interest in the Porto Rico Cigar Co., which will be continued under the old name of the Porto Rico Cigar Co. A goodly number of orders are at present in hand, and prospects are excellent.

T. E. Brooks will open a cigar factory as soon as the details can be arranged, and will confine himself exclusively to that business.

D. A. Horn will soon open a leaf tobacco warehouse, and has already received several lots of tobacco recently purchased.

D. C. Kaltreider, who started a factory here last winter, is making good progress and extending his trade.

The Cuba Rica Cigar Co. is occupying a new cigar factory and T. L. Adair occupies the building formerly occupied by the Cuba Rica Co., while M. Kalisch & Co. are in possession of the S. A. Stump building.

A. Fauth & Co. have also secured new premises. The last three mentioned were all burned out by the recent fire. As soon as the weather permits Mr. Adair will begin the erection of a new building on the site of his old one, which is immediately in the rear of his residence.

A. C. Frey reports a steady business at his cigar factory and a good trade in leaf tobacco, of which he is quite a large handler.

Holtzinger & Seitz are making very satisfactory progress with their line of goods.

Thomas F. James, cigar broker, of New York, last week visited several local factories whose lines he is handling.

S. T. Banham, of S. T. Banham & Bros., cigar and tobacco jobbers at Manayunk, Philadelphia and also Norristown, Pa., was a visitor among cigar factories in this section last week, and left orders for a large variety of goods to be delivered during the present year.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Max Kalisch, of M. Kalisch & Co., cigar manufacturers, to Miss Anne Cohen, of New York. The wedding is to take place on June 11, after which they will make their residence in York.

NEWS OF THE CIGARETTE.

It's Little, but Causing all Kinds of Commotion.

On Friday the Ware bill was signed by the Governor of Pennsylvania making it illegal to sell cigarettes to any person uuder 21 years of age, or to give minors cigarettes or cigarette papers.

The act provides that "if any person or persons shall furnish cigarettes or cigarette paper, by gift, sale or otherwise, to any person or persons under 21 years of age, he or she so offending, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not more than $300 or not less than $100."

Dealers generally do not believe that the new law will make any difference, unless, for a short time, it encourages the anti-cigarette societies to obtain evidence on which to make a few arrests. This they think will be very temporary.

Madison, Wis., March 17.

A drastic anti cigarette bill passed the Senate today. It had previously been passed by the Assembly. It makes unlawful the sale, gift or importation into Wisconsin of cigarettes or cigarette materials.

The action followed a spirited debate in which the American Tobacco Co. was charged with being the sole objector to the bill, which is similar to the one which is now a law in Indiana.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 18.

The American Tobacco Company will fight the anti cigarette law in Wisconsin and in Indiana. Throughout the proceedings at Madison the tobacco interests had an attorney on the ground, but little activity was shown in opposing the bill, because it is hoped to declare it unconstitutional after it takes effect.

Boston, Mass., March 18.

It was the intention of the leaders of the anti cigarette movement just started in Boston to have a mammoth meeting in Faneuil Hall today, but in order that it may be more complete, the meeting has been postponed a week, so that it will be held on Saturday, March 25. Governor Douglas and Charles Bulkley Hubbell are among those invited to speak. Delegates from all parts of New England will be invited.

(From The London Cigar and Tobacco World.)

An influence making strongly for higher prices in the Turkish tobacco market is the large purchases by Germany. Throughout Germany the pipe and the cigar, which have for years been engaged in the struggle for supremacy, have been forced to retire before the march of the ever conquering cigarette.

PHAROAH DOWN TO DATE.

A New Version of the Situation in the Kentucky Tobacco Fields.

The following unique version of the situation between growers and buyers in the Kentucky tobacco fields, appeared in a daily paper of that State and pretty aptly describes things as they are:

"And the seven years of tobacco plenteousness that was in the land of Kentucky was ended.

"2. And the seven years of dearth began to come according as the Society of Equity had said; and the dearth was in all the lands; but in the land of Kentucky there was tobacco.

"3. And when the land of Liverpool, and all the land of New York was famished, the people cried to the Society of Equity for tobacco, and the Society said unto all the trust people: Go ye unto the Governor of the Black Belt, for the same have we appointed to rule over us; What he saith to you, do.

"4. And the tobacco famine was over all the face of the earth; and all countries came into Kentucky to Governor Equity to buy tobacco.

"5. And when the Trust people saw there was tobacco in Kentucky the Trust said to her agents: Why do ye look one upon another?

"6. Behold! I have heard there is tobacco in Kentucky. Get you down thither, and buy for us from thence.

"7. And the Trust buyers even Edhodgeheimer and Jaybedukesky Gallaherobervitchsky, went down to buy tobacco in Kentucky.

"8. And Equity was governor now over all the Black Belt, which groweth tobacco in Kentucky, and he it was that sold to all the people of the land; and the Trust buyers came down and bowed down themselves before him with their faces to the earth.

"9 And the Governor saw the buyers, and he knew them, and made himself strange to them, and spake roughly unto them, and he said unto them: Whence come ye? And they said from Yankee land, and Ireland and England, for to buy tobacco.

"11. And the Governor said unto them: Ye are spies, to see the nakedness of the land you are come. And they said unto him: Nay, my lord, but to buy tobacco are thy servants come.

"11. Then the Governor spake roughly to them, commanding: Fetch hither your Wallets, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you. Where be the Simoleons?

"12. And it came to pass as every man emptied his Wallet, every man's bundle of money was in his Wallet.

"13. Which, when the Governor saw the bundles of money and that there was a sufficiency thereof he was exceedingly glad. And he turned aside and said: Behold! now will I despoil the despoiler. And he returned to them again and saith:

"14. Aforetime Ye came to Kentucky for to buy tobacco: And ye did wickedly combine to take the farmer by the scruff of his neck and the slack of his breeches and despoiled of his tobacco; giving him therefor three Simoleons per hundred. Now, therefore, shall ye pay ten Simoleons per hundred. So much shalt thou pay for Equity.

"15. And he spake roughly to them. Then they were sore afraid, and said one to another: Behold! the Governor is on to us, Yea, he knoweth our vain tricks.

"16. And they returned and said, Thy servants perceive they are right up against it, wherefore take, we pray thee, all of a sufficiency and roll out the tobacco.

"17. Then the Governor opened all the store houses and sold unto the independent buyers also, Yea, even unto Arthurjarvisky, and to Jonandtomhodgeheimer and Nosworthyoberlinsky. But from these he exacted in Equity only eight Simoleons per hundred; but from the trust buyers he taketh ten Simoleons per hundred in Equity.

"19. And the people said: Behold how good is Cohesive Organization, Selah!"

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The buying movement is under a good deal of momentum in all the tobacco sections of the State where buyers are riding extensively, and the aggregate purchases amount to a good many thousand acres for the week. The activity at present displayed would seem to indicate a general cleaning up of the crop, even at the ruling prices, which are lower than heretofore paid. That considerable is being moved around six cents is evident.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 286 hhds, offerings on the breaks 32 hhds, public and private sales, 30 hhds.

The sales were almost entirely of old crop at unchanged prices, much below those asked for the new crop. Not enough of the new tobacco has been sold to form regular list of quotations

The weather this week has continued mild, and the crop is moving to the prizing houses of the Planters' Association, and the few dealers who are operating. The Association's crops will come upon the market very late in the season

Its efforts are now strongly made to secure a full and uniform reduction of the planting of this year, and full meetings are held regularly all over the district.

For old tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to	4.00

FROM PLANT BED TO MARKET.

J. N. Harper Gives an Interesting Talk on this Subject

The following interesting points on "Toba co from Plant Bed to Market" were given by J. N. Harper, of the State Experiment Station at Lexington, Ky., at the recent Daviess County Farmers' Inst tute in Owensboro:

"The plants in the bed should be fed, that is fertilized, but they should not be overfed. In the ashes of the burned bed there is much of the nitrate of soda; sometimes there is too much. This should be raked off. Sometimes over-fee ling will cause the plants to 'french.' A fertilizer may be sprinkled on the beds when sowing, or just after.

"In preparing the beds I plow as early as possible six inches deep. Sometimes it is well to skim the top and plow deeper, subsoiling. We put out our tobacco as early as possible, about June 1. All our experiments have been to produce the best leaf. The most desired is the thin cigarette wrapper. I believe the farmers in this district could get much better results in their tobacco if they would fertil ize more and plant closer. The better way is to fertilize in the hills. We had small cups made like pepper boxes, with the perforations larger, and had boys to shake the fertilizer in the hills.

"We are always very careful in setting out tobacco. 'Frenching' is often due to bad setting. In the bed it is often due to an insect or defective root. I don't think it is due to heredity in the plant. I have saved seed successively from two crops of the 'frenched' tobacco, but did not find that it produced any great portion of 'french' tobacco."

RICHMOND CHEROOT PLANT.

Operations Have Been Begun and Hand Made Goods are Turned Out.

Richmond, Va., March 23.

The Gordon Cheroot Company is the latest enterprise to begin operations in this city. The plant is located at Fif teenth and Main streets, and there are about 20 people employed in the place, exclusive of the managers and owners.

Fifteen of the most expert cheroot rollers in the city are employed. All the work is done by hand, no machine-made goods being turned out.

Manager G. H. Gordon, who was with the Whitlock cheroot factory as manager for many years is in charge of the new place, and he is giving his personal direction to the concern. Only one grade of goods is being made—"Gordon Hand-Made Cheroots." The factory is inde pendent of the combine.

Mr. Gordon said:

"We will undertake to demonstrate that it is possible and profitable to employ cheroot makers to make the smokes by hand, give employment to the best class of labor, cater to the local trade, invest money here and enable the merchants and the public to get all the benefits possible out of an enterprise for and by local capitalists. The success we have so far met with is most encouraging."

Mr. Gordon said that he had ample room to quadruple the output and that he believed the day was not far distant when he would have every available inch of the plant going full blast.

AUSTRALIA COULD RIVAL U. S,

As Tobacco Producing Country it Has Great Possibilities.

The following interesting article on the possibilities of Australia as an extensive tobacco producer has been received from John Plummer, of Sydney, New South Wales, who has thoroughly investigated his subject. Mr. Plummer writes:

"A considerable portion of the Australian Commonwealth, an area of at least several thousand acres, is, like many of the lands in the American Southern States, admirably adapted for tobacco cultivation, although the industry, after years of experimental labor, is yet in its infancy, Americans visiting Australia expressing surprise at the limited attention it has received in many places.

"In New South Wales, we are told, the systematic cultivation of tobacco dates from 1875, in which year it was introduced by three Chinese settlers, who produced within a few months a sufficiency of cured leaf to bring them £180, the Sydney selling price being 6d per pound. Four years later the prices rose to 8d and 9d per pound. In 1880 the area under cultivation in the Tumut district was 1,400 acres, on which 400 Chinese were employed. Two years later the price dropped to 5½d per pound, then to 5d, and, finally, to 4½d, at which it did not pay the growers.

"Recently the rise of keen competition in the Australian tobacco manufacture has occasioned a demand for locally grown leaf.

"The State Government has fully recognized the importance of encouraging the tobacco growing industry by establishing a couple of plantations, in which the practicability of obtaining a first class article has been clearly shown. Yet, notwithstanding this encouraging result, the area under cultivation in the State during 1903-4 was only 407 acres, the production being 5,220 cwt of leaf.

"In 1888, 4,883 acres were under cultivation, producing 55,478cwt of leaf, but there was no over sea market for it, and growers became discouraged. It was much the same in Victoria, where the area under tobacco in 1903 was 129 acres, against 2,029 acres in 1895, and in Queensland, where the area in the same year was 772 acres, against 1,061 acres in 1895.

"The cause of this decline is readily explained. The leaf had not, save by way of experiment, been prepared in such a manner as to find a sale in over sea markets. Much of the curing has been done in a somewhat primitive fashion, Australian farmers too frequently imitating the crude methods of the Chinese growers, who aim at quantity rather than quality.

"What can be done in the right direction is shown by the fact that, at the close of 1903, a number of test samples of manufactured tobacco, from leaf grown at the Victoria State tobacco farm at Edi, were prepared by the manager of an Australian tobacco company, who expressed himself pleased with them generally. All the leading importers in Melbourne also spoke favorably of the samples, and it was fully demonstrated that if due attention be given to the details of cultivation and curing, tobacco can be as successfully grown as any other agricultural crop in the Commonwealth. The sole difficulty has been the imperfect curing of the leaf. At the State tobacco farm at Texas a couple of tons of tobacco were raised, notwithstanding the absence of rain, which, when cured, realized 11d per pound at public auction, the highest price yet obtained in Queensland under similar conditons. Small quantities of tobacco are grown in South Australia, where there are extensive tracts suitable for the purpose, but at present remaining unutilized. In fact, it is believed that the Australian area capable of producing commercially valuable tobacco is larger than that found in the American Southern States. The quantity of unmanufactured tobacco imported into the Commonwealth during 1903 was 5 156,793 pounds, value £232,884, of which 4,998,969, value £224,961, came from the United States."

BIG DEAL FOR LOUISVILLE TRADE.

Ryan-Hampton Tobacco Co Absorbs a Number of Factories.

The Ryan-Hampton Tobacco Company has closed a deal by which it takes over the factory of Hetterman Bros., on Floyd and Breckinridge streets, Louisville, Ky., and will consolidate with it their factories at Bowling Green, Ky., and Martin, Tenn. The deal was handled by C. J. Meddis, Chairman of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Committee of the Commercial Club.

H. A. Wartmann is President of the company; R. W. Hampton, Vice President; W. E. Massey, Secretary and Treasurer, and W. B. Blakemore, general manager. They will employ about 250 people, and state that they will bring 100 or more skilled laborers with them, thus adding to Louisville's population.

They manufacture a number of brands of plug and smoking tobacco, and their output of natural twist is the largest of any factory in the South.

WELL-KNOWN CIGAR MAN DIES AT HIS HOME IN ST. PAUL.

St. Paul, Minn., March 23.

Samuel Lowenstein, prominent in the cigar trade of this city and in Republican politics, died at his home on Selby avenue this week, 57 years old.

Mr. Lowenstein, who has been in failing health for the past two years, was for years affiliated with the St. Paul Republican organization, and for ten years conducted a cigar stand in the old state capitol. He had a wide acquaintance with state politicians of both parties, and as late as the last gubernatorial campaign exerted an influence in Republican politics in the Seventh ward. He had been a resident of St. Paul for twenty five years and for years conducted a cigar factory and store on Jackson street, near the Merchants Hotel. In recent years he had conducted a cigar factory at 193 North Western avenue. He is survived by a wife and daughter.

SLOT MACHINES THROWN OUT.

Dealers in Cincinnati Will Have to Do Without Them.

Cincinnati, O., March 25

All slot machines such as are used in cigar stores or saloons must be thrown out of local stores before the first of next month, one week from today. This is by order of Mayor Fleischmann, and it is believed that several thousand dealers will have to get rid of machines of various sorts under the order.

It is estimated that these machines have been averaging a business of from a few dollars to $50 per day apiece, and it is a pretty universally expressed opinion that their banishment will have a noticeable effect on business. Some dealers believe that it will really benefit the cigarists proper, as it is probable that quite a little saloon cigar trade will be diverted their way. The jobber expects to suffer, as he believes that consumption will be decreased.

In practically every city where these machines have been thrown out suddenly trade has immediately slowed up.

UNITED CO. BUYS IN BUFFALO.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 15.

The United Cigar Stores Company has purchased the two stores which have been conducted by S. Levyn, at Niagara and Main streets and at Main and South Division streets. Both stores are among the finest in the city, and, in fact, were recently refurnished at considerable expense and present a noticeably handsome appearance.

This means that the United Company has made up its mind to capture a share of Buffalo's good retail trade upon which it has had its eye in these sections for some time. The company's clerks are already in these stores and the establishments are being run along the chain store company's methods.

The business was established in the old Arcade by Sigmund Levyn in 1867, and was later removed to Main and Niagara streets, and still later enlarged to the store at Main and South Division streets. The present business was managed by Sidney G. Metzler and Mark Rafalsky.

MUST NOT MAIL CIGARS HERE FROM PORTO RICO.

A decision was recently made by Commissioner Yerkes at Washington, to the effect that cigars and cigarettes must not be mailed from Porto Rico to this country, owing to the fact that the practice, if it became at all extensive, would seriously interfere with the revenue system.

Packages of cigarettes or cigars coming into this country through the mails as merchandise or otherwise not put up in statutory sizes, stamped and in other respects not complying fully with the laws and the regulations, would be difficult of detection and would prevent the close supervision which is necessary to insure the collection of taxes on such goods.

FROM PLANT BED TO MARKET.

J. N. Harper Gives an Interesting Talk on this Subject

The following interesting points on "Toba co from Plant Bed to Market" were given by J. N. Harper, of the State Experiment Station at Lexington, Ky., at the recent Daviess County Farmers' Institute in Owensboro:

"The plants in the bed should be fed, that is fertilized, but they should not be overfed. In the ashes of the burned bed there is much of the nitrate of soda; sometimes there is too much. This should be raked off. Sometimes overfeeding will cause the plants to 'frenchy.' A fertilizer may be sprinkled on the beds when sowing, or just after.

"In preparing the beds I plow as early as possible six inches deep. Sometimes it is well to skim the top and plow deeper, subsoiling. We put out our tobacco as early as possible. about June 1. All our experiments have been to produce the best leaf. The most desired is the thin cigarette wrapper. I believe the farmers in this district could get much better results in their tobacco if they would fertilize more and plant closer. The better way is to fertilize in the hills. We had small cups made like pepper boxes, with the perforations larger, and had boys to shake the fertilizer in the hills.

"We are always very careful in setting out tobacco. 'Frenching' is often due to bad setting. In the bed it is often due to an insect or defective root. I don't think it is due to heredity in the plant. I have saved seed successively from two crops of the 'frenched' tobacco, but did not find that it produced any great portion of 'french' tobacco."

RICHMOND CHEROOT PLANT.

Richmond, Va., March 23.

The Gordon Cheroot Company is the latest enterprise to begin operations in this city. The plant is located at Fifteenth and Main streets, and there are about 20 people employed in the place, exclusive of the managers and owners.

Fifteen of the most expert cheroot rollers in the city are employed. All the work is done by hand, no machine-made goods being turned out.

Manager G. H. Gordon, who was with the Whitlock cheroot factory as manager for many years is in charge of the new place, and he is giving his personal direction to the concern. Only one grade of goods is being made—"Gordon Hand-Made Cheroots." The factory is independent of the combine.

Mr. Gordon said:

"We will undertake to demonstrate that it is possible and profitable to employ cheroot-makers to make the smokes by hand, give employment to the best class of labor, cater to the local trade, invest money here and enable the merchants and the public to get all the benefits possible out of an enterprise for and by local capitalists. The success we have so far met with is most encouraging."

Mr. Gordon said that he had ample room to quadruple the output and that he believed the day was not far distant when he would have every available inch of the plant going full blast.

AUSTRALIA COULD RIVAL U. S.

As Tobacco Producing Country it Has Great Possibilities.

The following interesting article on the possibilities of Australia as an extensive tobacco producer has been received from John Plummer, of Sydney, New South Wales, who has thoroughly investigated his subject. Mr. Plummer writes:

"A considerable portion of the Australian Commonwealth, an area of at least several thousand acres, is, like many of the lands in the American Southern States, admirably adapted for tobacco cultivation, although the industry, after years of experimental labor, is yet in its infancy, Americans visiting Australia expressing surprise at the limited attention it has received in many places.

"In New South Wales, we are told, the systematic cultivation of tobacco dates from 1875, in which year it was introduced by three Chinese settlers, who produced within a few months a sufficiency of cured leaf to bring them £180, the Sydney selling price being 6d per pound. Four years later the prices rose to 8d and 9d per pound. In 1880 the area under cultivation in the Tumut district was 1,400 acres, on which 400 Chinese were employed. Two years later the price dropped to 5½d per pound, then to 5d, and, finally, to 4½d, at which it did not pay the growers.

"Recently the rise of keen competition in the Australian tobacco manufacture has occasioned a demand for locally grown leaf.

"The State Government has fully recognized the importance of encouraging the tobacco growing industry by establishing a couple of plantations, in which the practicability of obtaining a first class article has been clearly shown. Yet, notwithstanding this encouraging result, the area under cultivation in the State during 1903-4 was only 407 acres, the production being 5,220 cwt of leaf.

"In 1888, 4,883 acres were under cultivation, producing 55,478cwt of leaf, but there was no over sea market for it, and growers became discouraged. It was much the same in Victoria, where the area under tobacco in 1903 was 129 acres, against 2,029 acres in 1895, and in Queensland, where the area in the same year was 772 acres, against 1,061 acres in 1895.

"The cause of this decline is readily explained. The leaf had not, save by way of experiment, been prepared in such a manner as to find a sale in over sea markets. Much of the curing has been done in a somewhat primitive fashion, Australian farmers too frequently imitating the crude methods of the Chinese growers, who aim at quantity rather than quality.

"What can be done in the right direction is shown by the fact that, at the close of 1903, a number of test samples of manufactured tobacco, from leaf grown at the Victoria State tobacco farm at Edi, were prepared by the manager of an Australian tobacco company, who expressed himself pleased with them generally. All the leading importers in Melbourne also spoke favorably of the samples, and it was fully demonstrated that if due attention be given to the details of cultivation and curing, tobacco can be as successfully grown as any other agricultural crop in the Commonwealth. The sole difficulty has been the imperfect curing of the leaf. At the State tobacco farm at Texas a couple of tons of tobacco were raised, notwithstanding the absence of rain, which, when cured, realized 11d per pound at public auction, the highest price yet obtained in Queensland under similar conditons. Small quantities of tobacco are grown in South Australia, where there are extensive tracts suitable for the purpose, but at present remaining unutilized. In fact, it is believed that the Australian area capable of producing commercially valuable tobacco is larger than that found in the American Southern States. The quantity of unmanufactured tobacco imported into the Commonwealth during 1903 was 5,156,793 pounds, value £232,884, of which 4,998,969, value £224,961, came from the United States."

BIG DEAL FOR LOUISVILLE TRADE.

Ryan-Hampton Tobacco Co Absorbs a Number of Factories.

The Ryan-Hampton Tobacco Company has closed a deal by which it takes over the factory of Hetterman Bros., on Floyd and Breckinridge streets, Louisville, Ky., and will consolidate with it their factories at Bowling Green, Ky., and Martin, Tenn. The deal was handled by C. J. Meddis, Chairman of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Committee of the Commercial Club.

H. A. Wartmann is President of the company; R. W. Hampton, Vice President; W. E. Massey, Secretary and Treasurer, and W. B. Blakemore, general manager. They will employ about 250 people, and state that they will bring 100 or more skilled laborers with them, thus adding to Louisville's population.

They manufacture a number of brands of plug and smoking tobacco, and their output of natural twist is the largest of any factory in the South.

WELL-KNOWN CIGAR MAN DIES AT HIS HOME IN ST. PAUL.

St. Paul, Minn., March 23.

Samuel Lowenstein, prominent in the cigar trade of this city and in Republican politics, died at his home on Selby avenue this week, 57 years old.

Mr. Lowenstein, who has been in failing health for the past two years, was for years affiliated with the St. Paul Republican organization, and for ten years conducted a cigar stand in the old state capitol. He had a wide acquaintance with state politicians of both parties, and as late as the last gubernatorial campaign exerted an influence in Republican politics in the Seventh ward. He had been a resident of St. Paul for twenty five years and for years conducted a cigar factory and store on Jackson street, near the Merchants Hotel. In recent years he had conducted a cigar factory at 193 North Western avenue. He is survived by a wife and daughter.

SLOT MACHINES THROWN OUT.

Dealers in Cincinnati Will Have to Do Without Them.

Cincinnati, O., March 25.

All slot machines such as are used in cigar stores or saloons must be thrown out of local stores before the first of next month, one week from today. This is by order of Mayor Fleischmann, and it is believed that several thousand dealers will have to get rid of machines of various sorts under the order.

It is estimated that these machines have been averaging a business of from a few dollars to $50 per day apiece, and it is a pretty universally expressed opinion that their banishment will have a noticeable effect on business. Some dealers believe that it will really benefit the cigarists proper, as it is probable that quite a little saloon cigar trade will be diverted their way. The jobber expects to suffer, as he believes that consumption will be decreased.

In practically every city where these machines have been thrown out suddenly trade has immediately slowed up.

UNITED CO. BUYS IN BUFFALO.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 15.

The United Cigar Stores Company has purchased the two stores which have been conducted by S. Levyn, at Niagara and Main streets and at Main and South Division streets. Both stores are among the finest in the city, and, in fact, were recently refurnished at considerable expense and present a noticeably handsome appearance.

This means that the United Company has made up its mind to capture a share of Buffalo's good retail trade upon which it has had its eye in these sections for some time. The company's clerks are already in these stores and the establishments are being run along the chain store company's methods.

The business was established in the old Arcade by Sigmund Levyn in 1867, and was later removed to Main and Niagara streets, and still later enlarged to the store at Main and South Division streets. The present business was managed by Sidney G. Metzler and Mark Rafalsky.

MUST NOT MAIL CIGARS HERE FROM PORTO RICO.

A decision was recently made by Commissioner Yerkes at Washington, to the effect that cigars and cigarettes must not be mailed from Porto Rico to this country, owing to the fact that the practice, if it became at all extensive, would seriously interfere with the revenue system.

Packages of cigarettes or cigars coming into this country through the mails as merchandise or otherwise not put up in statutory sizes, stamped and in other respects not complying fully with the laws and the regulations, would be difficult of detection and would prevent the close supervision which is necessary to insure the collection of taxes on such goods.

RETAIL TAX IS WHAT WE WANT.

Boys, it seems to me that the retail end of the cigar and tobacco business has reached a pass where something ought to be done, and done quick. Otherwise, if things go on at the present rate of progress, the average retailer will have to take in washing to help him out on his meal ticket.

It certainly looks as if the time has come, if it is ever possible for it to come, for the imposition of an annual tax on the cigar and tobacco retailer. The proposition has been brought up in many places and in numerous instances, but so far, it has never gotten beyond talk. Naturally there is considerable opposition among the smallest retailers, and from those who are really outside the trade, but who have a cigar department in a small way. I understand that a good many manufacturers also, would be opposed to such a tax, but I think that in such cases, strictly in the trade, the opposition is a result of a misunderstanding of the effect the tax would have.

Every year, now, seems to bring along a bunch of new laws which make it harder to run a retail cigar store, and the fool cigarette laws that will make this year memorable, are typical. Step by step the business is getting more hedged about by obstacles than is the liquor saloon business.

The man who owns a saloon is under the ban of a license that carries with it a special tax. In return for his tax money he has the benefit of the restriction of competition which it provides as a natural and inevitable result.

A saloon proprietor in Philadelphia pays $1,000 for his license. The mere fact that he does pay it proves that he can afford to. In a way, he is glad to pay it, for he has no fear that every Tom, Dick and Harry who can get hold of a keg of beer, will start a rival thirst parlor a few feet away.

In short, the liquor business, in a certain sense, is under a ban and has to pay for that fact, but at the same time receives a distinct and valuable return for the outlay. The cigar dealer is getting to be treated as if he were under a ban, from which he experiences all the disadvantages and none of the benefits.

I tell you it would be a wonderfully advantageous move for the retail cigar and tobacco dealer if the government were to pass a law providing a license system for dealers in this branch of the trade, to cost about $50 a year, and revokable if the dealer proved unfit to hold it, just as in the case of a saloon keeper.

It would knock out all these butters in who are selling out of two or three boxes, so that the business would be divided legitimately; and what's more it would render unnecessary all the feeble, abortive, impractical, feminine, laughable, and at the same time bothersome laws that the "reformers" frame up with the tiniest grain of knowledge of actual conditions.

It would result beneficially to manufacturers instead of otherwise, for it would legitimize business and make collections easier and surer without decreasing consumption.

The dealer who declares that he could not pay $50 a year for the privilege of conducting his store has not thought it all out. If he is doing much of a business, let him count up his present mercantile tax for a year and subtract it from the $50—if he can. Then let him strike an average of difference made by dividing the amount of trade choked out by the new tax, by the number of dealers who remain in business, and while I admit that such an operation would be extremely theoretical, it would quickly be perceived that there would be a decided difference by which the dealer would materially benefit.

Just to demonstrate what a fierce proposition it is now-a-days for the man who is trying to make an honest living out of a cigar store, and nothing but a cigar store, let us suppose the following case, which is in no way impossible:

A man leaves his house in the morning. Maybe he feels a little rocky. Such things are likely to happen, so him for the drug store. He gets a bromo, but in order to sort of square it, he stops at the cigar case and purchases. He may be a married man, and it is not unlikely that he has to leave an order at the grocery. The grocery has a cigar department, and the clerk calls his attention to a particularly new and very superior brand that he's just got in. Another purchase.

But he may not be a married man or

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

"IF I had my time to go over again," said an old cigarist recently, "I would make it apoint to get nearer my clerks. I don't mean by that I would tell them all my affairs, or get garrulous in any way, but I would watch a clerk until I made up my mind I could trust him, and then I would have little talks with him.

"I'd tell him enough about my business to give him a sense of responsibility, and make him feel that he was part of the business and not just a day laborer. A clerk I couldn't follow that plan with, I wouldn't keep in my store. I know my pay roll would be larger, but so would my returns be."

This man has the right idea of it, and one which all the big successful stores are coming to have. The day of the clerk, who is either a dirty boy, or a cheap sport, is passing, and dealers are recognizing the necessity now of having gentlemen back of the counter who use their head as well as their hands.

It used to be that a man would spend a lot of money on the furnishings of his store and put the cheapest sort of clerks in, men who wouldn't even do at the ribbon counter, who couldn't begin to tend bar even. The idea was simply to get somebody to wait on the customers, and that is precisely what that class of employes did. Outside of an occasional clerk who forged to the front in spite of his discouraging handicap, the average clerk some years ago was little more than an automation.

Now in the big stores you will see a bright snappy lot of men who know their business, and who are getting ready to own a store themselves some day. The average tobacco smoker appreciates alertness and intelligence when he is buying his cigars, more than is the case in a dozen and more other kinds of stores, and a set of clerks that embody these qualities is the best equipment a store can have.

But above all, when you are engaging a clerk, and trying to get one which will answer this description, don't go to the wrong extreme and get one who is too much of a gentleman to be a clerk. He will cause you more loss than the dirtiest, shock headedest boy that ever was.

A certain store in Philadelphia took on a man of this sort some time ago, and the result was deplorable. The clerk in question had been well brought up with pretty good expectations. He did come into some money, but not as much as he expected, and he proceeded to blow it as fast as he could. Incidentally, he married a woman who had been brought up in the same manner.

When the money was gone it was a case of work for the fellow. Naturally he didn't welcome it, and he tried to apply what little had clung to him during his college years. He secured two or three really good positions through friends, and though they paid quite as much if not more than the average job of the same sort, the money looked very small to this fellow, and he left one after another.

Lately he got in pretty hard case and had to have something quick. A friend spoke to the proprietor of the cigar store in question, and as he had a vacancy, he agreed.

"Give him a fair salary," suggested the friend, "and though he hasn't had any experience in clerking, I think it'll pay you. The man's got a lot of good clothes and he looks like the real thing. He'll be an ornament to your store."

"All right," said the dealer, "send him along."

So the man went to work, and he looked much more like a swell customer than a clerk, and he acted much the same way. It irked him like everything to be cooped up in such a place, obliged to be at the beck and call of every man who had five cents to spend, and to take what he considered insults and all for a weekly sum which formerly wouldn't have kept him in cabs.

As a consequence, in about two weeks, every old customer avoided this particular clerk whenever it was possibie, and when it wasn't hastily bought what they had to have and ducked. The other clerks nicknamed him "languid Gus" and it was an actual fact that he was losing the store more trade every week than his pay amounted to.

The proprietor began to realize how things were, and finally spoke the man in a very decent way. The latter gave him a well bred stare for a moment and then said:

"Why, really, I give the Indians just what they ask for."

The dealer saw the case was hopeless, and after putting up with him for two weeks longer for the sake of the mutual friend, gave him the gentle good by.

So, in your search after the ideal clerk don't travel beyond your destination.

BE FORGETFUL OF SELF.

THE CLERK who will be successful in his chosen business, is the one who is able to forget himself while he is back of the counter and remember only that he is in the store to satisfy the needs of the customers whoever they may be or whatever they may want.

The clerk who is conscious of himself all the time, is thinking of his last night's fun, or his date for the coming evening, or who glances in the mirror every five minutes to see if his locks are still smooth, or who gives a hitch to his tie every little while, is going to stay exactly where he is, not moving forward an inch, until perhaps someone kicks him out.

If the clerk has no respect for himself as a clerk, he will never succeed and has no business to be in the business; but self-respect is not shown in that way. It is taken for granted that every clerk who is worth anything has ambition, and if he exercises his ambition by throwing himself heart and soul into his business to the extent of forgetting himself entirely, he is doing simply what every business man does. In fact a man's business ought to be himself, at least during business hours, and he ought to have no identity separate from it.

The clerk is a business man, and hopes to be more of a one someday so he had better regulate his life along business methods. Don't by any means be an automaton, but remember that your sole excuse is to sell goods or give the customer a reason for returning to the store. You are NOT behind the counter simply to occupy the hours until quitting time comes.

It doesn't make the slightest difference to the work of a good clerk what his wages may be, while he is working for them. He may know they are too small and may decide to quit, but until he has walked out of the store, he will pay just as careful attention to business as if he were getting a president's salary. That is self respect. The man's sense of pride in his own ability will not allow him to shirk under any conditions.

And when any clerk has reached that point he is on the right road, and on the road to prosperity.

TIPS FOR THE CLERK.

A CLERK must never let a customer wait while he puts an article back in the show case. The boxes will do no harm on the counter for a minute. The customer is not interested in the tidying up and does not want to have to loiter around until you get through everything else. The sooner he gets what he wants and leaves, in most cases, the better he is satisfied.

It is just as important that the salesman in a retail store should have a thorough knowledge of the goods he is selling as it is for the traveling salesman who goes out with a line from the manufacturer. He should carefully study his stock, and study prices, wholesale and retail. He should simply fill himself as full of information as he can, and he will find that it will always be valuable to him, something that will greatly increase his value.

It will pay him even, to know a lot about the manufacture of cigars, for he can not tell how soon or at what time he might need such knowledge. The man who soaks up his own business until he is a walking encyclopedia, is always much more valuable to his employer and himself than the man who doesn't.

For one thing his work becomes interesting to him and it is a pleasure to talk to customers. Don't be bombastic or seek to tell all you know at every opportunity, as an opposite effect will be produced. Salesmanship or clerkship can be made a profession and secure the same degree of respect as is accorded to any other profession.

DON'T CHEW THE RAG.

DON'T ARGUE.

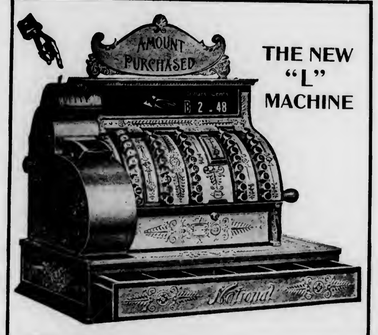
Don't argue among yourselves or with customers. If the customer starts an argument, answer his question in a pleasant way but don't carry along the discussion. It always takes two to make an argument.

You may know ten times more about the subject than the customer, or you may think you do, but the chances are nine to one, that if you win out in the discussion you will miff the customer and perhaps lose him.

No matter how often a man says "Well when I'm wrong I want to be told of it," it isn't the truth. No man likes to be put down in an argument. He may like to find out that he is wrong, but he would prefer to find out at some other time. That is the reason lots of men will stubbornly continue their side of an argument after they become morally convinced that they are wrong, simply in order to brazen it out.

And it is nearly as bad to argue among yourselves while customers are in the store. Don't even talk among yourselves on extraneous matters at such a time. And whatever you do don't whisper among yourselves when anyone is being waited upon. It gives a customer an annoying idea that he is being talked about.

If you must chatter, wait until no one else is in the store.



Some clerks will read this and sneer that the writer ought to be running heaven. Not at all. Such things as this make the difference between a first class store and a second rate one. You can use your own judgment as to which you would rather be in. If you are worth enough to bring business to your store such questions will solve themselves, for you will be too busy to think of such things.

Bear in mind that the store is neither a nursery or a play room but just as much of a business place as the office of the President of the Standard Oil Company.

Another thing: Devote yourself to doing things with the least number of motions. This is to save yourself work, but also to get the things done in the quickest possible time, or rather the other way around. When you get proficient in this respect you can have a number of customers waiting their turn and none of them will get impatient. When a customer, in a hurry or not, sees that a man is doing his best, and a pretty good best at that, he never makes a kick. And if, along with this, you are very careful to serve each customer in the turn in which he entered the store, playing no favorites, you will find things will go very nicely.

The American public long ago formed itself in line, and there is no being, so unpopular as the man who tries to push his way ahead of his turn on account of imagined importance.

This man that we are leading around doesn't shave himself. So we will pass on to the barber shop with him. Zip! Presto! He is shaved and in front of another cashier, who, like the rest of his kind, is bounded on the north, east, south and west by cigar boxes. Or the barber may have a whole darn showcase full of 'em. Alas! Our man's shoes need to be blacked. Where will he get them blacked? Oh! here is a place. Biz-z zzz! How nice his shoes look now. Come along man. Why, what is he doing? If he isn't making another purchase! See, the bootblack has some nice cigars.

What will we do with the man, now? He wants a morning paper. Here is a news stand. There is your paper, man. No, you don't want any more cigars. Yes, the news man has them, but you have got enough, now.

Come along, just a little further, man. Here you are. Here's your office. Good-by! Stay, though! What is this nice looking store next door to the office? What, a cigar store? You don't say! IF FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED

Keep on Trying, Provided You are Sufficiently Hopeful.

Cincinnati, O., March 25.

Announcement has been made that there will be another effort next summer to corner the growing tobacco crop, under the auspices of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Company and that the details of securing the loan would be undertaken with more care than in the last deal, which was broken through tobacco trust influences.

The farmers of every county in the Burley tobacco belt have held meetings during the past few days and have again promised to pledge their tobacco to the growers' company.

In return for this co-operation money is being advanced them by capitalists upon their present crops, which are being marketed very slowly, upon the suggestion of Archibald Stuart, of this city.

The tobacco situation is a somewhat trying one to the combine, as the farmers have taken advantage of the lateness of the season at which their tobacco was released and the shortness of the market supply to demand better prices, which they are securing.

Every merchant knows, and if he doesn't know he is not a successful merchant, that the more he advertises, within reasonable bounds, the more business he is likely to do, and the more money he is likely to make. Better spend a good deal of money in proper advertising and sell goods, than a few dollars and stagnate.

American Buyers Flocking to Havana Market.

They Evidently Believe What Stocks are Left Can Be Picked Up at Bargain Prices, But This is So Only With Classes of Tobacco Which Deteriorate With Age.

HAVANA, March 20, 1905.

The cry is "still they come," which in this instance, however, does not refer to the swarm of tourists which has visited Havana, greatly in excess of any previous year, but to the American buyers of leaf tobacco, who have flocked here either because there must be a scarcity of tobacco in the United States, or perhaps they thought no other buyers would be here and they would be able to pick up what stocks are left at bargain figures.

The latter view is erroneous, because while there are still enough goods on hand to supply the newcomers, prices have not gone down for any vegas of merit. The holders, knowing the situation thoroughly, prefer to keep their goods rather than to let them go at any concession, and this naturally restricts the number of transactions.

On the other hand, there are certain growths and classes of tobacco which will not improve with age, and these the owners are willing to let go, meeting the buyers in their views.

As regards the new crop, it is now said that owing to the rains in the Santa Clara province, there may be a chance of making another cutting of capaduras, so the number of bales may perhaps be a trifle larger, provided the rainy season does not set in too early to destroy the present hopes.

As far as Vuelta Abajo and Partido are concerned, it is too late now to increase the quantity of the crop. The few days of rain have enabled some farmers to take down the dried tobacco rom the poles, making it into bundles and to throw the latter into piles, so if the weather should prove favorable, the escojidas may start up some time in April.

last week are reported as 3,434 bales in all, or 2,581 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 230 of Partido and 623 of Remedios. The American buyers are credited with 2,255 bales, and the local factories with 1,199.

Exports during the past week were 4,929 bales, all to the United States, excepting 484 bales which had been previously purchased and were shipped per steamer La Normandie to the French Regie.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers

report very little change in the previously noted conditions. Orders are arriving in small quantities with regularity from nearly all the consuming countries, but the smaller factories are still complaining that business is not what they expected it to be at this season of the year.

Statistics, however, show that during the first two months of this year there has been an increase of about 9 per cent in the exports to all countries as compared with the year 1904; therefore, matters are not as bad as pessimistic manufacturers are apt to proclaim.

H. Upmann & Co. are doing a fair business, having received some good orders from the United States, Great Britain, South America and France, which may necessitate their seating more cigarmakers. Their shipments last week ran up to 475,000 cigars.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. have noted no falling off in the demand for their Partagas brand since the beginning of this year, and they still turn out on an average 45,000 cigars daily. Maquila (Don Jose Fernandez), who went to the Vuelta Abajo to inspect their recent purchases of the new crop, is highly pleased with the new tobacco, and is sure that the fame of the Partagas factory cigars will be fully maintained during this and the coming year, even if in order to do so they had to pay very high figures for the leaf.

Por Larranaga has made some good progress in the United States, since Don Antonio J. Rivero has been installed as the manager and Barron Taylor the sole agent for the United States. While Por Larranaga is one of the oldest factories, and has always preserved its reputation as a prime cigar in every respect in Europe and South America, the United States market had been neglected. Now, thanks to the wide awake and up to date methods of Don Antonio J. Rivero it is almost a foregone conclusion that Por Larranaga will be as popular as any imported cigar in the North American Republic.

Ramon Allones keeps up its accustomed activity, and Rabell, Costa Vales & Co. have no lack of orders from all quarters of the globe.

Behrens & Co. are working steadily in their Sol factory, having enough orders on hand to keep all their hands busy.

J. F. Rocha & Co. experience a fair demand for Nene and Jefferson from the United States, while the Crepusculo factory is working actively for the English market and South America.

Exports per steamer Mexico were 3,328,717 cigars.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Ben Rothschild was a liberal buyer, making purchases of from 600 to 700 bales of high class Vuelta Abajo, and Remedios tobacco.

G. Salomon y Hnos were the heaviest sellers the past week, delivering 700 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios to local and American buyers.

B. J. Krausman besides his previous purchases for Havemeyer & Vigelius, secured 300 bales additionally of very fine Vuelta Abajo?

Jose F. Rocha disposed of 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Robert E. Lane was fortunate in acquiring some of the high class Vuelta Abajo, lowland leaf, from the Partagas factory, about 225 bales, and with such a supply of leaf the firm of Cifuentes & Co., is bound to make cigars that will equal the imported Havana cigars as the secret of producing a high class aromatic smoke depends more or less chiefly upon the raw leaf which is employed.

A. Pazos & Co. have been busy people, buying in the country at the right prices and thus finding no trouble in disposing of 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo to various customers.

S. S. Swartz has been actively canvassing the market in company with John Creagh, and purchased some 500 bales of good, serviceable leaf for the Loeb-Creagh Havana Co.

B. Diaz & Co. turned over 330 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

D. Nussbaum posted himself thoroughly in looking over the various lots still to be had, and after purchasing some very fine Vuelta Abajo, lowland leaf, has gone to the country to have a look at the new crop.

Loeb Nunez Havana Co. sold 323 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

M Garcia Pulido made some transactions footing up 320 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez are busy making a big shipment for the Spanish Regie by the Spanish mail steamer leaving on the 20th inst. They closed out 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

Rodriguez, Bautista & Co. disposed of 146 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Jose Menendez was a seller of 125 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

WILL HOLD WHITE BURLEY FOR PRICE.

Ripley, O., March 28.

White burley raisers in Brown County met last week and decided not to force their crops on the market now, but instead to hang them in their barns when stripping is finished, and to place them in bulk in "keeping order" thus enabling them to sell whenever prices suit. A fund was provided to meet the immediate money demands of tenants

STARTED AS A JOKE

Was the Cigarette Law, but Legislators Couldn't Stand for Bribery.

Cincinnati, O., March 28.

State Senator S. K. Ruick, of Indiana, while in this city last week said that the anti-cigarette law recently passed by the Indiana Legislature originated as a joke, but after the expose of the effort to bribe Representative Annanias Baker to vote against it, other members feared if they voted "no," people would think they had been bribed so the bill passed. It prohibits anyone having cigarettes in his possession.

Advertise goods, not the men who sell them. If one half the space is used for the firm's name, nine-tenths of that half is wasted. Spasmodic advertising is as silly as spasmodic eating. To expect a single advertisement to pay is as foolish as to hope to grow fat from the effect of one dinner. Persistent advertising is absolutely necessary to success. The substance of a year's advertising cannot be done up in a ball and fired at a single load.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 27, 1905.

The weather wasn't so uniformly good last week that retailers were singing pæans of joy for the opening of the spring rush, but there was still enough improvement felt to make the dealers grateful for what is evidently soon to come. The box trade has picked up and that is an infallible sign of a substantial improvement.

The United Cigar Stores Company continues to do a very large business in this town, and judging by its actions, it is evident the company believes it can do a lot more. The policy seems to be a good deal on the "make or break" order, but at the same time, the past has proved that the chain store people have never taken a location without looking considerably ahead. The new branches of the company at 175, 196 Broadway, and at the corner of Liberty and Church streets are now running full tilt and the clerks seem to be kept pretty busy all through the business day. The company has made it a point to attract notice to their new stores by giving a premium on purchases made the first day, and the fact that by expending $5 in smoking, a customer could get a Tabard Inn Library membership, or for $25 in smokes, a $5 hat, all "for nothing" brought customers in droves.

This seems to have been the secret of the success of this company, simply playing on the desire of most men to feel that they are getting a little more than the worth of their money. A number of other new stores will be opened up very shortly and a similar plan will be followed in their case.

With the manufacturers, or at least a good portion of them, the bulk of the business continues to be done in the West, although the New England and Southern business is fair. Most of the factories are being kept busy on spring orders, and if the weather settles within the next few days these will be greatly increased. A number of manufacturers are commencing an aggressive campaign on their best brands and in such cases the goods seem to move pretty freely. No one is doing exactly a land office business, but there is very little real complaint.

The leaf market recorded nothing of special interest during the week, except, perhaps, the tendency toward Florida Sumatra, which was a natural result of the extremely stiff prices at the Amsterdam inscriptions. There were a number of transactions during the week in most grades of leaf, but trading could not be said to have been brisk, and the market was hindered quite a little by the feeling of uncertainty which the dealers have, owing to the prospect that prices will continue to advance on the new crops.

So far as can be seen the market will develop a stiffness that will alarm buyers who are already grumbling at what they are asked, and on this score, many dealers hate to let go of what they have in hand. There was some business done in Havana, but prices were higher and dealers were not anxious to sell. Quite a number of dealers are now in the Havana market with the idea of picking up what is left there at good prices, but they are likely to be disappointed.

Those manufacturers who have waited to take what they want, hoping that the prices would recede are finding it a bad move, as every change is an advance one. A little Sumatra was bought for immediate use, but the majority are waiting, when they are able, until they can see all the new goods, although it is likely that there will be a great gagging over the prices that must be demanded. This will react greatly in favor of Florida tobacco and will be a good thing for those who have been handling it. The lower grades of filler were in demand during the week but stocks are low in this respect and no large transactions are recorded.

The funeral of Jacob Bernheim, head of the firm of J. Bernheim & Sons, importers of Havana, who had died three days before, took place on Wednesday and the dead man passed to his last resting place amid the mourning of a large number of loving friends.

Mr. Bernheim's two sons, Isaac J. and Henry J., survive him in the firm, and these two have for years profited by the example of their father's business ability to an extent which will enable them worthily to act as his successors. Beside these, Mr. Bernheim left two other sons, and three daughters.

Jacob Bernheim was born about 74 years ago in Germany and came to this country when he was eighteen. He tried his hand at two or three different businesses before he settled in the tobacco business and it has been proven indisputably that his final choice was a wise one.

He commenced in no very large way about thirty years ago, but steadily advanced and developed his business until his retirement in 1899, since which time his sons have conducted the concern which well bespeaks the untiring ambition and ability of the boy who arrived in a strange country practically penniless.

Last week provided no actual news of the coming tobacco exposition except the fact that things are moving along without a hitch, and the committee is well satisfied with the way things are going. There is no doubt that the affair will be something even for New Yorkers to remember, and with all the big, unique shows of varied character that may be seen in town every year, this is saying a good deal.

Robert E. Lane states that he has secured the cigar privileges in the Trinity building on Broadway above old Trinity church, which he will use himself, and which will doubtless be an acceptable addition to Mr. Lane's well managed interests. The deal has been pending for some time, and as it went through, Mr. Lane has all the convenience privileges on the ground floor of the new building, such as news stands, telephone booths, boot blacking stands, etc., which it is probable he will sublet. The cigar stands will be in a very valuable neighborhood and in a short time should develop into a gilt edged investment.

The firm of Kahn & Zenn of 300 Canal street has become Kahn, Zenn & Heine by the addition of Bernhard C. Heine, who is well known in the trade. The junior member of the firm is about to take the road for the house to which end of the business he will devote himself. The firm manufactures a good line of clear Havana goods.

By the first of next month A. Rodena & Co., of 78 80 Murray street, manufacturers of clear Havana cigars, will remove their plant to 355-7-9 Greenwich street where the company will have the room which it has been needing for some time. The concern is comparatively a new one, but is a very lusty infant.

Alfred Meyer, of Alfred Meyer & Co., sailed on Saturday for Cuba where he will inspect the market. Mr. Meyer returned from Europe a few days ago.

The Florida Tobacco Co., of Maiden Lane, is profiting by the fierce prices which have obtained at the Sumatra inscriptions and a great many orders are being received for the company's excellent stock of light Florida Sumatra wrappers.

Charles S. Morris, of Charles S Morris & Co., who is in the West for the house, has scarcely gotten a fair start yet, but reports business as opening up well.

Edward Hilson, of the Hilson Co., is on his way to Holland where he will attend the remainder of the inscriptions.

Geo. V. Watson & Co., leaf dealers, are now located on the second floor of the Oppenheim building at 133-137 Front street where they are ready to have the trade drop in on them.

—It is reported that C. S. Gordon, representing the Interstate Tobacco Growers' Association, is arranging for the establishment of a $50,000 tobacco factory at Clarksville, Tenn., with a capacity of 600,000 pounds.

—The South Atlantic Cigar Company, of Petersburg, Va., will increase its capital stock from $10,000 to $20,000.

WITH THE TRADE IN YORK.

Many Traveling Men Here and Improvement is Noticed.

York, Pa., March 27.

There is a feeling that there is some little improvement in the cigar business in this county. One manufacturer in a county town received telegraphic orders for 80,000; another one reported shipments of 500,000 during the first 20 days of the month, and it is now believed that the month's business will not show up so badly after all.

Traveling men have again been energetically covering this section, and all seemed to secure satisfactory results. Wm. Taussig, of Taussig & Co., Chicago, was in this city during the past week, visiting the trade in company with J. Kosminsky, the firm's local representative; Chas. Cohen, with B. Labe & Sons, Phila.; G. W. Kreider, with J. Vetterlein & Co., Phila.; Phares Hildebrand, with J. U. Fehr & Son, Reading; M. Baum, of I. J. Schoener Co., Inc., New York, and W. E. Gheen, of Jersey Shore, Pa., were among the week's visitors.

The Red Devil scrap chewing and smoking tobacco is being advertised here this week. W. J. Wood, a factory representative, and a force of missionary workers have done good work in this section.

Warren Beck, of Warren Beck & Bro., manufacturers, left this week on a business trip through Western Pennsylvania.

F. C. Knapp, an experienced tobacco salesman, formerly employed by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, has taken a position as salesman with the Kohler-Snyder Tobacco Company, of Yoe, and will enter on his new duties on April 1.

H. F. Kohler, manufacturer at Nashville, speaks very hopefully of business prospects for his factory. He now has 76 cigarmakers seated, and would give steady employment to several more capable people. He is devoting his energies entirely to a higher grade of goods, and orders are coming in steadily.

W. H. Miller, of Windsor, will soon erect an addition to his cigar factory, which will almost double its present capacity.

A new factory building will be erected at Red Lion this spring as soon as the weather permits by Blochinger & Co. It will be a three-story, brick structure, 30x34 feet.

M. Hose, cigar box manufacturer and a member of the Dallas Cigar Company, at Dallastown, has purchased from Jacob H. Spatz, also a cigar manufacturer, a lot of ground at Main and Walnut streets, Dallastown, for $4500. It is intimated that Mr. Hose intends erecting a new building on the premises.

P. C. McCoy, of Dallastown, has been suffering for some weeks with an attack of bronchitis, but is now somewhat improved.

J. F. Spatz, a veteran cigar manufacturer of Dallastown, is seriously ill at his home in that borough, suffering from a complication of diseases.

P. H. Grove, a well known cigar manufacturer residing near Dallastown, was married early last week to Miss Hamme, a school teacher near Glen Rock.

D. B. Goodling and M. E. Plymire, cigar manufacturers at Loganville, this county, have been on a few days' trip to Washington.

Thomas A. Myers, of T. A. Myers & Co., has purchased the home of William Deitz, about three miles down the Wrightsville pike. The home is west of Charles Weiser's summer residence, and is one of the most beautiful parts of the county. Mr. Myers will make extensive improvements to the place and will make his future residence there.

CIGAR RETAILER HAS MORE COMPETITION THAN IS THE CASE IN ANY OTHER BUSINESS.

Is there another business on earth which has so much competition as the retail cigar and tobacco trade?

It is possible to stand in any civilized community and throw a stone in any direction far enough to reach a cigar store. So much for "legitimate competition." It is possible to stand in the same spot and throw a brick far enough to reach a place where a cigar may be bought.

It has got so everyone peddles cigars, because of the popular idea that there is a lot of money in it. As a matter of fact, considering all his expenses, the out and out cigar retailer secures a very small profit. There are a whole lot of dealers today, who are doing a big business, but doing it practically at cost, because they have apparently been unable to keep their expenses down to a proper proportion.

To them, the drug store cigar department, that of the grocery, the saloon or liquor house, the news stand, the restaurant, the hundred and one places where a man can stop in and buy a cigar, constitute a serious menace which is most serious because it is on the increase.

The majority of these outside people put in a half dozen boxes of cigars just "to accommodate our customers." But they have plenty of room for the cigars and are handicapping the legitimate retailer by the fact that they have to charge up no rent for them. Their profis accordingly seem large, and they soon begin to push that end of the business.

On the other hand there is the grocer, who is becoming more and more of a factor in the cigar business. When the department stores commenced to handle groceries the grocers sent up a most piteous wail that they were being robbed hands down by a set of pirates who if allowed to go ahead would soon be taking the counter from under them.

The connection between a cigar store and a grocery is not so clear on the surface as to form an immediately valid excuse for the grocer's breaking into the former business so extensively.

A great many manufacturers regard the situation with perfect good nature because they believe that the more places their cigars can be bought out of the box, the better it is for them. It is doubtful whether this is so in the long run, considering collections, the multitude of small accounts and salesmen's time, but on its face it appears to them like an attractive proposition.

Meanwhile, cigar store rents go up, more stores are opened, jobbers have to stiffen their prices on popular brands of smoking and chewing tobacco now and again, and all the retailer can do is sit tight, grit his teeth and hope for the best.

Is there a better remedy for the situation than the establishment of a government tax on retailers of a sufficient amount to wipe out at one blow the greater part of this outside competition?

Who can suggest a more feasible remedy?

MAY SPRING BRING PROSPERITY.

The smell of spring is in the air at last, and retailers are beginning to leave their store doors open. This is a good sign in itself, for an open cigar store door seems to have an irresistible effect on a consumer which is immediately apparent in the cash register.

Goodness knows it is time enough something was doing. The year has been surprisingly backward, not only in this trade but others, and not a few dealers have awaited the nesting of the robins as their only salvation.

Money has been tight and slow and there have been adverse conditions which seemed unexplainable. Of course every thing depends on the retail market and when that begins to whoop up the other branches of the business follow closely. The weather exercises such a tremendous effect on the amount of consumption over and above that which can always be counted on, that a particularly bad winter is something of a disaster to the tobacco trade.

That amount of business, which, as said, can always be counted on, is becoming divided into smaller and smaller shares, however, as competition increases, and long ago, the profits of a man's business consisted largely of what he could snatch out of "the dull season."

TOBACCO EVERYWHERE.

If things keep on, we will soon be growing tobacco in our back yards like we do onions and radishes. Every few minutes now, somebody discovers soil "particularly adapted to the cultivation of tobacco" in a State that had never been thought of before, while other countries besides the United States are preparing to branch out extensively in this direction.

Elsewhere in this issue is printed an article by an Australasian who claims for the soil in certain sections of his country special qualities, and believes that in a short time local planters would rival those of the United States.

Up in Canada they are commencing government experiments which are confidently expected to open up considerable new area for the raising of the plant. Certain Western States are learning to make profitable use of the soil in this way and an appreciable quantity of tobacco seed has already been used successfully in Texas.

Secretary Taft is insisting on having the Filipinos turned into a happy band of prosperous tobacco planters at our expense, and there are other places where similar operations are on foot Where is it all leading to? The Southern States, or New England, or Wisconsin, or Havana aren't giving out. Will tobacco soon be seriously and not humorously in a class with the cabbage? Over production always brings a swift penalty, and while such a happening seems by no means likely within the next few years, it is just as well to use discrimination in assisting the development of an industry.

A number of Pittsburg girls among others, have set their small feet down against the cigarette, and have adopted a "lips that touch tobacco shall never touch mine" platform. So far, it has set them back many plates of ice cream, but up to going to press, they were still holding out. The fiat is that no boy in their set may smoke cigarettes. If a boy in their set does smoke a cigarette and they find it out the boy is no longer in their set. In some cases it is reported as having come rather hard for the girls, but they declare they will carry it to a finish.

Ananias Baker, of Indiana, who recently caused a sensational scene in the Legislature by accusing a man, who he said was a lobbyist in the employ of the American Tobacco Co, of having sent him $100 to secure his vote against the anti cigarette bill, is so pleased with himself, that he is likely to become a regular cut up in the reformer line.

Representative Ananias has shown a commendable readiness to be interviewed since the exciting episode in which he figured so prominently, and in a recent talk with a reporter is quoted thus:

"We're not through yet with reforming," said Baker. "There are lots of things in this State that need 'cleaning up,' and they are going to be cleaned up, too. I may take a hand in it myself. The work against the bribers is not going to stop; no, sir; it's not."

Happy Indiana! Careless lobbyist!

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers

The past week has brought a noticeable improvement in the retail end of the business, the balmy weather increasing consumption in a large percentage. The box trade was much better during the week, and dealers were few and far between who were not able to report their share of the better conditions.

George O'Keefe, of Fourth street, is having a run this week on the Club House cigar, which he is putting out for 6 cents, and the Pandora, which he is selling for five cents straight.

Bock & Co., Broad street dealers, are enjoying a good trade, and all they ask is for the good weather to continue.

James I. Hassan, 6633 Woodland avenue, is attracting attention to his store by the exhibition in his window of a handsome oil painting done by one of his customers. Mr. Hassan always has something around his store that is worth looking at.

Clerks in the Chestnut street stores this week are not able to complain of having too much idle time on their hands. There was a regular rush at intervals.

A number of dealers around town are meeting the spring trade by preparing window displays which are bound to attract the elusive consumer. Not all of these are in the central part of the city, either.

The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of Philadelphia held its first meeting in its new quarters last Thursday night and an unusually good attendance was on hand. The new rooms at the northwest corner of Broad and Filbert streets are cozy and evidently pleased those present. The association had tried the experiment of having refreshments for the members present and the scheme obviously acted as a magnet, and accordingly will be continued.

The meeting was opened with President James I. Hassan in the chair and after the usual routine of the regular monthly meeting it was decided after some discussion to hold a picnic some time in June at one of the nearby parks where an admission fee of about 25 cents can be charged. The proceeds are to be used to defray the expenses of the delegation from the Association which will visit the Exposition to be held in New York in a few months.

The picnic will be a very enjoyable affair as extensive arrangements are being made for the entertainment of the crowd, a prominent feature of which will be a ball game between the Red Devil team and one made up of members of the Association. J. Harvey McHenry is captain of the former team, and H. J. Miller of the Association's nine. There will also be a Red Devil brass band on hand to help along the festivities.

The following compose the committee appointed to arrange for the picnic, the date for which has not yet been decided: D. A. Schaible, chairman; H. J. Miller, A. M. Griffis, F. W. Soren and Louis M. Goff.

Ways and means of invigorating the organization were earnestly discussed at the meeting, and it was finally decided to send a circular to every retail dealer in the city asking for his membership and explaining the purpose and benefit of the association. These circulars were sent out yesterday and read as follows:

Mr. Dealer: We are anxious for you to become a member of our organization and we are positive that it would prove beneficial to you. We are also desirous of having you suggest some plan whereby our organization can be increased in membership.

For the best suggestions received before April 15, we offer the following prizes:

1st. 100 Quatility cigars.
2d. 100 Seidenberg cigars.
3d. 1 box Pure Grape tobacco.
4th. 5 lbs. Arrow cut plug.
5th. 5 lbs. Faust Granulated.

We trust that you will give us the benefit of your views and thus aid a worthy cause. Send all answers to James I. Hassan, 6633 Woodland avenue.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

The best part of the business done by local leaf dealers this week was brought them by their salesmen who are in the West, things being pretty slow right in this market. There is no complaint at all from the section of the country mentioned, as manufacturers realize that they must have the leaf and spend little time haggling. In this market there is good enough inquiry but the buyers and dealers still have considerable trouble coming together, owing to the fact that dealers feel that they cannot afford to make the concessions most of the buyers ask for. Then again many buyers profess themselves unable to find what they want here and protest that they should not be required to pay such high prices for tobacco which does not meet their views.

Philadelphians who are attending the Sumatra inscriptions are hoping that the coming dates will bring more reasonable prices. So far it has been a bad year for buying, in all grades of leaf tobacco and the Philadelphia representatives hope they will be able to return to this market without having been forced to pay more than normal prices. Of course some Sumatra will be bought no matter what the price is, but it is probable that if it remains so high, more Florida Sumatra will be handled although there is a limit to the output of this grade.

George W. Newman, of Young & Newman, who has been on his Western trip for some time, expects to remain in the territory as long as the business keeps as good as it is now. Mr. Newman counts on making his banner trip.

A. M. Lake hopes to take the road next week for George Burghard. He has been delayed so far by threatened illness, but is now better.

Leopold Loeb, of the Loeb-Nunez Co., who has been in the Havana market for some weeks, is expected back in town about the last of this week.

Jacob Labe, of B. Labe & Sons, and Mrs. Labe, will be in Amsterdam at the next inscription.

L. P. Kimmig, of L. P. Kimmig & Co., disposed of some nice lots of his old packings during the week.

Julius Hirschberg & Bro. report business to be in good, healthy condition, and the firm has its full share of business.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Manufacturers are being kept busy now, if not by their city salesmen at least by the orders received from out of town and as every tendency is toward an increase, there is a feeling of considerable satisfaction. Many dealers who have been holding off in order to determine what sort of a spring we are likely to have, have evidently decided favorably for they are placing their orders and asking that they be filled in a hurry. When the box trade improves, there is an immediate demand on manufacturers, and as this is the case now, the factories are likely to be busy for some time ahead.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Myers made two arrests in this city last week in the case of the tobacco concern at Fourth and Poplar streets, the promoters of which are supposed to have infringed the internal revenue laws. These two make four men now implicated, who give their names as Manuel J. Portuondo, Samuel Sokolof, Louis Weinberg and Norbert Popper. Collector McCoach and Chief Deputy Collector Wilkes declare that the men bought cheap cigars and packed them in boxes marked with the name of a higher priced cigar. The stamps were also removed from the cheap boxes and placed upon the ones imprinted with the name of a well known cigar. Out of a lot of 10,000 cigars discovered by the government, it is alleged that 8,400 had been so changed. At a hearing the defendants were held in $500 bail each for court.

Arthur Hagen & Co., of Front street, are at present occupied in choosing the best location to which they can move in the course of a few weeks. On account of building operations it is necessary that the company vacate their present quarters soon, and it has not yet been decided where they will next pitch their tent, two or three different good locations being in mind.

The new "44" Cigar Co., which was recently incorporated with B. Lipschutz at its head to manufacture the well-known 44 brand, is doing so well that arrangements are being made for extra factory room. Mr. Lipschutz is finding it hard work to keep up to his orders, and will probably have to open another factory soon.

The will of Edward Bachelor, the cigar manufacturer, who died recently in this city, at his home 886 North Sixth street, has been probated and leaves an estate valued at $80,000 in trust to his wife. On his widow's death the estate reverts to the children.

Sam Jacobs, Gumpert Bros.' well known representative, is back from his New England trip, and will remain in Philadelphia for a little while. Mr. Jacobs says business is pretty good in the territory though which he traveled, with prospects for better.

Frank A. Reese, who has for six years been bookkeeper for Hagan & Co., of Front street, is about to resign his present position and will accept a similar one with Seeler & Co., bankers and brokers, to the regret of Hagan & Co. He will be succeeded at the Hagan office by Charles Cramer, whose father was formerly a well known jobber on South street.

The removal of Bayuk Bros. from Market street to North Third street was a very fortunate thing, as the increased factory accommodation would have been sorely needed in the old building with the present batch of orders on file.

Dempsey & Koch report that their cigars are moving in the West as fact as they can get them out there, and the chief difficulty is not to get orders, but to fill them on time.

A new manufacturing company will soon be in operation with offices in the Betz building, the members of the firm being the sons of the late Joseph Heyman. The factory will be established in this section, and the company will put a high grade line of cigars on the market.

Samuel Jeitles, of Jeitles & Blumenthal, manufacturers at 856 North Randolph street, has returned from an extensive Western trip which he states was entirely successful.

Vetterlein Bros. are having about all they want to attend to just now, business in the South being especially good.

JEFFERSON CO., TEXAS SHOULD BE GOOD FOR TOBACCO RAISING.

Beaumont, Tex., March 26.

Tobacco raising in Jefferson, if what experts claim is true, could be made an industry that would grow in importance, and become one of the great wealth producers in this section of Texas. A high grade of tobacco is raised in Lavaca county, southwest of Jefferson, and a high grade of tobacco is raised in Nacogdoches and other counties north of Jefferson, and as the soil and climate conditions here are equally good as in other localities named, why should not Jefferson become a great tobacco growing section of the State? For cigar making, the Texas leaf is claimed by expert cigar makers to be superior to the Mexican tobacco and almost as good, if not fully as good, as the Cuban and Sumatra articles. All that is needed to create a demand for Texas tobacco is to make the tobacco, and when there is a sufficiency of it raised in any one section, there will spring up big tobacco factories to handle it, and buyers will come to the tobacco fields from the great centers of Europe.

OLD CIGAR MANUFACTURER DIES.

Joseph H. Maffett, 55 years old, for thirty-five years a cigar manufacturer of Paterson, N. J., died suddenly of a hemorrhage of the brain. He had stepped into the store of one of his customers to see about an order for cigars, when he was taken sick. He was taken home in an ambulance, where he died within fifteen minutes. He leaves a widow and an adult son.

MICHIGAN MANUFACTURES MANY CIGARS.

The manufacture of cigars is shown to be one of Michigan's greatest industries in the annual report of Labor Commissioner Malcolm J. Leod. The 527 factories with 6,611 employes turned out during the year 213,844,850 cigars, of an aggregate value of $6,481,637. Of the 2,716 female employes in the state, 2,138 are in Wayne county, which also furnishes 350 of the 387 working children under 16 years of age. Eighty two per cent of the factories employ union labor.

COMBINE MAY ENTER SPOKANE.

Dealers of That City Fear Such May be the Case.

Spokane, Wash., March 27.

Word has reached Spokane that the American Tobacco Co. has started in on a campaign in Portland and Seattle, to gain control of the retail tobacco trade. The trust made a fight in San Francisco and for a time there was no telling where its invasion would end. Later, however, the retailers are said to have regained their foothold to some extent, although it is admitted that the trust cut into their trade.

The system of the trust it is reported is to undersell the retailers and to buy up larger concerns. This plan may soon be put into operation in the coast cities, according to advices received here. Some of the larger tobacco retailers in Spokane express the idea that although they have heard nothing to the effect that a like move will be made in Spokane it would not surprise them greatly should the trust people start a campaign here. The trust moves quietly and and it may be hard for the local men to know exactly when it has commenced operations.

FINANCIAL STATUS OF THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY.

How Much the Public is Concerned in the Great Combine, the Recent Reorganization of Which Was One of the Largest Financial Undertakings of the Day.

The following article which shows the ins and outs of the recent reorganization of the three arms of the combine into the present American Tobacco Co., and its present relation to the public, was prepared for the Boston Transcript and is well worth careful perusal.

About $215,000,000 par value of the securities of the new American Tobacco Company are distributed in the hands of the public. Thus the importance of the American Tobacco Company as a financial undertaking is not to be lightly considered, as regards its bearing upon the general investment situation. For, with one or two exceptions, possibly with the single exception of the Steel Corporation, the American Tobacco Company embraces more capital than is included in the make-up of any other industrial corporation. It is in keeping with our great industrial prosperity as a nation, to record that this great trust is, in prosperity also, in the front rank of American industry. However, there has rarely been so complicated and so little understood a financial condition as has resulted from the various consolidations and reorganizations of the tobacco companies. The Trust issued its annual report for 1904, last week. Analysis of the conditions there set forth, and of the latest reorganization of the company, will help investors, present and future, to understand the situation of the property.

The old Consolidated Tobacco Company was formed in 1901 by the amalgamation of the American and Continental companies. Additional capital to the amount of $40,000,000 was provided by subscription at par to an initial $30,000,000 of common stock, and by a later subscription to $10,000,000 worth. This common stock was taken by the inside interests. The Consolidated Company then issued $157,378,200 of bonds, and these bonds have represented the public interest in the tobacco properties for several years.

The reorganization perfected recently, increases the public holding of the securities without much increasing the par value. But, by an ingenious device, the preferred stocks which were held in the treasury of the Consolidated Company, are funded into bonds, and the control of the entire corporation is vested in $40,242,450 of common stock. Investors are anxious to know the standing of the new six per cent. preferred stock and of the four and six per cent. bonds of the new American Tobacco Company.

The six per cent. bonds which rank first, total $56,090,416, maturing in 1944. The six per cent. bonds are secured by a sinking fund of $500,000 annually. The four per cent. bonds follow the six per cent. in their claim upon earnings, and amount to $78,689,100, due in 1951. Neither of these bonds is a mortgage, but they are secured simply by the collateral for which they have been exchanged. There is the same amount of new preferred stock as there is of four per cent. bonds; and this $78,689,100 of six per cent. cumulative preferred stock has no vote in the election of directors and no vote at all except for certain expressly stated purposes, such as the increase or the scaling down of the capitalization. Thus this whole total of $215,000,000 of new securities has no say in the management of the company, and has a value proportionate only to the earning power and assets. It is gratifying to find, as we shall point out below, that the earning power and income afford a very substantial basis of value.

The difference between the market value placed upon the outstanding Consolidated Tobacco fours and the new American Tobacco fours, has led to many inquiries as to the difference between the two issues. When the reorganization was promulgated holders of a majority of the $157,378,200 of consolidated fours deposited their bonds with a committee and agreed to accept for them an equal amount of the 6 per cent. preferred stock, thus guaranteeing that the full authorized issue of preferred stock would be made. Meantime an offer was made to all holders of the old fours to exchange their bonds for one-half preferred stock and one-half new fours. The preferred stock to be issued was limited to one-half of the par value of the old bonds, so that had all the bondholders assented the preferred stock would have been exchanged. When the time expired for the public to exchange its securities the committee, which had deposited a majority of the bonds exchanged the required amount of them for the balance of the preferred stock, and the public were left with no privilege save to exchange their old bonds for the new bonds, or, if they preferred, to keep their bonds as they were.

The issue has shown that the inside interests, understanding the whole situation, profited largely by exchanging their bonds for preferred stock, whereas the public were left unenlightened as to the value of the new bonds, and many of them did not make the exchange. It now develops that, in accordance with the terms of the trust agreement, holders of a majority of the old 4 per cent.

bonds have voted an alteration in the terms of the agreement, so as to reduce the issue by one-half, and to allow the outstanding new American Tobacco bonds to share ratably with the old fours, in all the terms of the agreement. Thus, unless this nicely completed scheme is upset by some process of litigation those who were well informed have been able to get for their bonds a preferred stock which sells fifteen points higher; and those who were not on the inside sharing in the underwriting, and who did not make the half and half exchange offered to them have no other course than to see their old securities gradually selling toward the same figure as the new American Tobacco fours bring in the market.

The value of the Tobacco securities is of more public interest than is the financial engineering by which the capitalization has been reorganized. The Tobacco Trust controls the old American Tobacco Company, which makes smoking tobacco and cigarettes, and the Continental Tobacco Company, which makes plug tobacco. Control is also held of the Havana Tobacco Company, and of the American Snuff Company, of which $10,000,000 par value or nearly half of the capital stock is owned. There is also included the American Cigar Company, $7,000,000 out of the $10,000,000 of this company's stock being owned. There are $20,000,000 of American Cigar Company four per cent. bonds guaranteed by the Trust, but the American Cigar Company earned $807,012 above its fixed charges in 1903, and $810,370 in 1904. The American Tobacco Company, which is the name by which the old combination is now known, controls also the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain, and owns two-thirds of the $30,000,000 of the stock of the British-American Company, which controls the export trade. It is doubtful if any tangible results have occurred from this foreign business. At any rate it will be remembered how the Trust gave away its product throughout Great Britain for a year, and realized no profit at all in 1903.

All that there is known about the earning power of the individual companies comprised in the combination, is that they do not pay all that they earn into the parent company. However, the net earnings in 1904 are reported as $22,304,696. The deductions to be made from these earnings are $3,365,425 for interest on the six per cent. bonds, $3,147,564 for interest on the 4 per cent. bonds and $4,721,346 for dividends on the preferred stock. These payments total $11,234,335, so that there is a balance for the $40,242,450 common stock of over $11,000,000. It is stated that these earnings are reported after large expenditures are made to maintain and to improve the properties. An initial dividend of two and one-half per cent. has been paid upon the common stock, which is thus seen to be earning above twenty-five per cent. The value of this stock is the concern only of the inside interests, who have distributed the prior stocks and bonds, with their limited dividends, among the public, and have themselves retained control of the company through the common stock. Its value is therefore to be determined by its owners, who manage the company.

It is true enough that an extremely rich security is thus put in the hands of the insiders, who can control $255,000,000 with a majority of only $40,000,000, especially since the common stock is now earning twenty-five per cent. Tobacco people are very enthusiastic over the prospects for this company, which, before receiving the benefits of the consolidation, is already in a very flourishing condition. Those who begrudge the insiders their profits must remember that only by giving exceptional stability to the $215,000,000 of publicly held investments can the owners add to the value of their common stock. The management has shown a conservatism that bespeaks a desire to build up substantial value for the company for the good of all its security holders. The resources have been carefully guarded and a large surplus has been accumulated.

The balance sheet is an exceptionally strong one. The total of current liabilities is but $8,809,236 in cash. Then there are bills receivable of $41,522,716, against which are practically no current liabilities. The profit and loss surplus of the company, after the writing off of some $10,000,000 in the reorganization, stands at $29,518,880.

—One thousand pounds of smoking tobacco were sold last week by Collector McCoach, First District of Pennsylvania, which had been confiscated in the Eastern Penitentiary.

The continuous appearance of an advertisement is an endorsement of honesty and permanency. The merchant who appears in print but once is regarded with suspicion. Do not begin to advertise unless it is your intention to stick to it for a length of time.

Leaf Market Moderately Active; Changes Among Manufacturers.

Lancaster, Pa., March 27.

The local leaf market was moderately active during the past week, and the volume of business was restricted only by a scarcity of goods. Old stock is still being closely hunted up and comparatively little remains outside of the larger city packers.

There was a heavy delivery of tobacco last Friday and Saturday, and what little remains in growers' hands is being rapidly bought. It is claimed that by April 1 there will be little, if any, left in grower's hands.

H. H. Miller, North Queen street, leaf dealer, returned last week from his three weeks' trip through the South. He is feeling much improved and looks it.

On about April 1st, ground will be broken by the S. R. Moss Cigar Co. for the erection of a new factory building, which will be located on North Prince street, directly opposite the present factories. It will be a four-story brick structure, 75x45 feet and equipped with the most modern improvements.

A new leaf warehouse has been built at Akron, this county, by A. N. Wolf, and is just completed.

B. F. Newswanger, of this city, is putting up a new factory building on North Charlotte street, which is to be ready for occupancy by May 1.

Imhoff & Co., extensive cigar manufacturers at Denver, this county, are making preparations for removal to larger quarters in the same town. The building formerly occupied by Slabach & Seigfried at Denver, is to be occupied very soon by Samuel Dornbach, who has been manufacturing at Cocalico.

Walter S. Bare, of Lititz, has returned from a four weeks' business trip through the West, going as far as Minneapolis. It is said he opened a number of desirable new accounts.

The cigar manufacturers of this county have experienced a rather quiet month, and while many of them are working steadily, none have any rush orders in hand.

J. G. Shirk, wholesale tobacconist, has just made his second large shipment of tobacco to Alaska.

Recent visitors in the leaf trade here were Carl Haeussermann, of L. G. Haeussermann & Sons, Philadelphia; F. Eckerson, of F. Eckerson & Co., Philadelphia; W. E. Gheen, Jersey Shore, Pa., and Julius Marqusee, of New York.

NOTES FROM CINCINNATI.

Saturday's Sales were Small and Quality was Poor.

Cincinnati, O., March 27.

Offerings at last Saturday's public cigar leaf sales were small in quantity and the quality was generally poor, the bulk of the lot being common fillers and stogie stock. Connecticut binders and wrappers ranged from 4¼ to 13 cents, Zimmers from 3 to 8 cents, and seed leaf and Wisconsin from 1½ to 6 cents. Total offerings were 72 cases, all at one house. Stocks on hand are quite extensive, and warehousemen report a fair movement through other channels than the auction breaks.

J. Stacy Hill, who operates several down town stores, has returned from a three weeks' stay in Florida.

Joseph Cantor, Fourth and Main streets, is looking for a new location. The build-

General opinion is that spring trade is hardly as good as last year at this time.

Emil Trautman, prominent cigar broker, died last Saturday after an illness of several months. He was unconscious for the last week, and his will which he had ordered prepared was left unsigned. The estate is valued at $30,000.

Business at the Buckeye Warehouse, a new commission leaf house, is in fine shape, according to the company's promo ors. Regular sales are being held, and they are accumulating stocks quite rapidly.

The white burley market on new tobacco last week was strong under sharp competition between the American Co 's buyers and independent manufacturers. The best price for the present crop yet received was at the Bodmann House on Thursday, when a single package of fine cigarette wrappers brought 20½ cents.

BUHRMAN.

STILL BETTER IN BOSTON.

Retailers are Kept as Busy as They Like to Be.

Boston, Mass., March 26.

Business in the cigar and tobacco line continues to improve daily and the constant flock of drummers to the Hub further evidences this fact. The weather, with the exception ot one day during the past week, has been at its best, and even on that day though quite a snow storm visited the city, the majority of retailers claimed to have had a good day's trade, and the cash registers were kept going at a merry pace.

The local cigar manufacturers continue to advertise their various brands. Schubert Bros. are putting out a lot of attractive advertising matter for their Schuberts' Havana Smokers, which enjoy a good sale throughout New England. Joe McGreenery has put on a corps of salesman who are doing plenty of canvassing on the Poet cigar. Baker Bros.' Smokers are being well distributed throughout the city. Traiser's Harvard cigar, with the new box label of a Harvard student, looks very attractive.

At the convention yesterday afternoon, held at Faneuil Hall, of the Anti-Cigarette League, H. Butterworth, president of the league, presided. Hon. Chas. B. Hubbell, first president, of the Board of Education of Greater New York, made the principal address. "The cigarette," said he, "is a greater menace to this country today than either rum or opium." Dr. H. O. Marcy told of the suffering caused by the cigarette habit, and Miss Lucy Page Gaston, of Chicago, told of the work of the league in the West and took charge of the new recruits secured at the meeting.

A. Z. Bendheim, of the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., N. Y., is in town showing a line of cigars and cigarettes.

S M. Frank, the pipe man, from New York, spent the week here calling on his numerous customers.

Ralph M. Gans, of Gans Bros., clear Havana cigar manufacturers, of New York and Key West, called on their Boston distributors, Rosenthal Bros., on Tuesday. The William the Fourth brand is selling well here.

E Sterling, a tobacconist of Worcester, Mass., was here on Wednesday.

S Van Buren, with the American Tobacco Co., is here doing missionary work on the Royal Bengals. With every hundred, two packages of Sweet Caporal little cigars are being given gratis.

The Scott Dillon Co.'s Stronghold plug chewing is selling nicely.

Miller's Kozy continues to sell better daily and can be found in nearly every cigar store here.

Jas. Quinn, a retired wholesale tobacconist of Boston, died on March 20, at Hot Springs, Va., of heart failure.

A. O. Waterman, Vice President of the Waitt & Bond Co., makers of the celebrated Blackstone cigars, died at his home in Malden on March 22.

E. Kleiner & Co., of New York, had a representative here this week showing a fine line of clear Havana cigars.

Hugh Campbell, President of the U. S. Tobacco Co., is in town.

J. N. Finkelstein's new store on Federal street opened for business yesterday under the title of the Norma Cigar Co. Johnson & Co, expect to have the new store on Federal street ready for business in about two weeks time. With the United Cigar Store, and Rosenbaum & Co., also on Federal street, and Jaynes & Co. and Walker Rintal & Co.'s stores not far distant, it looks as if there must be plenty of money in this locality. One thing is sure the rents are steep.

Menaski cigarettes are having a good run. E. J. Mulligan, who has charge of the advertising department certainly has shown his skill in the display he made in the window of the Lexington Hotel on Boylston street.

El Cafe Boquet Cigars continue in favor and can be found at every first class retail store here.

Turkish Delights, with the cork tip, have made a hit. On account of the good margin to be made on these goods, the retailers are pushing same.

Boston Cigarmaker's Union 97, last night voted $1,650 in death benefits to beneficiaries of three deceased members each to receive $550. The members are Wm. Garner, Paul Lehman and J. Oldenbroock, who all died during the week.

The question whether a commercial traveler may legally offer goods of his house on more favorable terms if the customer shall agree not to deal in the goods of any other firm, is involved in a case now before the full bench of the Supreme Court. The constitutionality of the statute governing the matter is also at stake.

The case is that of the Commonwealth vs. Abe Strauss, a traveling salesman employed by the Continental Tobacco Company. The defendant was found guilty of offering a special discount of six per cent if certain Brockton and Bridgewater dealers would cease handling union or independent goods and contends that the statute is unconstitutional, because it impairs the rights of private persons regarding matters not affecting the public interest.

It is also argued that the acts of the defendant come within the scope of every-day competition. The Commonwealth urges that the law is valid, as coming within the police power of the State as a regulation of trade rivalry which is a violation of the moral and economic law, in that it enjoins something declared to be against public policy. It further urges in support of the validity of the act that it prohibits any attempt on the part of manufacturers or producers to force those who deal with them to refuse business relations with anybody else

MUSTN'T USE FLAG ON BOXES.

New York Legislature Bars Stars and Stripes for Advertising Purposes.

Albany, N. Y., March 27.

Much comment will undoubtedly be caused in the trade by the signing by Governor Higgins last week of the Wainwright bill which makes for the protection of the United State flag from desecration, mutilation or improper use of any kind. The bill is now chapter 80 of the laws of 1905, and has attracted particular attention because it is supposed to be directed particularly at the tobacco trade, there having been frequent instances where the manufacturers have used pictures of the stars and stripes on their advertising designs and packages.

The new law provides that any article or device for carrying or transporting merchandise shall not have upon it any representation af the flag, under penalty of $50 for each offense, to be recovered in an action that may be brought by any citizen. The act takes effect Sept. 1. This measure is understood particularly to be aimed at packages or boxes used by cigar or cigarette or tobacco companies

When told that the tobacco companies would contest the measure in the courts, Gov. Higgins replied, "That is what our courts are for."

INTERNAL REVENUE RETURNS FOR FEBRUARY.

The Internal Revenue returns from the United States for the month of February show an increase over February, 1904, in the output of cigars, while in little cigars there was a falling off of nearly 20 per cent. The only other commodity in which there was a really notable change was tobacco, which indicates an increase of 10 per cent. Snuff shows a falling off of 12 per cent. In cigarettes a fair increase is again shown. The figures are as follows:

	Feb. 1904	Feb. 1905
Cigars,	$1,399,532.74	$1,493,728.17	Increase,	$95,195.43

ANOTHER FROM THE JOURNAL.

This Time Consumers are Being Systematically Poisoned.

The Chicago Journal, which had rather fallen down for a little while on its exciting serial graphically illustrating how the consumer is knocked down, gagged, maced, robbed and poisoned when he happens in the wrong store, reappears with another thrilling number which is reproduced with sincere pleasure. The thrill:

"A secret bureau, whose members are not known to each other, has unearthed valuable information concerning numbers of alleged illegal acts of the trust, and these in due time will be brought before the proper government authorities.

"After thoroughly analyzing certain brands of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes sold in the stores of the New York tobacco trust, the chemists have reported that matter positively injurious to the health of the smoker has been found.

"'Tobacco experts have been employed by our association for some time to investigate this matter thoroughly,' said the head of the publicity department of the Independent Dealers' Association. 'We have endeavored to ascertain the cause of complaints made by consumers in the habit of smoking these brands.

"'The astonishing result of the examination by the experts was that out of seven different brands five were found to be injurious, while the other two contained only the cheapest grades of young and uncured tobacco, which in itself is dangerous to the health of the smoker.

"'This partly explains the seductive and impossible prices made in the trust stores on goods at 6 and 8 cents that are supposed to be worth 10 or 15 cents. Irrespective of these prices, which are calculated to catch the bargain hunter, such goods should be debarred entirely from the open market at any price.

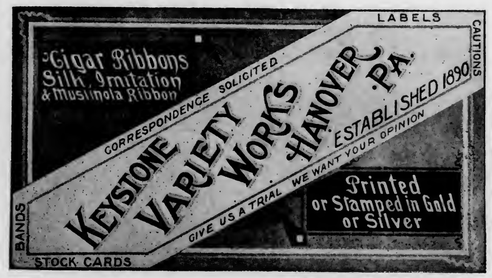
"'With all the tricks and tactics employed by the trust, such as misrepresentations of facts, hiding its identity behind assumed names over the doors of their own stores, causing frenzied finance statements to go out to the public, and what not, we manage to get at the inside of actual facts.'"

RIVALRY TO SUPPLY TOBACCO TO NAVY DEPARTMENT.

The contract for tobacco supplies is among the most valuable in the command of the Navy Department, and much interest is manifested in its capture among the tobacco manufacturers of Richmond. The firm of Butler & Bosher, of Richmond, Va., had been the successful bidders for many years until last year, when the contract went to Larus & Bros. Co., who will be bidders for the present year.

The Bureau of Supplies and Accounts has decided that in future all bids for the annual supply of tobacco intended for the naval service shall be advertised for in the autumn instead of as at present and hitherto, in the spring. The bureau will open bids on April 12th for the current year's supply, about 150,000 pounds.

CHATHAM WANTS BUYER.



Chatham, Va., March 25.

The executive committee of the local board of trade has appointed H. D. Shepherd to consult with the American Tobacco Company, as to placing a buyer upon the market. If the committee's action meets with success the establishing of a tobacco market will be assured. Mr. Shepherd is about to leave for New York.

The house which advertises liberally must be known, by name at least, throughout the country, and while that advertising seldom sells goods directly, every drummer who has studied the subject is impressed with the tremendous advantage given him in making sales by the persistent, regular, dignified and liberal advertising of the firm which he represents.

THREE DEATHS IN THE TRADE.

L. A. Brown, a prominent tobacconists, well known throughout Southern Kentucky, died at Clarksville suddenly of heart failure. He was connected with the tobacco business in Clarksville for twenty years, removing there from Owensboro, Ky. The remains were shipped to Owensboro, where interment took place this afternoon.

F. W. Loudenber, aged fifty-seven years, a well known cigar manufacturer who formerly resided in Columbus, Ga., died at his home in Chattanooga. His wife and five children survive him.

L. E. Shaw, of the firm of Shaw Bros., cigar dealers, No. 457 Woodland avenue, Cleveland, O., died at the Cleveland General hospital after an illness of several months.

COLLEGE-RAISED TOBACCO BRINGS FOURTEEN CENTS.

Louisville, Ky., March 24.

Henry F. Ware, of this city, bought from Prof. M. A. Scovill and D. F. Frazee, a few days ago some 8,000 pounds of tobacco which had been raised at the experimental station of the Kentucky State College, the Board of Trustess of which Mr. Frazee is President. A price of fourteen cents a pound was paid for the lot, which is probably the best average which has been paid in this section this year. The tobacco was grown under the personal supervision of the two men mentioned as conducting the sale, and was said to be as fine a crop as has ever been raised in the State.

MUSTN'T GIVE 'EM AWAY in CHICAGO

The Appellate Court in Chicago, on Monday, affirmed a ruling of a lower court upholding the validity of an ordinance of the city of Chicago prohibiting the giving away of cigarette papers with tobacco.

NO MORE SLOT MACHINES.

Two Thousand of Them Will Be Cast Out in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., March 27.

Taps have been sounded here and in the suburbs of Madisonville, Norwood, Bellevue, and Newport, Ky., for penny slot machines. Agitation, which has been conducted intermittently for years, decided the authorities to banish the "silent salesmen."

It is roughly estimated that there were more than 2,000 of the devices in cigar stores alone. Naturally, the majority of cigarists regret the passing of the machines. At one down town place regular credit books were kept of patrons' winnings when they did not care to collect. It is said that several customers have a thousand or more checks to their account.

Dice games have been started in several places. Joseph A. Busse, at Fifth and Elm streets, is one of the few who believe business will increase rather than decrease with the slot machines gone. He said to the Tobacco World correspondent: "Temporarily, receipts may fall off, but in the long run I think that much of the cigar trade which has hitherto fallen to the saloons as a result of the machines will revert again to the cigar stores. Men often won more than they wanted in the way of drinks, and quite naturally the surplus checks were applied to the purchase of smokes at the saloon cigar counter."

BUHRMAN.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. HANDS ON STRIKE.

Owensboro, Ky., March 27.

Forty hands at the factory of the American Tobacco Co. have gone on strike. They were employed in the tying room, and received thirty-five cents a hundred for retying tobacco. When a five cents increase was refused they walked out.

Advertising is both a preventive and a cure for dull times. In good times it should be taken; in dull times it must be taken. It should be in the system all the time; the more sickly the business outlook, the bigger should be the doses.

KANSAS A TOBACCO POSSIBILITY.

Farmers are Devoting Considerable Acreage to the Plant.

Leavenworth, Kan., March 24.

Quite a number of farmers in Platte county, particularly in this section are devoting considerable of their acreage to the cultivation of tobacco, as it has been successfully demonstrated that the land is available for a superior quality of leaf. As a result of the developing industry, a number of warehouses are being built throughout the country at favorable points.

The farmers who have tried tobacco, report their crops to have been profitable so far, but say they require a tremendous amount of hard work. One man cleared $1,904 from fourteen acres last year and considers that he did very well. The farmers say that the soil is in fine condition for the raising of the plant, and will last a long time under proper management, which they propose to see that it gets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

Which kind of tobacco shall we raise in the valley to suit the buyers and the packer, broad leaf or Havana seed? These are the two leading kinds grown by the farmers of the valley, and these are enough without turning to the raising of tented Sumatra, for from all reports the prices of the latter are not so high in proportion to the cost of raising as to make it desirable for the average farmer to indulge in, and in all probability only the broad leaf and Havana will be raised to any great extent for the present. When the farmers began to raise the Havana it was said by many that the Havana was the more preferable on account of its easier handling, and that was not the only reason. The buyers liked the broad leaf over and above the old seed for its better burning qualities and for the fine glossy appearance. At that time it showed a finer surface than did the old seed. for it had been raised here only a few years, and the shape and coloring of the leaf were fine in comparison with the old seed. But the tobacco has been raised here so long that the gloss has faded from the surface, the lustre has left it and it has become the color of the old seed. No doubt more pounds can be raised to the acre, but its superiority over the old seed has vanished with its glossy appearance. It is not so elastic as formerly; the form of the leaf has changed to a more pointed leaf, much longer and wider, with a larger vein, and its real worth as a wrapper has diminished in proportion to the size of the leaf. In point of fact it is approaching the broad leaf type as fast as climatic changes can operate. If the farmers will procure seed that has not been grown here for more than six or seven years, they will produce a tobacco that will bring to the grower as much or more money than can be procured by the tobacco now raised and called Havana seed; for there is now little resemblance to the Havana as raised fifteen or twenty years ago. The Havana as commonly grown is fast losing its toughness and it has to be handled almost as carefully as the old seed.

so we will be thinking about them soon About the same acreage will be raised this year as last I think."

Montague, Mass.: "About the same acreage will be grown in town. About all the tobacco grown in Montague is raised in the southern part of the township. No seed beds are being made yet."

North Hatfield: "I report the sale of the remnant of crop of R. M. Swift, about 1,700 pounds, at private terms."

Wethersfield, Ct.: "The acreage of tobacco here will be about as usual There is some tobacco still hanging, we not having enough warm rains to take it down this winter All of it is sold. Latest crops sold were those of James Eagan, James R. Anderson, E. R. Smith to Havemeyer & Vigelius, who have bought most here assorting and packing at Warner & Adams' packing house."

Suffield, Ct.: "There is not much tobacco selling just now, although I hear of two sales at good prices. Loads of tobacco pass by every few days to be delivered that were sold some time ago. Also load after load of cottonseed meal that is to be used as fertilizer for the next crop."

Bradstreet, Mass: "I report the sale of Henry S. Moore's crop of tobacco to Carl, of Hatfield; some five acres in the lot, sold cased, I think. There is only one lot left in growers' hands, L. H. Wights, which is now in the sweat room of L. F. Graves of Whately."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The annual spring break up of the roads has begun to interfere with tobacco movements in the country, curtailing riding and delivery of purchases; but despite these impediments business is pushed in some quarters and under more favorable conditions the volume of sales would be fully maintained. The bulk of recent sales are made at moderate prices such as would move the balance of the crop, the following being samples:

J. M. Estes, 10a and 7 and 2c
J. Christianson, 16a at 7½ and 2c
E. Gunderson, 9a at 7 and 2c

Old leaf is becoming scarce in country hands and scattering lots are being steadily hunted. Halverson & Bitters sold 60cs of '03 and Ole Jacobson 104cs of '01 to Weil & Co.

The deliveries are well along and packers have an abundance of stock on hand that will ensure steady work until the end of the season which promises to run with some firms well into the summer months.

Growers are anticipating an early spring. There is but little frost in the ground and a few days of warm weather is only needed to see the plant beds under way.

Shipments were 500 cases—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.
M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 383 hhds, offerings on the breaks 17 hhds, public and private sales, 25 hhds, almost entirely old crop at firm and unchanged prices. The new crop is selling relatively much higher than the old tobacco.

We have spring weather now, and the deliveries are full to the prizing houses, which pass from there to the sale ware houses, from whom the planters can obtain advances of money.

The Association reports large signing of pledges for a full reduction of plantings this year.

For old tobacco we quote:

Common Lugs	3.75 to 4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00 to 4.25
Good Lugs	4.25 to 4.75

A. T. CO. REPRESENTATIVE TALKS.

Thinks Owensboro Will Lose Prestige as Second Largest Market.

Owensboro, Ky., March 24.

One of the newspapers of this city has printed the following as the result of an interview with a representative of the American Tobacco Co., whose name is not given:

"My company began operations in Owensboro in 1891. That year the amount of tobacco sold in Owensboro was between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 pounds. Of the 1903 crop there were 31,000,000 pounds sold here This shows a gain of at least 17,000,000 pounds for Owensboro. Of course, this represents the increase of tobacco attracted to the Owensboro market, not the increased growth in Daviess county or in any special district. In the meantime the export of the Owensboro type of tobacco has actually decreased.

"It is an interesting fact, but there are those who do not know that Owensboro is the largest loose leaf tobacco market in the world, with the single exception of Danville, Va. The way matters are working now Owensboro will lose this prestige and it will go to Louisville, as the Equity plan seems to be to store and sell the tobacco from this region in Louisville. This does not matter much to my company. We have bought as much as 4,000,000 pounds in Louisville before in one year and while we would much prefer to buy large quantities in Owensboro, we can buy it in Louisville just as well. It is probable that not more than 18,000,000 pounds will be sold in Owensboro of the 1904 crop. This is a big falling off from last year. The crop of 1904 is only about sixty per cent. of the crop of 1903. At this rate the prices are about on this proportion: Where we paid $4 last year we are paying $5.60 this year, and for the quality that we paid $5 last year we are now paying $7, with other prices in proportion. It would seem, then, that the withholding by the organized farmers has had little or no effect on the market price.

"Lastly, a fact worth mentioning and which some overlook is this; there are now in Louisville and for sale 6,700 hogsheads of tobacco and in Owensboro and for sale 1,000 hogsheads."

There is no better way of building up business standing than by free and liberal, and at the same time dignified, business advertising.

A. T. CO. REPRESENTATIVE TALKS.

Owensboro, Ky., March 24.

One of the newspapers of this city has printed the following as the result of an interview with a representative of the American Tobacco Co., whose name is not given:

"My company began operations in Owensboro in 1891. That year the amount of tobacco sold in Owensboro was between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 pounds. Of the 1903 crop there were 31,000,000 pounds sold here. This shows a gain of at least 17,000,000 pounds for Owensboro. Of course, this represents the increase of tobacco attracted to the Owensboro market, not the increased growth in Daviess county or in any special district. In the meantime the export of the Owensboro type of tobacco has actually decreased.

"It is an interesting fact, but there are those who do not know that Owensboro is the largest loose leaf tobacco market in the world, with the single exception of Danville, Va. The way matters are working now Owensboro will lose this prestige and it will go to Louisville, as the Equity plan seems to be to store and sell the tobacco from this region in Louisville. This does not matter much to my company. We have bought as much as 4,000,000 pounds in Louisville before in one year and while we would much prefer to buy large quantities in Owensboro, we can buy it in Louisville just as well. THE WAY AND THE MEANS

¶ There are more ways than ONE to do everything—but every way isn't the BEST way.

¶ If it is any part of your business to produce GOOD cigars, you need GOOD Cigar Tools.

¶ NATIONAL TOOLS are just a little bit BETTER—and a little bit CHEAPER—than YOUR tools.

¶ Because we have the patents, the skilled labor, unusual manufacturing and selling advantages, and we know our business.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR BOARDS, hard, strong, heavy and smooth; no knots, streaks or spots; can't warp or split.

¶ NATIONAL CIGAR KNIVES and CUBAN BLADES hold their edge and never botch the job.

¶ Another thing, we don't charge several prices for NATIONAL TOOLS, and we give your money back if they don't suit.

¶ Ask for our Special Proposition, meant particularly for YOU.

¶ The coupon brings it.

NEW TRADE MARK LAW IN EFFECT

Became Operative April 1, and Every Manufacturer Should Learn Points of Interest.

Washington, D. C., April 1.

By an act of Congress which takes effect today the law authorizing the registration of trade marks in the Patent Office is amended to permit the registration of trade marks used in interstate commerce, as well as those used in commerce with foreign nations and the Indian tribes, and subject to registration under the old law; and in addition, the new law provides that any mark which was in actual and exclusive use as a trade mark of the applicant or his predecessors from whom he derived title for ten years next preceding the passage of the act, may also be registered; thus permitting the owners of a class of trade marks for which registration has heretofore been refused to obtain registration; that is, marks which may consist merely of words which are descriptive of the good results with which they are used, or of the name of an individual or firm, corporation, or association, or a geographical name or term.

The new law also provides that the Commissioner of Patents may cancel the registration of any trade mark, on the application of any person injured by such registration, if it shall appear after a hearing before the Examiner of Interferences, and he shall so decide, that the registrant was not entitled to the use of the mark at the time of his application for registration, or that the mark is not used by the registrant, or has been abandoned; and when there are interfering trade marks, any person interested in any one of them may have relief against the interfering registrant by suit in equity, and the court may order the certificate of registration to be delivered up to the Commissioner of Patents for cancelation.

It is further provided that before granting registration the Commissioner shall cause the mark to be published at least once in the Official Gazette of the Patent Office, and any person who believes that he would be damaged by the registration may oppose the same by filing notice of opposition, stating the grounds therefore, within thirty days after the publication of the mark sought to be registered.

The latter provision enables the true owner of the trade mark to prevent his right to its exclusive use from being jeopardized by the registration of the same or a similar mark by an applicant who may not be entitled to registration.

The life of a certificate is changed from thirty years to twenty years, but the certificate may be renewed, from time to time, upon certain conditions, and the payment of the required fee. The government fee is reduced from $25 to $10.

Registration will afford prima facie evidence of ownership, and any person using any registered trade mark, without the consent of the owner thereof, will be liable to an action for damages, and on a rendition of a verdict for the plaintiff, the court may enter judgment for three times the amount of such verdict.

Under the provisions of this act a large class of trade marks may be registered, for which no provision to register was made under the old law. To obtain the benefits of registration under the new law owners of trade marks heretofore registered may have theirs re-registered.

The Chief of the Trade Mark Division of Patents Office unofficially advises all manufacturers to re-register all their marks if designed to be used in interstate commerce. If the mark is entered for use in foreign countries exclusively, it is already amply protected under the old law.

AUSTRALIAN TOBACCO TRADE DEPENDS ON UNITED STATES.

Tax on Tobacco is So High in that Country, and American Tobacco Co. Such a Factor Indirectly, that Many Manufacturers are Discouraged. American Methods will be Adopted More Extensively.

New York, March 31

In a conversation with a man from Australia who is on a visit to the United States representing prominent tobacco interests in that country, the man from the Antipodes let fall some very interesting facts relating to the conditions of the trade in that country as relates to monopoly.

Anything of this nature is deeply interesting to our trade, as the best part of tobacco used in Australia is grown in our own States. The percentage of Havana used is comparatively small, and some tobacco has been taken from the Philippines but has not gained much of a market. The gentleman with whom I talked declared that the Australians regard American manufacturers as by far the most progressive, and propose to inaugurate American methods of manufacture to a greater extent in Australia.

"In Australia," said he, "there is also a heavy tobacco tax which seriously hinders the man who has a small capital, and tends to centralize the business in the form of big corporations or trusts, who are perfectly satisfied with the highest kind of a tax, because the higher it is, the more it drives the little fellows out.

"This is how the tax works: Suppose that the real cost of ten pounds of a certain grade of tobacco in the hank is $1, and suppose that this tobacco can be worked up and put upon the market for $1 more, so that, when $2 has been paid for it, ultimately the cost of growing the leaf, of manufacturing it into the smoking or chewing commodity and of selling it to the public is all paid for.

"But suppose the government puts a tax on this quality of tobacco amounting, say, to $1. Then the manufactured product would have to be sold for $3. Indeed, it would have to be sold for more than that, for the manufacturer who has to pay the dollar of tax to the government will demand from the consumer not merely its return, but interest on that dollar for the time it was locked up in the product. If the consumer should refuse to pay the dollar, plus interest, to recompense the manufacturer for his outlay of the tax, then the manufacturer naturally will discontinue to manufacture.

"Hence, the consumer of tobacco must in the end pay the tax levied upon production, plus interest upon the amount of that tax.

"The business in Australia has not been on the highest wave of prosperity, although the same is true of every business, trade generally, being rather slow. To remedy this condition a number of plans have been proposed.

"The proposal with regard to tobacco may be divided into two parts. One relates to the revenue. It is argued by some that the government would get more revenue from this source if the selling of tobacco products were a government monopoly. But this is answered by the fact that more revenue is now raised in Australia per man by the present tobacco tax than is raised per man by the tobacco monopoly in France, which is the most prosperous tobacco monopoly country in Europe.

"But aside from the revenue question, some want the tobacco industry to be nationalized because they want all industries taken over by the government. They select tobacco now because the revenue question has raised the question of a government monopoly.

"It is certain that the tobacco industry is capable of great development, if the right methods are employed, but too many are afraid, because, in addition to the tax, the American Tobacco Co. is so much of a factor in the situation, inasmuch as it controls such a large proportion of the American plant"

E. J. MARQUETTE

WISCONSIN LINES UP WITH OTHER ANTI-CIGARETTE STATES.

Madison, Wis., March 30.

Wisconsin is desirous of taking rank with the anti cigarette States, and the Wisconsin Senate has just passed the Evans anti cigarette bill, after a long debate.

Like the one in Indiana, this measure absolutely prohibits the sale or manufacture of cigarettes or cigarette paper, and nothing is needed now but the Governor's signature.

SALESMAN INCREASES SALES BY ARTISTIC TALENT.

A salesman for a tobacco house, whose name is Baker, is making quite a hit through the Virginia trade by his cleverness as a cartoonist. He uses his talent in this direction to advertise his goods, and gives specimens of rapid drawing in every town he takes in.

$204,660 FOR EXPERIMENT.

Bureau of Soils is Given That Amount With Which to Grow Tobacco.

Washington, D. C., March 30.

The annual agricultural appropriation which has been passed by the House, allots to the Bureau of Soils, for mapping and studying tobacco soils, the unusually large amount of $204,660. The duties of the bureau, in relation to tobacco, are specified as follows:

"To map the tobacco soils of the United States; to investigate the soils and conditions of tobacco growth in Cuba, Sumatra and other tobacco competing countries; to investigate, in cooperation with the Bureau of Plant Industry, the methods of curing, with particular reference to fermentation; to originate, through selection and breeding, improved varieties for the principal tobacco districts of the United States, and to secure as far as may be a change in the methods of supplying tobacco to foreign countries; the location of the stations; rent of buildings, not to exceed $4,000 per annum, for office and laboratory purposes; the employment of local and special agents, clerks, assistants and other labor required in conducting experiments in the city of Washington and elsewhere, and in collecting, digesting, reporting and illustrating the results of such experiments; the preparation and printing of reports, drawings and illustrations."

The Secretary of Agriculture is also authorized to engage such experts as may be for the best interest of the service, as hitherto the strict enforcement of the civil service rules has hampered the Department in securing, in particular, tobacco experts. It is thought this authority will help the Department's work, but the salary of such special scientific help is limited to $3,000 per annum, which is regarded as a very moderate salary.

NEW ADDRESS FOR BALTIMORE CO.

Lilly, Dungan & Co. Will Move Into Quarters in 3-Story Building.

Baltimore, March 31.

Lilly, Dungan & Company, of this city, will shortly be installed in the three-story building at Baltimore and Liberty streets and Hopkins place, in which they will occupy the basement and first floors, sub-letting the upper stories. One of the greatest advantages of the building consists of the eight windows which can be used for display purposes, and when the refurnishing is concluded which is now going on, the establishment will be one of the handsomest of its kind.

The basement will be largely occupied by humidors which will have a capacity of several hundred thousand cigars. The company now has quite a chain of stores, which includes 7 West Saratoga street and two stands soon to be opened in the Continental Trust building. The company now has the agency of the Romeo and Juliet factory of Havana.

—The American Stogie Co. will erect a large factory building on Ontario street, Allegheny, Pa., plans for which are now in preparation.

By an act of Congress which takes effect today the law authorizing the registration of trade marks in the Patent Office is amended to permit the registration of trade marks used in interstate commerce, as well as those used in commerce with foreign nations and the Indian tribes, and subject to registration under the old law; and in addition, the new law provides that any mark which was in actual and exclusive use as a trade mark of the applicant or his predecessors from whom he derived title for ten years next preceding the passage of the act, may also be registered; thus permitting the owners of a class of trade marks for which registration has heretofore been refused to obtain registration; that is, marks which may consist merely of words which are descriptive of the good results with which they are used, or of the name of an individual or firm, corporation, or association, or a geographical name or term.

The new law also provides that the Commissioner of Patents may cancel the registration of any trade mark, on the application of any person injured by such registration, if it shall appear after a hearing before the Examiner of Interferences, and he shall so decide, that the registrant was not entitled to the use of the mark at the time of his application for registration, or that the mark is not used by the registrant, or has been abandoned; and when there are interfering trade marks, any person interested in any one of them may have relief against the interfering registrant by suit in equity, and the court may order the certificate of registration to be delivered up to the Commissioner of Patents for cancelation.

It is further provided that before granting registration the Commissioner shall cause the mark to be published at least once in the Official Gazette of the Patent Office, and any person who believes that he would be damaged by the registration may oppose the same by filing notice of opposition, stating the grounds therefore, within thirty days after the publication of the mark sought to be registered.

The latter provision enables the true owner of the trade mark to prevent his right to its exclusive use from being jeopardized by the registration of the same or a similar mark by an applicant who may not be entitled to registration.

The life of a certificate is changed from thirty years to twenty years, but the certificate may be renewed, from time to time, upon certain conditions, and the payment of the required fee. The government fee is reduced from $25 to $10.

Registration will afford prima facie evidence of ownership, and any person using any registered trade mark, without the consent of the owner thereof, will be liable to an action for damages, and on a rendition of a verdict for the plaintiff, the court may enter judgment for three times the amount of such verdict.

Under the provisions of this act a large class of trade marks may be registered, for which no provision to register was made under the old law. To obtain the benefits of registration under the new law owners of trade marks heretofore registered may have theirs re-registered.

The Chief of the Trade Mark Division of Patents Office unofficially advises all manufacturers to re-register all their marks if designed to be used in interstate commerce. If the mark is entered for use in foreign countries exclusively, it is already amply protected under the old law.

AUSTRALIAN TOBACCO TRADE DEPENDS ON UNITED STATES.

Tax on Tobacco is So High in that Country, and American Tobacco Co. Such a Factor Indirectly, that Many Manufacturers are Discouraged. American Methods will be Adopted More Extensively.

New York, March 31.

In a conversation with a man from Australia who is on a visit to the United States representing prominent tobacco interests in that country, the man from the Antipodes let fall some very interesting facts relating to the conditions of the trade in that country as relates to monopoly.

Anything of this nature is deeply interesting to our trade, as the best part of tobacco used in Australia is grown in our own States. The percentage of Havana used is comparatively small, and some tobacco has been taken from the Philippines but has not gained much of a market. The gentleman with whom I talked declared that the Australians regard American manufacturers as by far the most progressive, and propose to inaugurate American methods of manufacture to a greater extent in Australia.

"In Australia," said he, "there is also a heavy tobacco tax which seriously hinders the man who has a small capital, and tends to centralize the business in the form of big corporations or trusts, who are perfectly satisfied with the highest kind of a tax, because the higher it is, the more it drives the little fellows out.

"This is how the tax works: Suppose that the real cost of ten pounds of a certain grade of tobacco in the hank is $1, and suppose that this tobacco can be worked up and put upon the market for $1 more, so that, when $2 has been paid for it, ultimately the cost of growing the leaf, of manufacturing it into the smoking or chewing commodity and of selling it to the public is all paid for.

"But suppose the government puts a tax on this quality of tobacco amounting, say, to $1. Then the manufactured product would have to be sold for $3. Indeed, it would have to be sold for more than that, for the manufacturer who has to pay the dollar of tax to the government will demand from the consumer not merely its return, but interest on that dollar for the time it was locked up in the product. If the consumer should refuse to pay the dollar, plus interest, to recompense the manufacturer for his outlay of the tax, then the manufacturer naturally will discontinue to manufacture.

"Hence, the consumer of tobacco must in the end pay the tax levied upon production, plus interest upon the amount of that tax.

"The business in Australia has not been on the highest wave of prosperity, although the same is true of every business, trade generally, being rather slow. To remedy this condition a number of plans have been proposed.

"The proposal with regard to tobacco may be divided into two parts. One relates to the revenue. It is argued by some that the government would get more revenue from this source if the selling of tobacco products were a government monopoly. But this is answered by the fact that more revenue is now raised in Australia per man by the present tobacco tax than is raised per man by the tobacco monopoly in France, which is the most prosperous tobacco monopoly country in Europe.

"But aside from the revenue question, some want the tobacco industry to be nationalized because they want all industries taken over by the government. They select tobacco now because the revenue question has raised the question of a government monopoly.

"It is certain that the tobacco industry is capable of great development, if the right methods are employed, but too many are afraid, because, in addition to the tax, the American Tobacco Co. is so much of a factor in the situation, inasmuch as it controls such a large proportion of the American plant."

WISCONSIN LINES UP WITH OTHER ANTI-CIGARETTE STATES.

Madison, Wis., March 30.

Wisconsin is desirous of taking rank with the anti cigarette States, and the Wisconsin Senate has just passed the Evans anti cigarette bill, after a long debate.

Like the one in Indiana, this measure absolutely prohibits the sale or manufacture of cigarettes or cigarette paper, and nothing is needed now but the Governor's signature.

SALESMAN INCREASES SALES BY ARTISTIC TALENT.

A salesman for a tobacco house, whose name is Baker, is making quite a hit through the Virginia trade by his cleverness as a cartoonist. He uses his talent in this direction to advertise his goods, and gives specimens of rapid drawing in every town he takes in.

$204,660 FOR EXPERIMENT.

Bureau of Soils is Given That Amount With Which to Grow Tobacco.

Washington, D. C., March 30.

The annual agricultural appropriation which has been passed by the House, allots to the Bureau of Soils, for mapping and studying tobacco soils, the unusually large amount of $204,660. The duties of the bureau, in relation to tobacco, are specified as follows:

"To map the tobacco soils of the United States; to investigate the soils and conditions of tobacco growth in Cuba, Sumatra and other tobacco competing countries; to investigate, in cooperation with the Bureau of Plant Industry, the methods of curing, with particular reference to fermentation; to originate, through selection and breeding, improved varieties for the principal tobacco districts of the United States, and to secure as far as may be a change in the methods of supplying tobacco to foreign countries; the location of the stations; rent of buildings, not to exceed $4,000 per annum, for office and laboratory purposes; the employment of local and special agents, clerks, assistants and other labor required in conducting experiments in the city of Washington and elsewhere, and in collecting, digesting, reporting and illustrating the results of such experiments; the preparation and printing of reports, drawings and illustrations."

The Secretary of Agriculture is also authorized to engage such experts as may be for the best interest of the service, as hitherto the strict enforcement of the civil service rules has hampered the Department in securing, in particular, tobacco experts. It is thought this authority will help the Department's work, but the salary of such special scientific help is limited to $3,000 per annum, which is regarded as a very moderate salary.

NEW ADDRESS FOR BALTIMORE CO.

Baltimore, March 31.

Lilly, Dungan & Company, of this city, will shortly be installed in the three-story building at Baltimore and Liberty streets and Hopkins place, in which they will occupy the basement and first floors, sub-letting the upper stories. One of the greatest advantages of the building consists of the eight windows which can be used for display purposes, and when the refurnishing is concluded which is now going on, the establishment will be one of the handsomest of its kind.

The basement will be largely occupied by humidors which will have a capacity of several hundred thousand cigars. The company now has quite a chain of stores, which includes 7 West Saratoga street and two stands soon to be opened in the Continental Trust building. The company now has the agency of the Romeo and Juliet factory of Havana.

—The American Stogie Co. will erect a large factory building on Ontario street, Allegheny, Pa., plans for which are now in preparation.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

LAUGH, BUT BE SURE THE WORLD LAUGHS WITH YOU.

A pleasant smile is a good asset for a traveling man, and a hearty laugh is a better, provided the latter is backed up by a proper amount of judgment. Many a man has sold many a bill of goods on the strength of two or three laughs in the right place, but they have got to be in the right place.

A goodly number of persons who were born without a sense of humor, and have recognized the fact have adopted as a means of concealing it, the simple expedient of laughing very frequently, trusting to luck in hitting the right times, or else being regarded as unusually expert in the detection of humor.

The trouble is that these persons fall down on the proposition too often for their own good and so the plan isn't a safe one. Every man wants you to laugh with him, but the minute he suspects you of laughing at him, you are a gone goose.

There is one salesman I have in mind at this moment, who is accounted a fair salesman but who is compelled to avoid certain houses which used to be good customers of his employer because he can't get along with the people. He told me once that he had offended them he supposed, but he couldn't for the life of him tell how.

"I've always treated 'em right," he said, "and I know positively they never had a legitimate kick on what they ordered from my samples. But the air grew chilly in their direction and I got so I noticed an air of constraint everytime I went in their places, so I thought it was the best policy to cut it out and let the house try to get the business in some other way. If I believed it would do any good, I would ask one or two buyers outright what was the matter, but I knew I'd get no satisfaction."

I had an idea at the time that I sensed the trouble, but forgot about the matter till one day I happened to be in conversation with one of the very buyers that had been mentioned, when this salesman passed us in the hotel lobby where we were sitting.

Some remark was made about him, and I said: "Are you buying anything from his people, now?"

"No," was the answer, "I'm not. The goods were always satisfactory, although I can do just as well elsewhere, but the principal reason is that I don't care to do business with this particular salesman, I don't like his methods."

This buyer and I were pretty good acquaintances, and some time later in the conversation when we were discussing the characteristics of a mutual friend, the buyer of his own accord reverted to the salesman, in order to illustrate a point he was making.

"Now, there's that fellow," he said. "If you ever had much to do with him, you will appreciate it when I say that he illustrates just what I'm trying to tell you. When he first began to come to my place I thought he was a jolly good fellow; always had a good word and a laugh and never seemed down in the mouth. Well he laughed so much when he was in my company, fully half of which emotion I was unable to trace to any irresistible humor on my part, that I began to chafe under it.

"It got so the laugh grated on me, and I began to hesitate before I uttered a remark in order to rid it of any germ of humor. The best I got was always a happy, silly laugh, though, and it finally got on my nerves. I thought the man must either be an idiot or was trying to kid me, and I dreaded his approach.

"One day the boss, who is abroad most of his time, was in the office when this man sailed in, and I couldn't get out of introducing him. Now, you've met the boss and you know what a serious, earnest old proposition he is. Moreover, I discovered long ago, that in spite of the fact that he is engrossed in his business, he is as sensitive and suspscious as a woman, and if the same qualities existed in a younger man I would call it self consciousness.

"The bane of the old man's life is his possession of that nose of his. He never drinks a drop, but you know how bulbous and red it is, and the contrast is so sharp with his otherwise pale face. I skate mighty slow around that nose, and found out long since, that he imagined things about it that nobody would dream of.

"Well, the salesman shook hands cordially, and expressed his pleasure at meeting the head of the firm with which his people had been dealing so long.

A Cigar of Real Quality, made in various sizes, ranging from $35 to $300 per thousand.

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

THERE are entirely too many cigar dealers who think too much of present sales and too little of future business. They will take a chance of disappointing a customer when he begins to use his purchase, for the sake of making the sale.

That is such an obviously penny wise, pound foolish proposition that it is astonishing that anyone would adopt it, but the number who lose business this way is surprising.

Remember that you expect to be in business next year and the year after that, and in five years; in fact as long as the business pays you, which won't be long if you do business from day to day.

There are numerous cases where it would be the height of folly to call the customer's attention to some slight and unimportant defect which he would probably never discover himself. Such overdeveloped honesty on your part would receive no credit, in fact it might make the customer suspicious that you were trying to get him off his guard in order to do him in some larger way.

But never under any circumstances allow a man to walk out of the store with goods which he bought under any misunderstanding, however slight. Don't promise anything for your goods that you know they cannot fulfill. If a cigar is worth five cents by the hundred to a smoker it is better to convince him that they are worth five cents, than to give him the idea while he is buying them that he is getting a ten cent article. It is true that 50 per cent. of the men who come in your store are no real judges of quality, but if you get a man's ideas way up, the tendency will be, when he comes to smoke the cigar, to believe it poorer than it really is.

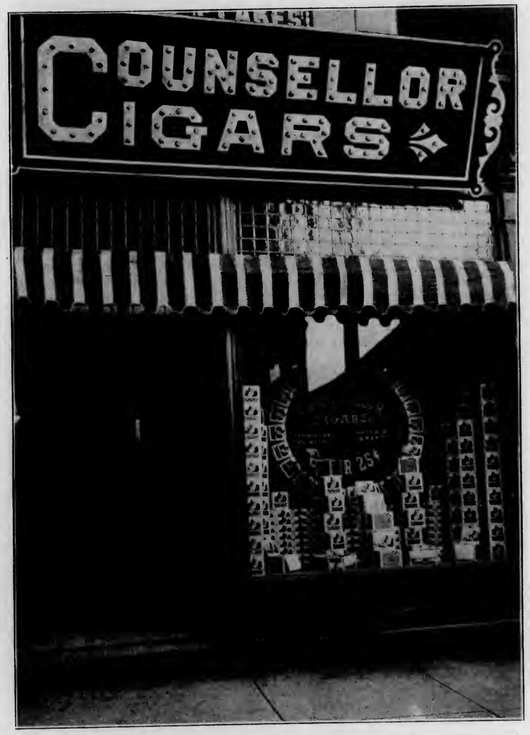
The result is either a lost customer or one who will never after believe anything you tell him; whereas if he had not expected a great deal of the cigar, he would be likely to believe it better than he paid for, as every man likes to persuade himself that he has got good quality for his money, provided he did it himself.

There is one well known dealer in Philadelphia who has a large box trade and whose customers are nearly all regulars. Whenever any cigars are sold in this store the man who is selling them says emphatically to the customer something like this:

"If there is anything about these that doesn't satisfy you I want them back. No matter what it is, if you aren't entirely suited, I want you to let me buy them back or exchange them."

There are very few cigars come back, for if by accident there were something a little off color, the customer would regard the dealer in such a kindly light that he would not mention it. And aside from this point, the dealer in question makes it a point to know what goes over his counter, so that he always feels safe in making such an offer. That's the reason he serves the same men day after day.

A GENUINE FIRE SALE.



A CORRESPONDENT sends an interesting description of the preparations which are being made for a genuine fire sale in his town, where some of the cigars have not only come through fire, but have been more or less injured by water. Sometimes a manufacturer or dealer after a fire in his place, is unable to get fair prices for his goods, even for those which may have been entirely unharmed. This is because the Kiefer drug house was burned. There are thousands of these cigars scattered over the floor of this room. Many of them are beyond redemption. Many are not. Since the fire they have been drying out on the floor of the storeroom, three men turning them from time to time with shovels and pitchforks. For the last few weeks the three men have been going over them, assorting those that can be redeemed and sold as fire sale stock Only about one fourth of the cigars can be used and the remainder will be thrown away or disposed of otherwise.

public is suspicious of the stock and is afraid it will be buying water-logged goods.

The fire spoken of by this correspondent occurred in the establishment of the Keifer Drug Company, in Indianapolis, Ind., and in the storeroom of this concern cigars of all shapes and varieties have been strewn over the floor for some days so that those that are least damp can dry out.

The cigars are those rescued from the big fire several weeks ago when the

MANY RETAILERS who are wondering why the spring trade doesn't boom more swiftly forget the fact that a large proportion of their male customers are laying in a stock of spring clothing and regard it as a time for economizing in other directions. This hits the cigar man as well as the liquor dealer, and the condition is likely to last pretty well up to Easter. Particularly if a man has been induced by a wily tailor to pay more for his clothes than he expected, he will cut down sharply on his habits such as smoking.

TIPS FOR THE CLERK.

MAKE it a point to make a favorable impression on a customer whenever you can. Show him clearly, and you can do that in five seconds by your very manner, that you are entirely at his service. Don't pick out the best dressed men to be the most civil to. You are not running a tailor shop, and while you can't afford to dress carelessly yourself, there are plenty of men who can. Russell Sage is one of the least swell men in the world, when it comes to clothes.

Above all, don't take it for granted that a man whose trousers aren't pressed and whose hat is a bit frayed on the binding, is going to buy stogies. A man may be careless enough to be willing to look cheap, but he isn't willing to be considered so, particularly at sight, by a clerk in a store.

Cultivate the habit of remembering what a man buys so that when he comes in again you can be ready for him. This may seem like a hard proposition, but it comes very easy after a while, and you will be able to do it unconsciously. When a man enters a store the second time and discovers that he and his tastes have been remembered, he will be tickled to death and will be sure to come back again.

When you are waiting on a customer who has an idea of what he wants but, perhaps, hesitates a little, let him exercise his own choice. Don't try to change it unless he asks directly for your advice and you feel that you are able to benefit him by your superior knowledge of the goods. Never under any circumstances, switch on him because the jobber's price on the goods you want him to buy may be little lower.

Always, if possible, give him what he wants. When he gets that, he has no chance to complain, provided the goods are up to standard. If he has bought at your suggestion, and afterward imagines something is wrong with it, he will put you down on his black list at once.

If a customer enters the store and asks for an article which you don't handle, don't try to convey the idea that you haven't got it because you don't think it is good enough for you to have in your stock. Neither work the "just as good" racket. In the first case you are insulting the customer by accusing him of buying something that isn't worth selling, and in the second he will think you are stringing him to make a sale.

By insulting his judgment you send him away mad, when left to himself he might have bought something. You can reply pleasantly that you are out of what he wants, or aren't handling it just now, and then mention a number of other brands which you have got, that are similar in quality to what he has asked for. Don't volunteer the statement that they are just as good or better but allow him to infer as much. If he asks you, then you have a right to express your opinion.

Never hesitate to take down boxes because of the bother of putting them back again. Your game is to be just as courteous and obliging to the man who looks at 5,000 cigars and buys one as to the customer who looks in the door and orders "a hundred more sent around." You never can tell when that courtesy will reap manifold results.

MARKET QUIETER, BUT HAVANA TOBACCO STILL MOVING.

Many Buyers Left the Island During the Week, but Commission Houses are Receiving Sufficiently Heavy Orders to Show that the Demand in the North Continues Healthy.

HAVANA, March 27, 1905.

As the number of fresh buyers from the United States has fallen off and the majority of the late customers departed last week, the market naturally has become quieter, but notwithstanding the fact that the off season has set in, it seems that some commission houses have received orders for certain styles, thus indicating that business in the north for Havana tobacco must be in a good healthy state, and that there is a strong demand even at advanced figures.

The export houses have also received orders to forward some stock held here in storage, thus making the movement for the past week reach 4,023 bales, all of which were shipped to the United States. Besides these the Spanish mail steamer Alfonso XIII. cleared on the 20th inst. with 2,735 bales for Coruna and Santander, destined for the Spanish Regie, and shipped by Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez.

There are still some stocks left here of the old crop for which the holders show no anxiety to accept lower prices, as the opinion seems to prevail that the new crop may be deficient in the quantity of fillers needed for the American market, and for Europe.

The weather continues dry and hot, thus retarding operations in the country. The harvesting period in the Vuelta Abajo and Partidos is finished, while in the Remedios section there is still some tobacco in the fields. It will all, however, depend upon the question whether this part of the crop, when out, will have a chance to dry off sufficiently before the rainy season commences.

People who judge by former experience claim there is only one chance in a hundred that the so called "primavera" or spring tobacco has ever given good results, as it is liable to rot or otherwise will be of no heavy quality, or what is termed here "pajizo" (like straw). The pretensions of the farmers are very high all over the country, and while dealers and packers are holding off in hopes of being able to do better later on, it looks as if the prices for the 1905 crop will rule higher than last year.

Part of a lot of "libra de pie" which arrived here from the Remates section shows signs of rot, indicating that it has been packed too fresh, or with too much betun, while another lot which evidently has been packed too dry is not entering into fermentation, which is a rather unfavorable symptom; although it would be rash to form a judgment from these occurrences as to the nature of the 1905 crop.

In any event there will be a portion of fine leaf, while undoubtedly there will also be some poor tobacco as is the case every year. Until the tobacco has emerged from the piles and has had its first curing process by fermentation, it is still all guess work as to the quality and colors. This process may improve or deteriorate the crop, and competent judges say that nobody can tell anything beforehand; although there are always lots of people willing to guess or proclaim their opinions. The wise ones are not so ready to commit themselves.

last week are reported as 2,185 bales in all, or 1,600 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 35 of Partido and 550 of Remedios. The American buyers are credited with 1,935 bales, and the local factories with 230.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals:—William Pauly, of Elgin, Ill.; Luis Martinez, of L. Martinez Havana Co., and John Wardlow, President of the Ruy Lopez Cigar Co., Key West; Otto Sartorious, of Sartorious & Co., New York.

Departures:—George Mitchelson, for St. Paul, Minn.; William Pauly, of Elgin, Ill.; S. L. Johns, for McSherrystown, Pa.; John Creagh, for Philadelphia; Vicente Guerra, for Tampa; D. Nussbaum, Avelino Pazos, Dave Goldberg, Wm. Baeder, Manuel Lopez, M. Heuman, and George Wyatt, for New York.

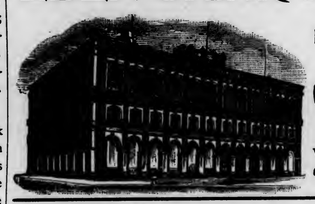
were kept more or less busy this week attending to the orders of the American fleet, as the officers and even the marines and sailors each contributed to leave their obulos with them. Otherwise the business is rather quiet with them, excepting a few of the favored ones.

Exports per steamer Morro Castle were 3,632,209 cigars.



H. Upmann & Co. are still qiute busy and receive enough orders from everywhere. They shipped last week 425,000 cigars of their famous H. Upmann brand, and of other independent manufacturers.

Cifuentus, Fernandez & Co. have no change to report in their Partagas factory, as new orders are continually arriving to take the place of the filled ones.

alertness of Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, who is doing everything in his power to please his customers.

Sol—Don Carlos Behrens reports business as steady, and says that the Sol cigars were also in big demand among the officers of the American fleet, so much so, that they were unable to get off other pending orders, as the officers had the preference owing to their departure last Saturday. Don Carlos Behrens intends to leave for the Vuelta Abajo, next week, to arrange for making a packing of the new crop.

Ramon Allones is busy, and it is stated that the officers of the American fleet left two thousand dollars with Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co., for cigars furnished to them.

J. F. Rocha & Co. do not complain although the Crepusculo factory is perhaps a trifle less busy now than during the active season.

Remigio Lopez y Hno have a fair call for La Mas Fermosa and Magnetica de Cuba from the United States.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Pantaleon F. Carcaba bought 600 bales of Vuelta Abajo for Garcia, Vega & Carcaba.

Loeb-Nunz Havana Co. did a good business in selling 535 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios. Leopold Loeb, the President, will leave next Tuesday, for Philadelphia, after having made good use of his time in selling goods right here on the spot, besides having made arrangements for packing extensively this year in the Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios sections.

A. Pazos & Co. disposed of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo, while Don Avelino was still here. This house is also going to pack largely in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Vicente Guerra made some good purchases of Vuelta Abajo leaf for his Tampa factory.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. turned over 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

John Wardlow is said to have bought some fine vegas of Vuelta Abajo which have been reserved for him.

Bruno Diaz & Co. closed one transaction of 150 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

The demise of Jacob Bernheim which became known here last week, has caused no surprise as he had been reported as dangerously sick some time ago. The "Diario de la Marina" a local Spanish newspaper, paid him a glowing tribute, and the trade here extends its sympathy to his surviving sons, Isaac and Henry.

Voneiff & Vidal Cruz have been doing a good business during the long stay of Don Pancho Vidal Cruz at Tampa, although the latter is expected back here tomorrow

Garcia & Co. were kept busy. They shipped 438 bales by the steamer Morro Castle, and still hold some choice vegas of Vuelta Abajo.

Sobrinos de V. Diaz turned over 150 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Don Narciso Gonzalez went to the country to look after his coming escojida.

The American fleet was dined and wined here last week, and Havana donned its holiday attire. Both the officers and men were sorry to leave, and the Cubans themselves saw them depart with regret.

S. L. Goldberg e Hijos reported sales of 788 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios. Dave and his bride left by the Morro Castle, while Sydney is getting ready to supervise his escojida in the Vuelta Abajo and Alquizar. He intends to start up the latter just as soon as the weather will permit, as he has made some heavy purchases of Tumbadero leaf.

American Tobacco Co. Will Save Loss To Dealers Under New Law.

Columbus, Ind., April 1.

Tobacco dealers in this city have received notification from the American Tobacco Co., in New York, that the stock of cigarettes which the dealers have on hand will be taken by the company when the anti-cigarette law goes into effect.

Some of the dealers were about ready to cut the price to get rid of the stock on hand, but the news that the combine will redeem the goods will keep the price up until the day the act becomes a law.

NEW YORK, April 3, 1905.

Trade with the retailers last week was no better or no worse speaking in averages, than the week before, every pleasant day showing good returns. The bigger dealers are doing the greater part of the retail cigar business, nowadays, and the little man in a great many cases, is barely making expenses In numerous instances, the man who keeps a small store will go out to work during the day time and let his wife or a boy tend shop.

By this means he is able to meet expenses where he otherwise could not. It is extremely probable that his finish is in sight in this town, however, owing to the fact that the man who buys his cigars by the box will invariably go to one of the larger stores, and the smoker who buys his cigars one at a time will buy that one wherever he happens to be, which in this town is likely to be a saloon, drug store, restaurant or barber shop.

The good saloons in New York sell standard cigars to answer the demand, and a customer is no longer taking much of a chance when he orders cigars brought with the drinks. The man with the small shop does most of his business on cigarettes and smoking and chewing tobacco of the cheaper grades, and as his profits are small on these, he usually has hard work to get along.

The United Cigar Stores Company has secured 1292 Broadway, which has been the location of one of the Mercantile Cigar Co.'s stands, and while the new tenants will not state just what they intend to do with the building, as they already have a store running a few feet away it is regarded as probable that the company will either subject the new place, or use it itself for other purposes, being satisfied to remove the competition of the Mercantile establishment. This move shows how far reaching and important the real estate department of the chain stores company is becoming. There is no doubt that the company is in the game for keeps, and it would be interesting if a peep could be had at the local retail trade ten years ahead in order to see how the proposition had worked out.

The manufacturers claim to be busy, and there is no reason why they should not be, or at least why they should not be filling orders. It is probable, however, that many of them are able to fill a good many of the orders which really are coming in, from the stock which has accumulated during the dull season for the retailers, when the men on the road found it like pulling hen's teeth to get an order out of a man.

Rather than haul in their horns a good many manufacturers kept their factories going, and the product began to pile up. This is now being got rid of, although most of the factories are still run on good time.

There was very little doing in the leaf market during the week and no transactions of any moment are recorded. Duys & Co. were showing their Sumatra purchases and it is understood that this firm was the first on the Philadelphia market with this line of goods. There was somewhat of a lull in the demand for all grades and as stocks are low in nearly every instance, the dealers aren't worrying. Old stock can still be sold without any trouble, but there was no great activity.

A number of revenue men were out in the city during the week taking a casual look over the cigar stores to find out whether the dealers were paying attention to the recent ruling of the department, particularly in connection with the use of empty cigar boxes for advertising purposes and in the form of window displays.

The Commissioner has reassured the trade by the statement that there is no law to prevent the use of genuine cigar boxes provided they have come from the factory full and been sold in the store. These can be used by the dealer himself for display purposes providing he does not allow them to go out of his possession without destroying the government marks. Dummies, however, must bear no official marks whatever.

Sydney J. Freeman, chairman of the Exposition committee of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Association says that his contracts are all ready now and some of them will be sent out this week to those who have intimated a desire to close the deal as soon as possible. Interest in the affair remains keen, and Mr. Freeman says the committee will not have the slightest difficulty in getting rid of all the space it has to offer, in fact it now seems likely that it could have used considerable more. Some firms expect to spread themselves and will take a good deal of extra space in order to do it, and if such is the case in many instances, it will have its effect on the number of exhibits. To offset this, however, a little additional space has been given the committee over and above what it had expected which will allow perhaps 20 or 25 more exhibits.

H. Duys & Co. last week received a lot of Sumatra which the firm had purchased at the inscriptions, and which represents among the finest of the tobacco sold at Amsterdam. The trade will thus benefit by the enterprise shown by the company, which is characteristic.

The Falk Tobacco Company will move its New York office to 149 Broadway, sometime during the latter part of this month. The firm now has quarters at Warren and Church streets and the new location in the Singer building will be much more comfortable and attractive.

I. Masskoff, who has attracted attention on Broadway near Fulton street, by his slashing of prices is about to move into Rosenberg & Co's old Nassau street store. He is not able to remain on Broadway on account of building operations.

A new clear Havana brand with an attractive label named El Sustento, will shortly be put on the market by Stephen G. Condit. The cigar will be manufactured in 20 sizes, and the attractiveness of the package backed by the Condit reputation will send the smoke a long way in the right direction.

The A. H. Hillman Co. are now the local distributors for S. F. Hess & Co.'s Backbone chewing tobacco, packed in one dozen 1¼ oz. cuts in one pound tins at 45 cents.

William Bernstein, the Allen Tobacco Co.'s new advertising man, has gotten up some noticeable window displays of the company's products, notably their famous Telonette brand. These are scattered pretty well over town and are attracting considerable attention.

M. Simon, who has had a cigar store on Third avenue, pretty well up, for some years has removed to 64 East 116th street.

John L. Fielding, of Rothschild & Bro., left for Key West and Havana last Saturday, where he will remain some time.

Simon Batt, of Simon Batt & Co., who has been West as far as the coast, and Ysidro Pendas, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, who has been in Havana, are back in town.

Straiton & Storm are pushing their Owl brand vigorously, and are spending a lot of money in the daily papers. In the Sun of Sunday is a large advertisement, the reading matter of which is printed inside the outline of a large owl. This consists of a receipt for catching an owl, and the reader is told to "warily approach a cigar store—open the door with care—tip toe up to the counter—place five cents on it, then with swift gliding movement put your hand in a box labelled Straiton & Storm's Owl cigar, pounce upon the first owl that comes to your hand—cut off the end—apply a match—lo! You have captured the best five cent cigar in the world." The distributors of the cigar are Geo. L. Storm & Co., 24 and 26 Murray street.

MOVING YORK COUNTY TOBACCO.

York, Pa., April 3, 1905.

The cigar industry of this county has not undergone much change for the past month, and trade is still reported as being quiet in many sections of the county, while in others there appears to be some improvement.

Several heavy shipments of York county tobacco of the 1904 crop were again made during the past week. About 80,000 pounds were consigned to H. H. Snyder, of Lancaster, who is packing for Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., large cigar manufacturers in Philadelphia.

70,000 pounds were sent to Lancaster for Sneeringer & Co., which had been bought by R. D. Zech, of this city.

35,000 pounds were sent to A. K. Mann, to be packed at his warehouse at Millersville, near Lancaster. This tobacco was bought for Mr. Mann by S. W. Hykes.

It is now practically confirmed that A. Sonneman & Sons is about the only local house that is packing any of last year's crop. They will probably have 1,000 cases.

Stamps to the amount of $93,000 were sold at the local office of the Ninth Internal Revenue District during March. These receipts are about $8,000 in excess of those of last month and about $1,500 less than those of the same month last year. The entire receipts of the quarter, totalling $269,000, are not as large as usual. This is due to the cigar industry in this county not being as flourishing at the present time as it was during the early part of last year.

Fourteen licenses for the opening and transferring of cigar factories and tobacco manufactories were granted during the month. This number is equal to that of the corresponding month of last year and is thought to be a good showing, inasmuch as the district of York county now contains more shops than ever before. Two of the new factories are to be located in this city, while another was taken out by a Littlestown cigar manufacturer.

Following are the licensees for March: Oggie Bell, 403 West Mason avenue, this city; George H. Lawson, Hanover; Harry C. Smith, Red Lion; Latimer Innerst, York, R. F. D. No. 2; Simon P. Kinard & Son, Wrightsville; Sarah J. Lutz, Winterstown, R. F. D. No. 1; George Graham, Wrightsville; Charles A. Bayler, rear of 213 South George street, York; Henry W. Shanebrook, Hanover; Charles W. Anstine, Bittersville; David Kyle, Dallastown; Sarah E. Gulden, Yoe; Samuel G. Runkle, Red Lion; Harry G. Duttera, Littlestown.

H. E. Raber, who was for some time with B. F. Abel, at Hellam, has opened a cigar factory in this city.

D. Curvin Kaltreider, a cigar manufacturer at Red Lion, has purchased a 50 feet lot at the corner of West Broadway and Park streets, in that borough, for $1,000.

J. F. Reichard, a leaf tobacco dealer at Craley, has made foundation excavations for the erection of a new leaf warehouse.

T. A. Winter, cigar manufacturer, formerly located at New Bridgeville, last week removed his factory to Craley.

W. C. Jackson, of East Prospect, contemplates removing his residence to Dallastown.

T. A. Myers, of T. A. Myers & Co., specialists in edgings and box trimming, manufacturers, of this city, has returned from a two week's pleasure trip to Hot Springs.

Gus Steffens has just made his initial trip through this section in the interest of Heywood, Strasser & Voigt, lithographers, of New York, and reports a very satisfactory trip.

Sam. Kaufman, with Wm. Steiner, Sons & Co., has also been here during the week. He says that Henry Steiner, of his firm, is expecting to visit this section during the next ten days.

H. E. Spannuth, with Lewis Bremer's Sons, L. F. Mueller, with Dohan & Taitt, both of Philadelphia, and R. R. Uhler, of Lebanon, were visiting leaf men here during the past week.

P. H. Grove, whose factory is located at Rye post office, has experienced a very satisfactory increase in his business since his removal from Loganville, where he was formerly located.

Bear Bros., of Zion's View, have had an exceptionally good trade this spring, and recently introduced a new brand which is meeting with fine success.

DANVILLE, VA., WILL HAVE BIG INDUSTRIAL PLANT.

The Commercial Association Proposes to Establish a Joint Stock Tobacco Manufactory to Help Farmers to Compete Against the American Tobacco Co., to be Capitalized at Not Less Than $150,000.

Danville, Va., April 4.

The question of erecting in Danville a joint stock tobacco manufactory, such manufactory to produce goods in competition to the product of the American Tobacco Company, which idea has been advocated by the Commercial Association, is creating considerable gossip among the business men.

The proposed project, if successful, is to be capitalized at probably $150,000, the majority of the stock to be held by the farmers. It is intended in this way to have the farmers interested in the staple Virginia product, not only insofar as the actual production of the weed is concerned, but in the various evolutions of the article as it progresses towards a state fit for the mouth of the consumer.

The shares of the stock are to be small enough to be within the reach of all. By carrying out the plan proposed the producer of tobacco would be interested in the article from the time it is placed for sale in the stores, and would be benefited by the profits accruing not only from the first sale, but from the sale of the finished product.

Such a project as the one advanced by the Commercial Association has been launched in other places with more or less success—some of which places are not half so well located nor yet so robust in industrial growth as Danville. Every manufacturing plant erected in a place means so much money kept at home.

Such a business also has the effect of giving an outlet at home to the manufacture of the raw material produced on the farms, which, instead of being shipped to other places where profits will be made, and sold again at home at double the price, which latter profit might have been saved had the raw material been shaped within the confines of the raw material market, should be kept at home.

Ten or fifteen years ago there were thirty or more tobacco factories in active operation in this city. These factories employed thousands of laborers who are now either idle and a burden on the community or have drifted to other places.

In those days, too, tobacco sold on the open market at figures that made it to the interest of the planter to raise the weed in preference to other crops purchasing, if need be, the home supplies in the city. From six to eight millions of pounds of tobacco were manufactured yearly and placed on the markets of the world from Danville. The output of the manufactured weed in those days when the prices on tobacco were high, yielded to the city something like five to seven millions of dollars. In the place of that gigantic business there now stands the ghostly pile of brick representing what was once the hum of industry.

In the general development of the south, the farmer alone has been left out in the cold by his more progressive neighbors. He is fretting away his life in the same old channels, growing the same old crop, and selling his product at a figure that is more than changed from the conditions that surrounded the same crop during the days of his father. It is a matter of habit with the farmer to raise tobacco, and a habit that must change if he would get out of the rut and make good use of the opportunities before him.

These facts were realized in the formation in the city some years ago of the Inter State Farmers' Protective Association, of which H. C. Adams, of Red Oak, is President. This association has done a good work in stimulating the farmer to greater exertions in his own behalf—in showing him the necessity for diversifying his crops—of impressing upon him the necessity of holding his tobacco if need be until he can secure a price which is a reasonable advance over the cost to him of production.

It is believed that the idea which the Commercial Association has in mind of forming a stock company for the manufacture of the raw material with the farmer as a large holder in the concern will be the means of forcing a legitimate price for the loose leaf on the market and curtailing the operations of the so-called trust. The Commercial Association will not rest until something has been done in this direction—until the farmers have shown whether or not they will take part in the formation of such a business. The merchants of the city, too are talking of the venture in a favorable light.

To Benefit Our Readers.

The Tobacco World wants to receive from week to week all questions relating to the trade which may be puzzling its subscribers, and will be glad to supply any information in its possession or obtainable.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

All letters should be addressed to the "Correspondence Editor" and must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, which may be withheld when desired.

THE LEAF BOARD OF TRADE'S PLAN.

The Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade proposes to adopt measures which it believes will infuse the organization with more vigor. Attention is here called to a letter which is being circulated by the Board and which appears in another column of the paper, and as announced in this, the first step in this missionary plan will be the giving of a dinner to the trade in Philadelphia on the 17th of this month.

Every leaf dealer in Philadelphia will be invited to this, and it is intended to be an informal gathering of men who have the same interests, which interests will be better conserved by mutual understanding and effort.

It is a self evident fact that the larger and more vigorous an organization the greater its power to accomplish important results for itself, and particularly when such matters as the Philippine controversy and question of dock weight are on the tapis, should the men who make up the trade stand shoulder to shoulder.

There is room for a considerably larger and yet more compact organization oft his character in Philadelphia, and it is evident from the manner in which the committee in charge of the movement is directing its efforts, that the city will soon have one.

A BILL which embodies more common sense than have the run of anti-cigarette measures is proposed by Representative Bringham, of Chouteau, Montana, who believes that his plan will be more effective and less injurious to the dealer, than any other bill yet proposed.

Representative Bringham's plan is to go after the consumer as well as the dealer. There is now a law in Montana providing a penalty for the sale of cigarettes to minors, but as is usually the case, the law is a dead letter. Should the proposed law pass, a youth under eighteen will be committing a misdemeanor if he smokes on the street or in any other public place. At home he may do as he chooses.

Thus any boy caught smoking can be arrested on sight, and in addition to being prosecuted himself, can be forced to tell where he procured his cigarettes or whatever form of smoking it may have been. Such a law really enforced would go a long way toward breaking up the objectionable part of the trade in cigarettes.

Arkansas legislators have also been thinking over the cigarette problem, but have dropped it as a bad job and the prohibitive bill that was started died an early death. Those who were responsible for this, took the attitude that it is practically impossible to stop cigarette smoking, and accordingly, it would be bad policy to pass a law that would not only prove impractical, but would excite an unwholesome contempt for the law as a power.

TO WORK off an old and pretty bad joke, the Mayor of Richmond must be afraid to go in a public restaurant for fear he might see the salad dressing. Indeed, the Mayor's purity of mind has no place in these rough days, and it is too bad that others should be obliged to suffer as a result of his peculiarities.

It is usually the case that these extraordinarily modest persons will strain at a gnat and cheerfully swallow a camel. The tobacco posters which the Mayor forbade the display of, had done duty elsewhere without exciting any riot of immorality and are exhibited even in Philadelphia without calling down the wrath of the Gibboney or occasioning any extra prayers.

By declaring that they were unfit for display in his city, the Mayor insulted the Richmond mind by inferring that its lecherous character could not bear the slightest excitement. The Mayor will probably soon have a bill passed establishing a municipal zenana, and forcing all bachelors to disrobe in the dark.

In the course of my association with tobacco, about twenty-five years, I have known men all this time, working every day, to be inhaling tobacco dust or fumes produced in the process of manufacture. Uninterrupted good health is the general rule of all persons engaged in tobacco proceedings of every kind and generally of large consumers.

THE TAXING OF THE RETAILER FOR HIS OWN SALVATION.

The following very interesting letter has been received from a long established and important sub jobbing and retail concern in Germantown. As the reader will appreciate, the letter proceeds straight from the heart and contributes valuable evidence to the prima facie case which the "Old Salesman" tried to make out.

The Tobacco World is heartily in sympathy with the retailer in this matter and is willing to do anything in its power to bring about the taxing of that branch of the trade, which we sincerely believe is the best, and indeed only remedy.

Let us hear some more opinions, no matter on which side they may be. It is probable that every dealer has thought over the matter not once but many times and an interchange of thought will be helpful to those who are not finally satisfied in their own mind.—EDITOR.

Philadelphia, April 4, 1905.

Editor Tobacco World:

Dear Sir:—Upon reading your "Old Salesman's Musings" in the last issue of The Tobacco World, I cannot but congratulate you upon so splendid an article. His suggestions regarding the placing of a tax on the retail dealers in the tobacco and cigar business must I am sure meet with the hearty approval of all members of the trade, who desire to make an honest and legitimate livelihood out of our business.

As our worthy old salesman says, why should the druggist, the restaurant keeper, the grocer, the news stands and in fact most anyone and everyone who carries on some small business be allowed to steal our very existence from us?

To quote my own case in particular: (and I am sure there are hundreds of other tobacconists in this city who have the same cause to complain). In my locality are some of the largest steel and manufacturing plants that we have in the State, and I know positively that in said works, tobacco and cigars are sold by the employees during working hours.

These men, aside from realizing a profit from cigars, etc., also receive their weekly salary. Now the question is, why should these employees be allowed to do this and at the same time be exempt from all mercantile taxes, rents and other sundry expenses that we who are trying to live by our trade are compelled to pay?

I tell you, sir, that it is an injustice, and when I say that it has a most disastrous effect on the daily receipts, you will see that I have ample room for protesting against the depredations of these pirates. You will perhaps upon reading this say, why don't you appeal to the mercantile appraisers?

I have not made a direct appeal to these gentlemen, but I have indirectly done so to the above office when paying my mercantile tax (of course they never forget to let me have my annual tax), and it is mighty small consideration you get there

I should indeed welcome any advice that you or any of your staff would be pleased to offer me in my present predicament, for a continuance of this state of affairs will eventually eradicate a once prosperous business, one whose proprietor believes that the only salvation for this trouble is taxation, and let us have that good and heavy.

Thanking you in advance for any advice that you or any of your readers would be pleased to submit, I am, sir,

ONE WHO WOULD GLADLY BE TAXED.

The Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

While business was still picking up in the retail trade during the week, it did not have the snap it should have had considering the fine weather, and those dealers who were unable to report the amount of business which they believe the weather should have brought, came to the conclusion that a lot of their customers were laying off until after Easter.

This comes unusually late this year, just 20 days later than last, and in addition, spring has apparently begun earlier, so that if this is the cause of the lack of animation, the dealers lose both ways. Then again many men leave town at this time, either on business or pleasure, and it is a well known fact that the Philadelphia spring colony at Atlantic City grows larger every year. This hits into the box trade done by the larger stores which is the best end of the business.

The United Cigar Stores Co. has commenced alterations in its new store at Second and Market streets, heretofore occupied by the Bainbridge Shoe store, and General Manager Barney Greenburg expects to be open for business in a couple of weeks or so. The interior will be refashioned in the form which characterizes all the stores in the chain. The company will sublet the small store on the upper side which goes with the lease.

Quite a number of salesmen visited the trade during the week and voiced a practically unanimous declaration that things are rather slow on the road. Some of them blame it to the Lenten season during which so many consumers deny themselves. Among those who were seen during the week were: Victor Lopez, of Trujillo & Co., New York; Henry Kraus, of Kraus & Co., Baltimore; Arthur Lennox, of Manrara Bros. & Co., New York; Mr. Regensburg, of E. Regensburg & Sons, New York, and Leo Weiss, of the National Cuba Co.

The United Cigar Stores Co. designated last Wednesday as a "quadruple certificate" day on pipes and as a result, did a land office business in that class of goods. With every 25 cents worth bought, the customer received four certificates instead of one, and in order to take advantage of this, many customers loaded up with more pipes than they could burn up in a year.

In the window of James I. Hassan's cigar store, 6633 Woodland avenue, there is displayed a fine and interesting collection of war relics that is attracting much attention. The various articles were loaned by old soldiers that reside in the neighborhood or by the families of de ceased soldiers. The collection comprises swords, bayonets, pistols, daggers, muskets, bullets found at Gettysburg and Antietam, pieces of trees showing bullets imbedded in them, spurs, and various other articles. Some of the most interesting pieces are a piece of the bedstead on which Colonel Ellsworth died; an ink well from Jeff Davis' plantation in Mississippi; a flag which was used in the navy during the Mexican and Civil Wars; a mortar made from old bullets; a dagger, captured from one of Mosby's guerrilas; a flintlock musket which was carried during the wars of the Revolution and 1812, and knives, revolvers and arrow heads from the Philippines.

An interesting part of the exhibit is an oil painting, entitled, "Where is your regiment," a scene in the present war in the Far East. The picture is the work of Wash Anderson, of Paschall, and is a fine piece of amateur work.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

H. Duys & Co. were the first to offer any of the new Sumatra tobacco on the local market. They offered some of their fine purchases to the trade last Wednesday and made a sale.

The leaf market is still dull, most of the transactions being with out of town buyers. There is still the reluctance shown by buyers when they are given quotations, and while there was a fair movement in Havana, little else was done. Some houses are doing a little all the time, but no big buying has been recorded. If the manufacturers finally become convinced that waiting wont bring better prices, goods will move in a much more lively fashion.

Benjamin Labe and his son Jacob Labe, of B. Labe & Sons, both attended the inscriptlon at Rotterdam last Friday, and while they picked up a few bales, prices were still out of proportion, and it was considered better policy to wait a little longer. Mr. Labe believes that after the rush and excitement are over, prices will right themselves.

A. M. Lake will start next Monday on his regular trip for George Burghard. Mr. Lake has been detained thus far by illness.

George W. Newman, of Young & Newman, returned from the West this week, although he had expected to stay a week or ten days longer. Mr. Newman booked a good list of orders while he was away, and says he would have scooped in a lot more if it had not been for the nearly invariable tendency of manufacturers to buy just as small lots as they can get through with, in the hope that the next they get will be at better prices.

F. Eckerson, reports business to be satisfactory, particularly in Havana, of which the firm makes a specialty.

The Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade is today sending out a letter to every member of the leaf trade in Philadelphia which it is expected will accomplish important results looking to ward the benefit of the organization.

The present members of the Board feel that its membership list should include every local leaf tobacco dealer, and the dinner announced in the latter part of the letter is part of the plan to interest those in the trade who are not members. This affair was originally intended to take place at Essington in the afternoon, but it was thought that by having it in the evening and in the city, the attendance would be appreciably larger. The Board states that the dinner will not be an elaborate or excessively formal occasion, but is simply to constitute a friendly gathering of those whose interests are identical.

The letter is as follows:

convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association will be held in Lancaster on May 1. According to its by-laws, every member of the organization has the right to be present at its deliberations and is accorded the same privilege as the delegates with the exception of the right to vote.

"The most vital questions to our trade will come up for consideration, principally dock weight and the Philippine question. As to the first, we have the promise of support from the Secretary of the Treasury and are assured that the measure will be taken up by the next Congress. As to the second, we have secured the presence of the Chief of the Bureau of Commerce and Manufacturers, who will assist us to counteract the pernicious policy of Secretary Taft threatening the free importation of Philippine tobacco and cigars into this country.

"All tobacco centers are aroused to unusual activity this year and the officers of our organization desire that Philadelphia shall not take a second place.

"At the last meeting of the Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade it was decided to add social features to our organization in order to promote more intimate relations among the members. With this end in view it was decided to postpone the meeting and to give in its stead at the organization's expense, a dinner at which time delegates to the next annual convention will be chosen. The committee has selected April 17 for the dinner and meeting and enclose a card of invitatian, which is extended to all the members of your firm. Wishing to make the occasion a thorough success it appeals to you as members and friends to aid it to your utmost so that an interchange of views may lead to a mapping out of the work that will insure the desired benefit.

"Kindly address a prompt reply as to how many members of your firm will participate, to Mr. E. A. Calves, 123 North Third street, not later than April 11, so that covers may be reserved for them." Very truly yours,

Hollard & Sons, South street manufacturers report business to be on the boom with them with a very satisfactory flow of orders on all their brands. The firm is having a particular run on its popular brand, Hollard's Star.

Business is picking up decidedly with A. S. Valentine & Son, and the factory now has pretty near as much as it can handle. The firm has some new picture advertising of its brands, and these are of the same handsome character which has always attracted such favorable notice.

J. R. Vetterlein, son of Jos. S. Vetterlein, of Vetterlein Bros., has returned from his maiden trip for the house. Mr. Vetterlein hustled through the West, and discovered that a traveling salesman has to do considerable hard work.

Frank Teller & Co. who were recently burned out of their factory on South Second street, are advertising for cigarmakers to apply at 125 South Second.

The H. H. Sheip Manufacturing Co., of 529 Columbia avenue, is making important additions to its plant which will greatly add to the facilities with which the Sheip Co. will be able to meet all orders. These will consist of a dry kiln 20 feet high and 133 by 70 feet, and a complete four story mill 56 by 190 feet on Randolph street above Columbia avenue on the east side.

$200,000 WORTH OF OUR TOBACCO GOES TO JAPAN.

The Portland and Asiatic liner Arabia sailed for Japan from Portland, Ore., last Thursday, carrying a shipment of 920 hogsheads and 235 tierces of leaf tobacco and 375 cases of cigarettes. The value of the tobacco is nearly $200,000 and it is said to be the largest single shipment of tobacco ever made from a Pacific coast port.

NO SUNDAY CIGAR STORES IN NOBLESVILLE.

A crusade against the Sunday cigar stores is being started at Noblesville, Ind., and as a starter, Elmer Crane, of H. Crane & Son, Indianapolis cigar jobbers, who have a branch store in Noblesville; Walter Brown, proprietor of another cigar store in this city, and Harry Benner, who conducts a fish market, were arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of keeping their places of business open on Sunday. This is the first step on the part of the Anti Saloon League of Hamilton County, which proposes to close busines houses of every kind in Nobles ville on Sundays.

NEW YORK'S REVENUE REPORT.

Figures from 14 Counties Have been Sent to Washington.

Lockport, N. Y., April 3.

Deputy Revenue Collector Doty, of the 28th collection district of New York, which includes 14 counties in the western part of the State, has completed his annual report and transmitted it to Washington.

The reports show there are 670 cigar manufacturers in the district, and that during the year ending December 31, 1904, 63,033,923 cigars were manufactured and 310,606,900 cigarettes were turned out. Five-sixths of the output of cigars and cigarettes were consumed in the local district, according to the report. The estimated taxes on the total output of cigars and cigarettes is $524,019.33, of which $189,101.76 was on cigars and $334,917.56 on cigarettes.

The report also shows that 3,267,589 pounds of tobacco were manufactured during the year, together with 28,427 pounds of snuff.

It is expected that the next annual report will show a great falling off in all branches of tobacco industry, owing to the closing down of the American Tobacco Company's plant.

INTERESTING DECISION IN TRADE-MARK APPEAL.

In an appeal from the Examiner of Trade Marks, in which registration was refused for the reason that, in his opinion, the word chosen had a geographical meaning which outweighed any fanciful meaning which might be ascribed to it, it has been held that while the word, which was of Indian origin, and had in that language a meaning other than the geographical one commonly ascribed to it, yet it was believed that its significance as such would only be known to students of Indian languages and could not, therefore, be held to have to the general public any arbitrary significance which would outweigh the geographical meaning which is originally ascribed to it. For this reason the decision of the Examiner was affirmed.

CONTINENTAL BONDS PAID.

CINCINNATI BUSINESS POOR.

Slot Machines Out and Bad Weather Cause Slump.

Cincinnati, O., April 3.

Offerings at last Saturday's cigar leaf sales were the smallest so far this year, the total being but 55 cases, all of which were sold at one house. With the exception of the Wisconsins, the quality was good, condition fair and competition keen and active. The best of the old Zimmer binders and wrappers ranged from 6¼ to 13¼ cents and new Zimmer from 4 to 11¼ cents. Wisconsins sold from $2 to $3.40 per 100 pounds. Only two cases of Havana wrappers were offered and one of these sold at 14 cents, the other at 15 cents.

The warm weather of the past two weeks has put the burley tobacco at the leaf commission houses in very bad condition and with buyers discriminating, last weeks' market was unsatisfactory. Incidentally farmers are holding their tobacco back and the break in prices which was anticipated, when the growers' deal fell through has, as yet, failed to materialize.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Haas & Maier Co. will be held on April 24 to dissolve that corporation. The company is capitalized at $25,000. Morris Haas is President. The corporation is owned by Haas Bros. and they now do their business under that name, and have no further use for the other title.

The Tobacco Workers' Union has renewed its agreement with the Cincinnati factories, outside the combine. No increase in wages was asked, because the workmen considered the high price the manufacturers were forced to pay for raw material. The firms interested were Spence Bros., Day & Night Co., Duwel Co., Queen City Co. and Sea Lion Co.

The Queen City Co., makers of Red Devil chewing and smoking tobacco, is using unique methods to advertise that brand. Nightly a wagon filled with "human devils" traverses the streets and by the aid of megaphones the public is informed of the good quality of the tobacco. Samples are also distributed from the wagons. With the opening of the baseball season a crack collection of players has been secured by the Queen City Co. They will sail under the name of the Red Devils and will visit neighboring cities.

With slot machines gone, and a spell of bad weather come, dealers state that business over the counter is in bad shape. A clever down-town cigarist put crepe on his slot machines on March 31—the last day they were allowed. Another gave his machines away to the highest hands. At one cigar store it is reported that more than 1,700 chips were won on March 31.

Ellis Bonte, for six years general manager of J. S. Hill & Co.'s seven retail stores, resigned his position on April 1. He may go into business on his own account.

Jos. Cantor has removed from Fourth and Walnut streets to 139 East Fourth street. He had a special sale of old stock last week and as he said "prices were slaughtered." BUHRMAN

NEW RULING ON PATENTS.

Inventor Can Improve His Article but Must Not Change It.

Washington, D. C., April 3.

A decision of general interest has been handed down in the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in two cases presenting a similar question, and for that reason were considered together, which was not one of patentability, but the right of the applicant to make certain claims in the two applications. The following rulings have been made in connection with these cases:

An applicant in his endeavor to protect his invention may amend the specification and claims so long as he keeps within the requirements and the rules of the Patent Office; but this does not mean that he will be permitted at any time to introduce new matter into his application and obtain for the same the date of the original application. Nor does it mean that new elements can be introduced in this manner for purpose of enlarging the field of usefulness of a patent. Any radical departure from the invention as originally shown and described is unwarranted, and is alone sufficient ground for adverse action by the office.

PRESIDENT COULD NOT POSTPONE TREATY TEN DAYS.

So Decides Board of U. S. General Appraisers in the Protest Brought by M. J. Dalton & Co., of Philadelphia, Against Having to Pay Full Duty on Consignment Arriving During the Ten Days.

A decision has been announced by Board No. 3 of the United States General Appraisers at New York, in the case brought by the M. J. Dalton Co., of Philadelphia, which maintains that the Cuban reciprocity treaty went into effect on March 31, 1903, and accordingly protest against the imposition of the full duty on a consignment of cigars by the Collector at Philadelphia made on account of the postponement of ten days by President Roosevelt of the time when the treaty should go into effect.

The Board holds that the President had no such authority, but at the same time it is pointed out that the clause in question was doubtless inserted because of the confusion in dates which was inevitable from the unusual circumstances of the whole affair.

The exchange of ratifications occurred on March 31, 1903. The importer in the case before the Appraisers, the Dalton Company, maintained that the treaty went into effect on that date, and protested against the imposition of the duty by the Collector. The United States Senate in ratifying the treaty, however, inserted an amendment that it should not take effect until approved by Congress. That was not done until December 17, 1903, and the President issued his proclamation on the same date.

Judge Somerville writes the opinion of the Board. He says that the amendment made by the Senate is as much a part of the treaty as though it had been originally inserted, and its validity cannot be challenged before the courts. The question as to whether the treaty is retroactive, however—that is, whether its effectiveness extends back from December 17 to March 31—has been passed upon in previous decisions, and settled in the negative. That point is not considered in detail, therefore, but attention is given chiefly to the new point raised—namely, as to the legality of the ten day clause in the President's proclamation.

Judge Somerville calls attention to the fact that the first clause in the act of Congress of December 17 provides that the treaty shall go into effect when the President has received satisfactory evidence that it is the intention of the Republic of Cuba to give full effect to the convention, and issues a proclamation accordingly. Judge Somerville then says:

"The proclamation itself, however, recites that such evidence has been received by the President. Its language is, 'And whereas satisfactory evidence has been received by the President of the United States that the Republic of Cuba has made provision,' &c. It is difficult, therefore, to see why the convention did not, by its very terms, become immedi ately operative. We know of no constitutional authority which would authorize the Executive to postpone its operation a day after this time.

"If he could defer its operation for ten days there would seem no reason why he might not do so for ten months. It would seem that he could no more postpone the operation of a treaty, duly ratified, than he could that of a statute duly enacted.

"As a matter of fact, in the present instance it seems too clear for doubt that the action of the President is attributable to the ambiguity of the language of the treaty itself and the confusion of the dates which occur in it, the harmonizing of which has required the closest scrutiny and study—the first date for its operation being that fixed by the diplomats who negotiated it, namely, the tenth day after the exchange of ratifications; the second being that fixed by the Senate, namely, the time when it should receive Congressional approval, and a third element of uncertainty being involved in the language of the act of Congress stating that the President 'is hereby authorized to issue his proclamation * * * and thereupon on the tenth day after exchange of ratifications,' &c., the treaty should become operative.

One protest, for goods entered on December 18, 1903, is sustained, the others, for goods entered prior to December 17, are overruled.

The specific contention made by the importers was that the treaty took effect ten days after the exchange of ratifications, on March 31. Judge Somerville says that the usual rule is that treaties take effect immediately upon the exchange of ratifications, but in the present instance the amendment made by the Senate superseded the usual rule. Under the treaty a reduction of 20 per cent in the duty is allowed.

TRADE STILL IMPROVING AT HUB.

Weather is Ideal and Goods Moving Very Satisfactorily.

Boston, Mass., April 3.

Business is in the same flourishing condition it was last week and is improving daily. The weather is ideal.

The large cigar manufacturers here are doing plenty of missionary work on their various brands. The American Tobacco Co, has a corps of salesman here and many of the independent concerns are doing considerable advertising. The R. A. Patterson Co. is placing in many of the prominent cigar stores an electric sign advertising Lucky Strike tobacco.

The Commonwealth Cigar Co., whose store on Court street has been opened only about three months, has been doing a great deal of slashing in prices of late and during the past week they have been selling Moguls and Shinasi Brothers' Naturals at 10 cents a package, Cremo cigars at 8 for 25 cents, etc. Although it was their original intention to cater only to the very fine trade, it now looks as if they would be satisfied with any kind of trade. As there are ten or more cigar stores in the vicinity who have been getting full prices, this certainly will do no good, as many of the other retailers contemplate doing a little cutting also.

Yesterday being all fools' day quite a few trick cigars were in evidence.

E. Bendheim, representing the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., of New York, is in town once more, showing a very fine line of briar and meerschaum pipes.

Sam. Marcuson, with the American Tobacco Co., has just reached Boston after visiting the principal cities in New Hampshire. He reports having had a good sale on Hassan, the new 5 cent Turkish cigarette, while in that territory.

L. Hahn, the Lowell street tobacconist, spent a few days visiting New York this week.

J. D. Dubrenil and Jno. B. Van Syckel, with the American Tobacco Co., are doing some effective missionary work on Murad, the 15 cent Turkish cigarette.

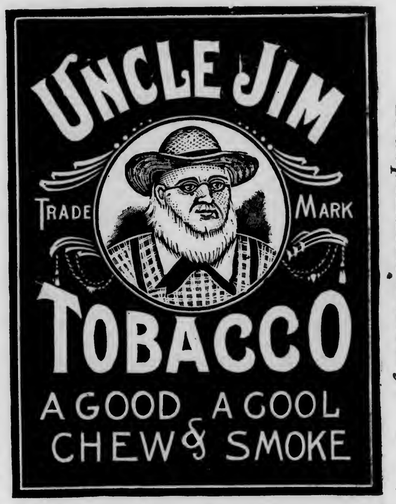
La Integridad, clear Havana cigars, from the factory of Chas. Morris & Co., New York, are being featured this week in the window display of Erhlick and Kopf.

Jacques Wolfe, formerly with the Louis Ash Co., of New York, has made his initial trip here in the interest of I. Lewis & Co., Newark. N. J., and is showing samples of the much heralded Golden Eagle cigars, similar goods to the Telonettes. The jobber's price on these cigars is $11, less 10 and 2 per cent and 10 per cent gratis in goods. Mr. Wolfe is meeting with fairly good success, and Boston is reputed to be a hard market to place new goods.

Durlach Bros., of New York, Porto Rico cigar manufacturers, had a representative spend a few days here this past week calling on the local jobbers.

H. K. Brown, who is operating a cigar store at 1½ Providence Court, has lately added to his establishment some handsome silent salesman show cases, and is carrying a full assortment of all the popular brands of domestic and imported cigars. Chas. McGoldrick, the manager, is a valuable adjunct to the store, and his very pleasing ways have attracted and made good customers of many of our Back Bay merchants whose places of business are in that locality.

The Baltimore Dairy Lunch, on newspaper row, is running a cigar stand in conjunction with the restaurant, a special feature being that no paper cigarettes whatever can be purchased there. Leroy Little Cigars also the Puritans, are having a good sale on this account.



Floradora, formerly sold at 3 for 10 cents are now being sold at 3 for 5 cents and in consequence the jobbers have laid in a stock.

Trimount, C. C. A., and the M. C. A., all 10 cent cigars, are being largely advertised here in various ways.

At Rosenthal Bros. business is very active. This firm is rapidly forging to the front and their retail and wholesale business alike is at its best. William the Fourth and El Cafe Bouquet cigars are great sellers with this firm.

C. L. Polep, the Hanover street cigarist, has placed a standing order to handle 25,000 Puritan little cigars monthly, and has just received the first shipment.

M. Barnett, leaf dealer of Fleet street, contemplates a busines trip to New York this coming week.

E. J. Mulligan, with the Menashi Cigarette Co., is deserving of great credit, for his handsome original window displays and it seems as if Menashi cigarettes have come to stay.

Victor Sheppard, the Khedivial Co.'s representative here, expects to go to Providence in the near future to make some window displays and do missionary work on the Turkish Delights which are enjoying a good sale here for a practically new piece of goods in this market

Rexford Hotel is getting to be the headquarters for the majority of cigarette and tobacco salesmen. BEN ALI.

UNITED CIGAR STORES CO. LEASE NEW LOCATION IN MINNEAPOLIS.

The ground store space in the Temple Court, Minneapolis, Minn., from the entrance to the corner has been leased by Horace Lowry to the United Cigar Stores Co. for $6,000 a year. The lease is for 1,417 square feet of floor space, making the rental $4.15 a square foot. Possession commenced April 1 and will continue ten years.

NEW WAREHOUSE AT MILLERSVILLE.

A. D. Killheffer, of Millersville, Pa., has just completed a new leaf tobacco warehouse, 28 x 40 feet in dimensions, arranged specially for convenience. He is also building a tobacco shed on his Prince street property. In the factory he is exceptionally busy, being scarcely able to fill orders as rapidly as the goods are desired.

TOBACCO IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

W. H. Lyon Makes Liberal Offer to Induce Planting.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 3.

W. H. Lyon, of this place is convinced that as good tobacco can be grown in South Dakota as in Wisconsin, and he is looking for some one who knows how to grow this plant. Mr. Lyon makes a liberal offer to such person. He will furnish the land and buy the seed and and will give all of the crop to the grower.

"I make this offer," said Mr. Lyon, "in order to bring to the front some man who knows something about tobacco culture. I am informed that $100 an acre is made from tobacco culture in Wisconsin, and I believe that our climate and soil are all right for this crop. If such shall prove to be the case, we would have developed another crop of great value in this State. I would like to see the experiment tried and for that reason I would like to get hold of some old Indiana, Wisconsin or Ohio farmer who knows how to grow the tobacco and properly cure it afterwards."

If any such person sees this item, he should communicate with Mr. Lyon.

MOST GOODS IN PACKERS' HANDS.

Lancaster Trade Moving Along Well and Nobody Has Any Kick.

Lancaster, Pa., April 3.

The leaf market in this city remains practically unchanged, so far as business with the various packers is concerned, and there is but little old stock on hand excepting some goods of the 1901 crop.

The 1904 crops are also pretty well in packers' hands and each week deliveries are becoming lighter. A large portion of the tobacco now coming in is from York county.

Business with the jobbers is just moderate although a feeling of some improvement in the cigar manufacturing trade is manifest and nearly all factories are working, with some very busy ones.

Stauffer Bros. Mfg. Co. at New Holland has been steadily busy all this year and at present are still somewhat behind with their orders. They recently placed a new brand of 5 cent goods on the market which is meeting with most encouraging success.

A. D. Killheffer, proprietor of the Eureka Cigar Factory at Millersville, is among the busy ones in this vicinity, with the seating capacity of his factory filled to the utmost.

A new cigar concern will soon be started here, and it is their object to open several first class retail stores in this city. Frank B. Trout, a well known local stock broker is interested in the project.

The revenue returns for February as published last week, for the United States, contained in its amounts a full share of progress from this district, and March has of course exceeded February as was expected, although it will not be phenomenally large.

H. Gotselig & Bro., cigar manufacturers, formerly located on St. Joseph street, this city, have removed to Danville, Pa., and are reported to be doing very nicely in their new venture. They are two ambitious young men, and deserving of the fullest success.

M. R. Hoffman, of the Hoffman Leaf Tobacco Co., at Marietta, has been in the West looking over the leaf markets there, and last week was heard from at Dayton, O., where he is putting up a packing.

John R. Young, of Young & Newman, and F. Eckerson, of F. Eckerson & Co., both of Philadelphia, were visitors in this city during the past week.

GILDED PALACES OF GRAFT.

United Cigar Stores So Styled in the Inimitable Chicago Journal.

Thanking you one and all for your kind attention we take great pleasure in presenting another hot budget of poison news from the dear old Chicago Journal. The dose:

Chemists and expert tobacco men, working in the interests of the Independent Cigar Dealers' Association, have been making additional investigation into the effect of adulterated tobacco, as sold by the trust stores in Chicago. The researches of these men have proved conclusively what the independent association has claimed—that the trust's goods are decidedly detrimental to the health of any one who uses them regularly.

Concerning the researches of the experts, the head of the publicity department of the association said:

"When it becomes necessary to hide the identity of the real owners of a cigar store or chain of stores it is evident that customers who patronize such stores are being imposed on. Men who buy their cigars and tobacco at the trust stores certainly will suffer injury to their health.

"Consumers who permit themselves to be lured into these gilded palaces of graft and misrepresentation, attracted by cut rate prices in the show windows, will soon learn to keep away from these self-styled 'largest people on earth.' They will find that the goods are not worth half the price charged for them, and that these apparently cheap cigars are harmful.

"Clerks in the trust stores will regret, too, that they have been used as cat's-paws and have induced their personal friends and following to patronize the trust stores."

NEBRASKA'S ANTI-CIGARETTE BILL

Passes Both Houses and Now Lacks Only Governor's Signature.

Lincoln, Neb., April 1.

The anti cigarette bill which has been before the Nebraska Legislature, and which absolutely prohibits the sale of cigarettes or cigarette paper, has passed both houses and lacked only the signatures of the presiding officers before being sent to the Governor.

It is understood that there was considerable opposition to the bill which it was said was conducted by the American Tobacco Co. Some little commotion was caused by apparent loss of the bill this afternoon which was found in a pigeon hole only after a long search.

MARCH LARGEST IN RICHMOND.

Shockoe Warehouse Reports Big Sales for the Past Month.

Richmond, Va., April 1.

Will L. Hazell, of the Shockoe Warehouse, this city, in his report of March sales says, "Yesterday closed another week's heavy sales of loose tobacco and made March the largest month of the season, the aggregate sales for the month being 2,185,550 pounds. From Oct 1, 1904, to March 31, 1905, total sales were 8,008,796 pounds. Sales for the same period last year, 7,129,252 pounds, an increase of 879,544 pounds.

"Prices were very well maintained up to the last few days, but the week and month closed with prices very much weaker, due mainly to a crowded market, much of which stock was in bad order, rendering it almost impossible for the factories to handle before it would spoil. When the factories have had a few days in which to handle stocks on hand and clean up. I think prices will go back to where they were before the decline.

"The crop from the wagon belt is about all marketed, hence breaks will be very light the rest of the season, as the shipping territory will not put much on the market before the opening of the exchange, May 1.

"While the last sale of the week and month was a 'black Friday' on the breaks, we made at Shockoe some very fine sales. We sold for M. O. Garnett, of Caroline county, a crop, including all the grades from lugs to wrappers, which averaged $15.60—280 pounds at $14.50; 440 at $15; 120 at $15; 80 at $24; R. S. Bruce, of Caroline county, 285 pounds at $9; 425 at $9.50; 535 at $10 50; 470 at $13 25; 280 at $13.25; 310 at $14.75. We sold for E. P. Wickham, of Hanover county, 710 pounds at $6.75; 395 at $9.25: 170 at $16.50; 105 at $28. For Ben Luck, of Louisa county, 340 pounds at $8.25; 200 at $23.50; 245 at $26

"The above prices show that the demand is good, and where the order is right prices are good, but damaged stock or stock in soft order sells low."

SLOT MACHINES' BUSY EXIT.

More than 5,000 Have Been Thrown Out in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., March 31.

Today was the last day for the slot machines in Cincinnati, as Mayor Fleischman has ordered that there should be no more of that sort of gambling after April 1.

Unprecedently heavy play marked the last day of the 5,678 slot machines in saloons, cigar and drug stores. Many proprietors offered special prizes. In some instances there was gambling on a large scale, the bettors paying high prices for pennies and receiving rewards in proportion. For instance, where the player paid $1 for a penny he would receive 100 times the regular reward for a winning hand.

Two men in a Vine street saloon wagered $1,700 on hands in less than an hour and the proprietor lost $700.

—W. J. Cummins, A. H. Robinson, N. P. LaSeur, John Stumb, Paul Stumb, Eustace A. Hall and Saml. S. Woolwine have incorporated the Crescent Tobacco Works, of Nashville, Tenn., with a capital of $25,000, to enlarge and operate an established plant.

AN IMPROVEMENT IN PIPES.

A new tobacco pipe has been patented by Mr. E. C. Watts, of 4 Jessie ville, Summer Hill South, Cork. He states that his invention consists in certain improvements in and connected with mouthpieces for tobacco pipes, cigar tubes, and cigarette tubes, whereby the saliva from the mouth is prevented from entering the stem, and any moisture or nicotine from the tobacco cannot enter the mouth. The mouthpiece of the pipe or tube can be made of the usual shape and material, but with a larger bore. In the end or lip he closely fits a second tube of suitable length, which may have a raised lip made to project beyond the lip of the first tube, and thus make the mouthpiece externally the same as those commonly in use. This second tube is slightly tapered or conical in form, and is closed at the end farthest from the lip, and from its tapered or conical form a space remains between the inner surface of the first tube and the outer surface of the second tube, it being understood that the latter is within the former. At a suitable position in the flattened surface of the second tube is a hole forming the entrance to a small tube extending downwards within the mouthpiece and nearly reaching the opposite side or bottom of the same. The smoke travels between the first and second tubes and through the third or small tube, whence it emerges from the end of the mouthpiece.—Tobacco Trade Journal, Dublin.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The assorting shops are closing one by one, and within two weeks most of them will be through for the season. They have been run to their full capacity since the tobacco began to be taken down and stripped. The cry is for more and better offerings; there are customers enough, but the truth is there is a short supply, and that is poor in quality. To my benighted mind it would not be strange if the manufacturers should use some of the very best plug wrappers before the thing is done with. Well, of course, not on the best grade of cigars, but on the stogies and some of the cheap bar room cigars. Things more strange have happened, I think, even in the tobacco line.

Our correspondents write:

Agawam, Mass.: As the time approaches for making seed beds, it is well for the farmers to help one another by giving their experience as to the best methods of raising the plants. It is very essential that one should have early plants in order to have early tobacco, which in my experience has always been the best. I have had good success in raising plants under glass, which material is expensive. I have expended $140 for glass and frames which I should not have done if I had known what success the farmers have had in this section in raising under cloth. They take the cloth which is two yards wide, and saturate it with oil as hot they can handle it, and then pass the cloth through an old clothes wringer and wring it dry. They make their beds two yards wide; make the frame as though glass was to be used; tack the upper side; put on cross pieces

EDGERTON, WIS.

The buying movement is going quietly forward in the country districts when anything desirable is continually being gathered in. The market is awakening to the fact that the crop is much more closely cleaned up than was imagined and in many localities little remains in growers' hands. A good deal of the tobacco lifted of late has been of the cheaper grades upon an export basis at low figures, but all seems to be wanted at a price. A few of the recent transactions are:

And. Gullickson, 7a at 7 and 7c asst.
Gilbert Gilson, 10a at 7c.
Ole Larson, 5a at 6½ and 3c asst.
Edw. Hyland, 32cs '02 at p. t.

Old leaf of all descriptions continues in excellent demand and a good deal of trading is going on among packers. McIntosh Bros. report the sale of 100 cases of '03. An 80 case lot of '02 has been sold by Ole Hemsing, a Stoughton packer, to A. Wallach of Chicago.

There is plenty of work in sight for the warehouses for some weeks yet though the mild weather of the week has commenced to warm up the bundle stock, which will tend to hasten the handling of the goods.

Shipments were 500 cases—Reporter.

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.
M. D. Boales.

The past month has been very quiet; nothing doing in hogshead tobacco—sales only 50 hhds. There has been no sampling, the trade standing still waiting the results of Farmers' Organization to offer. Quite free deliveries are being made and prizing going on, which is put in warehouses subject to sale committee of the Organization, who have selected Mr. O. F. Jarrett, an old and efficient tobacco man, for salesman of their tobacco on this market. Loose deliveries of tobaccos sold early in the season are coming in to prizing houses; not much being sold now—nearly all tied up. Loose floor sales were small, with prices for Lugs 3 to 4c, and for Leaf 5 to 7½c—generally small crops of common grades. Old tobaccos on sale in hogsheads are quoted: Lugs, 4 to 5c; Leaf—Common, 5 to 6c; Medium, 6 to 7c; Good, 7 to 8½c.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.
M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 634 hhds, offerings on the breaks 29 hhds, sales 19 hhds.

The receipts are largely swelled by the deliveries from the factories of the "Dark District Planters' Protective Association," which are now receiving the loose crops freely.

A portion of the prizings are now stored temporarily at the country warehouses, which have been built for the purpose the type samples being sent to the central office and sample rooms here.

The sales this week were of old crop except a few hogsheads, prices were firm and unchanged.

The small old stock here is offered but sparingly and firmly held, hoping for higher prices.

Not enough new crop has been sold to make reliable quotations. We have now spring weather, and winter seems over.

For old tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to	4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to	4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to	4.75
Low Leaf	4.75	to	5.50
Common Leaf	5.75	to	6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00	to	8.00

—According to the annual report of Internal Revenue Inspector Garling, of the Twenty-third District of New York, 361,336,335 cigars were made in the district during 1904.

OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

Then he burst out in that infernal laugh of his, with the purest, best intention in the world, I grant you. He was looking straight into the boss's face, and I would bet a million dollars that he never saw the nose to notice anything peculiar about it. But I am so used to the boss that when I saw the slow color mounting up to meet the carmine of his proboscis, I knew what was doing.

"He replied civilly enough, though, that he was glad to come into contact with the people with whom he had dealings, and that was the fool salesman's cue to say 'yes, yes; exactly,' and hand out another laugh, still looking intently at the boss, for I believe he makes it a point always to look straight at the man he's talking to.

"It went on that way for a few more remarks, until the boss was no longer able to conceal his displeasure, and the salesman recognizing that something was wrong, got a little rattled and worse than ever, until I was on pins and needles to get him out.

"He did laugh his way out at last, and the boss didn't say anything for some minutes. Then he turned to me and remarked casually:

"'Do So and So's goods run as well as they used to? I have sometimes thought that long buying from one firm, is apt to foster a tendency on their part to let up a little on quality.'

"Well, that was enough for me, and I shut down on this salesman by degrees, until now it is very seldom we use him.

"Now that I have a more proper prospective, I am willing to allow that the man is always innocent of any intention to insult anybody, in fact I believe that is the last thing in the world he wants to do.

"I think his case is like others I have heard of. One chap, a friend of mine, told me once that he had started to exercise a laugh as a business getter, and it had finally gotten beyond his control, so that he was making breaks just like the man I have been telling you about. He pulled up in time, though, he said, and regulated it. Somebody ought to tell this fellow to try to do the same thing."

So much for the over developed laugh. A laugh is just as good an asset as it was at the beginning of this article, but remember before you commence to laugh, that there ought to be a little something at least, that the other man can see is funny too. THE OLD SALESMAN.

WILLIAM M. HOBDAY DIES.

He was One of the Best Known Tobacco Experts in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., March 31.

William M. Hobday, one of the best known tobacco men in Louisville, died last week at his home on West Jefferson street, following an illness of three weeks from pneumonia. The funeral took place at Augusta, the dead man's former home.

Mr. Hobday had been engaged in the tobacco business in Louisville for about fifteen years. He had never been connected with any of the houses here, but was a buyer, and was considered one of the best judges of fine tobacco ever on the breaks

Personally Mr. Hobday was liked by everyone, and was esteemed for his many excellent qualities. The news of his death caused the keenest sorrow through the tobacco district.

Mr. Hobday is survived by his wife and two little daughters and by three brothers. Curran, Edward J. and Robert L. Hobday.

MONTANA HAS A CIGARETTE BILL

But Arkansas Turns Down Proposed Measure as Impractical.

Helena, Mont., March 30.

The anti cigarette bill which has been introduced in the House by Representative Bringham, of Chouteau, is meeting with more general favor than has apparently been accorded bills of similar purpose in other States, and it is considered fairly probable that the bill will go through, although like all the others it will doubtless be forced to pass the Supreme Court before those interested in the cigarette business will allow it to become operative.

There is already a State law which provides a penalty for dealers who sell cigarettes or cigarette paper to minors, but it has never been enforced, and the Bringham law is meant to carry along the purpose of the one already existent, as it makes it a misdemeanor for a boy under the age of eighteen to smoke in any public place, which of course includes the streets. By thus hitting the illegal consumer directly, it is hoped to discourage him from buying, it being recognized that as long as boys have the money and inclination to buy cigarettes, they will have little difficulty in finding dealers who are willing to sell them.

Little Rock, Ark., March 29.

It is regarded as extremely improbable that this State will take any action looking toward the restriction of the cigarette trade in relation to minors, inasmuch as there has been no move to revive the agitation since the bill was killed that was passed by the Senate.

The House of Representatives was opposed to the measure, not because the members thought it inadvisable to prevent the use of cigarettes by boys, but for the reason that it was regarded as impossible to pass a law of this kind that would be observed in the letter, and not simply laughed at. It is regarded as probable that the Indiana law and others of the sort will fail to stand the test of the courts, and the House accordingly declined to take action that would prove ineffective.

THE CIGARETTE LAW IN JAPAN.

A current paragraph, which states that everybody in Japan smokes, should except minors. According to the Japanese Minister in London, the sale of tobacco is prohibited in the case of any person under the age of 20 years, the penalty being a fine of $5. A parent who allows a minor to smoke is subject to a fine of fifty cents.

The anti cigarette bill which has been introduced in the House by Representative Bringham, of Chouteau, is meeting with more general favor than has apparently been accorded bills of similar purpose in other States, and it is considered fairly probable that the bill will go through, although like all the others it will doubtless be forced to pass the Supreme Court before those interested in the cigarette business will allow it to become operative.

There is already a State law which provides a penalty for dealers who sell cigarettes or cigarette paper to minors, but it has never been enforced, and the Bringham law is meant to carry along the purpose of the one already existent, as it makes it a misdemeanor for a boy under the age of eighteen to smoke in any public place, which of course includes the streets. By thus hitting the illegal consumer directly, it is hoped to discourage him from buying, it being recognized that as long as boys have the money and inclination to buy cigarettes, they will have little difficulty in finding dealers who are willing to sell them.

It is regarded as extremely improbable that this State will take any action looking toward the restriction of the cigarette trade in relation to minors, inasmuch as there has been no move to revive the agitation since the bill was killed that was passed by the Senate.

The House of Representatives was opposed to the measure, not because the members thought it inadvisable to prevent the use of cigarettes by boys, but for the reason that it was regarded as impossible to pass a law of this kind that would be observed in the letter, and not simply laughed at. It is regarded as probable that the Indiana law and others of the sort will fail to stand the test of the courts, and the House accordingly declined to take action that would prove ineffective.

THE CIGARETTE LAW IN JAPAN.

A current paragraph, which states that everybody in Japan smokes, should except minors. According to the Japanese Minister in London, the sale of tobacco is prohibited in the case of any person under the age of 20 years, the penalty being a fine of $5. A parent who allows a minor to smoke is subject to a fine of fifty cents.

OUR TRADE WITH CUBA.

1905 Exports and Imports Compared with those of Other Years

Washington, D. C., April 9.

According to the government reports which are being issued today, exports from the United States to Cuba in the eight months ending with February, 1905 amount to $24,126,687 and are larger than in the corresponding period of any fiscal year in the history of our trade with Cuba.

Compared with the corresponding period of last year they show an increase of over 42 per cent while the imports from Cuba in the same time show an increase of only 16 per cent. The statement of trade with Cuba during the eight months with February, just issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statics, shows an especially rapid growth in exports to that island, and that the increase occurs in practically all articles entering into that trade.

In imports the growth is not nearly so rapid and occurs in but two or three articles, chiefly sugar. The exports to Cuba in the eight months ending with February were valued at $24,126,687, against $16,898,884 in the corresponding months of last year, an increase of 42 per cent, while the imports from Cuba were $42,260,359, as against $36,230,060 in the corresponding months of last year, an increase of but 16 per cent. It is quite apparent from these figures that the exports to Cuba during the fiscal year which ends with the month of June will be larger than in any earlier year. The largest exports to Cuba in the history of our commerce with that island were those of the fiscal year 1904, when the total was $22,377,465, and as the exports during the eight months of the present fiscal year show an increase of 42 per cent over those of the corresponding period of 1904, the largest earlier year, it is quite apparent that the total for the year 1905 will materially exceed that of any preceding year.

On the import side, predictions as to the comparison of the fiscal year 1905 with earlier years are more difficult. The increase in imports from Cuba in the 8 months ending with February is, as already indicated, but 16 per cent over the corresponding months of 1904, while the imports from Cuba in that year were less than those of 1873, 1874, 1892, and 1893. The year of the largest importation from Cuba was 1874, when the total value of merchandise imported from that island was $85,428,097. The total for the fiscal year 1904 was $76,983,418, and as the figures for the 8 months of the present year were but 16 per cent in excess of those of the corresponding months of last year, it seems scarcely likely that the total for the fiscal year will reach the high water mark of 1874, though there can be no doubt that the exports to the island in 1905 will materially exceed the record of any earlier years.

During the eight months ending with February 1905, manufactured tobacco to the value of $79,879, as against a value of $78,570 for the eight months ending February, 1904.

BRIGHT BELT FARMERS HAVE FEASIBLE PLAN FOR ORGANIZATION

They Will Attempt Nothing of Magnitude of the Burley Growers' Million Dollar Project, But Will Borrow Money From Banks on Value of Individual Crops, Through Organization Officers.

Richmond, Va., April 8.

Reports received here from the old bright belt of Virginia and North Carolina show that the acreage of tobacco will be further decreased this spring. Farmers are now far enough along in their work of seeding to show what will probably be the total acreage, and there is no doubt that it will be from 15 to 30 per cent less than last year.

The shortage of tobacco raised in the strictly tobacco States last year was large and that there will be a still greater shortage this year there can be no doubt.

The reduced acreage in Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky in 1904 was due more to the efforts of farmers' organizations than anything else. The executive committee of the Inter State Tobacco Growers' Association of Virginia and North Carolina sent out a strong appeal before planting time last year urging farmers to curtail their tobacco crops and put the land to other uses.

They pointed out that this was the only means by which better prices could be obtained, as the over production was so great that buyers were able to wait until the warehouses were glutted and then fix their prices. This appeal was very generally observed by the farmers and the result was all that could be hoped because prices in these two States have ranged higher for all grades than for many years before.

Encouraged by this success they sent out another strong appeal last winter urging farmers to further curtail their crops and this is being generally observed.

The Tobacco Growers' Protective Association has about 11,000 members and it is growing at the rate of about 600 per month. It is believed that within twelve months every tobacco grower, in both the light and dark belts, will become members of an organization pledged to reduce acreage and to withhold their crops from market until prices are right.

These organizations are receiving much encouragement in a quiet way from banks and capitalists who are apparently quite ready to advance money on the crop under conditions by which their investment is safeguarded and which are carried out by the officers of the Associations.

Profiting by the failure of the burley tobacco growers of Kentucky to capitalize their business for millions, the organizations throughout this section are very wisely confining their efforts to the capitalization of small groups of growers. No attempt is being made to finance all of the tobacco growers through one source as that undertaking has been deemed too large and too uncertain of results.

Some of the organizations are now arranging with local capitalists by which the farmers who are members can obtain the necessary money to enable them to hold their crops until market conditions are right, by applying to their local officers. These officers inspect the tobacco, report on its value to the bank or group of capitalists that supply the money and the farmer obtains his loan.

If a great majority of the farmers can be brought into the organizations—and it seems a matter of easy accomplishment now—they will pledge themselves to borrow no money except through their own organization, thereby enabling their own officers to control the market in a large measure.

If tobacco dealers and manufacturers imagine that the organization movement does not amount to much they are greatly mistaken. Tobacco growers all through the South are deeply stirred up over the subject of organization and are not only pledging their support, but are putting up their money for a war fund to carry on the work of systematic planting and organized selling.

BIG TOBACCO FAIR IN LEXINGTON.

It Will Be Held in the Fall and $10,000 in Prizes Will be Distributed.

Lexington, Ky., April 8

Plans are on foot to hold a grand fair in this city next fall and it is the idea of the Tobacco Growers' Fair and Pure Food Exhibit Company, recently organized with this project in mind, to make the exhibit one of the largest ever held. To accomplish this it is intended to offer $10,000 in prizes which will range in value from $10 to $500 each.

The exhibits will be made in the Burley Loose Tobacco Warehouse Co's warehouse, and each farmer who exhibits tobacco will be required to bring 500 pounds. The fair will last four days and at its conclusion the tobacco on exhibition will be sold and the proceeds paid to its owners.

Secretary Wilson, of the Agricultural Department, will be asked to open the fair with an address, and a ticket of admission will be sent to every grower who applies for one.

Among the Directors who have been selected are: W. J. Loughridge, President of the Third National Bank; R. M. Allen, Secretary of the National Pure Food Departments; M. A. Scovill, Dean of the Kentucky Experimental Station; W. B. Hawkins, President of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Company; F. R. Toe Water, manager of the Burley district for the American Tobacco Company; T. A. Combs, Mayor of Lexington; H. P. Headley, President of the Headley Lumber Company, and a wealthy breeder of thoroughbred horses; H. F. Hillenmeyer, Director of the City National Bank; J. Embry Allen, State Senator; Desha Breckinridge, of the Lexington Publishing Company; D F. Frazee, President of the Phoenix Hotel Company; F. A. Bullock, County Judge of Fayette county; L. G. Cox, capitalist; T. C. McDowell, turfman and breeder; D. B. Jones, Treasurer of the Southern Mutual Investment Company; S. J. Roberts, Leader Publishing Company; J. W. Newman, State Senator; John Skain, Director Phoenix National Bank; C. F. Brower, J. T. Tunis, merchants; S. T. Harbinson, of the firm of Harbinson, Jewell & Patterson; Charles Patrick, William McCord, planters; A. Smith Bowman, Secretary of the Southern Mutual Investment Company, and A. S. Winston, President of the First National Bank.

REVENUE INCREASE OF 12 PER CENT IN 26 OHIO COUNTIES.

Toledo, O., April 7.

Whether it be that there are more smokers in northwestern Ohio now than there were one year ago the records of the internal revenue office show that there has been an increase of 12 per cent in the number of cigars made in the tenth district, comprising 26 counties, over which Col. Waldorf has supervision as collector of internal revenue. During the year 1904 in this district 92,973,368 cigars were made, of all grades, which is an increase of 9,496,546 over the previous year

This district of Ohio contains hundreds of factories, large and small, and is noted for the numerous brands of cigars that are put on the market, especially from the southern part, which includes the large factories of Lima.

WILL HOLD TOBACCO FOR BETTER PRICES.

Cloverport, Ky., April 7.

At a meeting of the tobacco growers of this district, held here, a committee was appointed to raise money and to rent a tobacco warehouse, in which to put up and prize this year's crop of tobacco. The farmers propose to store away their tobacco till better prices are reached.

TO RAISE TOBACCO IN OUTAGAMIE COUNTY, WIS.

Tobacco is to be given a trial in Outagamie county, Wisconsin, this summer. A firm composed of Max Shapiro, E. Ressman and D. Shure, has rented five acres of land two miles north of the city where they expect to set out tobacco plants about May 15. They have already planted the seeds in hot houses. Shure has been in the tobacco business in Russia for the past thirty-five years.

Toledo, O., April 7.

Whether it be that there are more smokers in northwestern Ohio now than there were one year ago the records of the internal revenue office show that there has been an increase of 12 per cent in the number of cigars made in the tenth district, comprising 26 counties, over which Col. Waldorf has supervision as collector of internal revenue. During the year 1904 in this district 92,973,368 cigars were made, of all grades, which is an increase of 9,496,546 over the previous year

This district of Ohio contains hundreds of factories, large and small, and is noted for the numerous brands of cigars that are put on the market, especially from the southern part, which includes the large factories of Lima.

Cloverport, Ky., April 7.

At a meeting of the tobacco growers of this district, held here, a committee was appointed to raise money and to rent a tobacco warehouse, in which to put up and prize this year's crop of tobacco. The farmers propose to store away their tobacco till better prices are reached.

TO RAISE TOBACCO IN OUTAGAMIE COUNTY, WIS.

Tobacco is to be given a trial in Outagamie county, Wisconsin, this summer. A firm composed of Max Shapiro, E. Ressman and D. Shure, has rented five acres of land two miles north of the city where they expect to set out tobacco plants about May 15. They have already planted the seeds in hot houses. Shure has been in the tobacco business in Russia for the past thirty-five years.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

PATIENCE IS A HARD VIRTUE TO ACQUIRE.

I notice that the editor of the retailer's department of this paper is never at a loss to supply a page of bright suggestions to retail dealers, as to how to run their stores successfully.

For the most part these are all right and I believe that every retailer can at times profit from the department, according to his circumstances. Some of the advice would be pretty hard to follow under certain conditions, however, and I think that in every case laid down there are likely to be exceptions.

The dealer and his clerks are frequently told always to be courteous and accommodating no matter what sort of a grouch their customer may be, and to put up with everything short of outrageous insults, always remembering that the dope on the front side of the counter is hurting no one but himself.

I think that is the gist of the philosophy, and as I said before, it must be terrifically hard to follow at times. The clerk has a side of it that will be a plausible side as long as human nature remains human nature.

For instance, I was in a retail store in Philadelphia last week, giving the proprietor a little treat by letting him hear me talk, when a young man entered. This is a store where a dozen or two boxes are displayed on the counter for the better choice of the undecided customer. The young man advanced to these and with a deep frown furrowing his intellectual brow, glared them over.

Finally one box was unfortunate enough to claim his definite attention and he commenced to paw over the contents. He would take up a handful of cigars and examine each one minutely from end to end and then throw the lot back into the box.

I give you my word he did this with the whole box and ended by taking a bunch over to the door for more light. Here they were subjected to the closest possible scrutiny, and at last the youth selected two, with the air of consenting to be victimized for the sake of being a sport. He handed the clerk a dime and went out.

The latter, who is the proprietor of the store, came around in front of the counter and meekly began to reduce the chaos of discarded cigars to some order.

There was another man standing near the cigar lighter who had watched the entire operation with deep interest. He was evidently a very profane man and he felt like exercising his gift. After sundry and various remarks that would not go through the French mails, he wound up with the pithy statement that he'd be —— —— if he'd sell a cigar to a —— —— like that.

"Well, you noticed I didn't pay any attention to him," answered the dealer. "I just allow him to wait on himself and then fix up the wreck. He acts that way every time he comes in and at first it made me hot under the collar. I didn't say anything, though, and now he just amuses me. The funny part of it is, he comes in here one day, and picks out the cigars he had discarded the day before."

"Well I'd leave the —— —— plug cutter at the —— lobster," declared the profane man.

"It wouldn't do," said the dealer. "I did lose my temper this morning, though," he added sorrowfully. "A cheap looking guy came in and said 'Gimme a Cinco,' or rather, he said Sinko I handed him out the box and after he had run a dirty hand through the lot he picked one and said, with the accent on the name:

"'Is this a Cinco?'

"I didn't like his face anyhow and I grabbed the cigar back, put it in the box, slammed the lid to and put the box away.

"'See here young man,' I says, 'you don't want to buy a cigar!'

"Well he just gave me a surprised look and walked out without saying a word."

"Good enough for the ——," commented the man who was profane.

"No," answered the dealer, "I shouldn't have done it. It isn't a question of merely losing the sale of one cigar. That's a minor point. My idea is that the successful clerk is the one who doesn't regard himself and his customer as man to man, but as merely a salesman to a customer whose relations begin and end with the actual transaction of the business. The cranky customer very probably makes a fool of himself wherever he goes and the clerk, personally, does not figure in his spleen at all. Conse-

EXECUTIVE SYSTEMS OF THE UNITED CIGAR STORES COMPANY.

IN the April number of the Business Man's Magazine and the Bookkeeper is an article by Camillus Phillips under the title given above. The article is lengthy but uniformly interesting and a careful perusal of it would benefit every retailer in the trade, whether he is a rival of the United Cigar Stores Co. or not. The writer of the article is a frank admirer of the system which he explains, but explains it with such admirable detail as to give a good reason for his admiration.

The independent dealer reading this, will understand how seriously he is handicapped by such a system, which naturally is impossible to himself, or to any interest short of a great corporation. To read it is to understand how the company has been successful in invading conservative fields, but at the same time to understand that this success has never been accomplished without hitches or without having to overcome the disadvantages which were a result of its very magnitude.

The article commences with a brief description of how the company came into existence, and then says:

President Whelan himself enlisted the aid of the wholesaler who, in every city, was to be local adviser and, probably, the local supply agent. He himself inspected the stores which were purchased —always for cash and always without regard to purchase price if the location and the trade promised a legitimate return on the investment. He engaged the owner as the store manager, termed chief clerk; he paid better wages to store clerks than were paid before, often advancing store salaries 25 per cent. He was able to transfer, in toto, the good will and the allegiance of every store organization in his company. He founded new stores, in a proportion of from 30 to 50 per cent of the number of established stores he bought out; and he solved the problem of the fresh, unskilled labor, by placing, in every store, 50 per cent of skilled labor to train 50 per cent of unskilled labor.

But he could look only to time and hard work for the re establishment of the normal two per cent of damage to stock when it receives expert handling. When a campaign opened in any city, the ordinary run of injury was from eight to 12 per cent—a loss eliminating all profit. He could look only to time for the correction of the neophytes' ignorance of the stock, which was bad enough, and of the wants of the customers, which was far worse.

But neither time nor hard work could ever enable the company to stop the petty thievery which, in the aggregate, made killing inroads upon its profits.

Some months elapsed. The volume of the losses was enormous.. A general, comprehensive system had become an essential for salvation. The president of the company was so large a man that he knew perfectly the secret of the successful conduct of large enterprises—the utilization of the maximum initiative possessed by subordinates. In March, 1903, he called a conclave of all general managers, and of all city or district managers. They met at the Imperial Hotel in New York and all came with a written plan designed, in compliance with a previous request of the president, to remedy the looseness which was known to prevail.

Among the district managers was Samuel Bloch, whose territory extended from Canal street, south, in New York city. He was the man who had defined the essentials of the problem and the conclave dissolved shortly after he read his paper. Within three weeks his plan was in operation, and its author was inventory manager, practically adminis trator of the accounts of the entire business throughout the United States.

The thieves dropped into detection like ripe persimmons. The company was merciful—for two months. Then it realized that a thief is bred in the bone, and it became inexorable. It discharged upon reasonable suspicion, and it jailed upon flagrant guilt.

Within one year the percentage lost by petty peculations was reduced below the normal of the average well conducted cigar store outside of the company's control.

The system, of which the foundations are complete fixation of responsibility and precision of inventory, begins before the doors of a new store are opened to custo mers. The chief clerk—with all his stock, old or new, or both, comprised within the store's four walls—is there on the selected day nominally a selling agent for the company, practically in the position of an independent dealer awaiting inventory of his stock, down to the last half cent of values, by receivers for his creditors. To him come a "team" of two special agents of the company, from New York if the store is in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Buffalo or any other center east of Chicago; from Chicago, if it is west of that operating center. Several teams of special agents operate continually from the two centers, regularly for the making of monthly inventories and, as occasion demands, for the making of the initial inventory at new stores.

Part of their work is educational, for it remains for them finally to impress upon the chief clerk the value of neatness and attractive display of stock and, more than all else, the unvarying importance of every minute detail, so that he shall realize how the entire inventory system operates upon a unit basis, with every individual package of tobacco, every cigar and every cigarette reckoned as one, distinct unit in a decimal system of accounting. He learns, then, the lesson that he is personally responsible for everything within those four walls, down to the value of a fraction of a cent.

The special agents, making their records in his presence and with his verification, set down the total number of units in the stock, to the last cigarette and the ultimate package or plug of tobacco. He is debited with all, as if he were the independent dealer, but at the selling price at which he is to dispose of every distinct group of units. The chief clerk is thus in debt to the company at the full retail price, for all the stock found in his store by the special agents.

With the departure of the special agents, the chief clerk is at liberty to open his store doors and sell his first cigar, cigarette package or plug of tobacco. He knows that one month later, there will be a fresh inventory by the agents and that, meanwhile, it is incumbent upon him, at any hour of any day, to be prepared to show either the original stock as inventoried or the money for every missing portion of it as appraised at the retail price with which he has been debited. The one disturbing factor for the full retail appraisement is the box trade—a very important element in the business of the company, whose aim it is that all of its stores shall secure as large a sale as possible for full boxed goods are necessarily made at a reduction from the retail price arbitrarily fixed as the standard of value. The "General Braddock" cigar, for instance, with its retail appraisement at $4.17 as sold in groups of sixes, is disposed of at $4.00 per box of 100, a difference against the chief clerk of 17 cents. The adjustment of the discrepancy incidental to the box trade is arrived at by means of a rebate for the amount of the difference, which the chief clerk credits to himself in the form of a discount, in a special report on box sales.

Being debited with the goods at full retail price, the chief clerk must watch all his rebates on box sales for his own protection, and only by making an exact rebate which must fit in precisely with the condition of his stock, can he keep his account straight with the company. Before the system was instituted, the store clerks could readily find in the box sales opportunities for false statements, by which they could put into their private pockets the difference between the retail prices, and the box prices at which they alleged they sold the cigars.

The system of debiting the stock to the chief clerk at the full retail prices, put upon him the onus of proof of sale at the lower price permissible for box trade, while the rebate or discount put it in his power to safeguard himself to the extent of the actual returns. The rebates as reported from all the stores, are tabulated in the New York office by a large force of tabulating clerks and are compared with the condition of stock as reported periodically by the inspecting teams of special agents. It has happened repeatedly that a month's inventory of all stores doing $5,000 monthly business, has balanced with the monthly account of the daily report with no greater discrepancy than ten cents.

The article by Mr. Philips is much longer than this and includes some matter regarding the cash register system in the United stores, and the manner of making out reports which will probably be taken up on this page at another time. What is printed above, however, shows how small details were considered in the making of the system, and how just that very care has made the great chain of stores possible.

THE Eskimos of Point Barrow know good tobacco from bad, but have a peculiar way of showing their appreciation. The habit of chewing the weed seems to be universal. Men, women and even unweaned children keep a quid, often of enormous size, constantly in the mouth. The juice is not spit out, but swallowed with the saliva without producing any symptoms of nausea.

WINDOW DISPLAY of I. LEWIS & CO.'S "GOLDEN EAGLE"

I. LEWIS & CO.'S new "Golden Eagle" brand of little cigars is being pushed extensively in New York city, and, according to dealers who are handling it, is catching on. William B. Turk, general advertising agent for the company, who is handling the force which is exploiting the brand in New York, is responsible for some effective window displays. The above cut gives a view of H. Brand's window, 458 Brook avenue. The bottom of the window is in puffed red cheesecloth; the eagle is made of papier mache, and the centre design on which the eagle rests is plaited around the edge with cheese-cloth. The sign in the centre is yellow, with black letters shaded with blue.

Gentlemen:
After careful consideration of all other systems for handling cash, it was decided that, for the quick and accurate accounting of the daily receipts, the concessionaires on the grounds of the Exposition should use the NATIONAL CASH REGISTERS.
We are entirely satisfied with the working of the one thousand or more registers which were in use on the Exposition Grounds.
Your machines furnished information and protection to both the concessionaires and the Exposition Company which could not have been obtained in any other way.
We believe the NATIONAL CASH REGISTER is the best means of protection to all concerned wherever cash is handled.
Very truly yours,

MORE RABID POISON NEWS.

Our Weekly Extract from the Chicago Journal.

The following is about as rabid as any of the poison articles which have been appearing in the Chicago Journal. The most charitable interpretation is that the writer has no clear idea, himself, of what he is trying to do. The article:

"A striking example of the results of the tobacco trust's methods is shown in the case of a young man, the son of a widow, who is dangerously ill in a West side hospital, suffering from the excessive use of adulterated tobacco. A lot of tickets, found in the patient's pockets, are redeemable at some distant date in cheap jewelry and other useless things. The trust's retail stores throw them in as a sop to purchasers.

"The case ought to be a warning to every consumer who is in the habit of patronizing the trust's retail stores," declared the head of the Independent Dealers' publicity department. "Furthermore it ought to be a lesson to all storekeepers who keep for sale trust made cigars and cigarettes, if they care to save their reputation as handlers of independent made goods only. These goods can always be guaranteed to contain nothing injurious to the health of the smoker.

"Look at the large quantities of cigars marked down to 2, 6 and 8 cents daily, displayed in the trust's store show windows, and which are continuously exposed to the rays of the sun and to germs of all kinds of disease. They must be disposed of at some time, after they have served their purpose to beguile the consumer.

"The tickets going with the purchase, at a cut-rate price, find occasional victims, as in the case cited."

HAVANA MARKET REPORTED TO BE FAIRLY ACTIVE.

Stocks of Old Crops are now Practically Exhausted and Some of the New Tobacco is Commencing to Arrive. Rainy Weather Has Enabled Farmers to Take Their Tobacco Off the Poles and Begin Handling It.

HAVANA, April 3, 1905.

Notwithstanding the fact that there are no new arrivals of buyers to speak of, the market has been well sustained and, considering the season, fairly active. The trust and commission houses have been the chief buyers, while some of the local dealers have also operated more or less in picking up desirable lots which are not likely to deteriorate.

Exports during the week amounted to 4,216 bales, of which 3,858 bales went to the United States, the remainder going to South America, Europe, Mexico and Australia.

As the stocks of the old crop are virtually exhausted and some new tobacco is beginning to arrive, the receipts from the country will henceforth mostly consist of the 1905 crop. Rainy weather prevailed last week over the eastern and western ends of the island, enabling the farmers to take down the dried tobacco from the poles and commence the first part of the handling of the new crop by making the so called "matules" or bundles, and throwing them into piles.

As far as the little tobacco that is left in the fields is concerned the problem is whether the rainy season has really set in early, or whether the atmosphere will turn dry again. In the former case there will be no further cutting, while in the latter there may be some cutting in the Santa Clara province, as well as in the Semi Vuelta and the Lomas of the Vuelta Abajo.

This is the only chance which the farmers may have to collect some capaduras and short fillers, thus possibly increasing the quantity of the crop to a small extent

Don Luis Marx, the enterprising and wealthy planter, has opened his escojida in Havana for about a week past and already has some beautiful wrappers which may be in workable condition next month. Bruno Diaz & Co. have also received 100 bales of new Partido wrappers from the country, and others expect to receive small lots before long.

While opinions are divided as to whether it is good policy to start the packing of the new crop early, or later when the real humid summer weather has set in for good, the manufacturers are the only competent judges to decide, but as long as the craze for light colors continues, and there is usually a scarcity of such wrappers, the packers are more or less forced to start their escojidas as early as the weather conditions will permit.

That wrappers do not promise to be plentiful must be the prevailing opinion among dealers, as otherwise it cannot be explained how some of them have started in to buy in the Partido section, raising the prices from $2 to $2.50 per bundle up to $3 and $4 per matule.

amounted to 3,291 bales in all, divided into 2,031 of Vuelta Abajo, 270 of Partido and 990 bales of Remedios. The buyers for the American market have taken 2,011, the local cigar manufacturers 1,224, and European exporters 56 bales.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals:—Alfred Meyer, of Hamburg; David del Monte, of New York.

Departures:—Max and Morris Davis for Cincinnati, Leopold Loeb for Philadelphia, John Wardlow for Key West, Otto Sartorius, and Charles Blasco for New York.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers

Business is described as picking up in some of the larger factories, while the majority of the smaller ones still complain and note no change in the receipt of orders from the United States or abroad. Until the new leaf becomes workable, as far as wrappers are concerned, it is not very likely that there will be a great increase in the demand

Exports per steamer Mexico were 4,175,610 cigars.

H. Upmann & Co. report business as good with them, so much so that they may be forced to increase the number of their cigarmakers. They exported last week 510,000 cigars. Heinrich Upmann, the senior member of the firm, who usually lives in Hamburg all the year round, arrived here last week on the steamer Mexico on a visit. Gustav Runken, a former member of the firm, now retired, passed through here with his bride, en route for Mexico.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co., of the Partagas factory, do not seem to know any dull times to speak of, as they have large orders from Australia, England, and the United States.

Por Larranaga is doing a fair business with Great Britain and the United States, where Barron Taylor seems to be hustling all the time. Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, also says that their Canadian representative, Charles Landau, is giving a good account of himself.

The Output of these Brands is 40,000 Cigars per day.
United States Representative, C. B. TAYLOR, No. 93 Broad Street, New York.

Sol is working satisfactorily. Behrens & Co. expect their factory will be one of the first to work the new wrappers, as they have already made some trials with a few leaves. As the tobacco is bound to improve in texture and colors, however, they will not send off any samples until they are thoroughly convinced that the new wrappers will be perfect in every respect, and give entire satisfaction to the smokers.

Ramon Allones is working steadily upon orders from the United States, Europe and South America. Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co's cigars are getting to be more liked as time passes.

Crepusculo is doing as well as J. F. Rocha & Co. expected, and has no lack of orders.

Calixto Lopez & Co. have some very fine orders from Germany.

Remigio Lopez y Hno. are getting their share of business in their La Mas Fermosa factory.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

The trust has been the heaviest buyer of all kinds of leaf for its factories here as well as those at Tampa, the amount being above 1,000 bales.

Loeb Nunez Havana Co. sold 532 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo to local buyers as well as to their northern customers.

Germany refuses to accept any Cuban cigars as genuine unless the boxes contain the warranty stamp with the name of the manufacturer or his brand, and also the seals of the Republic of Cuba and that of the Presidency. American importers, retailers as well as smokers, should insist that each box has this stamp affixed, or otherwise reject it as being of doubtful origin.

Morris and Max Davis secured some choice vegas of Remedios for their Cincinnati firm of A. Davis' Sons & Co.

G. Salomon y Hnos, disposed of 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios.

According to the Spanish paper, "El Tabaco de Cuba," Don Gustavo Bock has been appointed Honorary President of the Havana Tobacco Co., and thus ceases as managing diretor of this company. As he had an ironclad contract for a long term of years as director of the former Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., it is doubtful whether this could be rescinded except by his voluntary resignation.

Aixala & Co., closed out 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido from their holdings last week, which included 50 bales for Mexico. It seems they are the only exporters to Mexico from here.

Charles Blasco, who left yesterday per steamer Mexico for New York, has done a very fair business last month, and his object in leaving temporarily is more in the nature of a rest, as he had been working very hard last winter.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales sold 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo to local buyers.

Jorge & P. Castaneda are buying leisurely in the Partido section, as they do not think the high pretensions of the farmers are justified, and they are trying to protect the interest of their clients all that lies in their power.

Rz. Bautista & Co. made several sales aggregating 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Pancho Vidal Cruz arrived in the best of spirits from his trip to Tampa, and soon expects to start the escojidas of Voneiff & Vidal Cruz.

Bruno Diaz & Co. disposed of 220 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Luis Muniz, of Muniz Hnos. & Co., has gone to San Diego de los Banos for a short sojourn.

Suarez Hnos. turned over 140 bales of Vuelta Abajo to a local factory.

Leslie Pantin executed some good orders for his customers in the North.

Antonio Suarez closed out 106 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

Narciso Gonzalez, of Sobrinos de V. Diaz & Co., is making his preparations to start their packings in the country as soon as the weather will permit.

Jose Menendez sold 93 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

NEW YORK, April 10, 1905.

The retail market in this city is not precisely dull but could be much brisker without bothering the dealer to keep up with the movement. This may be the result of the turn of seasons and doubtless will be very temporary. Last week's weather included some that was not at all good for the retail business but as the rest of the month is expected to be more pleasant the dealers will probably benefit.

The majority of the retailers have been booking their spring orders and as the movement of the goods over the counter has been, at its poorest, much better than a month or two ago there is little fear that the goods when they arrive can be gotten away with.

The manufacturers report themselves to be quite busy and declare that orders are coming in from all parts of the country in gratifying measure. This, despite occasional grumbling from road salesmen who perhaps have been expecting too much all at once.

The salesmen who have been covering the West have sent in the most orders and speak most cheerfully. Some firms are doing very good Southern business and the trade in Boston and that section is also reported to be improving steadily.

Following a week of comparative dullness the leaf market picked up appreciably and considerable business was done all last week. This is the natural result of the increased cigar factory output, and shows that the manufacturers who were holding off as long as possible are now forced to lay in leaf. Many manufacturers are buying just as little as they can get along with, but according to some leaf dealers, last week the buying was more liberal.

It seems likely that prices will stiffen instead of becoming easier and the manufacturers are beginning to recognize that fact. It is a matter of common knowledge in the leaf market that manufacturers would have done better by buying some grades earlier, when they believed that prices were higher than they could remain.

The scramble for Sumatra at the inscriptions, regardless of the fierce prices which prevailed, will have a reactionary effect on all grades of wrapper, and will not only secure better prices, as has been stated, for the Florida grown article, but will effect all leaf of this description.

Stocks are still very low and as it is believed that a great many manufacturers are short on wrapper it is extremely probable that they will have to pay pretty heavily before they can secure what they want.

Havana moved well last week, and a goodly quantity of some forms of domestic filler changed hands.

The firm of Park & Tilford was again bothered by telephone thieves. Some weeks ago a well concocted plot to victimize this house was put on foot, the thieves working the old trick of ordering goods by telephone and sending for them by messenger, the order being supposed to come from a reputable customer. This time the boot was on the other leg and the mysterious customer represented themselves as being a buyer for Park & Tilford. The order was made on Bennett, Sloan & Co, and the voice at the other end of the telephone ordered 25,000 cigars for Park & Tilford, and declared that he would send a messenger for the goods.

The messenger arrived a few minutes after the telephone call and presented a very decent appearance. He was given the goods and returned a receipt which he signed for Park & Tilford. At once placed under arrest, he gave the name of Charles Tiel, Baltimore. He said he had been looking for work and had been hired by a man whom he had never before seen, to go after the goods. He was held until a man who answered the description he gave might be found.

The Esberg & Gunst Co. and M. Stachelberg & Co., both firms well known in this market and elsewhere will hereafter do business practically as one concern. Negotiations to this effect have been under way for sometime and were concluded last week by the signing of all the papers necessary.

The Key West and Tampa factories will be run separately, but it is understood that these may be consolidated when the new arrangements are well underway. The manufacturing end of the combined business will be under the able direction of Edward G. Stachelberg, who will also purchase all the leaf tobacco for the house. The present address of the concern is No. 7 West 18th street, but this address is temporary and announcements will be made at an early date where the firm will permanently locate. The B. Wasserman Co., which has been acting as an exclusive distributor of the Stachelberg plant, this section, will continue in that capacity.

The Royal Co. will establish itself at No. 37 Wall street, the Metropolitan Trust Building, where a show room and general depot will be arranged. This will help box deliveries in the lower section of the city and will act as a splendid advertisement for the company. As a special inducement the company sent out letters to the principal dealers offering them a discount of 5 per cent on all imported cigars purchased from the company. As similar offers have been made by other concerns, this looks as if competition in high grade goods will become much more active than heretofore. The new Wall street establishment will be handsomely furnished and one of the principal features will be the installment of the most approved devices for the storage of the finer grades of cigars

The regular meeting of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of this city will be held at their headquarters on Third avenue tomorrow night. The members of this association are strongly urged to put in a more frequent appearance, as the discussions which take place at the meeting are frequently of such a nature as to be of great benefit to those present.

The A. Hillman Co. is now ready to receive its friends and customers in the company's new quarters at 437 Pearl street. It will at once be seen how much more conveniently the Hillman Co. is now situated and the members of the firm have been receiving congratulations on the constantly increasing business which made the removal necessary.

C. A. Clark, representative in this country of Adolph Frankau Co., (Ltd.), pipe manufacturers of England, was in this city last week showing his samples. Mr. Clark says that the pipe business is looking up, and as a result has a more handsome and extensive line of goods to show than for sometime. In line with this, local dealers report that they have been selling quite a large proportion of this class of goods lately.

Thomas C. Connor, for several years local representative of Sanchez & Haya, has accepted a similar position with Salvador Rodiguez,. His territory will include New Jersey.

Secretary Webb, of the Cuban American Manufacturing Co, will reach this city early this week after quite an extensive trip to Havana and Tampa.

John H. Harris, of the South Jersey Tobacco Co., of Mt. Holly, is frequently seen in town. This company is one of the important jobbing houses of its section of New Jersey and the firm's business has so increased lately as to make larger quarters necessary.

The American Stogie Co. is meeting with considerable success with its new stogie Princeton Puffs, which the company recently put on the market. The stogie is attractively put up in regular cigar boxes, 100 in a box, which are artistically decorated with the Princeton arms. They sell 3 for 5 cents.

The United Cigar Stores Co. reports a good run of business at its new store at 627 Fulton street, Brooklyn, which was opened a week ago. As usual, extra coupons and presents formed a feature of the opening,

The protest of the Havana Tobacco Co. against the assessment of duty by the collector of customs at this port has been sustained by Board 3. The articles in question consisted of certain cigar boxes differing from the ordinary cigar boxes, made of heavier material, with beveled edges, divided into compartments, and having hinged lids fastened with small brass hasps. They were classified as unusual coverings, in accordance with the provisions of section 19, customs administrative act of June 10, 1890, the appraiser reporting that they undoubtedly cost several times as much as the regular cigar boxes and were primarily designed to attract holiday purchasers by their unusual features. As the evidence showed that these coverings had been used for transporting such cigars for many years, particularly about the holiday season, the Board sustained the importers' contention that the boxes should have been passed free of duty as usual covering,.

H. Duys & Co. last week purchased out of hand of tobacco to be offered at inscription at Amsterdam on April 7, 300 bales S. K. Deli and 133 bales My | St. Cyr | Deli, and resold it to a large American manufacturer, whose buyer is attending the inscriptions. Prices are again running very high they say. Samples of this firm's purchases at the earlier inscriptions are now ready to be shown the trade. They claim the tobaccos which they have thus far purchased are by far the handsomest they have ever had to offer.

TRADE WITH THE PHILIPPINES.

Commercial Museum Curator Tells How to Compete with European Countries.

Washington, D. C., April 11.

The Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor has received an interesting letter from Samuel B. Shiley who has charge of the Commercial Museum at Manila explaining the only terms on which customers in the Philippines can successfully deal with United States manufacturers. Mr. Shiley writes:

The Commercial Museum of the Philippines has been in correspondence with a large number of American manufacturers for some time, and it appears that they are not properly informed about certain matters, or they are not willing to meet the conditions existing here. With your permission and aid, the museum would like to call the attention of manufacturers who are interested in the trade with the Philippines to a little matter that will have an important bearing on the success or failure of their trade in these islands.

With regard to terms of payment for goods ordered from the United States, nearly all with whom the Commercial Museum has corresponded demanded one half cash with the order and the balance as soon the goods arrive at Manila.

Taking into consideration the time consumed by sending an order to the United States, the time required to place the order, have the goods packed and sent to the Philippines, plus the delay in the custom house, the local importer will be out one half the purchase price, at the very least, three months, more likely four months, before he gets the goods. He must then pay the balance, and afterwards distribute the goods among his patrons in Manila ond other cities of the archipelago. In from one to three months later he will realize on the goods from his customers. The importer has thus been out of his money three and six months.

Who can best afford to carry these credits—the importer in Manila or the exporter in the United States? By special inquiry at one of the Manila banks today, it is learned that the demand for money at 2 per cent per month is far in excess of what the bank is able to supply. This condition of the money market and this same rate of interest has been with us practically unchanged for the past three years. The exporter in the States should grant from three to six months' time computing interest at an ordinary rate, and adding a reasonable percentage for the risk of deferring payment, his goods would still gain an advantage of from 5 to 7 per cent of the purchase price, as compared with the prevailing terms of payment.

There is a universal disinclination to pay for a thing before you get it. There is an established custom in the Philippines on the part of the importer, the retailer, and the consumer to buy on time. In addition to this, European countries are in the market, freely offering from three to twelve months' time. With such conditions in force here, the American exporter cannot help but see the wisdom of more liberal terms in matters of deferred payments.

It frequently occurs that both large and small purchasers who have sufficient resources to make a time sale perfectly safe have no ready cash, and, in consideration of deferred payments, would gladly pay a higher price. Many must buy on time or not at all—that is pxactly the situation. The exporters of America or Europe who will meet these peculiar conditions will secure the most profitable trade these islands afford.

The Commercial Museum is always ready to give correct information about the reliability of any Philippine firm. Under this protection exporters of the States may place themselves in a more favorable position to compete with exporters of other countries. They should take into consideration not only the prices of their competitors, but also their terms of payment, the peculiar situation in the Philippines, the customs, and the prejudices of the natives.

To Benefit Our Readers.

The Tobacco World wants to receive from week to week all questions relating to the trade which may be puzzling its subscribers, and will be glad to supply any information in its possession or obtainable.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

All letters should be addressed to the "Correspondence Editor" and must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, which may be withheld when desired.

DON'T STAND IN YOUR OWN LIGHT.

From time to time in this paper have been printed extracts from the Chicago Journal, written for the purpose of driving business away from the United Cigar Stores Company's branches in that city. The majority of the articles were radical in the extreme, if not absolutely rabid, and among other accusations, charge the concern in question of deliberately adulterating the cigars which it sells with most harmful ingredients, of a nature very quickly to destroy the health of a smoker.

They further accuse the clerks of the company of substituting inferior cigars for those of a good brand name wherever possible, and of taking means to get the best of the customer by fair means or foul, even intimating that the short change racket is likely to become popular.

The Journal poses as the champion of the independent association of cigar dealers in its city, and permits the reader to infer that the attacks are inspired, prepared and directed by officers of that association.

The Tobacco World does not wish to believe that the association could be so misguided as to fall over its own feet so persistently. This paper has no desire or license to take up the cudgels for the United Cigar Stores Co. On the contrary it believes in the divine right of the single-handed dealer, who is making a struggle to help himself.

Such being the case we feel pity for that dealer if he beats his head against a stone wall. And aside from this divine right, precedent has proven it a natural endency of the independent dealer to open a new and additional store when he gets a chance to do so profitably, and to continue that policy until he is the proprietor of a small chain himself. And if all those who visit the United stores to buy their cigars or tobacco were to transfer their trade to his smaller chain, to an extent, even, that would permit him to add to it, no complaint at all would proceed from him.

So much for the live and let live phase of it. Now for the folly of such attacks as are voiced in the Chicago Journal, no matter from what source. In the first place, the consumer is not so helpless that he has to be looked after like an imbecile in a drug store. On the contrary, he is extremely quick to form unshakable opinions of his own regarding his smoking, based on nothing stronger than his whims or fancies. So much can be testified to by every cigar clerk.

In the second place, a customer gives his trade to a particular store because he believes he can receive a better return for his money there. His loyalty to the store is ephemeral for the reason that it is based solely on selfishness, and lasts only so long as the man continues to believe he is getting the extra return for his coin.

It is true that a great many smokers are no proper judges of cigars, and would be unable by smoking to tell a ten cent brand from one which would retail for a quarter. In other words they are unable to distinguish average or ordinary tobacco from good tobacco. Moreover, the blending is of necessity, gradually changed in every brand on the market, for with the vagaries of the plant, it would be impossible to produce the same cigar year after year. It is also a fact that this variety is established without the consumer's knowledge. But there are few smokers who stick to one brand, who would not know it on the instant if some entirely different cigar were substituted.

If this were not true it would be idle to work for different blends for different brands, as a cigar would mean a roll of tobacco and nothing more.

On the other hand, every smoker, however ignorant, is quick to convict that terrible article, vulgarly known as a "stinkadora," whose relation to the cigar is that of the straw man to a real one.

And these adulterated, poisoned, odoriferous no-cigars are what the Chicago Journal declares the United Cigar Stores Co. is able to foist on a trusting public month in and month out without detection. Truly if such could be the case, it would seem scarcely worth while to use any tobacco at all.

Briefly, the Journal's articles are an insult to the smoker's intelligence, and would be so regarded by every independent dealer, no matter how biased, if he were to apply them to some other form of business, and regard them from the standpoint of the consumer.

A WESTERN PAPER prints the following in its editorial column:

"It is suggested that all that is needed to smash the tobacco trust is for the people to quit smoking for a short term and stop spending their two hundred million dollars annually for tobacco in its various forms. Most smokers will decide, after careful deliberation, to leave the matter to the departments of commerce and labor and of justice."

THE TAXATION OF THE DEALER FOR HIS OWN SALVATION.

Another sufferer from the lack of a proper retail tax has written us, and hopes, as we do, that he will hear from others on the matter. It is certain that, in order to preserve his identity as a cigar and tobacco retailer, the dealer must see to it that some restrictions are provided for the discouragement of pirates.

As our correspondent says, it is simply maddening to feel that a business is crumbling to nothing while its proprietor must sit with his hands folded. It is heart-breaking, and all the more so when there is a certain remedy which could and should be put in operation.

Philadelphia, April 12, 1905.

Editor Tobacco World:

I am glad to take advantage of the offer which you have given retailers to express their opinions on the taxing of their branch of the trade, and want to say, right at the start, that I am heartily in favor of the movement as expressed in the "Old Salesman's" column.

The retail cigar and tobacco trade is indeed becoming a precarious occupation, owing to the great number of outsiders who are invading the field without any right or excuse. As the Old Salesman said, this condition is so in no other business and, in fact, I don't believe it would be tolerated in any other business.

If matters keep on the way they are going now, the cigar dealer will soon have no individuality at all, and his only distinction will lie in the fact that cigars and tobacco are the only things he has to depend upon for a livelihood.

Retailers in other forms of business made a great complaint when the department stores began to increase their stocks so that they were selling everything. Their complaint is a very small one beside ours. The department store can operate only in the central districts of large cities, whereas a retailer, no matter what he has to sell, has any residence section open to him. He can be hurt by the department store only to a limited extent. On the contrary, the cigar dealer is hit on every hand, because any old thing, from a bootblack stand to a soda water counter, thinks it has a right to grab off a share of the cigar man's business.

What help is there for us if something isn't done in the way of a preventive tax?

"One who would gladly be taxed," whoever he is, knew what he was talking about when he wrote the letter which appeared in last week's Tobacco World. He says the only salvation for the trouble is taxation, and let that be a heavy one. That is the point exactly. It would do very little good to impose a tax of a few dollars, for the reason that nearly every outsider who is doing enough business to hurt the regular trade, could afford to pay such a small tax, as it would be very much less than the proportion of rent or his mercantile tax would be, if he was conducting a cigar stand proper.

I have talked with a great many dealers and some of them say, "but such a tax would drive out a great many small retailers whose expenses are quite as heavy now as they can stand." Not at all. We do not want to drive anybody out of the trade who is trying to do a legitimate business. On the contrary, we are proposing this tax to help the small dealer to build his business up. The small dealer would be the very man to be most benefited by such a tax, because the little cigar showcases and such things, in news stands, restaurants, etc., are in more direct competition with the small dealers than with the big fellows on Chestnut street.

I am a small dealer myself and there could not be any one more anxious for a tax than I am. I calculate that I will be able to do business at a decent profit under such circumstances. Now I am barely able to get along. I tell you it is awfully disheartening and discouraging to feel that a once tidy little business is slipping slowly away from you while you are unable in any way to prevent it.

The situation is going from very bad to much worse and though I have spent many anxious hours on the problem I can think of no other way than the taxa- method by which we can save our lives.

I sincerely hope that you will hear from other dealers on this question as I want to know if anyone else has anything better to propose. I would also like to know if there is a single good argument against such a tax.

Thanking you for the interest which you have already taken in our affairs, and for the good work which I know you will do, I am

The retailers had occasion to be a little more cheerful this week as consumers seemed to have taken to the habit again and bought with gratifying freedom. That invariable thermometer, the box trade, was appreciably better and dealers are once more permitting themselves to feel that the spring boom will have no more set-backs. That is hard to say, however, as the market appears to move principally by fits and jerks. There were some stores this week that complained bitterly of the slow market, while other stands in the same class a block away were quite busy. Next week it may be just the other way.

I. Lewis & Co's new Golden Eagle brand of little cigars is moving very well in this market, but would establish a much more substantial trade if short sighted dealers could be restrained from cutting the price. The brand was put out to sell at 10 for 15 cents and I. Lewis & Co. have been carrying their advertising to that effect. The cigars are worth the money and would have no trouble in getting it. Some dealers sold the brand at a cut of 3 cents during the week, however. This is mistaken and suicidal policy and dealers who run their business on business principles always feel like throwing an article out that is being so juggled by the greedy.

A carbon copy of the missing will of Moses H. Lichten, a former cigar dealer, who died recently and whose home was at 1853 North Park avenue, was last week produced at the request of the legatees and proved before Deputy Register of Wills Charles Irwin. This was an unusual proceeding, as evidence was produced of the execution of the missing document and a carbon copy of the original document submitted for probate. The will disposes of an estate valued at $10,000 and the copy of the will is dated November 6, 1900. The entire estate is directed to be held in trust for the use of the decedent's brother during his life.

Moses H. Lichten was fairly well known by the local trade a few years ago and attracted attention by the very elaborate store which he opened on Chestnut street above Seventh, about three years or so ago and which was practically a failure He also imported considerable Havana tobacco but these and other ventures were not attended with much success.

M. C. Vanaman, of 9 North Juniper street, reports business on the increase. The store is well stocked with a line of high grade goods. E. W. Rugby, the show card and sign writer, has an office with Mr. Vanaman. Mr. Rugby's work is well known among local dealers.

The Moore store, at Second and Market streets, has not felt the dullness, as there is always something new to attract the customer's eye The United store on the opposite corner is bound to get some of the trade, however, when it opens shortly.

B. Frank Batten is getting the first puff of the big summer business which he will land this season in his cosy, new store opposite the Market street ferries. Mr. Batten is a hustler and if things don't come his way it will be because they are tied fast.

Wm. L. Toomey, of the well known La Union factory at Hanover, Pa., was in the local market this week, and secured orders for 43,000 cigars. This factory will no longer use the union label as its entire product will be non-union.

Yahn & McDonnell, the Fifteenth and Chestnut street cigarists, are doing a good business these days although this young firm is lucky enough to have a clientele which can be counted on all the year round.

Godfrey S. Mahn's stores are being kept fairly busy now, and the New York stands are also making good returns. Mr. Mahn's adequate staff of assistants represents an important factor in this success.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut leaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

I. Lowengrund reports business at the Third and Market street store as much better. The box trade was particularly good during the week.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The Theobald & Oppenheimer Co. is doing as much as its factories can attend to, and it seems as if the company will simply have to keep on indefinitely, its policy of opening new factories to take care of new orders.

It seems idle to give a report from the Cinco people, because everybody knows they are always busy. The Cinco seems to have established itself as one of the wonders of civilization.

Goldsmith & Arndt have had to work harder than ever since the new firm of distributors was formed, and by the way the goods of the El Provedo Co. are moving out, there isn't any doubt that the firm will make itself felt.

Lester Newburger, of Stewart, Newburger & Co. Ltd., is calling on his southern trade and making good returns.

The Vicente Portuondo Co. is getting good reports from all its road salesman with promises of better to come.

Harry M. Loeb, successor to S. Loren & Co., cigar manufacturers, at 2529 Ridge avenue, has asked for a meeting of his creditors with a view to making some sort of a payment, as the concern will probably not be able to go on.

The cigar factory of J. Trexler, 715 Dauphin street, was robbed twice a week ago of cigars and Sumatra leaf tobacco. The theives who secured the leaf got about $200 worth and succeeded in getting away without detection. Later in the week the night policeman on the beat in which the factory is located, caught Alfred Leeds, a professional, emerging from the building with several boxes of cigars in his possession. The man was locked up and it was afterward found that he had sampled the cigars of ten different brands before he made his selections.

The factory of Hartley & Co., Eighth street and Germantown avenue, was also robbed of cigars valued at $200 a week ago. It is believed that Leeds may have committed both these robberies. He was held in $1,500 bail.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

Last week's leaf business seems to have been rather unevenly distributed, as some dealers who have been averaging a very fair business, reported the week a dull one, while others declared themselves more than satisfied with the movement. There did not seem to be so much doing in Havana, although the dullness was regarded merely as an off week. The demand was good for the lower grades of filler, and the American Cigar Co. was said to have been a large buyer of this class of goods. Old Wisconsins were asked for freely, but little business was done right in the city.

J. Prince, who has been associated with Louis Bythiner, in the leaf brokerage business for some years, has severed the connection and is on the road for Julius Hirschberg & Bro. Mr. Prince takes the territory given up by Max Arndt, who is the juinor member of the firm of Goldsmith & Arndt.

The stockholders of the Loeb Nunez Havana Co. held their annual meeting on Monday and Tuesday of this week, and found things to be in flourishing condition.

L. P. Kimmig & Co. report themselves unable to fill a number of orders which have been received lately owing to reduced stock. The demand for Pennsylvanias and Connecticuts is eager with this firm, but there is little tobacco to meet it.

business in Old Wisconsins and Havana. Mr. Herschberg says the firm is quite a little ahead of last year.

E. A. Calves is receiving a goodly number of acceptances from leaf dealers for the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade's dinner at Kugler's next Monday night, and it is assured that the affair will be a great success.

Some little talk was occasioned in the leaf market during the week by the cases of Harry M. Loeb, 2529 Ridge avenue, and W. F. Steigerwalt, 2653 North Fifth street, both of which manufacturers are said to be in more or less financial difficulty. The former has accounts with a number of leaf dealers, and these received notices on Monday asking them to call at the offices of the Loeb attorneys.

One creditor met Mr. Loeb personally and was assured that he and the others would receive a hundred cents on every dollar. From the rest of the conversation it is believed that Mr. Loeb wants to wind up his business on Ridge avenue, after making some sort of amicable arrangement with the creditors, and start a factory up the State, it evidently being the intention to make the new plant pay the debts of this one.

The affairs of W. F. Steigerwalt were brought more or less to a climax by the judgment secured against him by L. G. Haeussermann & Co., on an account amounting to $1,324. There are several other creditors, and some of these at least, express themselves as ready to push for a settlement. Steigerwalt has been in financial difficulty before.

Sol Myers, who is well known in Philadelphia and on the road as a leaf tobacco salesman, died two or three days ago in this city after an illness of some duration. He had been connected at different times with a number of local leaf houses, among which was that of Young & Newman.

BIDS FOR NAVY TOBACCO.

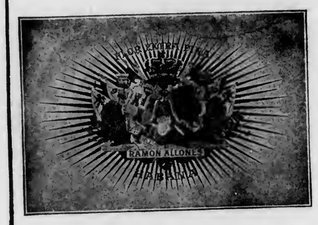
Proposals to Supply the Department This Year Opened Tuesday.

Washington, D. C., April 11.

Bids for tobacco supplies were opened by the Navy Department today and several firms bid for the privilege of supplying 150,000 pounds of tobacco for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1905. It is to be delivered in 50,000 pound lots in July, August and September.

The contractors for the present fiscal year are Larus & Bro., of Richmond, Va. The specifications required that samples be submitted, with the bid on each sample. Nearly all the bidders submitted samples with prices.

All the samples will be sent to the navy yard in Brooklyn, where the various samples will be gone over carefully and a decision reached in four or five weeks, as to which sample and which bidder shall be chosen.



The following were the bidders, together with the various prices a pound submitted by them: Larus & Brother Co., Richmond, Va., four samples, 38, 39, 40 and 41 cents, respectively, a pound; Butler & Bosher, Richmond, Va., four samples, at 34, 34¼, 34½ and 35 cts a pound each; P. Lorillard Co., Jersey City, N. J., two samples, 31½ and 30½

The lowest bidder cannot, of course, be determined until the navy officials pick out the sample of tobacco they prefer and select it. It is not so much a question of the lowest bidder as the grade of goods desired, except that in the case of two men submitting about the same grade of goods and having different prices the award would go to the lowest.

LEAF IMPORTS IN MEXICO.

Comparative Number of Pounds Taken From the Various Countries.

Washington, D. C., April 11.

United States Consul James A. Le Roy, writes the following interesting matter to the Department of Commerce and Labor from Durango, Mexico, where he is stationed, regarding the relative Mexican imports of leaf tobacco from various countries:

Mexico imports considerable tobacco in the leaf, as well as in the manufactured form, principally Cuban cigars and cigarettes, American cigarettes and pipe and chewing tobaccos, and some French and German cigars and Turkish and Egyptian cigarettes. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1904, the importation of Virginia leaf tobacco amounted to 2,468,773 pounds, valued at $147,131 in gold; the importation of all other tobacco in leaf was valued at $32,896 in gold. Of this "other leaf tobacco" the United States also contributed 4,675 pounds.

The Netherlands and Cuba contributed 17,332 and 15,890 pounds, respectively, and Sumatra and Germany were next in order, with small quantities from India, Belgium, Turkey, Persia, and even China, part of the tobacco from various sources coming through Great Britain. Higher duties were paid on Virginia leaf last year, and this operates somewhat to change the course of the trade.

In general, however, the importation of leaf tobacco into Mexico is increasing, partly through the increased comsumption of forgein tobaccos, but principally through the demand for foreign leaf to blend with the native leaf in the manufacture of cigars.

SPORTS MISS SLOT MACHINES.

And Mayor of Cincinnati Has Ordered Substitute Dicing Stopped.

Cincinnati, O., April 8

The sports of this city are having a hard time to satisfy their instinct for taking a chance, owing to the sudden removal of the slot machines and the subsequent placing of dice machines under the ban.

Dice games of various descriptions were recently introduced as a substitute for the slot machines which cigar dealers were forced to remove from their stores, but were at once ordered stopped by Mayor Fleischman today. Dealers were given notice that the games have been construed as gambling and must be discontinued. The Mayor acted on the principal that it was better to act before the new amusement gets any worse.

"The cigar manufacturing business has felt the healthy boom in trade caused by the delightful spring weather," said Charles K. Davis of the A. Davis's Sons & Co., cigar manufacturers, at 209-219 East Third street. "The unusually severe winter had a depressing effect on the cigar business. The country roads were in a miserable condition. The farmer did not get around much to make purchases, the salesman couldn't get over the ground readily to make sales and business was, in a measure, tied up. The endless chain of unfavorable conditions in the country, of course, reacted on us. But the warm weather has given a remarkable impetus to business. A prosperous season is assured.

They Are Made With Cigar Bands and Yacht Flags From Stationery.

Cigars had been brought to the party of diners. They had bands around them showing that the brand was a good one.

"Please let me have that band, and don't tear it as you take it off."

The band was removed carefully and handed to the applicant, and at the same time the donor asked what she wanted it for.

"I'm making an ash receiver, and decorating it with bands taken from imported cigars," she replied. "It's the latest fad, don't you know, and these bands do make such pretty decorations for the little trays."

Then she went on to explain how the bands were used. A small glass dish is secured. The glass is perfectly plain. Any pretty shape can be used.

The bands are glued on the under side of the glass. One from a cigar that costs $1 or more is used as the center piece and others from cheaper cigars are arranged around it in an artistic manner until the whole glass is covered.

Over these bands a piece of red paper is pasted and the tray is finished. The gold and red bands show through the clear glass and you have a pretty ash receiver.—N. Y. Sun.

THE COFFEE SMOKERS.

Two old men in blue uniforms, veterans attending the soldiers' reunion, sat on a bench in Boston Common

"What was your hardest week during the war?" said the first veteran.

"My hardest week," the other answered, "was the one when I had no tobacco. I'll never forget that."

He paused to light a cigar. Then he went on:

"Do you know what we all smoked during that week? Why, sir, we all smoked coffee. We ground up our coffee coarse, and smoked it in our pipes."

The other veteran looked interested.

"How did it taste?" he said.

"Taste? Why, it tasted about like you'd think it would.

"Smelt good, I bet you."

"Yes. Smelt all right."

"Any bad effect from it?"

"Gorry, yes. Took the skin off all our tongues."

SCHOOL CHILDREN BARRED.

Mayor Lytle, of South St. Paul, Minn., has issued an order to all tobacco dealers, prohibiting them from selling tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and cigarette papers to school children.

DEALERS ARE CALM IN INDIANA.

Do Not Regard Anti-Cigarette Law as Great Hardship.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 10.

The cigarette dealers of the city are regarding the situation which has arisen from the Parks law with much calmness and apparently do not expect to be greatly harmed by it.

Most of the dealers of the city have on hand large stocks of the weed in the form of cigarettes or tobacco that is meant to be used in their manufacture, and efforts have been made to dispose of the stocks as rapidly as may be.

Several dealers in tobacco were talked with yesterday and all say that they will probably not suffer through the operation of the law. "We shall be able to dispose of our stocks of cigarettes and cigarette tobacco," they say, "and as smokers will smoke something we shall recoup on other forms of tobacco.

"The big jobbers and manufacturers have not been shipping any tobacco for cigarettes, or cigarettes, in quantities to the Indianapolis dealers for some time. The act of the Legislature in passing a stringent law prohibiting the use or sale of cigarettes came early enough to allow them to deflect orders that were originally intended for Indianapolis shipments.

"It is said, too, that manufacturers and jobbers have arrangements with Indianapolis dealers whereby unsold stock may be returned after the Parks law goes into effect.

"You know people who have contracted the smoking habit will smoke something," said one dealer. "There are many men in the city who smoke cigarettes and who will be compelled to give them up. They realize this and in consequence, our sale of pipes has greatly increased. When the Parks law goes into effect you will see men who are accustomed to smoke cigarettes along the streets carrying pipes in their mouths. There is always a law of compensation, and what local dealers will lose through the prohibition of cigarettes and cigarette tobacco and papers, they will make up in the sale of pipes and different grades of smoking tobacco."

CARNIVAL OF MISHAPS.

A Milwaukee Cigar Dealer Has Many Narrow Escapes All at Once.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 8.

A regular carnival of mishaps attended an incipient conflagration which slightly damaged the Kalman cigar store, 130 Wisconsin street, a few nights ago

When employes were closing the place for the night, it was discovered that water was dripping through the ceiling. An investigation of the office of Dr. W. E. Scollard, directly above, proved that a sink had overflowed. The water was turned off, but when the store was again reached, it was discovered that the water was leaking through an electric fan opening and was being converted into a miniature water fall.

Before order had been restored, fire was discovered under an electric candelabra. Efforts to remove the lamp proved useless, as it was heavily charged with electricity and all persons who attempted to handle it received heavy shocks. After the wire had been cut, a slight fire was discovered in the basement of the building, which was extinguished with little loss.

YORK FIRM DISSOLVES

Adair & Reiff Business Will Be Carried on by James Adair.

The firm of Adair & Reiff, leaf dealers of York, has been dissolved, and on account of ill health, the junior member retires from the business, which will be carried on by Mr. Adair. The Tobacco World is in receipt of the following letter from the house:

Gentlemen: It is with regret that this announcement is made informing you of the withdrawal of Mr. A. R Reiff on April 1st, 1905, from the firm of Adair & Reiff, leaf tobacco dealers, of York, Pa.

Mr. Reiff has not been in good health for some time past and he adopts this course on the advice of his physician.

Mr. James Adair, who is the remaining member of the firm, will continue said business under his own name, and all debts due to the said partnership are to be paid to, and those due from the same discharged by, the said James Adair at the office of the above firm in York, Pa , where the business will be conducted.

The firm takes this opportunity of thanking its friends and patrons for their past courtesies, and expresses the hope that Mr. Adair will be favored with a continuance of the same good will and patronage. Most sincerely,

ADAIR & REIFF.

UP THE STATE NOTES.

Ibach & Rader, of Newmanstown, Pa., have just adopted a new label under the name of George Walton, on a 5 cent product from their factory. They are very busy even now, and all winter were working overtime.

C. E. Bair & Son, of Harrisburg, Pa., report the year 1904 as the most satisfactory, by long odds in their experience. They continue to push their Genl. Hartranft 5 cent cigars effectively.

Gilbertstown, Montgomery county, which was noted as a cigarmaking centre in the early fifties, has had a revival in that industry. A New York firm started work a few months ago with sixty-three employes, and the force will be increased now to 150. An additional building, 80 by 32 feet, three stories high, is nearly finished.

The cigar factories at East Greenville are working overtime owing to the great demand for cigars.

Another cigar factory, employing 200 people, will soon be started at Boyertown. There are two large factories there now, where more than five hundred people are employed.

BIG PLANT FOR JERSEY CITY.

Perth Amboy Cigar Co. Will Break Ground at Once.

Perth Amboy, N. J., April 7.

This city is to have a large, new tobacco factory, which will be built at the corner of Johnstone and Neville streets for the Perth Amboy Cigar Company. Estimates for the work have been returned and ground will be broken immediately.

There has been some talk of the factory for a month past, but nothing was known of the company's plans until the drawings and specifications were received by the builders.

The main building will be four stories in height, half of the first story being below the grade. It is to be of brick and fitted with every improvement and appliance found in the largest factories of the kind throughout the country.

The main structure will be 100 feet by 125 feet deep. The building extends back about 70 feet at a width of 100 feet, and is then reduced to a width of about 50 feet for the rest of the 125 feet of depth. In the angle thus formed an extension about 50 feet square and two stories in height will be used as the engine and boiler rooms.

MANUFACTURER CONVICTED OF JUGGLING WITH CIGAR STAMPS.

New Orleans, La., April 6.

Antonio Suarez, the cigar manufacturer, has been convicted on ten of twelve counts in the United States District Court. After conviction, Suarez was released on $3,000 bail to await sentence. The accused was charged on twelve different counts in an indictment with violating the internal revenue law.

This case has been before the court for some time and attracted considerable attention. In delivering his charge to the jury, Judge Parlange instructed that body to accept Suarez's testimony as it accepted that of any witness. He said the fact of its being the testimony of the accused did not bar it from acceptance under the law. The charges contained in the ten counts on which Suarez was convicted, were willfully neglecting to destroy stamps on boxes from which the cigars had been removed, and removing 58,000 boxes of cigars from his factory which were not packed in boxes, and which were not properly stamped and canceled. Judge Parlange instructed the jury to acquit on counts one and two.

BETTER AND BETTER IN BOSTON.

Jobbers and Dealers Say They Have No Complaint at All.

Boston, Mass., April 10.

Business conditions last week were about the same as I reported in my last letter, business improving daily. Cigar manufacturers and jobbers alike report no complaint and collections are getting better.

Any number of would be purchasers are scouting the city in an effort to secure cigar stores, but as good stores are hard to buy and poor stores no one wants, they are having a hard time to make a selection.

Owing to the crusade the Anti Cigarette League is making here, special police officers are visiting cigar dealers and instructing them as to the law regarding the selling of cigarettes and tobaccos to minors.

E. A. Condax & Co., of New York, are doing some street car advertising on their 25 cent straw tip Egyptian cigarette. Francis A. Smart, of 27 State street, is the distributor for Boston.

At S. S. Pierce Co's store on Tremont street, there is a handsome window display this week of fancy smoking mixtures from the factory of S. Hyman, Montreal, Canada.

S. Bransky was in town Saturday on his inital trip in the interest of A M. Pacholder & Co., Baltimore, Md., showing samples of his firm's manufacture. This concern makes a specialty of "short smokes." Their ten for ten cents package is called the Q. T.; their ten for five cent brand is Y. Bet A. Mr. Bransky is meeting with fairly good success.

J. P. Mahoney, the genial manager of the cigar stand in the Baltimore Lunch Dairy on Newspaper Row, is always smiling, and his pleasing and courteous way of attending to customers has largely attracted to this establishment many members of the newspaper trade, who when purchasing cigars usually leave it to Mr. Mahoney's judgment. Owing to the latter's vast experience as a cigar buyer he is regarded as a pioneer in this line, and is said to be one of the highest salaried men in his line of business.

M Freeman, of 71 Kingston street, is making some improvements in his establishment, by adding more floor space so as to accommodate his ever increasing business. His new electric elevator to the clear Havana and meerschaum pipe department will soon be ready for use.

J. S. Brown, at 8 Washington street, who operates a barber shop in conjunction with his cigar store, reports a fairly good trade. El Cafe and Grumbler cigars sell well at this store. Friends of Mr. Brown are talking of putting him on the Aldermanic slate this fall.

William Alfowich, of Alfowich Bros., the Franklin street tobacconists, has purchased a Pope Toledo automobile, and can now be seen nearly every afternoon enjoying a trip through the Fenway.

Emil Abrahams is now local agent for Golden Eagle cigars from the factory of I. Lewis & Co., Newark, N. J. Owing to the extra deal the manufacturers are allowing the jobbers, to get these goods in the market, it looks as if something interesting would soon occur here.

George Kippenham, a well known cigar manufacturer of South Boston, committed suicide on Thursday. For sometime past business has been dull and financial troubles coupled with illness are supposed to have been the causes of his death.

Vic. Sheppard, with the Khedivial Co., New York, left yesterday for a short stay in Worcester, in the interest of Turkish Delight cigarettes.

A new plug and cut plug being placed on this market is that of the Marlboro Cigar Co. The brand is Tilton's Best and on the plug, tags are placed bearing a cash value of ½ cent each. The cut plug is packed 1⅔ oz. and the price is 38 cents a pound with four packages of tobacco given gratis with every five pounds; and with every ten pounds of Sensible sliced cut plug purchased 1 pound of Tilton's plug is being given gratis.

The Cigarmakers' Union is doing lots of advertising to keep the Blue Label before the public. Recently they distributed match safes and ash trays bearing the Blue Label at various union meetings and now they are going to provide 5,000 sun umbrellas for the use of union teamsters on their teams. Of course the label will be there.

THE NEWS FROM LANCASTER.

A Few Changes to be Recorded but Business About the Same.

Lancaster, Pa., April 10.

The local leaf market remains unchanged; trade seems quiet and the volume of business done was only moderate. Of the new crop there is practically no more to be had, and a large portion of it has already been delivered to the various warehouses.

I. H. Weaver this past week made a flying visit to New York.

L. N. Oliver a well known cigar broker, of Boston, is in Lancaster on a week's business trip among his factories.

Luther M. Case, leaf packer of Winsted, Conn., left this city on Friday evening last, for his home in Connecticut and will make the entire trip on the Winston touring car which he recently purchased from J. F. Usner, cigar manufacturer at Rothsville. He was accompanied part of the way by his sister in law, who is a daughter of H. G. Shirk, a local leaf tobacco broker, Mr. Kreider, an automobile expert of this city, and a representative of The Tobacco World. The actual running time as far as Philadelphia was about 3½ hours.

W. H. McLaughlin, leaf dealer, has also secured new warehouse facilities and will take possession about May 1, on East Marion street just opposite the post office C. K. Hengst & Co., cigar manufacturers, will occupy a portion of the building just secured by Mr. Mc Laughlin. It is now undergoing extensive alterations.

Several new cigar stores will be opened on Queen street within a short time. M. Straus will be open for business within a week or ten days.

Recent trade visitors were L R. Eisen brand, with L. Bamberger & Co.; B. Livingston, with K. Straus & Co , of Philadelphia; Jesse M. Falk, of G. Falk & Bro., and D. Kalbermann, with Jos. Hirsh & Son, both of New York.

MANUFACTURING IN YORK BETTER.

Box Manufacturers Give Best Evidence of Increase.

York, Pa., April 10.

There is some evidence of a general improvement in the cigar manufacturing trade throughout this county, notwithstanding continued complaints from leaf dealers. Again we can rely more implicitly upon the reports from cigar box manufacturers, and several of them informed me last week that orders were coming in now at a more rapid rate and for larger quantities than for some weeks previous.

A new cigar factory is proposed for Cly, along the Northern Central Railroad between York and Harrisburg, which is to employ about 30 hands and to be operated by E. J. Shelly, who, it is also said, will open in addition a cigar box factory.

Excavations have been made for the erection of a new factory building at Red Lion by Blochinger & Co.

C. E. Miller operating a union factory at MacSherrystown, is again gradually increasing his force of cigarmakers since a recent difficulty owing to what is claimed was a most unwarranted raise in the scale of packers' wages, as a result of which he had reduced his force to less than one-half of what he had been employing.

The MacSherrystown Cigar Co. reports a quite satisfactory business, considering that the trade generally, appears to have suffered.

The Keystone Cheroot Co., of Hanover, is now completing preparations to place on the market a new brand of cheroots, under what is thought to be the most attractive proposition ever offered the trade. The goods will be put up under the title of Our Virginia Cheroots, at $10 per thousand, and with each thousand will be given as a premium a 555 page Webster Dictionary. The goods will be attractively packed and a uniform quality guaranteed. B. J. Fisher of this company is now on an extended trip through the South and Southwest, meeting, it is reported, with excellent success.

Fisher Bros. & Parker, of Hanover, are placing with the trade a new brand of clear Havana filled goods retailing at 10 cents straight, known as the Colonial Governors. They have already secured quite a demand for the goods in nearby territory.

H. V Klunk & Co. are operating the old J. D. Markle factory at Hanover. G. F. Fink is the active member in the factory, and he has a host of friends in the trade.

W. L. Toomey trading as the La Union Cigar Co , at Hanover, has discontinued as a union factory and will hereafter conduct an open shop.

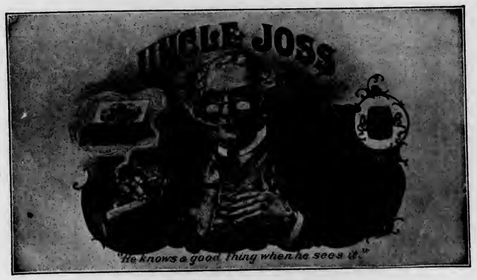
T. D. Hene the energetic representative of Wedeles Bros., of Chicago, was a visitor here last week, and placed quite a few lots of his firm's packings of Florida Sumatra.

A. J. Brady & Sons, of MacSherrystown, are much pleased with the fact that their goods are meeting with duplicate orders from all jobbing houses who have so far handled any of their product. Henry D. Knight, the Philadelphia representative of the firm, started last week for New England territory. He will be gone several weeks.

The Keystone Variety Works, printers of cigar ribbons, labels, flaps, caution notices, etc, are unusually busy at present.

Geo. W. Bowman & Co. who some time ago removed into a new factory building on Pleasant street, Hanover, are now pushing their Bob Bowman 5 cent cigars with renewed vigor.

Smith & Sheffer, leaf dealers of Hanover, are fast building up an extensive trade. Both members of the firm are thoroughly progressive, have a wide acquaintance in the trade, and are richly deserving of a full measure of success.



The Ideal Cigar Co. at Centennial, Adams County, is a comparatively new firm operating a union factory. The company is rapidly extending its business.

Miller & Markley at New Oxford are working about 20 cigarmakers, and have several brands on the market that are meeting with success.

B. F. Zarfos, of Red Lion, has just bought a lot of ground on Broadway on which he will erect a new cigar factory.

Jas. Adair, of Red Lion, has purchased a tobacco warehouse, which will be used for storage purposes by Adair & Reiff, leaf dealers of York.

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

quently, when the clerk jumps in with his feathers all ruffled he is simply making a bad matter much worse."

"That sounds almost as good as if I had said it myself," said I. And there really is a lot of truth in it. If you will try to recollect some time when you felt mean and worked the feeling off on some innocent party, you will remember that in cases where you were answered back with a little for good measure, you scrapped away for awhile, cheerfully blamed the scrap on the other fellow, and on the whole felt much better. When the other fellow dignifiedly refused to notice your trouble microbe, you ended by feeling like a skunk yourself, and would subsequently go out of your way to make amends.

I know an actual case of a man who had a sullen, hold-over jag and felt that if he didn't call somebody all the names he could think of he'd go crazy. He went into a cigar store, found fault with all the clerk offered him, cursed the place, the proprietor, the cigar business and made an ass of himself generally.

The clerks were civil through all the abuse and when the man recovered his equilibrium some time later, he felt like crawling into a rat hole and pulling the hole in after him. He was ashamed to go into the cigar store again and didn't for months, but he took a good deal of trouble to steer his friends there and increased the store's list of regular customers by at least twenty or thirty.

Quite a while later he met the proprietor of the store in a way which made some conversation unavoidable, and there ensued a little heart to heart talk. The ex grouch consented to enter the store again when he became convinced that everybody had forgotten his unfortunate break, and the two men are warm friends.

If the disturber had been answered in his own coin he would have left the store firmly convinced that the people in it were to blame, and would doubtless have taken an equal amount of pains to knock the place to his friends.

THE OLD SALESMAN.

IMPORTANT LEAF DISCOVERY.

E. G. Eckert, of Hanover, Can Reclaim Musty Tobacco.

E. G. Eckert, a tobacco chemist, and proprietor of the Acme Extract and Chemical Works at Hanover, Pa., believes that he has discovered a valuable treatment for unsound tobacco particularly tobacco that is musty.

Some extensive experimenting has been done by one of the largest manufacturing establishments in that vicinity, and they pronounce the results as very satisfactory and destined they believe, to produce an important change in the manipulation of leaf, "that has gone wrong."

In an interview with Mr. Eckert by a Tobacco World representative the "tobacco doctor" as he is familiarly known by his friends in the tobacco trade, stated that it was during a conversation with an old German cigarmaker he had received some very valuable pointers. During that night he dreamed of the conversation, and remembers that he awoke with the thought of certain chemicals in his mind. He noted them down on a cuff and thought no more about the matter until the next day when he noticed something written on his cuff, but for a time could not think what it was or how it came there, because written while still half asleep, it was almost undecipherable.

The incident finally dawned upon him and soon he recalled the entire circumstances. He immediately telephoned to New York making inquiries for certain chemicals with which he wished to experiment, but found that they had to be imported, and that caused a necessary delay.

They were finally obtained, however, and the result is regarded as a most complete and satisfactory vindication of the theory which suggested the experiment. The Acme Extract and Chemical Co. is now ready to make practical demonstrations of their claims and those interested might do well by writing them at Hanover, Pa.

The doctor has not yet given the new preparation a name, but will do so in the near future. It is a colorless and tasteless liquid, somewhat resembling the white of an egg, except that it is thin as water.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

It was reported a while ago that some farmers would raise less tobacco this year and sow more onions, but I think the only town to greatly increase their onion crop or acreage will be Northampton, and they don't raise very much tobacco anyway. I am of the opinion that it would be as well with the present out look to stick to raising tobacco.

Our correspondents write:

Hatfield, Mass: "Charles L. Warner, F. H. Bardwell and John Winsel are the first to sow their tobacco beds Others will follow the first of the week. The land is fast coming in shape for working, except in the low lands in the meadows and covered by the high water from Connecticut river.

Bradstreet, Mass.: "C. L. Warner, of Elm street, reports tobacco plants under glass up in fine shape. April is too cold as yet. Not many beds sown, as the land is not in good condition."

Conway, Mass.: "A few tobacco beds were sown last week, the rest will probably be sown this week. The snow has gone very fast the last few days and there is very little frost in the ground so we will soon be in the hurry of farm work."
—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The movement to round up the balance of last year's tobacco is still being carried forward in most of the growing districts and leaf of all descriptions is being closely gathered in, too. In many localities only scattering lots remain and from this time on a good deal of riding will be required to secure any results The buyers of the American Cigar Co. are yet in the field, which with the late comers and the representatives of the exporters, the movement does not exhibit much decline. Sample sales coming to notice are:

C. Fingum, 8a at 8, 3 and 2c asst
McComb Bros. 7a at 7¼c asst
Carl Munson, 33cs at 7, 3 and 2c asst
Theo. Larson, 5a at 7½, 3 and 2c asst
Jacob Sty, 5a at 7½, 3 and 2c

Old leaf is also being sought after in country hands, while trading among packers continues to receive considerable attention all along the line.

Deliveries are continually coming to the warehouses where packing is being carried along with full forces.

A few seed beds for another crop have been laid but a cold, rainy week has delayed this work for more favorable weather conditions.

Shipments were 700 cases—Reporter.

Our receipts this week were 857 hhds, largely from the Plantations' Association; offerings on the breaks, 20 hhds; public and private sales, 67 hhds—nearly all old tobacco.

Market was unchanged, and possessed no special feature of interest The stock of old tobacco slowly melts away, and as the new crop will come later than usual

The very small sales at the loose tobacco warehouses is an indication of how largely the Association controls the crop. Made to work well—look well and last well. Slips into your vest pocket and takes up no more room than a flat latch key. Just the thing to tickle the trade with.

Is of best tool steel and finely nickeled—bright as a new silver dollar. Has a hardened edge that is sharp—handy to cut labels, edging and stamps—a feature the common kind don't have.

We stamp your ad clearly and deeply into each of them, so that wear can't remove it.

Don't this strike you as some thing extra good in the line of an everlasting advertisement, and a tool that would please the recipient?

They make a favorable impression on those who get them. They would help to sell more of your goods.

Why not let us fix up enough for you to give one to each of your customers? It's a splendid way to show your appreciation of their trade.

KENTUCKY GROWERS UNDECIDED.

Don't Know Whether to Hold Tobacco in Warehouse or Home.

Owensboro, Ky., April 15.

The proposed plan for tobacco growers of Kentucky to hold their tobacco in warehouses until they are able to demand better prices, is not meeting with universal favor, as the majority of the growers in Breckinridge county believe that the crop should be held at home, and a great many of them intend to do this.

Those farmers that feel that they need help are trying to decide which plan is the most likely to accomplish the purpose, and the various more or less large meetings of farmers which are being held are for the purpose of debating this question. The tobacco growers of Hancock county are opposed to any pooling plan, as the affair has more than once been voted down in meeting.

BIG PLANT FOR GILBERTSVILLE, PA.

The Gilbertsville Cigar Company, of Gilbertsville, Pa., which opened a factory there about a year ago, has found its present quarters inadequate, and will shortly erect a new factory building. This plant will be put up and owned by a stock company of local citizens and has already been leased by the cigar company for five years.

The building will be three stories high, 80 x 32 feet and will be located on a large lot which is at present vacant. It will be a model factory in every particular and will seat about 150. The present plant employs little more than a third of that number.

The enterprise will prove a decided boom for the town as the present plant has already livened things up considerably. Plans for the new building have already been completed and are in the hands of the contractor.

HEAVY SALES IN PREBLE CO., O.

More than $100,000 Spanish and Seedleaf Bought in a Week.

Richmond, Ind., April 16.

Heavy sales of tobacco have recently been made in the tobacco-growing territory a few miles east of this city, in Preble county, Ohio. Within the last two weeks agents of Eastern tobacco companies have bought considerably more than $100,000 worth of Spanish and seedleaf varieties near West Alexandria.

As a result of the recent sales the "holdover" crop in this territory is rapidly disappearing. The prices paid were 7c to 9c for Spanish. Seedleaf brought 10 cents. Little tobacco is raised by Wayne county farmers, but as soon as Preble county soil is reached the tobacco crop seems to be the stand by. Western Ohio farmers have for half a century been cultivators of tobacco, but the Indiana State line appears to mark the western boundary of this particular "belt."

INDIANA PROGRESSING AS A TOBACCO-RAISING STATE.

Increased Acreage Every Year Brings Good Results, and Preparation is Being Made to Use Considerable Virgin Soil for the Plant. Tobacco Was Once an Important Crop in this State.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 15.

Indiana is yearly growing more important as a tobacco-producing State, and it seems very likely that before long it will rank well among the other States in which the cultivation of the plant is an important industry. Reports of increased acreage are coming in continually and in nearly every case the result is proven satisfactory.

Stoughton A. Fletcher is about to engage in tobacco culture on quite a large scale, for this part of the country. On his farm, about six miles south of the city, he is preparing to put in about fifty acres of tobacco. The land which he will plant has never been cultivated, and the stumps of trees are now being blasted out for the first time. Virgin soil is the best for tobacco growing. Mr. Fletcher is using white burley seed, obtained in Kentucky.

Tobacco is by no means a new crop in Indiana, though there is not as much raised here now as formerly. Indiana got the industry from Kentucky. During the colonial period tobacco was grown in Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland. About the beginning of the last century the industry spread westward to Kentucky and Tennessee and then to Southern Ohio and Indiana.

For many years Kentucky has been the leading tobacco State, and in 1900 it produced 32 per cent of the total crop of the United States. The total crop that year was 868,163,275 pounds, of which Kentucky produced 314,288,050; Virginia, 122,884,900; Ohio, 65,957,100; Tennessee, 49,157,550, and other States in descending proportion. Indiana stood twelfth in the list, producing 6,882,470 pounds. In 1890 this State produced 7,710,297 pounds; in 1880 it produced 8,872,842 pounds; in 1870, 9,325,392, and in 1860, 7,993,378. In 1860 Indiana ranked eighth in the production of tobacco and in 1900 it ranked twelfth.

As far as climate and soil are concerned the conditions are as favorable for tobacco culture now as they were forty years ago. The climate of Indiana is much the same as that of Ohio, which in 1900 produced 65,957,100 pounds of tobacco, or nearly ten times as much as Indiana.

Probably the best tobacco lands in the State are in the southern counties, but it can be grown successfully as far north as the central portion, and even farther. Large crops and a superior quality of tobacco are raised in Connecticut, which is considerably farther north than Indiana. In 1900 Connecticut produced 16,930,770 pounds, or considerably more than twice as much as Indiana.

Of the total crop in this State in 1900, Switzerland county produced 2,410,050 pounds; Spencer county, 1,250,500 pounds; Warrick county, 990,680; Ohio county, 394,160; Randolph county, 261,600; Dearborn county, 158,910; Dubois, 122,760. Marion county produced only 200 pounds, but Morgan county raised 1,730 pounds; Putnam county, 2,170; Shelby county, 4,010, and Wayne county, 24,080. Some counties north of Marion produced much more tobacco than this county did—as Montgomery, 2,000 pounds; Madison, 1,630; Wabash, 11,000; Miami, 4,920; Delaware, 7,640.

WISCONSIN BILL NOW A LAW.

Cigarettes, Tobacco or Papers Cannot Be Sold or Given Away.

Madison, Wis., April 14.

Governor LaFollette, of this State yesterday affixed his signature to the bill which prohibits the sale or manufacture of cigarettes, cigarette tobacco, paper, or the giving away of the same, and the bill is now a law, until, perhaps, it is broken.

So far, according to traveling salesmen, the sale of the cigarette in its various grades has not fallen off at all, and it is evident by this, that dealers generally, believe that the law either will not or cannot be enforced. They at least count on the American Tobacco Co. to give the anti-cigarette law a good run for its money, and failing results, to take back the banished stock.

It stands to reason that the dealers could stop the use of the cigarette themselves if they wanted to, merely by refusing to keep it in stock, and it behooves the combine to protect the dealers' interests, if it expects them to carry out their end of the business. Consumers are waiting interestedly to see whether the retailers will continue to display cigarettes in their windows or show cases in defiance of the law.

NEW RE-DRYING PLANT OPEN.

Burley Tobacco Warehouse Co.'s Adjunct Doing a Big Business.

Lexington, Ky., April 14.

The Burley Loose Tobacco Warehouse Co.'s newly-equipped re-drying establishment has been open for more than a week now and is running in pot pie order. August S. Volkers, of Freeport, Ill., is in charge.

The plant is in the rear of the company's warehouse on South Broadway and is equipped with the latest improved combination apron and stick Proctor drier which has a capacity for drying, cooling and 'ordering' 5,000 pounds an hour. It is one of the largest and best equipped machines of its kind in the State, and the plant as a whole is excelled by no other.

Mr. Bohmer, the general manager, said that the plant was working satisfactorily, and that farmers who can not get on the loose floor what they believe to be an acceptable price for their tobacco, could have it re-dried and packed in hogsheads for storing at a moderate cost.

CIGARETTE AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

Reading Railway Official Forbids Their Use in Stations and Trains.

Mahanoy City, Pa., April 14

One more knock for the cigarette. Superintendent Turk, of the Mahanoy-Shamokin division of the Reading Railway Co., has issued an order forbidding the smoking of cigarettes in stations or in passenger trains. Station agents and train hands are urged to enforce the order vigorously, in the interest of the traveling public.

The notice reads very nicely, but it is not believed that the company would go to extremes if it were violated in the trains. If a man lighted a cigarette in a smoker, and flatly refused to put it out on the order of the brakeman, it is hardly likely that the train would be stopped and the passenger ejected. As it is now, a man can sit in a train and absorb the contents of a flask of whiskey until he becomes intoxicated, and unless he makes an actual disturbance, he cannot be touched. That being the case, it is scarcely reasonable to ostracize the poor little cigarette.

The company has also issued an order from its headquarters in Philadelphia, intended to discourage cigarette smoking in its stations as well as in the smoking cars of its passenger trains, especially on the part of boys and youths. No attempt will be made actually to prohibit it, as reported, as the officials recognize full well the difficulty and danger attending such a course. The order is the result of recent complaints by passengers of disorderly and annoying conduct on one of its trains by a party of cigarette smoking boys. What the order really contemplates is to prohibit the selling of cigarettes upon the company's property by the Union News Company or other agents, and conductors of passenger trains are to exercise discretionary judgment in determining what constitutes excessive or annoying use of cigarettes by boys on trains.

SUPPRESS CHICAGO REFORMERS.

Chicago, Ill., April 4, 1905.

State's Attorney Healy has begun an investigation of the movements of W. V. Tyler, the Citizens' Mutual Alliance and Louis Grossman, a constable, who have been prosecuting cigar and tobacco dealers for selling to minors. The State official believes that the reformers are not working in good faith and if his investigation results as he expects, he will take steps to have them suppressed.

Mr. Healy declares that the methods of securing evidence which have been adopted by Tyler and the Alliance have been altogether reprehensible and out of order and he has demanded of Justice Roth that he dismiss several cases now pending. This, the justice has not yet consented to do, as it is understood he questions the right of the State's justice to take a hand in city cases.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

DON'T HABITS CUT ANY ICE AT ALL?

Good morning, lads; have you all used soap of some sort? Well, I feel so clean myself, that I think I am about due for another of my little moral talks.

You see I keep noticing so many faults and blemishes in other people that I am beginning to believe I am the only perfect human in the world, and sometimes I feel like throwing up my job of licking you-all into shape for the judgment.

I'll give you fair notice, though, before I do, and I've got a few more remarks to make anyway. Just at present I am consumed by a wonder as to how some salesmen make a living, when you consider the way they go about it. The fact that they do, simply shows that you can't lay down any hard and fast rules that will be applicable to every case.

There is a certain salesman on the road today whose description many will recognize. He may see this himself, and if he does he will probably get mad. He ought to get mad, but his passion should be directed at himself, and not at me for the only thing I am doing is reminding him of what every one else already knows.

The salesman I am talking about is accounted a first rate salesman. He is employed by a good house, has an extremely wide acquaintance and undoubtedly makes good in point of the number of orders he brings his house. But his faults are indisputably faults, and faults that have ruined more men than one meets in a day. Therein lies the mystery. Does he make good despite his personality or on account of it?

I was in a Baltimore cigar store not long ago when this man came in, jerked out a remark to everybody including the colored porter and was off again.

"Lem seems almost sober," said the head clerk to the manager. The man's name is not Lem, and it is not necessary for you to know what it is.

The clerk's remark made me remember that I had seen the man in the bar of a hotel two or three nights before in a state of almost helpless intoxication and evidently glad of it. At the time, he was amusing himself by plunging his hands into his pockets and withdrawing them full of wads of crumpled bank notes which he would stare at for a moment with an expression of deep and alcoholic contempt, and then let drop on the floor. He had a companion, presumably a friend, whose chief duty seemed to lie in picking the money up again and jamming it back in the other's pockets.

"Lem certainly is an awful tank at nights," volunteered the manager. "He cultivates a steady series of Brannigans that make an ordinary corn look like the essence of dignity. Only at nights, though."

"Well, in my observation," said I, "the sharp and complete separation of one's nocturnal habits from those of the day, when the former include a pursuit of the ruddy fluid, has, after a short time proven impossible. In short, a man finally has to hang over."

"Lem always gets around in the day time," the clerk assured me. "By the way, did you ever hear him swear?"

"I don't know him personally, you know," I answered, "and nearly every time I have seen him, it has been in a cigar storewhere he was supposed to be selling goods. Naturally he wouldn't do himself justice then. Can he really swear some?"

The manager gave me a peculiar look and grinned at the head clerk who was giggling merrily.

"Well," said he reflectively, "I've heard a considerable variety of cussers and some of them had come through on the limited straight from Cusserville. I have also heard the story of the youth who broke words in half in order to push in a swear. And all I got to say is that such verbal pikers aint in Lem's class at all. Why oftentimes, after I've listened to Lem when he felt a little like talking, I've wondered how he managed so much out of one deity. He oughta been born in ancient Greece.

"And don't get any idea that Lem is too stingy to swear during business hours. Not never so. That's his favorite time because his mouth ain't so otherwise busy as it is at nights. It aint all straight profanity, either. When he happens to feel that way, he can make an ordinary foul-mouthed man's line sound like the conversation of an English purist who had never heard ot but one sex. And the things he calls a man!"

The clerk proceeded to give me a few samples, and it appears that the mildest

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

IT IS FAIR to assert that one of the most potent trade killers to be considered is indifference on the part of the clerk. Frequently this may not be indifference at all but merely a pose, assumed in order that the clerk may show what an old and blase hand he is. They say the successful war correspondents, and newspaper reporters, whose names grow familiar to the reading public all over the world, are successful because they have the faculty of becoming just as enthusiastic over every piece of news, however unimportant, they report now, as they were when they were detailed on their first "story."

In a musical comedy recently running in a Philadelphia theatre, one of the actresses, to illustrate a song, burlesques the haughty and indifferent salesgirl in a department store.

Of course her imitation is greatly exaggerated, but there is a foundation for it all, and it is not the glove counter girl alone who is guilty of the fault. The writer has been in entirely too great a proportion of cigar stores, where the clerk languidly reached after an asked for cigar box, shoved it indifferently out on the counter and wearily awaited the customer's pleasure.

It was done in a sort of "You see, old chap, I'm just doing this to help the cigar store fellow out, you know."

A good many of these clerks looked as if they would be good, sensible, wide-awake fellows if they were given the chance and it's a tremendous pity that they can't get wise to themselves before their employer gets wise himself.

Remember one undying fact; one certain, nail on the head fact, a fact just as much of a fact as the certainty that the sun rises and sets every day. That is, that the easiest way to create an unfavorable and unpleasant impression is to act as if you thought you were above the work you are doing, or that that work was not worth while giving your best attention to.

The man who quarrels with his bread and butter is fouling his own nest and putting himself in a position that is really far below that of the clerk without any ambition at all.

The writer not long ago said something like this to a young clerk who was bright and ambitious, but who had gotten sick of his job and felt that he wasn't getting anywhere. "I don't want to be a cigar clerk on a bum salary all my life," he said peevishly. "I haven't got any interest in my work any more, and I suppose I show it. I'm not like some of these dubs that seem satisfied if they get enough to buy a loud suit and a cane once in a while and have three or four tough girls on their staff."

This boy was 20 years old and had been in the store a year. He seemed to think he ought to be the proprietor by that time. In the first six months he had been in the store the writer had heard more than one man speak of the boy's courtesy and alertness and say that they liked to have him wait on them. There had been no such remarks in the last six months and this, the writer told the boy and told him why. He seemed thoughtful and there has been a noticeable change since.

His case is like a hundred others, and the best consolation is to remember that successes aren't made over night, but if they are to be permanent, mean long, patient work and attention to details. Don't be a quitter. Hades is full of them.

GEO. W. PARR'S NEW "FERNSIDE" BRAND

PROMINENT among the new brands of popular priced cigars that are making a hit on the market is the "Fernside," which was recently gotten out by George W. Parr, of Littlestown, Pa. The cigar has not been out long enough yet to have become widely known but on account of its astonishingly good quality, is making very rapid progress.

As will be seen by the above cut, the label is an attractive one, and the cigar is quite as desirable as the lady. The package is built to correspond.

The cigar is made in a dainty size and is just the thing to tempt the fastidious smoker. It retails for five cents, and is graded as Havana filler with Sumatra wrapper. Mr. Parr will push its sale vigorously and from the way the brand is already duplicating, he will have little trouble in securing for it a wide market.

THE "UNITED" SHIELD.

WITH the constantly increasing advertising of the United Cigar Stores Co. and the likewise increasing number of stores, the trade mark of the company, which consists of a shield formed of a crown over the word "United," is becoming more and more known, until every cigar dealer in the country, and nearly every consumer is familiar with its appearance.

Although the shield is a sufficiently attractive symbol to be remembered on its own account, the promoters of the United Cigar Stores Co. have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in popularizing it, and in all the advertising it is buying in the twenty-five or thirty cities in which the Company's stores are in operation, and the magazine advertising it is doing to enlarge its mail order business, the shield is used conspicuously, and in order to emphasize its importance as a trade mark, every announcement carries a catch-word with the shield as a text.

Beside in this form of advertising, the Company has adopted the trade mark on all the windows of its stores, until it has come to be identified with everything about the business except the cigar boxes themselves. To a certain extent this has been a forced put, owing to the fact that some of the Company's early windows were copied, when the distinctive form consisted merely of the banding of the tops and bottoms of the windows in red and printing the sentence, "Largest Retail Cigar Dealers in America."

Apparently the only way to prevent this was to give the windows further individuality by a trade mark, and the shield was finally evolved and steps were at once taken to protect it by every means known to registration laws.

The originator of the shield was F. A. Whelan, head of the Construction Department of the United Cigar Stores Co., and brother of the president. Mr. Whelan, who is an architect and draughtsman, whose work is well known in his profession, was giving the choice of a symbol for the Company his attention for some time before he conceived the shield. He was seeking to evolve a design in which the word "United" would work out in cipher. A lucky chance suggested the shield, not because it was new, but because when he came to adapt the word to that form, he was himself astonished to discern that, taking a designer's license with the six letters, it was possible to give them seven heavy strokes, these heavy strokes corresponding to the seven stripes in the National flag, and their correlative emblem, the shield.

At first glance, few people notice the fact that the bottom part of the shield is composed of letters and that it is nothing but a word, and some objection was raised to it on that account. This was over ruled, however, as the fact was recognized that the mark would have additional value after the discovery of the word "United" had been made by the observer.

A LITTLE TIP.

GET out some advertising card bearing your name and address and perhaps a picture of your store if it is a handsome one and on the card print some brief suggestion to smokers that is likely to attract attention. This might do for instance:

If you will observe the following rules you may smoke as much as you like without any harm:

In the first place, smoke a good cigar. In the second place never light a cigar the second time. The other rules are never to stay in a cloud of smoke and never chew the end of a cigar.

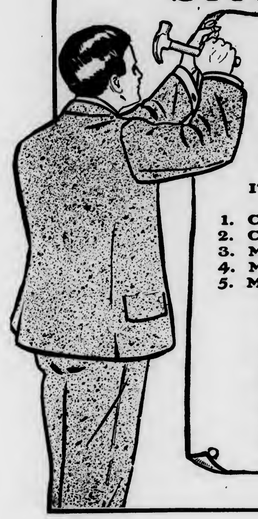
TOBACCO WHISKERS.



TO obtain custom a tobacconist in a London suburb informed the public that on a certain day his assistants would wear whiskers and mustaches of the favorite brands. The effect was not so ludicrous as many imagined. The light, straw colored mustaches of the young men were so very natural that they might have passed as real adornments, while the dark, long beard of the proprietor himself, matched his own whiskers and hair to perfection. After use, the tobacco was wrapped in packets and given to anyone who cared to ask for it.

"THE manner in which some dealers conduct retail cigar stores is beyond me," said a large consumer in a Milwaukee store the other day. "For instance, in many places where a man goes in to buy a cigar the clerk will remove a number in his hand and spread them over the counter, to allow the customer to make a selection. It does not matter how dusty the case may be, or what the clerk may be working in, the cigars are handled like hardware.

"When you stop to think that every one of the cigars that goes out of such a store may have been handled fifteen or twenty times, and probably has swept up a lot of microbe bearing dust from the top of the show case as well, you will probably wonder why the dealers do not make a practice of pulling out the box, and letting the customer select his cigar from that. I believe there is some government regulation preventing the other way of doing, but it is not observed in 50 per cent of the stores."

pet name the salesman has for his customers is that distinctively American epithet, the use of which is usually supposed to mean fight.

"Why, I wouldn't stand for anything like that for a minute," said I. "I'm surprised that anyone does. In fact I don't see how the man can do any business or how he escapes complaints being made about him. Most men swear and occasionally use worse talk but they don't use it in that lavish way, and I certainly never considered it a diplomatic move to address such language to a prospective customer."

"Some of 'm don't stand it," said the manager. "One man got sore the other day, and dressed him down in great shape. Said if he intended to enter a gentleman's store, he would have to imitate the conduct of a gentleman, as nearly as his brutish intelligence and natural instincts would permit. Lem told it himslf, and thought it was a great joke."

"A great joke, eh," said I. "Well, if that man had taken the trouble to come out in front of his counter and cane the chump, the application would have reached a spot not so thick as his skull. For the life of me I don't see how or why anybody puts up with it."

"I don't either, when I think of it in cold blood and when Lem isn't here," replied the manager. "But it's different when he is. You see if you, or any other average man were to come in here and call me a foul name, I would probably bang you. With Lem it is different. He talks that way all the time. He doesn't know anything else. If you were to choke his cussing off he wouldn't be able to make himself understood. He'd simply have to open his mouth and shut it again without saying anything.

"And it would puzzle you to pick out any particular name to jump him on. Everyone knows that he doesn't mean it for an insult, and to kick up a great row and demand an apology and retraction would be a good deal like the yap who had been called the unmentionable name and made the fellow who had called him it write a note to the effect that he didn't really believe the other was what he had called him. Then he triumphantly showed the paper around as a vindication, and you can imagine what people thought. No; Lem has reached such a pass that he wouldn't be able to understand such indignation and resentment."

And as I say, this fellow is employed by a first rate manufacturing house, and is regarded as a good salesman. He gets the business. Explain it, for I can't.

HAVANA MARKET HAS BEEN EXCEPTIONALLY QUIET.

One Big Northern Buyer About All in Sight. Good Demand for Remedios From Commission Houses, But Stocks Are Low and the Prices Asked Are Above the Limit.

HAVANA, April 10, 1905.

Business during the past week in the Havana market has been quiet, and if it had not been for the presence of one Northern buyer who has already purchased nearly 1,000 bales, it would have been the dullest week yet recorded.

There is still a strong demand for Remedios first and second capaduras, but the stocks in first hands, with one or two exceptions, are exhausted, while the prices asked for the few unsold holdings in the hands of exporters or speculators are above the limits of the orders in the hands of commission houses.

Still, as the new crop will not be fit for working by the manufacturers until next year, the latter will have to pay dearly to supply their pressing needs, or use substitutes. During the year 1901 Remedios first capaduras of the 1900 crop sold as high as $65 per qq., and second capaduras brought as high as $45 per qq. in the Havana market. Since that time prices have been dropping, until in the beginning of 1903 the low tide was reached, when good first capaduras of the 1902 crop sold as low as $30, and seconds fetched from $15 to $18 per qq.

As the 1903 crop was mostly flimsy and only a very small part of it was suitable for the United States, prices gradually advanced again. The 1904 crop, while of good body and strong in flavor, was too short in quantity, even with the assistance of the surplus left over from 1900 and 1901, to meet the demands of our Northern factories, thus raising prices to a still higher level. As the 1905 crop is also without doubt not sufficient in quantity, high water mark prices are more than likely in 1906.

A reaction may perhaps be in sight for the year 1907, provided the farmers should plant more tobacco this fall, be favored with a good growing season, and harvest a large, suitable crop in 1906, which could be worked during the year 1907.

From this it will be seen that the manufacturers have no possible relief in sight for them until the end of two years from now, and even then it will all depend upon favorable circumstances. In the meantime they ought to try to secure enough stocks for their running needs, as they may have to pay still higher prices next year, unless some unforeseen circumstances should develop to destroy all present calculations.

To some extent all the cigar tobacco crop raised in the whole world, in the year 1904 seems to have been rather deficient in quantity, and if there had not been some surplus holdings, the situation would be still more difficult for the manufacturers.

In all likelihood the prices for Vuelta Abajo and Partido fillers of fine quality will be higher than last year, as the demand may exceed the supply. Some people claim that there may be more wrappers than during the previous year, but it remains to be seen how the colors may be after the tobacco has been baled and passed the last fermentation. There was one rainy day last week, but since Thursday the weather has been dry and cool.

foot up to 2,004 bales in all, divided into 1,258 of Vuelta Abajo, 250 of Partido and 496 bales of Remedios. The buyers for the American market have taken 1,618, the local cigar manufacturers 320, and European exporters 66 bales.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals: Charles Vogt, of Carl Vogt's Sons, New York; Angel Cuesta, of Cuesta Rey & Co., Ignacio Haya, of Sanchez & Haya, Vicente Guerra, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., Vicente Bustillo, of Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, A. Santaella, of Santaella & Co., all of Tampa; E. A. Kline, of E. A. Kline & Co., New York, Tampa and Havana.

Departures: Louis C. Cantor, for New York.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers

Business is perhaps a trifle better just at the moment, as the larger independent factories have received a number of orders from the United States, Great Britain and its colonies, notably Canada, where Havana cigars seem to be more called for. It is still too early to look for any lasting improvement, however, unless the importers of cigars perhaps fear, that owing to the high prices which the manufacturers may have to pay for their leaf supply, the latter should raise their prices.

This contingency is of course possible, and ought not to be lost sight of by the importers of cigars, because the small margin with which the local factories have to work would not allow them to continue to work as heretofore, if they should have to pay higher prices for their raw material.

Exports per steamer Morro Castle were 3,799,615 cigars.

H. Upmann & Co. have received some good orders from Europe and the United States.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. report no change in their Partagas factory; they are working as always, and the demand for Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co. never ceases.

Por Larranaga is doing well. Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, states that their sales to Canada in two months this year have already equalled their whole output of Por Larranaga cigars in 1904. London is sending good orders, and the demand from the United States is increasing.

Sol is noting an improvement in the orders from Great Britain and the United States, to the satisfaction of Behrens & Co.

Ramon Allones is working steadily nearly the whole year through, and there is very little difference noticeable even in dull times. Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. are using good material, and the smokers are not slow to find this out.

Crepusculo has no reason to complain, having received some very good sized orders for Jefferson from the United States, and J. F. Rocha & Co. are working actively for London and South America.

Calixto Lopez & Co. are doing a fair business with Germany and the United States.

Remigio Lopez y Hno. are doing as well as can be expected, and La Mas Fermosa and Magnetica de Cuba are steadily gaining more territory in the United States.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Aixala & Co, were the heaviest sellers last week, disposing of 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Charles Vogt was a heavy buyer in our market, and says he has already purchased 1,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo and apparently has not yet closed his deals on pending lots.

Miguel V. Perez closed out the balance of his Remedios holdings, 306 bales.

Voneiff & Vidal Cruz are stripping on account of their Northern customers.

Jose H. Cayro e Hijo turned over 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

A. Pazos & Co. have several trades pending, which very likely will result in some good transactions this week.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. disposed of 125 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo.

The four large Tampa manufacturers, Antonio Santaella, Vicente Bustillo, Ignacio Haya and Vicente Guerra, have arrived here with the principal object in view to raise $50,000, in order to construct a sanitarium for their cigarmakers in Tampa, and there is no doubt that they will be able to raise a large sum from the local dealers and commission merchants with whom they are doing business. Charity amongst the Spanish and Cuban population is never asked in vain, when some laudable enterprise is planned, and contributions are generally very liberal.

Manuel Suarez & Co. are very busy shipping goods and stripping for their customers Don Manuel Suarez is always on the alert, going to the country and inspecting the new crop, as well as picking up isolated lots of merit that were left over with some farmers who demanded too high figures in the beginning.

Bruno Diaz & Co. made one sale of 100 bales of Partido to a local factory.

Antonio Suarez is buying quite actively in the country of the new crop, and will start his packing next month.

Jose Menendez turned over 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

A. M. Calzada & Co. are more or less busy all the time, executing orders for their customers.

Rodriguez, Bautista & Co. have some trades pending examination this week, and soon will start their escojidas.

NEW YORK, April 17, 1905.

Trade was steadier last week with the retailers, although the weather was not quite as springlike as it had been. The box trade was better, and the Broadway stores say they did more.

New stores are continually being opened in every section of the city, and more and more stands are being placed in office buildings, until one wonders how they are all able to pay their rent. The consumption in New York city is something tremendous, and of course is constantly increasing, but hardly, it seems, in proportion to the increase in the number of places where a cigar may be bought.

Cigar stores in New York are getting a reputation among occasional visitors from out of town, of being evanescent, because men who come to town at intervals of two or three months complain that they never know whether they will find a store at the same address or not.

Of course it is not really as bad as that, but it is a fact that removals are very frequent, owing to building changes, raising of rent and so on, for unless he has a long established trade, a dealer must be a wise guy these days to have a balance at the end of every year.

This spring will probably be a good one in the retail trade as the country is supposed to be in a prosperous condition and when much money is floating around, New York merchants always get their share.

Manufacturers are still being kept fairly busy and while all of them could doubtless get away with more orders, there is no dissatisfaction to speak of. Sales on the road are coming up better, and salesmen find each trip more productive than the last.

Nothing of much news interest took place in the leaf market during the week. On the contrary things were rather quiet. There was quite a little done in old Sumatra goods and a sufficient number of good sales took place to bring the footing above the average. H. Duys & Co. report the sale of 196 bales of old Sumatra to a manufacturer outside of New York, and the transaction amounted to more than $30,000. The buyer was a Western manufacturer, and there certainly seems to be less difficulty of moving goods in that direction than elsewhere.

Not much was done in Havana during the week. There was no active demand felt, although prices had not suffered and there was no particular disposition to beat them down. Either manufacturers have got enough to do them for a time or they have made up their minds to hold off a while longer, anyway, to see what will happen.

The Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade of New York held its annual meeting and re-elected all the officers of the board for another term. These are Benno Newberger, President, James Ertheiler, Vice-President; F. Cranz, Treasurer, and Sig Koenig, Secretary.

The following were elected delegates to the annual convention to be held in Lancaster, Pa.: Charles Fox, F. M. Dolbeer, Benno Rosenwald, Ed. Smith, M. Levy, E. Arndt, H. Spingarn, E. A. Kraussman, James Ertheiler, Jos. Mayer, and William E. Bird.

Alternates: F. Cranz, J. F. Cullman, Chas. Waxelbaum, H. S. Rothschild, J. Alexander, J. Duys, A. Pazos, S. Schleuchterer, A. Bach, J. M. Congalton, and Jesse Falk.

An amendment was made to the by-laws providing for the increase of the number of members of the Board of Directors from twelve to fifteen. A number of other matters of routine nature were discussed and settled.

The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of this city held its regular meeting last Tuesday evening, and Sydney J. Freeman, Chairman of the Exposition Committee, reported that every thing was moving along in fine shape. Applications for space at the Exposition are being received from some of the largest and most important manufacturers in the country, and now that the space contracts are finished these manufacturers will be closed as quickly as possible.

Robert E. Lane, President of the Association, reported that the association's March business was the largest yet recorded, and that April, so far, was keeping up the record. There was considerable discussion as to the advisability of adopting a new emblem or trade mark in place of the flying horse now in use. Some of the members do not like the present trade mark for the reason that it is rather too large a design and does not bear on the tobacco trade. It was argued that a more suitable design should be prepared and pushed vigorously so that it would gain a valuable identity. A committee was appointed to work on this matter consisting of Messrs. Aschner, Craker, and Geyer.

Fred Aschner, one of the prominent Brooklynites, announced that the Brooklyn branch intends soon to have a blow-out, pleasing features of which will be a theatrical entertainment and the serving of refreshments.

The Royal Company is adopting some new method nearly every week to demonstrate its progressiveness and enterprise and will become a decided factor in metropolitan trade. The company has issued a trade price list on its clear Havana cigars and best grade of cigarettes, which is a very tasteful affair. Aside from its practical use, the booklet is handsome enough for a souvenir.

Among the brands are Henry Clay, Manuel Garcia, Rosa de Santiago, Flor de Cuba, Intimidad, Cabanas, Pedro Murias, Carolina, Boch and a number of others on which the firm has made a reputation. The company makes a speciality of its 20 cent Turkish cigarettes and besides this brand offers a complete list of the best grades of this class of smoking.

A novel decision has been made by Judge Kelley in the Kings County Supreme Court, in the case brought by John Bassler against Heyman Bros. and Lowenstein to restrain the latter firm from using the title Richard Mansfield for cigars. The court decided that while the plaintiff had proven his right to the title he was entitled to relief in equity on account of the fact that his label bore a statement which was a misrepresentation. This consisted of the use of the word "Havana" as the description of the quality of the tobacco in the cigar, and the defendents raised the point that the defendent had no right to use this word, inasmuch as his cigar was made of Havana and Havana seed filler with a Sumatra wrapper. This the defence claimed was a deception upon the public. H. J. Boch, a leaf dealer, H. S. Josephs, a cigar manufacturer and B. Wasserman were called by the defence as witnessess and the judge made the above rule.

The wedding of Maurice Robinson to Miss Rose Spigel will take place at Sherry's to-morrow. Mr. Robinson is well known in the trade as one of the big and successful salesmen employed by Geo. L. Storm & Co.

So far Bennett, Sloan & Co. have been unable to discover the identity of the man who tried to victimize them a couple of weeks ago by a telephone order which was falsely credited to Park & Tilford. Charles Theil, who came for the 25,000 cigars following the order on the telephones, and who was arrested, is supposed to have been a tool in the hands of the thief or set of thieves who have been operating in New York. Theil was discharged and although he gave a good description of the swindler who he said employed him, the man could not be located.

Edward Regensburg, of E. Regensburg & Sons sailed for Europe last Saturday on the Koenigin Luise. He will visit the extensive trade which this firm enjoys in England, Germany, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Italy and France. Although the trip is something of the nature of a pleasure trip, Mr. Regensburg being accompanied by his wife, the manufacturer will take comprehensive note of trade conditions in the various countries through which he will pass.

As a result of the request made by J. S. Gans & Co., a receiver has been appointed for the Excelsior Consumer's Cigar Co. which recently did business at 126 Broad street, this city.

The Metropolitan Tobacco Co. and the Brooklyn Tobacco Co. have made application to have the Broberg Snuff and Tobacco Co., of Brooklyn, declared an involuntary bankrupt. The petition is made in an effort to secure the liquidation of an account amounting to $5,000.

On next Monday, a week from today, the marriage will take place of Irvin Studwell, manager of Surbrug's Broadway store and Miss Elsie Clayton, of Brooklyn. Mr. Studwell is receiving congratulations from his numerous friends.

Petition in bankruptcy has been granted by Judge Holt in the U. S. District Court of Max Lichtenberg and Edmund L. Lichtenberg former leaf dealers at 176 Water street this city, and who did business as I. Lichtenberg Sons.

At last Friday's Sumatra inscription H. Duys Co. purchased 144 bales A D C | Deli; 53 bales B M | Langkat; 35 bales H D | Langkat; 28 bales J H M | Deli-C; 125 bales Sumatra Plant My. The latter lot was purchased out of hand on Tuesday last.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CO., QUERIED.

Cincinnati Bank Wants to Know What is Doing.

Cincinnati, O., April 17.

A demand has been made on the officers of the Merchants' National Bank by Tax Inquistors Morganthaler and Arnold for a complete report of the amount of money which the American Tobacco Co. and subsidiary interests had on deposit in their bank on April 1 of this year and the year preceding.

Under the power of Tax Inquisitor this is made compulsory on request with the provision that a failure to comply empowers the fnvuisitor to summon the officials before him in person to give the information.

The order is the outcome of a disagreement between the Board of Supervisors and the American Tobacco Company over the valuation of the trust's local plants, known here as branches of the American Cigar Company.

A few years ago the American Cigar Company operated three cigar factories in this city and turned out triple the number of cigars and stogies turned out at the present time.

A little more than a year ago two of the plants were closed down and all the product intended for consumption within the radius of the Cincinnati market was ordered turned out of the remaining plant.

The two abandoned plants were partially dismantled, and it is because of this condition of affairs that a dispute has arisen which has been carried on for the last six months, and which resulted in the determination of the tax inquisitors to go deeper into the dispute and levy an additional tax upon assets held in bank.

The supervisors fixed the levy for the present year upon the company's plant at a valuation about equal to that of the past years.

Agents for the combine protested, claiming that the board was unjust in its valuation, for the reason that the two plants which were idle and partly dismantled were not worth anything like what they would be if they were in operation.

The amount involved in the dispute will reach thousands of dollars.

BUHRMAN.

HAAS & MAIER TOBACCO CO. WILL BE DISSOLVED.

A meeting of stockholders of the Haas & Maier Tobacco Co., of Cincinnati, O., will be held at the offices of Kramer & Kramer, in the Union Trust building, April 24, to dissolve that corporation. The company is capitalized at $25,000. Moritz Haas is president. The corporation is owned by Haas Bros., cigar manufacturers and they now do all their business under that name and have no further use for the other corporation.

PORTUGUESE TOBACCO MONOPOLY.

The Portuguese government has signed with a tobacco company and a number of foreign bankers a contract extending the tobacco monopoly till 1926 and raising a loan of $70,000,000 in 4 per cent bonds with the same guarantees as the 4½ per cent bonds of 1891 and 1896, which will be liquidated.

To Benefit Our Readers.

The Tobacco World wants to receive from week to week all questions relating to the trade which may be puzzling its subscribers, and will be glad to supply any information in its possession or obtainable.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

All letters should be addressed to the "Correspondence Editor" and must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, which may be withheld when desired.

THE RETAILER MUST BE TAXED.

We desire to call attention to the letters which are appearing in this paper from cigar and tobacco dealers, urging that a tax be imposed on the retailer, as the only method by which he can successfully compete with the horde of pirates who are stealing his business from him in fragments.

Those who are writing these letters know what they want to say. It is a matter that is as vital as can be to them and one which has occasioned a tremendous amount of hard thinking. A cigar store is no longer a gilt-edged proposition. For those dealers who are not in a position to count on a high class box trade, it is a very dubious proposition.

In one sense, manufacturers cannot be blamed for getting their goods into as many stands as are likely to sell them. In another sense they are to be blamed, for an error of policy if nothing worse. It will be a poor game in the long run, for as consumption does not increase in the same proportion as the number of "accommodation" cigar cases in barber shops, etc., the manufacturers' and jobbers' accounts become smaller and more numerous, customers last only three months, a month, a fortnight, until the formers' books becomes a mess.

Those humanitarians who put in a dozen boxes of cigars just to accommodate their regular customers, are careful to include no brand that is not fairly certain of a ready sale. And the average consumer would as lief buy a well known brand in a restaurant as in a cigar store proper, because he has no doubt that he is getting what he asks for.

The remedy lies with the retailer alone. Other branches of the trade have shown that they could unite for their common good, with effective results, and the retailer must do the same. It is deplorable that the tendency heretofore has been the other way. Retailers haven't pulled together for a cent, and there has too frequently been an unneighborly atmosphere of hostility.

The Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Associations have a long way toward bettering these conditions, but the members of these unfortunately do not embrace a majority of the dealers. A great many of those dealers who have not joined have remained away because they would rather go it alone, and not much help can be expected from them in a united movement for the purpose of securing the tax.

It is not necessary at this time to present any more arguments in favor of such a tax. Those dealers who are already for it—and their number is legion—do not have to be convinced, and those who do not see the utility of it, can best be won by the arguments which are being advanced in these columns by those who are speaking from bitter experience.

Frankly, we are unable to perceive any disadvantages which could result from the tax; we are unable to imagine any. We should like to hear both sides of the matter discussed and ask everybody who has an opinion, to express it. Then we will talk about the best way of taking action.

THE BENEFITS OF ORGANIZATION.

The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of Philadelphia is inaugurating a movement which should be encouraged by every cigarist in the city. The plans of the association are for the purpose of enlarging and invigorating itself, and resultantly every one of its members.

The organization has suffered more or less ever since its inception, from lack of interest on the part of many Philadelphia retailers, and this considered, the Tobacco Exposition successfully held in December, reflects all the greater credit on its conductors.

The association has now moved into more attractive quarters, has provided for more interesting meetings, and has made an appeal to local dealers, who are non-members, to come inside the fold and work for the common cause.

A circular letter has been sent to every dealer asking him to become a member of the association and urging him to enter a contest which has been started to secure the best ideas as to the most practical method of bettering the organization. Desirable prizes are offered, the contest to end May 15.

There should be good returns from this plan, especially when it is considered that every effort made is a self helping one. Particularly with conditions in the retail trade as they are now, it is up to every member of it to extend a helping hand.

ANTI CIGARETTE LAW IS BORN TO DIE.

Governor LaFollette has signed the Wisconsin anti-cigarette bill, and cigarettes and their constituents are now contraband. Thus the work of reforming the world by removing its habits goes merrily on.

If these laws in Wisconsin, Indiana, or wherever they may come into existence become an acknowledged success, we will be willing to admit that the Millenium is at hand. But they will not be a success and never could be, unless inaugurated on a desert island or in some other locality where there is not sufficient cigarette smoking to be objectionable to anybody.

The constitution was not written on rubber, and under it a man will always have some liberty. He was meant to have a great deal. And until the testimony that the cigarette is an active poison becomes more reducible to concrete evidence, such laws as this will fall because of inability to support their own weight.

The American Tobacco Co. is in the best position to have the anti-cigarette law relegated to the legislative boneyard, because it is no stranger to the courts and is best prepared for battle. It costs money to prove a thing or disprove it by law, but the American Tobacco Co. long ago learned to class its legal bills as so much regular expense.

It is understood that dealers in the two Western States have been advised by the company to continue the sale of cigarettes, and, in fact, to court arrest, in order that a test case may be made. The company, of course, will back the dealer, and the result is not hard to predict.

TOBACCO has always been given credit for stimulating romance, but in most cases it has been reflective romance, such, for instance, as the dreams of the past which the old bachelor spells from out the smoke clouds which circle his pipe.

We now have the news of a more active part which the plant has played in bringing together affinities. Three girls employed in one of the large tobacco factories of York, Pa., became wistful and enclosed amatory notes in shipments.

As the worst of luck must work itself out, the notes were opened by men who some time since had been careless enough to select mates.

THE TAXATION OF THE DEALER FOR HIS OWN SALVATION.

Philadelphia, April 17, 1905.

Editor Tobacco World:

I am certainly glad somebody is agitating the retailer's tax business. I have thought about it, and thought about it and thought about it, and realized how little, mere thinking did towards any result.

I am positive that the only solution of this problem is in a tax for us. It is a sure fact that something must be done very quickly to protect our branch of the trade, and after considering the expedients I can select nothing better than the tax proposition.

I have a regular trade consisting of men who buy all their boxes of cigars from me. They would not think of going anywhere else. At the same time, these men frequently, through the day want a cigar, and if they are able to find their desired brand in a restaurant, drug store, or lunch cafe, think nothing of getting it. They buy it where it is most convenient. What can I do against that, when there is no limitation to the number of people who can provide a cigar to any one who has the price?

The box trade is all right, and a very important item in a retailer's books, but the single sales of the cigar or a quarter's worth of cigars always serves to turn the books in the right direction. If we can't count on this drop-in trade, we can't count on making a living.

Every trade should have some measure of protection, if only to preserve the trade, and unless the retail end of the cigar business is protected in some way—and the only way I can see is by a tax—we are doomed.

Keep up the good work

ONE WHO COURTS A TAX.

ANOTHER FROM THE JOURNAL.

The following is another extract from the Chicago Journal, quite as mushy as the rest:

The tobacco trade's retail stores at Minneapolis and St. Paul are being boycotted by the smokers of the Twin Cities. Men are said to be ashamed to be seen entering a trust store, and the result is that the monopoly will soon give up its retail business in those cities. Were it not for the large number of strangers in the downtown districts every day, who, unknowingly patronize the tobacco trust's retail stores in this city it would have given up the retail business here long ago, said the head of the publicity department of the Independent Dealers' Association.

A list of the locations of trust retail stores can be had at the independent dealers' headquarters for the benefit of strangers who would not patronize such stores in their own cities. Chicago consumers who have been sufficiently educated as to the locations of trust stores seldom, if ever, patronize them. They know that the goods displayed in their show windows marked down to impossible prices for a good article are injurious to their health.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to be held May 17 in the Post Office Building in Philadelphia to secure eligibles to fill a vacancy in the position of examiner of tobacco in the Custom House at Philadelphia. The position will pay $1,400 per annum. The principal portion of the examination will consist of practical tests in the examination of leaf tobacco, cigars and cigarettes.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

The most important happening of the week was the dinner at Kugler's on Monday night given by the Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade. The meeting was primarily to elect delegates, but was also conceived with the purpose of cementing the leaf trade in Philadelphia into something like a compact, single-minded organization.

The entire trade had been invited and a very appetizing repast was prepared for the guests. This was as follows:

Celery, Olives, Bluepoints
Snapper Soup
Plank Shad—ala maitre d'Hotel
Chicken Croquettes with Peas
Fillet of Beef, Mushrooms
Lettuce and Tomato Salad
Ice Cream, Cake
Coffee, (Cigars).

After the consumption of this, Felix Eckerson, master of ceremonies, told the purpose of the meeting, namely, to cultivate good fellowship and brotherly love among the members of the tobacco trade.

John R. Young, President of the Board, followed with a very concise talk along the line of co operation and the more vital questions at issue relative to tariff and reciprocity, and urged the members of the board to lay aside all petty affairs and stand unitedly for the common good of the trade, in order to impress upon the Government the legitimacy of such claims as are needed, and the oneness of the trade members.

Mr. Young expressed great satisfaction at the good work heretofore done by the Philadelphia trade, and hoped they would always lead in every honorable move to bring about better conditions.

The following matters were discussed and acted on:

To reconsider the action of last meeting as to the election of delegates to the National Convention, and such delegates paying their own expenses.

It was moved, seconded and carried to have the old way of the chair appointing the delegates in regular order, and for the association to bear all expenses. The following were then appointed.

Alternates:—Chas. Hipple, H. E. Stevenson, L. Kruppenbach, W. E. Dotts, Henry Hirschberg.

It was also moved and seconded to instruct the delegates to nominate A. Bijur as his own successor as President of the National Association and to work for his re-election, as a reward for faithful services rendered.

A resolution presented by M. Rosenberg to demand the abolition of the "dock weight" system, was unanimously adopted.

It was also decided that this board go on record as being unalterably opposed to any reduction on Phillipine cigars and tobacco.

Juluis Vetterlein, a veteran leaf dealer moved and was supported by E. A. Calves, to advocate a lower uniform duty on imported cigar leaf—consistent with the Government and the best interests of its people.

Mr. Vetterlein has labored for fifteen years to have such a matter properly presented, and earnestly hopes for its enactment.

At last Friday's inscription at Amsterdam, Benjamin Labe, of B. Labe & Sons, secured 200 bales of choice tobacco. Mr. Labe is a shrewd buyer and had waited thus far until the scramble was over.

The leaf market dragged along in a languid way last week and no transactions of moment can be reported. If the dealers had not had men on the road they would have been probably at a loss to fill in the time. Practically all the business was done from the roads the actual buyer, filling in a fine at the prices. The manufacturers long ago learned that there was no way to avoid paying the piper and should have stocked up. On the contrary the majority of them have waited on the vain hope that there would be an easing of prices that would last. The only possible movement is the stiffening, and those who have waited will suffer.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The manufacturers were not cheering this week. While every one had some stir, the orders to work on, there was nothing like the full-end of orders which should take place this time of the year.

Whether this is the result of a belated Easter or belated spring is not clear, but there is some potent element that makes a very distinct difference.

The road men are sending in orders, but they are slow and the drummer's report a languid consideration. This, however, is purely temporary and cannot last longer than a week or two. Every probability is that next week's report will be much more favorable.

The new firm of Henry Heymann's Sons, 614 Betz Building, is about ready to receive customers. This firm starts with the advantage of having a father who had paved the way. Joseph C. Heymann is at the head of the firm, and his brother, Roy A., is an able assistant. The factory is at Marietta, Pa.

Bayuk Bros., of Third street, have the unique distinction of having started a brand which they were unable to keep up with. B. B. Blunts have made such a hit that the firm which gets them out is unable to keep anywhere near orders. The cigar sells for 5 cents and beats the money.

George E. Clayton, manager in this territory of the National Cigar Company has been active in this market lately. Mr. Clayton was formerly with Roig & Langsdorf and was later the Philadelphia representative for George L. Storm & Co. He is there with the goods, and the company that keeps him is lucky.

A. F. Goldsmith, of the brokerage firm of A. F. Orera y Ca., has purchased the interest of A. Popper and will carry on the business alone in the Heed Building, 1217 Filbert street.

S. Strauss, who travels through their eastern territory for Charles R. Goldsmith & Co., leaf dealers of New York, was in this market during the week, visiting his trade.

Here and There With the Retailers

For some reason the retail trade was not up to specifications this week and there were several complaints. Why this should be, is impossible to state. March and April have been switched around, but there is enough of spring in the air to bring in the business. There certainly was a lull during the week, however, and retailers raised a kick.

It is hoped that after Easter, consumers will be more ready with their money and slightly recovered from spring outfits, will be able to recoupe on their

READING BUSINESS GOOD.

All Manufacturers Have Orders and Some are Rushed.

Reading, Pa., April 17.

Reading manufacturers generally are experiencing a good business, and some, at least, are actually rushed.

The Fleck Cigar Co. has been uninterruptedly busy all of the present year, with a full force of cigarmakers constantly at work. Dan Fleck, of this firm, has done some good work on the road this spring, particularly in western Pennsylvania, while the coast region trade is being looked after by Chas. Fleck, the founder of the house.

J. G. Spatz, of J. G. Spatz & Co., has just returned from a short trip to nearby jobbers, and is now actively preparing for one of his usual extended trips through the West. Their business this year so far indicates a larger volume than ever before.

J. G. Hansen is pushing his All Points 5 cent cigar with much energy, and is backing up the goods with considerable good live advertising.

E. E. Kahler has been on a business visit to his jobbing trade in the middle west, including such points as Chicago, Cincinnati, etc. He is expected home this week.

The Industrial Cigar Co. is about as active as ever, and is concentrating all efforts on its old established brands, including the W. J. Florence and Black Oak, both of which are meeting with increasing favor.

The N. & N. Cigar Co. continues to bend every energy upon its Jerry Mur-

The Keystone Tobacco Co. has gone out of business, selling its brands and nearly all of its paraphernalia, etc., to George Green, proprietor of the Reading Tobacco Works, who is now the largest tobacco manufacturer in this section.

Charles M. Yetter, of Mohnsville, has commenced the erection of a new cigar factory building at Edison, a short distance by trolley from Reading.

S. H. Mentzer, cigar manufacturer, formerly located at Ephrata, has removed his factory to Mohnsville.

The Eclipse Sign Co., manufacturers of advertising signs, etc., has removed its factory to Cherry and Carpenter streets, formerly occupied by the Keystone Tobacco Co.

MORE CONSUMPTION IN TEXAS.

Internal Revenue Records Show Material Increase in Tobacco.

Austin, Tex., April 16.

According to the records of the internal revenue collector's department there has been a material increase in the consumption of tobacco in the Third district of Texas of the internal revenue department for one year.

A large percentage of this tobacco has been raised in Texas and much of the weed which was imported has been made into the manufactured article in Texas.

The records of the office from January 1 to Dec. 31, 1904, show there has been 169,000 pounds of tobacco used in the Third district, which embraces one half of the State, in the manufacture of cigars. From this tobacco there was manufactured 9,109,855 cigars, and the tax was $27,329.56.

During the same period 855 pounds of tobacco was made into 525,790 cigarettes.

There were also 68,076½ pounds of tobacco made into smoking tobacco.

This shows conclusively that the people of Texas are great tobacco consumers, as these figures only embrace one-half of the State. It is also a wonderful increase over the amount consumed in previous years.

NEW SCHEME TO GET PRICE ON BURLEY.

In Owen county, Ky., at a recent meeting of the tobacco growers a question was proposed whereby the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company offers to receive 50,000 hogsheads of Burley and advance seven cents per pound to the shippers. This tobacco is to be held by the warehouses till such time as the farmers want to sell, charging the legal rate of interest on this money so advanced. It is believed these 50,000 hogsheads stored away from the open markets, would effect better terms. A committee was appointed to confer with the other forty Burley counties.

QUIET MARKET IN LANCASTER.

Everything is Pretty Well Cleaned Up, Even Damaged Crop.

Lancaster, Pa., April 17.

Lancaster had a quiet leaf market during the week, with only a regular routine business by the jobbing trade. Little of interest transpired with the packers. Buying, of course, is done, and everything is believed to have been pretty thoroughly cleaned up even that damaged by hail and frost, a large quantity of which has been bought up at prices ranging from 3 to 4c per pound.

In former years it was a matter of utter impossibility for farmers to realize anything on tobacco so damaged, but this year, in some instances, it has netted them a considerable sum.

The weather conditions during the week were somewhat favorable to the rapid preparation of seed beds, and already the talk of the trade is the probability of increased acreage this year, and the proportion of increase. It is regarded as reasonably sure that there will be at least 25 per cent more planting done than was the case last year, and should the season be a very favorable one the crops may amount to fully 50 per cent more than last year's strictly good commercial tobacco was.

Packing has progressed most satisfactorily so far, and quite a large number are pretty well through with the work. Others are pushing the work forward as rapidly as possible.

A. D. Killheffer, of Millersville, near here, is still advertising for more cigarmakers. He is well filled with orders.

Walter S. Bare, of Lititz, returned last week from a six week business trip in the interest of his cigar business. His trip covered the entire middle West, and Mr. Bare appears much pleased with the prospects as well as the way in which The Doctor, his leading brand of nickel cigars, is increasing in popular demand and consequent larger sales.

The M. Kinports Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Manheim, also reports a very satisfactory business on their La Flor de Kinports, 10c and the American Duchess 5 cent cigars. Business seems particularly good with them from western points.

R. E. Jacoby, of Rothsville, has had but a very short period of trade since New Year, and is working full forces, with good shipments to points in New England and Pacific Coast States. Principally the La Prima 10 cents, Las Reinitas 10 and 5 cents sizes, and New Queen and La Sultana in 5 cent goods.

During an interview with C. M. Cline, of C. M. Cline & Bro., at Terre Hill, I was told that 1904 was the biggest year in point of output that the firm had ever experienced, and not only that, but that the first three months of the present year have again broken the record indicating, he thought, that the year would eclipse even the splendidid results of last year.

S. S. Watts, of Terre Hill, is again pushing the cigar business with his well known old time energy, and is having a large volume of business. He is just placing on the market a new brand of goods of the nickel variety which will be known as the Felix Grundy and for

E. Reininger, who operates the largest union factory in that section, is having a good trade. His Cavalier a 10 cent product, is meeting with rapidly increasing success.

M. C. Killian, of Reamstown, also reports a good business on his old established brands, the Little Rebel and Mexi Flora.

J. G. Root, Reamstown, is again more than ordinarily busy.

The charter of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, has been filed and shows the incorporators to have been: J. Gust Zook, A. B. Hess, I. H. Weaver, Wm. DeHaven and M. H. Ranck. The capital is $10,000.

A charter has also been granted at Harrisburg to the Gleim Cigar Co., with a capital of $15,000. The incorporators were: Johns, William and Edgar S. Gleim, all of Lancaster.

Henry Heymann's Sons were incorporated at Harrisburg, some days ago, with a capital of $20,000, by Eli L. Nissley, of Florin, Pa.; A. Z, Sherk, Marietta, Pa.; J. C. and R. A. Heymann, both of Philadelphia. They will operate a factory at Marietta, but the sales headquarters will be at Philadelphia in the Betz Building.

CINCINNATI TRADE GOOD.

Things Are Doing in This Western City.

Cincinnati, O., April 17.

In quantity the offerings at Saturday's cigas leaf sales were the lightest of the year, the aggregate being but forty-two cases all of which were sold at one house. The quality, however, was the best in several months in Zimmers and Connecticut oinders and wrappers, the former ranging from 6½ to 15 cents and the latter from 7½ to 15 cents.

The quality of the Wisconsins being received in the local market for some time has been poor, stogie stock and "throw outs" of a very inferior class comprising the extent of the offerings. Saturday's realization ranged from $2 to $2 55 per 100 pounds. Three cases of Little Dutch sold from $3.50 to $6.80 and one case of seed leaf at $2.90.

Joseph Cantor has fitted up his new establishment at 139 East Fourth street with the latest fixtures. He is carrying a full line of cigars and reports a flourishing trade.

Edward Beck, the Chamber of Commerce cigarist, has installed new fixtures and an additional line of the latest brand of cigars.

Edward Louden, the broker, was in Louisville last Tuesday, buying dark tobacco. He said the market there is active and realizations are pleasing to shippers.

James Greene, Treasurer of the Bodmann Co., has returned from a swing through the white burley belt. The situation is all that could be desired he said, from both the shipper's and warehouseman's point of view.

Gassman & Verkamp, at present on Fountain Square, have signed a lease for store room in the German National Bank building at Fourth and Vine streets, in course of construction. An annual rental of $4,500 for five years will be paid with privilege of renewal. A number of dealers were after the location.

The building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Main streets has been leased by E. Metz, for twenty-six years on East Fourth street. He will conduct a retail store on the first floor and a factory upstairs.

A Davis' Sons & Co., 209 East Third street, have secured an option on a tract of land in Cuba, about one hundred miles from Havana, and if negotiations now pending with the owners in Spain go through, they will in a few months enter into an extensive plan for raising tobacco and the manufacturing of cigars in Cuba. Morris and Max Davis returned last Friday from a five weeks' trip through the interior of the Island. "Our scheme will be to supply the better class of trade all over the country," said Max Davis.

The burley leaf market was strong last week on heavy purchases by the American Tobacco Co., and the old story to the effect that prices were being put up by the combine to induce raisers to increase their acreage was revivified. No credence was placed in the story, as published by a local newspaper. Independent buyers are of the opinion that as this is between redrying seasons, the American Co. was laying in heavy supplies to tide them over.

BUHRMAN.

SELLING OUT ACCOUNT NEW LAW.

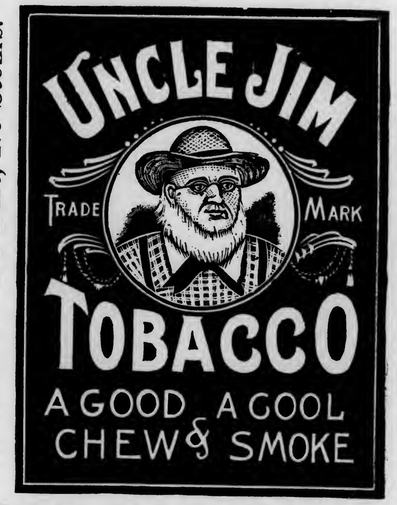
Indianapolis, Ind., April 17.



Indiana tobacco dealers that have incidentally handled cigarettes are now making preparations to dispose of the remainder of the stock they have on hand before the new anti-cigarette law becomes effective with the publication of the acts, some time this week. One Indianapolis dealer who has several stores in different parts of the city, has already made a cut price on some of his brands of cigarettes. He said those brands that were manufactured by the trust would not be reduced in price as the trust had agreed to take back any surplus stock that the dealers had on hand.

This same announcement was also made by one of the independent dealers, but all of the other independent dealers have refused to take back the stock that has been bought, and these brands are to be sold at reduced prices.

WEATHER STILL GOOD IN BOSTON.

Trade is Healthy and All Good Brands Are Moving Well.

Boston, Mass., April 16.

Business is about the same, the weather continues to improve, the jobbers report business very good for this time of the year, plenty of salesmen have been flocking here and apparently leave town again well satisfied with the amount of business secured.

The Commonwealth Cigar Co. which made an assignment last week for the benefit of its creditor, has its store on Tremont Row open and is doing business under the receivership. The liabilities are said to be about $16,000. Most of their creditors are clear Havana cigar manufacturers. The Commonwealth Cigar Co. is the distributor here for the Preacher cigar from the factory of Louis Ash & Co., New York.

The sub-jobbers here have drawn up a petition which when signed by them will be forwarded to the American Tobacco Co. The petition in effect is a plea from the sub-jobbers for protection. It is urged that the cutting in prices should cease, and if this is not granted, the jobbers naturally will use their best efforts to push union and independent goods.

One of our largest American Tobacco Co. jobbers here to increase their business, have been selling to the retail trade and allowing them the 5 and 2 per cent which is just what these goods would cost the sub jobbers. With this going on, the sub-jobbers would soon be wiped out of business.

Chester A. Haines who for the past four years served as clerk in H. E. Lombard's cigar store on Court street, died suddenly on Wednesday evening after a days' illness with spotted fever. Chester will be very much missed by his host of friends.

Louis Jeselsohn who has been in the wholesale cigar and tobacco business for years at 213 Hanover street, will on or about June 1 move into larger quarters at 128 North street.

A representative of the Phœnix American Pipe Co., Washington, Mo., was here yesterday with an assortment of fancy corn cobs, etc.

H. King of the Monopole branch of the American Tobacco Co. is here sell-

J. W. Higgins tobacconist at 219 Hanover street is attending store once more, having recovered from a serious illness.

M. Glickman, of Glickman & Sons, New York, was in town Friday showing samples of both imported and domestic cigarette tubes.

A handsome window display of Puritan little cigars, is in evidence this week at Leo Bieringers' store on Dock Square. Herman Levinne the general manager certainly does like to sell Leroy's and Puritans to his customers when they inquire for a package of good little cigars, knowing one package generally makes a steady customer on same.

Carl Berger with the Manhattan Briar Pipe Co., New York, is here once more at the American House. His firm certainly must have a large trade here judging from the frequent visits of Mr. Berger to the Hub.

M. Falk of the Falk Tobacco Co. passed a few days calling on some of his numerous friends here.

Henry Abbey operas retailing at 10 for 5 cents from the factory of I. Lewis & Co., Newark, N. J., have made their appearance in many of the jobbing houses.

Estabrook & Eaton have advertised this week in some of our local papers, that they have just received an importation of 93,500 cigars from Havana.

The new Sovereign cigarette with a Turkish mouth piece similar to the Tolstoi and retailing at 10 for 5 cents is being placed here.

Under date of April 1 the Khedivial Co., New York, has issued a circular stating the prices of Orient Cork Tip at $3.70 per M. Orient No. 1 Plain Tip $3.50 per M less 2 per cent freight prepaid. In 25,000 lots there is a rebate of 30 cents per M.

Mort. Frank, a leaf tobacco salesman from New York, is spending the week calling on cigar manufacturers here with a full assortment of leaf samples and is meeting with fair success.

The 50,000 union cigarmakers in the United States and Canada have recently voted on and adopted a proposition to number all Union Labels consecutively. The Union orders one million labels at a time, and when numbered the label secretaries will keep track of every label given out. In this manner the cigarmakers believe they can prevent the use of genuine labels upon non-union made cigars.

H. Robbins & Co. wholesale tobacconists are doing a very large business in the buying and selling of Floradora tags, bands and coupons. They are paying 40 cents per 100 each, and are receiving daily thousands of these coupous from all parts of the country. Mr. Robbins is doing plenty of advertising such as this:

OVERHEARD ON THE L.

MIKE—I sold 250 tobacco tags yesterday to H. Robbins & Co., for $1.00 and I had a great time.

PAT—And I sold them 250 tags last Christmas and I got a Genuine French Briar Pipe with Amber mouthpiece and a plug of tobacco, and I'm still enjoying it.

This concern shipped last week 100,000 coupons to a Cincinnati party who sent the money in advance.

Mr. Kahner, of L. Kahner & Co., New York, manufacturers of the Wedding Bouquet cigar is in town.

Feldman & Wile, leaf dealers here, have dissolved partnership.

Mr. Lippman, of Lippman Bros., New York, pipe manufacturers has been calling on the jobbing trade.

BEN ALI.

YORK COUNTY TRADE IS INCREASING

Leaf Salesmen Report a Noticeable Improvement Everywhere.

York, Pa., April 17.

The York county trade is once more showing signs of real and increasing activity. Visiting leaf tobacco salesmen whom I saw during the week all confirmed this view although not all of them met with anything like a burdensome amount of business.

Of course there were some exceptions in which some large orders were secured, but they were truly the exceptional ones. Yet the cigar manufacturers are now finding orders coming in much more regularly and for larger quantities of goods, and altogether the conditions are changing.

The announcement of the dissolution of the leaf firm of Adair & Reiff, of this city, which was first made public last week, in the columns of the Tobacco World, came as a complete surprise even to the local trade. The firm has been doing a prosperous business for several years, and a business that was constantly growing to larger proportions. It was rumored here that the dissolution came as a result of a disagreement between the two members of the old firm but these statements were emphatically denied by both gentlemen, and it was stated by Mr. Reiff that it was only because of a perceptible failing in his health that he was forced to retire from the strenuous activity to which he had been subjecting himself since establishing the business.

W. E. Gheen, of Jersey Shore, Pa., has recently been making frequent visits to the headquarters of the York Leaf Tobacco Company in which he is interested. This house is apparently making good progress under the management of A. M. Shepp.

R. M. Granat, of Gillen & Granat, made a flying trip to Philadelphia and New York during last week.

Warren Beck & Bro., have rejuvenated their business very materially since the recent trips of the senior members of the firm to different points where their goods are being distributed.

W. A. Lahr, of Red Lion, has rented from Chas. A. Rust the cigar factory on West High street, formerly occupied by Mr. Rust, and will have facilities for seating 50 hands.

Business is now improving steadily with J. F. Sechrist, at Holtz, and he finds the demand running much stronger on his higher grades of goods than ever before.

BURLINGTON JOBBER CHANGES ADDRESS.

J. H. Doyle, the well known cigar and tobacco jobber, formerly at Burlington, N. J., removed his business on April 12 to Trenton, N. J., and is now comfortably located at 156 South Broad street in New Jersey's capital city. Mr. Doyle gains increased facilities by the removal.

NOTES HERE AND THERE.

Phillips Bros. Co., has opened a handsome cigar store in the Sibley building in Rochester, N. Y., and is attracting trade by the coupon plan. The county is also a manufacturing concern with a good line of brands.

C. B. Cheatham has let the contract for rebuilding his warehouse at Louisburg, N. C., which was destroyed by fire recently. The building will be of brick with metal roof, 60 x 150 feet and equipped with steam heat and automatic tobacco dryer.

A report from Hopkinsville, Ky., states that the Imperial Tobacco Co. has purchased a site in that city on which to erect a $100,000 factory.

Henry W. Overbreak, a tobacco dealer of St. Louis, Mo., has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $7,335.98 and no assets.

HOW THE NEW CROPS ARE DOING.

Reports From the Tobacco States From the Weather-crop Bulletin.

Washington, D. C., April 14.

The latest weather-crop bulletin from the weather bureau issued by the Department of Agriculture in making a complete report on the various crops in all the States, includes the following regarding tobacco:

Maryland—Tobacco plants coming up in southern counties.

Virginia—Tobacco beds seeded.

North Carolina—Tobacco plants small.

South Carolina—Tobacco injured slightly by hail.

Kentucky—Tobacco beds promising plenty of good plants.

Ohio—Tobacco plants starting well.

MUST MAKE CIGARS ABOVE STREET LEVEL.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 14.

Judge Neelen had Gustav Willmes, a Twentieth avenue cigarmaker, brought before him the other day, charged with maintaining ts a cigar factory below the ground floor of the building in which he is located, which a violation of the statutes. The complainant was Deputy State Factory Inspector August Lehnhoff.

The latter testified that the defendant had been given notice that he was breaking the law but had paid no attention to the warning. Willmes said that he hadn't money enough to move his factory to a better place but had stopped working in the basement. Sentence was suspended.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The farmers in this locality have as a general thing got their tobacco beds made. Some are reporting the appearance of the tiny plants in sight, but I think that certain of these may yet turn out weeds. It might about as well be so, for the nights are most too cold to raise good thrifty tobacco plants. Farmers have taken off their coats to try to produce another crop. They know that it will be needed as soon as it can be put in shape to be used. Necessity is the mother of inventions, and scarcity of good tobacco is father of a howl sent out by the manufacturers of cigars, for without plenty of tobacco they cannot hold the trade. At present they are asking of you in no uncertain language to raise another crop, and have it ready so that they can begin to work it in November if possible. That is one of the incentives that is pushing you to the making of tobacco beds, when the weather is several degrees below the point of freezing and the old frost still in the ground you have started, and now don't flag or turn back, but keep on with your work.

Our correspondents write:

Suffield, Ct.: "Myer & Mendlesohn of New York and J. Koffenburg & Sons of Boston have finished packing tobacco and have closed their Suffield warehouses. E. A. & W. F. Fuller will finish and probably close Monday. One of Suffield's tobacco growers has plants up and growing finely. But few have as yet put their seed into beds, as it is rather cold and the ground has not warmed up enough."

Wethersfield, Ct.. "Not much doing in the tobacco line; some have sprouted their seed, but I have heard of no beds being sown as yet. There will be about the same acreage as usual. The 1904 crop has been pretty much all sold."

Hatfield, Mass.: "Sowing tobacco beds and putting out onion sets now claim the attention of our farmers. Charles L. Warner has tobacco plants up from his sowing of March 28. The assorting shops are closed except the American Tobacco Company, at Mr. Roswell's buildings. —American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The work of gathering in the remnant of last season's tobacco crop is still going forward in many of the country districts, though the volume of trading is continually dropping off owing to the scarcity of unsold lots. The movement seems destined to continue so long as anything to trade in can be found in growers' hands, though the end of the buying season cannot be so far distant either. While many of recent transactions are of low grades on an export basis, the following show the trend of prices:

A. O. Rorge, 35cs at 8 and 3c asst
Aug. Walton, 18cs at 8 and 3c asst
B. Sandy, 4a at 8c asst
Hans Sperle, 20cs '03 at 6¼c
H. S. Aaker, 15cs '03 at 7c
Ole Vold, 5a at 4c bl
H. E. Nichols, 6a at 4½c bl.

Old leaf is receiving the usual attention and anything of a binder nature is in good demand. McIntosh Bros. report the sale of 164cs of '03, and some export has also found an outlet during the week.

About all the tobacco bought under contract has been delivered. A few of the packing houses are about through with the season's handling, the United Cigar Manufacturers having closed their warehouse in this market this week. Others have work in sight for some time yet. Seed beds are being sown quite generally and the white canvas coverings dot the fields of the growing sections.

Shipments were 572 cases—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 666 hhds; offerings on the breaks, 26 hhds; total sales, 45 hhds, nearly all old crop at steady prices.

The market at present is devoid of interest, the sales of old crop small, and the new crop not yet upon the market, except small offerings of wrappers, for which there are good demands from several quarters. The proportion of lugs in the new crop is found to be small, and they seem to have an upward tendency.

We have had some cool weather, but vegetation is fairly well advanced.

For old tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to $3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to 4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to 4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to 4.75
Low Leaf	4.75	to 5.50
Common Leaf	5.75	to 6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00	to 8.00

BURNT WAREHOUSE SITES.

Private Individuals of Baltimore Want to Buy Them.

Baltimore, Md., April 20.

It has been unofficially stated that a number of private individuals have been negotiating with the Board of Public Works for the purchase of the tobacco warehouse sites in the burnt district, which are needed by the city for dock extension purposes. City Solicitor Bruce has sent a letter to Col. Sherlock Swann, chairman of the Burnt District Commission, in which he stated that there were two special enactments of the Legislature whereby the Board could dispose of the property to the city or to a private individual. These, he said, were both operative at the present time and did not conflict.

Concerning the rumor, Mr. Bruce said that in the event of the purchase of the sites by private individuals the city would be in a better position to acquire the property, as in that case it would be condemned, while the city has no power to condemn State property for municipal purposes.

Governor Warfield says that he has learned nothing of such a prospective purchase. "Individual members of the Board may have been approached upon the subject," he said, "but the Board as a body has given it no consideration. I personally know nothing about any offer having been made for the sites."

CHICAGO CIGAR THIEVES CAUGHT

Chicago, Ill., April 20.

The police of this city have arrested four men who have confessed to robbing cigar stores, and have recovered stolen property valued at $2,000. They believe that their success has broken up a formidable gang of thieves that has been operating in Chicago for some time.

The men arrested gave their names as John Kraft, Daniel McNamara, Adolph Emerson and John Smith. The first named was arrested at the Mayflower Hotel, and gave his pals away. The men operated boldly by forcing a door or breaking a window, and they succeeded in getting together a large amount of stuff which they would sell or pawn. They have had some narrow escapes, having been chased by policemen who detected them in the act of entering stores, but have always managed to get away up to this time.

MATCH TRUST SUED BY THE STATE OF ALABAMA.

The Attorney General of the State of Alabama has brought suit against the Diamond Match Co. to recover $20,000 in penalties on a charge that the company has failed to comply with the corporation laws of the State before doing business there. It is believed that this is one of a number of suits which the Attorney General is preparing to bring against various corporations.

INDIANA NOW WRITHING IN ANTI-CIGARETTE THROES.

Observance by Dealers of Prohibitory Law is Fairly General, But the Cigarette Fiends are Still Fiending. One Consumer, Arrested, Disgustedly Leaves the State. Test Cases Will be Brought.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 21.

This week has shown that opinion is much divided in this State, as to the amount of importance that must be attached to the law which went into effect last Sunday forbidding the manufacture, sale or handling of cigarettes.

Those who wanted cigarettes have apparently smoked them all the week, but there were a few instances where men was actually arrested for smoking.

One was at New Albany, where an electrician named James McNerney was taken into custody because he was caught smoking. He was released in a little while because there did not seem to be anybody to try him, but was so utterly disgusted, that it is said he immediately resigned his job in order to leave such an impossible State.

Many Indianapolis dealers attempted to close out their stocks of cigarettes last week before the edict became operative, and there were a lot of bargains offered. Generally speaking, though, in this city the sale has been stopped, and those consumers who are still smoking them, either bought them last week, or got them secretly.

Judge Whalen, of the local police court, in an opinion on this point, decided that the law did not affect consumers, and that the clause which forbids the possession of cigarettes means dealers only. The large majority of consumers ridicule the idea that they can be forced by law to use tobacco only in certain forms, and evidently expect to continue smoking as long as they can get the materials.

In some cities and towns hardly any effort has been made by retailers to observe the law, while there are two towns which are practically not affected by it. These are Valparaiso and Evansville, in both of which heavy license fees were some time ago imposed by councils, and which had the effect of making the cigarette a rarity in a dealer's stock.

Lafayette dealers expect to raise a fund to make test cases, and it is believed they will be helped by the combine. The idea is to carry the matter to the Supreme Court, if it should become necessary.

The retailers in Logansport, or at least some of them, have agreed to take no notice of the new law until specific warning were served by the police. The police say they will enforce the law, even to the extent of arresting smokers on the street.

Cigarette smoking has not stopped any in South Bend, and there are some places where a package of cigarettes can be bought openly, in spite of the fact that the police have sent out a warning.

Laporte dealers made an attempt to close out their cigarettes by offering them in bargain lots, as did those in Hammond, and while a great many extra sales were made, there was some stock left, which in some cases was thrown out and in others was returned to the American Tobacco Co., on an arrangement which the company had granted. The Richmond dealers also tried the former method of squaring themselves against loss. One dealer in Fort Wayne, rather spectacularly, made a bonfire of his stock.

While the majority of dealers resent the attempt to take away their liberty, there are many who would welcome the abolishment of the cigarette as part of their stock in trade, if it were followed by a proportionate increase in the consumption of cigars and pipe tobacco. Some think that the little cigars are destined to displace the cigarette, as soon as cigarette users become accustomed to them The margin on cigarettes is so small, that dealers would rather sell almost anything else.

Nobody seems to take the law very seriously, except perhaps Representative Annanias Baker, however, and nobody believes that it will last any length of time.

KICK OVER NAVY TOBACCO.

Washington, D. C., April 21.

Considerable anxiety is being manifested over the government contract for 150,000 pounds of tobacco to be furnished to the navy. Quite a number of independent manufacturers are competing this year, each one submitting samples, with prices, which are to be thoroughly tested and considered before any award is made.

Some of these manufacturers assert that the American Tobacco Company has succeeded in submitting eight samples through its various companies, and thus has an unfair chance of carrying off the contract.

The usual way by which a decision is arrived at is for the officers, jackies, and marines to chew and smoke the samples which are submitted, and by the process of elimination, come down to the most desirable. The ones which receive the popular vote, should they fulfill the chemical requirements laid down by the Department, and provided the price is not too high, will be selected for general use throughout the navy.

That being the case, it will be seen that the larger the number of samples of fair quality, the better the chances of those who submit them.

There is a provision which provides that if any bidder exceeds the four samples which he is required to submit, his bid may be rejected on that score. The independent manufacturers claim that the American Tobacco Co samples should be thrown out. It is understood that the Department is considering the matter.

FARMERS SELL SOON.

Manager Bohmer says Big Crop Will Keep Prices Down.

Lexington, Ky., April 22.

C. W. Bohmer, manager of the Burley Loose Tobacco Warehouse Company, of this city, has made the following statement as to the burley situation in his State:

"In December a year ago when I sent out thousands of circulars begging the farmers to hold their tobacco until the manufacturers could realize how short the 1903 crop was, I did so with a view of enabling the farmer to reap the benefit of the advance in prices which was sure to come. This advance did come the following May, but unfortunately only a few farmers had any tobacco left on hand, and only the speculators and those who had studied the situation reaped the benefit therefrom.

"When the 1904 crop began appearing upon the market manufacturers, who had been caught short of stock the previous year, began buying freely and notwithstanding the enormous rush of tobacco to market after the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association had announced their inability to finance their scheme, prices continued fairly firm, and the bulk of the farmers sold at approximately satisfactory values.

"All manufacturers using Burley tobacco have supplied themselves pretty liberally and are prepared to hold off the market if necessary for the next twelve months. Farmers encouraged by the prices realized this season are making preparations to put in an enormous big crop and there is but little probability that Burley tobacco will again show an advance in prices until another shortage in the crop occurs.

"The facts exist that preparations are being made to set out a big crop, and the farmers who are hanging up their tobacco with the expectations of getting an advance later on are speculating purely and simply on the chance that the big crop now about to be set out will not materialize. My advice to all farmers holding tobacco is to sell, and that as soon as possible."

WELL KNOWN WISCONSIN CIGAR MANUFACTURER DIES.

Herman W. Peek, for a number of years a prominent and widely known cigar manufacturer of Oshkosh, Wis., died in that city a few days ago after a lengthy illness. His disorder was mental and he died in a hospital where he was undergoing special treatment.

Mr. Peek was born in Germany 52 years ago and during his lifetime accumulated a large list of warm friends. He spent practically all his life in Oshkosh, and of late years manufactured the Athearn cigar, a well known brand. A widow, a daughter, and three sons survive him.

—Franz Retzlaff, a cigar manufacturer, for thirty five years a resident of Milwaukee, is dead, at the age of 71 years.

Judge Whalen, of the local police court, in an opinion on this point, decided that the law did not affect consumers, and that the clause which forbids the possession of cigarettes means dealers only. The large majority of consumers ridicule the idea that they can be forced by law to use tobacco only in certain forms, and evidently expect to continue smoking as long as they can get the materials.

In some cities and towns hardly any effort has been made by retailers to observe the law, while there are two towns which are practically not affected by it. These are Valparaiso and Evansville, in both of which heavy license fees were some time ago imposed by councils, and which had the effect of making the cigarette a rarity in a dealer's stock.

Lafayette dealers expect to raise a fund to make test cases, and it is believed they will be helped by the combine. The idea is to carry the matter to the Supreme Court, if it should become necessary.

The retailers in Logansport, or at least some of them, have agreed to take no notice of the new law until specific warning were served by the police. The police say they will enforce the law, even to the extent of arresting smokers on the street.

Cigarette smoking has not stopped any in South Bend, and there are some places where a package of cigarettes can be bought openly, in spite of the fact that the police have sent out a warning.

Laporte dealers made an attempt to close out their cigarettes by offering them in bargain lots, as did those in Hammond, and while a great many extra sales were made, there was some stock left, which in some cases was thrown out and in others was returned to the American Tobacco Co., on an arrangement which the company had granted. The Richmond dealers also tried the former method of squaring themselves against loss. One dealer in Fort Wayne, rather spectacularly, made a bonfire of his stock.

While the majority of dealers resent the attempt to take away their liberty, there are many who would welcome the abolishment of the cigarette as part of their stock in trade, if it were followed by a proportionate increase in the consumption of cigars and pipe tobacco. Some think that the little cigars are destined to displace the cigarette, as soon as cigarette users become accustomed to them. The margin on cigarettes is so small, that dealers would rather sell almost anything else.

Nobody seems to take the law very seriously, except perhaps Representative Annanias Baker, however, and nobody believes that it will last any length of time.

KICK OVER NAVY TOBACCO.

Washington, D. C., April 21.

Considerable anxiety is being manifested over the government contract for 150,000 pounds of tobacco to be furnished to the navy. Quite a number of independent manufacturers are competing this year, each one submitting samples, with prices, which are to be thoroughly tested and considered before any award is made.

Some of these manufacturers assert that the American Tobacco Company has succeeded in submitting eight samples through its various companies, and thus has an unfair chance of carrying off the contract.

The usual way by which a decision is arrived at is for the officers, jackies, and marines to chew and smoke the samples which are submitted, and by the process of elimination, come down to the most desirable. The ones which receive the popular vote, should they fulfill the chemical requirements laid down by the Department, and provided the price is not too high, will be selected for general use throughout the navy.

That being the case, it will be seen that the larger the number of samples of fair quality, the better the chances of those who submit them.

There is a provision which provides that if any bidder exceeds the four samples which he is required to submit, his bid may be rejected on that score. The independent manufacturers claim that the American Tobacco Co samples should be thrown out. It is understood that the Department is considering the matter.

FARMERS SELL SOON.

Lexington, Ky., April 22.

C. W. Bohmer, manager of the Burley Loose Tobacco Warehouse Company, of this city, has made the following statement as to the burley situation in his State:

"In December a year ago when I sent out thousands of circulars begging the farmers to hold their tobacco until the manufacturers could realize how short the 1903 crop was, I did so with a view of enabling the farmer to reap the benefit of the advance in prices which was sure to come. This advance did come the following May, but unfortunately only a few farmers had any tobacco left on hand, and only the speculators and those who had studied the situation reaped the benefit therefrom.

"When the 1904 crop began appearing upon the market manufacturers, who had been caught short of stock the previous year, began buying freely and notwithstanding the enormous rush of tobacco to market after the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association had announced their inability to finance their scheme, prices continued fairly firm, and the bulk of the farmers sold at approximately satisfactory values.

"All manufacturers using Burley tobacco have supplied themselves pretty liberally and are prepared to hold off the market if necessary for the next twelve months. Farmers encouraged by the prices realized this season are making preparations to put in an enormous big crop and there is but little probability that Burley tobacco will again show an advance in prices until another shortage in the crop occurs.

"The facts exist that preparations are being made to set out a big crop, and the farmers who are hanging up their tobacco with the expectations of getting an advance later on are speculating purely and simply on the chance that the big crop now about to be set out will not materialize. My advice to all farmers holding tobacco is to sell, and that as soon as possible."

WELL KNOWN WISCONSIN CIGAR MANUFACTURER DIES.

Herman W. Peek, for a number of years a prominent and widely known cigar manufacturer of Oshkosh, Wis., died in that city a few days ago after a lengthy illness. His disorder was mental and he died in a hospital where he was undergoing special treatment,

Mr. Peek was born in Germany 52 years ago and during his lifetime accumulated a large list of warm friends. He spent practically all his life in Oshkosh, and of late years manufactured the Athearn cigar, a well known brand. A widow, a daughter, and three sons survive him.

—Franz Retzlaff, a cigar manufacturer, for thirty five years a resident of Milwaukee, is dead, at the age of 71 years.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

THE GROWTH OF THE MAIL ORDER BUSINESS.

Day by day the mail order business is increasing, and day by day the retailers' business is decreasing in exactly the same proportion. It is now impossible to pick up a magazine without seeing a new advertisement offering to send you various kinds of smoking for temptingly small sums.

"Save the Middleman's Profit" they cry, and the readers come on quick. A goodly proportion of the advertising is from firms of this order, and a large proportion of that proportion is done by the United Cigar Stores Company, which is spending enormous sums to keep its goods before the public.

The mail order people adopt different ways of attracting their fish, some of them baldly offering to sell cheaper than anyone else, others appealing to the smoker's aristocratic notions. Some of the Turkish, Russian and Egyptian cigarette people, for instance, are getting out the daintiest of literature, which offer Nicotian joys that would tempt a hermit.

Such firms as these take especial pains with the looks of their goods, and go strong on the made-to-order idea. Consequently they win all sorts of business from the man who has to make a good appearance on a small income, and who is able by patronizing these firms to open up a box of a hundred swell looking cigarettes, when he asks his friends around, while he remarks in an off-hand way, "I have them made for me by So-and-So, you know; it's a special blend." And he secretly feels like a regular clubman.

Of course you can buy many brands of cigarettes and cigars through the mail from an advertisement, that will be quite as fine as you could possibly get in any retail store for the same price. It may be possible in some cases to do better. But it must be remembered that in order for a mail order firm to do a sufficent amount of business for it to save money by large buying, etc., it must advertise throughout a wide territory.

They must place their advertisements in popular mediums, and the more popular medium, the higher the price. Advertising is one of the most expensive charges in a business man's accounts today, and it will be remembered that the mail order firm reaps its rewards in sums not exceeding an average of $5. so that in order to secure a large enough number of returns, the advertising has to be as nearly universal as the firm can afford.

The manufacturer gets his returns in big orders and by no means has to cover so complete a field. So when the mail order man talks about saving the middle man's profit, and being able to ship direct from the factory, almost at cost, he is telling the truth all right but doesn't say that the cost includes the cost of advertising. And maybe that doesn't make a little difference.

The mail order firm has an insuperable advantage, however, in the fact that the average man likes to buy by mail. It is just one of those little touches of human nature that make the consuming world kin. A man takes a certain delight in undoing the wrappings from something he has sent for from an advertisement.

Every boy will pour over cheap catalogues that offer a thousand and one things, from a marvelous trick to a mustache, for a dime "and six cents for postage," and he will send along his sixteen cents and then dream about it till the wonderful package shows up. A man, when he gets his box of cigarettes or cigars takes as much pleasure in opening it up, but of course does not allow himself to get so excited.

I have known lots of men who had money enough to buy whatever they needed without trying to save, who would pour over catalogues, and the advertising pages of magazines and then send off for the most absurd things such as they could not possibly have any use for, simply to experience that feeling of pleasurable expectation when they took the packages from the mail carrier.

And it is that feeling that helps the mail order business along and makes it the success that it is rapidly becoming. The fact that new ads are constantly appearing, and new concerns starting, proves that there is money in it, and a good deal of money. New schemes—and in point of tobacco this is practically a new scheme—aren't so extensively imitated unless they have proved prosperous. Naturally, the increase cannot

EXECUTIVE SYSTEM OF THE UNITED CIGAR STORES COMPANY.

IN the article printed on this page a couple of weeks ago regarding the intricate system that has made the United Cigar's Company's chain of stores possible, as described in The Business Man's Magazine in an article by Mr. Phillips, the reader was shown how the system was gradually evolved, so that each store does business in practically the same manner as an independent dealer, but at the same time is so completely accountable to the New York office, that he has no chance to vary a cent in his accounts.

As said in the last article, this matter is interesting to the independent dealer, if only to show him what he is up against in regard to competition. The following matter selected from Mr. Phillips' article, gives an idea of just how closely the company keeps tabs on its men. In regard to keeping the stock up to the necessary quantity, Mr. Phillips says:

In the intervals between inventories of stock, it is inevitable that portions of the stock become so depleted that they must be renewed, sometimes immediately, but, ordinarily about twice a week. It is the chief business of the chief clerk to order from the local supply depot, by an emergency requisition and by a semi weekly order, whatever he may require for the renewal of his stock; and it is all debited to him at the retail selling price, as on the occasion of the initial inventory. He is empowered, also, to spend cash for minor items of expense incidental to the conduct of business, such as stationery and other small necessaries.

The chief clerk, being actually store manager and, at the same time, often head salesman, has a variety of responsibilities engrossing him during the day. He must not only supervise the condition of the stock, but he must direct the sales work of the other clerks, handle special customers himself, and particularly watch the work of the cashier or the operation of the cash register.

It is in the register, as an automatic recorder, that some of the greatest results in the saving of labor, the fixation of responsibility individually throughout the store, and the minimizing of purely clerical work, are attained. The special cash registers are equipped with attachments that register specifically sales of pipes and of boxes of cigars, as well as of the ordinary run of trade. Every cash register is provided with nine separate letters, to one of which every individual clerk is assigned, should the force of the store embrace that number of sales persons. The sales of every clerk, and the precise nature of every sale made by the clerk, are thus separately and individually registered, affording a record of the actual value of the clerk's services day by day.

At the closing hour, every day, the chief clerk prepares his daily reports which, as soon as completed, are forwarded to the New York office. He cuts off the tape from the cash register and marks, on the bottom of the tape, the date and the store number. The complete tape, necessarily without any change in pencil or in ink, affords the detailed record of the day's sales, specifying salesmen, articles sold, and prices at which sold.

Upon a form known as "The Daily Box Trade Report," he writes in ink, at the top, the letter to which every clerk is assigned; and as many daily box trade reports as there are clerks are made out in duplicate, the original copy going to the New York office while the duplicate remains as a stub, in the store's book of daily box trade reports and so becomes part of the store's own accounts. The quantity and the brands of all boxes of cigars sold are set forth, together with the box price and the retail price. The rebate appears in the discount column of the report. The chief clerk thus secures his rebate, the individual sales of box goods can be instantly checked off on the tape against the report, and the settling of the chief clerk's account with the company is immensely expedited.

A daily receipt report, with the form printed in red ink, devotes an entire, separate sheet simply to the total of the day's sales, with a blank space for any remarks the chief clerk may think advisable to make—remarks sometimes embodying useful suggestions and, again, amounting to nothing more than a comment upon the weather, which may serve as obvious explanation of a small volume of sales for that day. The individual memorandum is far from being superer-orgatory. It facilitates the quick accounting, in the home office, of the totals throughout the country; indeed, it gives the home office a daily record of total volume of business which can be footed up within five minutes.

A third report, known as the daily full report, is the chief clerk's record of the precise condition of his stock. He gives the quantity of every brand and article he ordered on that day from the local supply depot, with sizes and other differentiating details; and he specifies the retail prices and the retail values. That list, of goods received, constitutes the daily debit he places against himself; and it is, of course, similarly itemized by the management of the local supply depot. Under the head of "Credits," upon the same report, he allows himself the total of the rebates on the day's box trade, as apparent from the daily box trade report, and the total retail valuations of any goods he may have returned to the supply depot. He carries over from the previous day the total of that report, adds it to the net goods received during the day just closing, and gives the addition, which is the total debit against him up to the hour of making the daily full report. That particular report is made out in triplicate, one copy being retained by the chief clerk, while the original and a duplicate accompany the cash register tape, the daily box trade report and the daily receipt report, to the New York office. There the original goes to the auditor of the general expense account, while the duplicate goes to the bookkeeping department. Thus the company can tell almost instantly, the total amount of stock in all its various stores, down to the particular of one cent's worth of values.

Twice every week, the chief clerk makes out a semi weekly order, in duplicate. The original is retained by the supply depot on which it is drawn; the duplicate remains, for reference, with the chief clerk who gives the order.

Once every week—ordinarily on Saturday—a weekly expense report is made out in triplicate, the destinations of the three copies being the same as those of the triplicate daily full report and their utilizations being similar. The form itemizes in totals the cash on hand from the previous weekly expense report, the cash or check receipts which are furnished specifically for expense uses, and the disbursements during the week. After the balance has been struck, an itemized statement of the disbursements is presented by dates, recipients of payments, items of expense, and amount for every item, should the amount be as little as one cent.

Long as the description of the reports may appear to be, and numerous as arethe items they apparently cover, the universa testitimony of chief clerks is tha the actual work of preparing the reports daily occupies no more time than would be required for the careful reading of the explanatory portion of this article. After a few days of practice, the chief clerk does far less accounting than does the proprietor of the successful independent cigar store having an extensive and profitable trade; and he has a more complete, yet extremely simple record, not only of purchases and sales, but of the actual selling capacity of every individual employe. At the same time, the management of the whole huge system of stores is equipped with an accurate daily inventory of stock and a balance of accounts so perfect, so thorough, so minute, that within half an hour any new clerk assigned to the task can tell the name of the salesman who, six months previously and 1,500 miles away, sold a customer a package of Sweet Caporal cigarettes.

Meanwhile the periodical inventories by the special agents go everlastingly on, an infallible check upon the most astute and most conscienceless chief clerk who might elaborately plan peculation, for any appreciable falling off in daily cash receipts would be instantly remarked in New York while the total of small thieveries must cease within one month at longest.

CIGAR IS BEST BAROMETER.

COUNTRY people have a great contempt for those who cannot tell what the weather is going to be till they have looked at their expensive barometers, or seen the weather indications in the morning papers. They have so many simple ways of finding out what they wish to know about the weather, and are so accustomed to doing this, that they make the observations almost mechanically. Ask one of them how to do this, and he will give you a long list of simple weather guages.

For instance, if you are a smoker, look at your cigar tip. If it burns with a clear, red glow, the day will be fine, but if it has a charred end that refuses to burn brightly, take your umbrella. If a slipper creaks, it is sure to be fine; if it is silent it will be damp. In damp weather newspapers are easily torn, gloves contract and are difficult to put on, matches will not light easily, silk hats become dull, awning cords are tight, boot laces snap, and a score of inanimate things tell to the initiated that there is rain to come.

keep up indefinitely and make a living for everyone.

The mail order business hasn't made any sort of a hit with the retailers, and there is no reason why it should. Their business is being drained in a dozen or more different ways already, and the sale of cigars and cigarettes by mail is a direct and most alarming inroad on the retail end of the business.

The United Cigar Stores Company started its mail order agency in order to get hold of all consumers who are not in a position to take advantage of the company's stores. The company's policy has been to establish its branches only in the large cities, and that leaves a big gap, that the company evidently thinks it can fill.

As a matter of fact, people who live in the country and smaller towns are much more susceptible to such a proposition as this than the man who lives in the city, and who is tempted every day by the show windows and city advertising.

The thing grows apace, and it is hard to tell where it will end.

INDIANA LAW HELPS CINCINNATI.

Dealers Think Cigarette Prohibition Will Bring Much Business.

Cincinnati, O., April 22.

It is the opinion of a number of cigar and tobacco retailers of this city that the anti-cigarette law, which has been in force for a week now in Indiana, will work not a little benefit to the trade of this city. This is, of course, providing the law is really enforced.

The trade in this city is watching the situation with the greatest interest, and although Cincinnati jobbers did little business with the Indiana dealers, it is thought that there will be considerable importing of cigarettes across the State line from local jobbers and retailers.

Henry Straus, a local cigar dealer, thinks that the law will prove beneficial to Cincinnati. "There is practically no cigarette business in this city now," said Mr. Straus. "Although the cigarette may be made here, besides the cigar industry, the business is very insignificant.

"Men of means in Indiana who smoke fine cigarettes will certainly not stop on account of this silly law, and they will buy their cigarettes by the thousand and use them in their homes and their offices.

"They certainly will not be interfered with by the officials, and the only difference will be that they will be obliged to buy their cigarettes somewhere else. That is as likely as not to be in Cincinnati, and while, as I say, the cigarette business does not amount to a great deal at present, it will certainly grow to meet the demand.

"Aside from this point, what cigar business we now do in Indiana will be increased, owing to the decrease in the cigarette business. We will certainly get our share of this increased business."

HAVANA MARKET AGAIN PICKED UP SOME.

Beside a Few More Northern Buyers, Local Manufacturers Are Buying Some Little Tobacco For Their Use. Prices Are Still Firm, With the Chance of an Upward Movement in Vegas.

HAVANA, April 17, 1905.

Last week in the Havana market was more active again, as besides a few more buyers from the United States, the local manufacturers have stepped into the market and have taken a number of so-called factory vegas of Vuelta Abajo, as well as some colas, for their uses.

Prices rule firm and as there has been quite a buying movement in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido of the new crop at very high figures, the chances are that a further upward movement for all vegas of merit is more than likely. The weather, which in the beginning of last week was wet, with some very good showers every day, turned dry and hot towards the end, but since yesterday the rains have commenced again, so it really seems that the rainy season has opened for good this year.

The different escojidas in the country (Vuelta Abajo and Partido) are partly opening this week, and others will start in the first week of May, so during that month all the packings will be actively at work, which is fully one month earlier than usual. A few small lots of early grown and packed tobacco are already in town, and one Tampa manufacturer is said to have opened the campaign by securing the refusal of it.

The so-called "temprano" Vuelta Abajo leaf is favorably spoken of. Some people claim, however, that there may be a scarcity of fillers this year, as there has been no second cutting and the so-called capaduras will be missing. While the leaf may be large enough in size, it remains to be seen whether there will be the right colors and fineness of texture to use them as wrappers, or whether there may not be an abundance of "resagos" and coarse leaf unfit for wrappers but too large to be used as fillers, therefore neither flesh nor fish. In the month of June some appropriate judgment of the quality of the 1905 crop may be formed. That in quantity this year's crop will be smaller is now a foregone conclusion.

Packing in the Santa Clara province cannot begin before the end of May or beginning of June, as Remedios tobacco needs fully forty days of pilon, and only a small part is dry enough to be piled up now.

amounted to 3,62 bales in all, divided into 3,074 of Vuelta Abajo, 203 of Partido and 350 bales of Remedios. The buyers for the American market have taken 1,510, for Europe 400, and for South America and local consumption, 1,717 bales were taken out of the market.

Exports during the week ending April 15th were to the United States, 3,402 bales; Europe, 405; Buenos Ayres, 877; and Australia, 1 bale; total 4,685 bales.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals: G. Mora, of Gonzalez, Mora & Co., Joaquin Lopez, of Arguelles, Lopez & Co., A. A. Martinez, of J. M. Martinez, Tampa; Charles B. Cameron, of the Waldorf Astoria Segar Co., D. Hevia, of D. Hevia, John Fielding, of Rothschild & Bro., New York; Henry Bernheim, of I. Bernheim & Sons, New York and Havana; Fred Davis, of Sam I. Davis & Co., New York and Tampa.

Departures: G. Mora, Joaquin Lopez, V. Bustillo, V. Guerra, Angel Cuesta, for Tampa; Arthur Hunter, for London; Charles B. Cameron, Charles Vogt, for New York; Manuel Cifuentes, for New York and Europe.

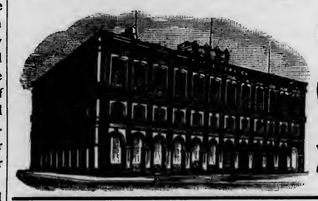
Business is described as dull in the majority of factories here, and while some have back orders to fill, new ones in sufficient quantities are not coming in to take their places. A very important decision has just been filed in the courts here as regards the brands of the Havana manufacturers.



According to a royal decree of the Spanish Government it was required in 1884 to have all existing brands newly registered, and in 1885 this was revoked again. However, as hardly any of the existing factories had taken any notice of the decree, and one or two were notified by the government that it was not necessary to register the old brands in use for some years, nobody took any further steps in the matter.

However, one unscrupulous small manufacturer, who, with the aid of a commission house, thought he saw a chances to take advantage of the world-wide fame of the Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co. sold cigars under the brand of "Partagas & Co.", as he had a man named Juan Partagas in his employ, and believed that the registered rights of Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co. had ceased to exist.

The owners of the latter, Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co., have now successfully won their suit in the first court of law, and in addition, the Secretary of Agriculture (who has charge of all registrations and patents here in Cuba) denied the application for registering the brand of Partagas & Co., thus recognizing the prior rights of Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co., which has been used since 1856.

If the decision had been different all the well known brands such as H. Upmann, El Aguila de Oro, La Flor de Murias, Romeo y Julieta, Por Larranaga, Pedro Murias, La Carolina, Flor de P. A. Estanillo, and many others, would have been in danger of being falsified by unscrupulous manufacturers palming off inferior Partido cigars for high class Vuelta Abajo cigars.

H. Upmann & Co. shipped 552,000 cigars last week, but report business quiet.

Manuel Cifuentes, of Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co., left on Saturday by the steamer Mexico for New York and London, later on to take a trip around the world to visit the customers of Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co.

Por Larranaga, Sol, Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja, Crepusculo, Eden, La mas Fermosa are all working more or less regularly on old orders, while new ones are coming in more slowly.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Leslie Pantin has had another good fortnight, as he purchased over 1,000 bales for his customers.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez sold 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week. They have commenced buying upon a large scale in the Vuelta and Partido sections, and will open their escojida in Bejucal this week. Among the famous vegas secured by them in the Vuelta Abajo are: the vega of Bencomo which will yield about 800 bales, and which is said to be one of the lightest and finest grown in the "tierra llana" section of the 1905 crop; furthermore the equally renowned vega Betancourt, of San Luis, of about 400 bales, and many more of San Luis, Ovas, Barbacoas, Rio Seco, etc. As the large clientele of this house only want the finest vegas of Vuelta Abajo, Don Antero Prieto y Gonzalez, and Don Antonio Quesada are always on the qui vive to fill this demand in time, and their buyers are all over the field picking out the choicest vegas grown.

John Fielding, in company with Don Sidney Rothschild, has made some good sized purchases of the old Vueta Abajo crop for Rothschild & Bro., of New York.

Rabell, Costa & Co. disposed of 257 bales of Vuelta Abajo to local factories.

Jose H. Cayro e Hijo purchased close to 300 bales of Vuela Abajo, and at once turned over 100 bales to his customers.

G. Salomon y Hnos. made sales of 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios to local factories and their Northern customers.

Rodriguez, Bautista & Co., sold 250 bales of Vuelta Abajo and will start their several escojidas before long.

The Tampa Commission of cigar manufacturers is said to have collected from $10,000 to $11,000 here for the sanitarium for their cigarmakers, and left much pleased with the liberality shown.

Jose Menendez disposed 203 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido. He will open his several escojidas this week in La Salud, Caimito, and later on in Artemisa, Palacios and Las Ovas. Praviano, his partner, has bought two vegas of fame such as Mamey Grande and Mortimer Aguiar of Trancas, besides some in San Luis.

Jose F. Rocha turned over 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo. Don Jose is in the country buying heavily.

Muniz Hnos. & Co. closed out 200 bales of Remates, the balance of their old stock. Don Luis Muniz has just returned from San Diego de los Banos, and will open his Remates escojida on May 1.

Loeb Nunez Havana Co. sold 168 bales of Abajo and Remedios.

Garcia & Co., shipped 327 bales of leaf by the steamship Mexico.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. closed one transaction of 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Joaquin Hedesa made some sales last week, and still holds some very fine lots of fillers, caperos and wrappers of the 1904 crop.

Suarez Hnos. will open their Puerto de Golpe Escojida this week, where they pack only their famous Rio Hondo tobacco, and in which section they own six large vegas.

Don Antonio Galzada has gone to the country to look over the situation.

Jorge & P. Castaneda will open their several packings in San Antonio de los Banos by the end of this month.

Manuel Garcia Pulido intends to start his escojidas in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido upon May 1.

The friends of Don Bruno Diaz will be sorry to learn of the death of his beloved wife, although the end did not come suddenly, as she had been in a dangerous state of health for two months. The funeral on Saturday last showed, by the large number of people present, in what high esteem Don Bruno is held here.

NEW YORK, April 24, 1905.

Return of the warm weather brought out the consumers pretty well, but the retailers suffered to an almost balancing extent on account of Holy Week. Then, too, a good many people went away about the middle of the week for Easter, and that also had its effect.

This week the retailers expect to bring a perceptible improvement which will last until New Yorkers begin to hurry out of town at the end of every business day. When all the beaches and resorts which makes it so easy for everybody to get out of the city, open for the season, Broadway stores suffer, as during the hot season of the year the most part of the smoking is done in the evening.

This particularly is true in the financial district where as little of the day as possible is spent in town from the end of May until September. This slump extends pretty well up Broadway until the edge of the Tenderloin is reached, where there is a pretty good trade all year.

The manufacturers declare that they have lots of orders on hand at present and report the outlook very good. Judging by the good missionary work which is being done by many firms there should be considerable doing. Traveling salesmen who are returning from their various trips say that while they broke no records they got satisfactory returns.

The manufacturing end of the business has been rather uneven so far this year according to as reliable reports as can be obtained. Some houses complain that they have fallen considerably below the average for no reasonable cause that they can place. Other firms are undoubtedly very busy. Money is quite a little easier than it was and collections have been satisfactory.

The condition of the leaf market last week was about the same as has been recorded for two or three weeks, there being no great drive or any noticeable dullness. Manufacturers who were willing to pay the prices asked bought of the decreasing stocks on hand, and these were in sufficient quantity to constitute a good average demand.

Dealers are considerably puzzled as to what will happen when their warehouses are bare of all goods, as comparatively little can be looked for from the new crops. Prices will be out under the sky and quality for most part indifferent. Havana may come up all right, but will be high priced and the general schedule of prices will be such as to scare manufacturers stiff.

There is nothing of particular news interest to record this week, there having been few changes and no developments of importance in the trade.

The Sieber Cigar Manfacturing Co. maker of the Jules Verne cigar, one of the best known on the market, is preparing to occupy quarters which will be more commensurate with the company's present business. The new address will be 79 Chambers street where the firm will occupy a six story building. This company has been one of the very busy ones lately which fact necessitated the removal.

Another move into larger quarters will soon be made by Kahn, Zenn & Heine, of 300 Canal street, who are looking about for a suitable new location. The firm is badly crowded in its present building and is unable on that account, to fill all its orders. As soon as a desirable place is found a change will be made.

The argument which took place between local leaf dealers and the Ward line as to who should pay the expense of freight delivery while the steamship company is making repairs to its Manhattan piers and on that account setting down goods at its Brooklyn piers, has been settled. The discussion was ended by the company agreeing to provide teamsters to cart the goods from the Brooklyn piers at the same rate as obtained from those on the Manhattan side. This is in case the regular teamsters employed by the leaf dealers make extra charge.

As was announced in last week's letter, the marriage of Maurice Robinson, of George L. Storm & Co., and Miss Rose Spiegel took place at Sherry's last Tuesday night, and the couple are about ready to start on an extended bridal tour through the West. The large number of handsome presents received testified to the popularity of the bride and groom. Adolph Levy, also employed by the Storm Company, acted as best man and Miss Jennie Spiegel, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. There was a large attendance.

Charles S. Morris, of Charles S. Morris & Co., who has been bringing in the sheaves in the West will soon be at his desk again in New York. Mr. Morris has been out a long time this trip, but his continued absence was made necessary by the splendid business he was doing. Mr. Morris's many friends will be glad to welcome him back.

The Waldorf Astoria Segar Co. will open its new Fourteenth street store to the public before many days. This will be one of the handsomest stores which the company has conducted, and will be a formidable rival to all the other stands in its vicinity. The furnishing will be elaborate and substantial.

Louis Schramm, well known representative of Herz Bros. is on a European tour which will occupy a month or two,

"PIPE A NOLA"

Unique New Cigar Shape, Made by C. G. Singley, Manheim, Pa.

THE ABOVE CUT is a reproduction of a new-shaped cigar that is quite unique, and which can be manufactured satisfactorily only by the use of the newly-invented cigar shaper which has been patented by C. G. Singley, of Manheim, Pa., a cigar manufacturer of large experience, and who is recognized as one of the most expert cigarmakers of Pennsylvania.

These patent shapers are now offered to manufacturers, who, by a special arrangement which can be made with Mr. Singley, or with H. S. Wallick, of York, Pa., can secure not only a shaper with which to make cigars similar to the above, but many other sizes and shapes as well, and the right to use same for that purpose.

These gentlemen propose to make liberal terms with manufacturers who desire to use the invention and thus market a new product. They can be addressed as stated above, by those interested, who will at once be acquainted with full particulars.

and during which he will attend the remaining inscriptions in Holland. Mr. Schramm sailed on the Kaiser Wilhelm II.

The entainment which will be given by the Brooklyn branch of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association has been arranged for next Thursday evening. The members of the New York association have been invited together with numerous other friends of the Brooklyn local. A very pleasant entertainment will be provided.

Paul F. Treft, who is in the cigar business at 222 South street has filed a petition in bankruptcy in which he states his liabilities as $3,407 with no assets. This sum is divided among several creditors.

Edward L. Patterson has been appointed receiver for Louis Todd, who was proprietor of the Hotel Vendome, and who a short time ago filled a petition in insolvency.

Leonard Cohn of A. Cohn & Co., and Kauffman Falk, of G. Falk & Bro. reached New York on the Deutschland last Thursday, direct from the Sumatra inscriptions. Both gentleman bore out previous reports as to the extremely high prices which have characterized this year's sales.

A new brand of domestic cigarette is seen on some of the counters about town. It is made of Virginia tobacco by the Ware-Kramer Tobacco Co., of Wilson, N. C., who call it the White Roll. The trade get it at $3.70 and the consumer at 5 cents for ten.

The Frisch Cigar Co. is trying the scheme which has proven successful elsewhere, and which was described in The Tobacco World three or four months ago, of returning at the end of the month, the face value of the purchases made on a certain day in the month, not previously known either to the dealers or their customers, but designated by a reliable outside party.

A card bearing the date and amount of purchase is given each customer, and there is no doubt that the arrangement acts as a great magnet. The scheme was choked off somewhere though, as a gambling scheme, and so dealers in certain sections who would have liked to try it had to abandon the idea. It is improbable, however, that any objection will be made in this city.

Judge Gildersleeve of the supreme court has appointed August R. Baur receiver of the assets of the firm of D. Muehlenthal & Co., retail dealers in cigars at No. 168 Lenox avenue in a suit brought by Anna Schatz, "the company," against David Muehlenthal for a dissolution of the partnership on account of disagreement.

Joseph Mendelsohn, of Mendelsohn, Bornemann & Co., left town on Saturday for an indirect trip to Havana. Mr. Mendelsohn has one or two cities to visit on the way.

WELL KNOWN TRENTON CIGARIST DIES.

The death is reported of Charles Slee, one of the well known cigar dealers of Trenton, N. J., who was only 53 years old but who had served under Admiral Farragat. He had been identified with Trenton retail tobacco circles for more than fifteen years during which time he built up a wide friendship both in and out of the trade. He was a member of several orders, and was fairly prominent politically.

—Milton J. Daboll and William E. Patte, comprising the cigar firm of Daboll & Patte, of Syracuse, N. Y., have filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. They conducted the cigar stands in the St. Cloud and Jefferson hotels. The total liabilities of the firm are $5,814.52 and the nominal assets are $5,742.18. Of the assets the worth property is scheduled at $4,000 and the stock of goods and fixtures comprises the rest of the assets. The failure of the firm will have no bearing, it is understood, on the four stores of Patte, Underwood & Daboll in New York.

CINCINNATI OEFERINGS DULL.

Government Investigators in the Market Getting Facts.

Cincinnati, O., April 25.

Offerings decreased to the lowest figures ever known at last week's cigar leaf sales, only 33 cases being shipped at one warehouse. Zimmer Spanish formed the greater portion, and these were unusually good in quality, nearly the entire lot of binders and wrappers selling from 6½ and 13c. Four cases of Wisconsins sold from $2.10 and $5.55.

A representative of the Department of Commerce and Labor, with letters from Secretary of War Taft, who is temporarily assuming President Roosevelt's duties, and United States Attorney General Moody, was in this city last week and conferred with Archibald Stuart, for the purpose of getting facts and figures to show the methods used by the combine to prevent the white burley growers from financiering their 1904 crop scheme. The agent left with the intention of seeing some of the men whom Stuart used as go-betweens in his New York negotiations.

Chas. Milhiser, of Richmond, Va., has brought suit in the United States Circuit Court here against John H. Lucke and Nora Freiberg, doing a cigar manufacturing business in this city under the firm name of Lucke & Co. for the alleged infringement of a trade mark. The usual injunction and accounting are sought.

Elias Boute, for six years, general manager of J. S. Hill & Co.'s seven retail stores has opened two stores in Toledo, O. Later he may start a business in this city.

Cigar men report that representives travelling in Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana are sending in healthy orders. Local cigar manufacturers believe that with the banishment of cigarettes in Indiana they will do an increased business with dealers in that State. Retail trade is, of course, not as good as it was before the slot machines were taken out, but the situation is hopeful.

The Cincinnati Presbytery, at its meeting last Wednesday, adopted a resolution deploring the use of tobacco by members of the church, elders and ministers. A spirited debate was held before the resolution was put through. A number of ministers selected for their topic "Sunday Tobacco," dwelling on its alleged disastrous effects. BUHRMAN.

UNITED COMPANY IN FORT WAYNE.

Cigar Dealers There Much Stirred Up Over Intrusion.

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 24.

An agent of the United Cigar Stores Company, the retail branch of the trust, came here last week and caused a heavy jump in rentals on certain desirable corners. The proprietor of the Aveline corner drug store, who has been in one place thirty-five years, was found unprotected by a lease, and the trust offered $40 increase a month for the room. The druggist met the increase.

Then the trust went diagonally across the street and offered $1,000 more a year for the building in which a men's furnishing store is conducted. The proprietor was forced to meet the offer or vacate.

Other holders of desirable corners are much disturbed. The Retail Merchants' Association has passed resolutions against this attempt to make inroads on the business of the local dealers.

"OH LORD, WHAT FOOLS THESE MORTALS BE!"

There are a great many important newspapers in the United States whose editors ought to be thoroughly ashamed of themselves. Time was when every newspaper accepted its responsibility as a serious thing not to be juggled with whenever it became thus possible to bring in an extra dollar.

The attitude of the majority of the mustard colored dailies on the anti-cigarette agitation has been childishly illogical and femininely hysterical, and in no way worthy of a responsible publication.

The greater number of newspaper men smoke cigarettes, perhaps for the reason that the necessary irregularity of their movements induces a recourse to "short smokes." And the writer has seen numerous editorial and news writers engaged in the construction of anti cigarette and anti-rum articles and stories, who penned them with a package of cigarettes at easy hand, and who slipped out between paragraphs to get a drink. These men believed they were good enough to demand and accept large salaries.

This is stated, not as an indictment of newspaper workers, but simply to show that the writers of such articles are not necessarily sincere or convinced of what they say.

William R. Hearst's papers are leading in the present weak outburst against the cigarette, not because Mr. Hearst cares whether anyone smokes cigarettes or drinks poison, but because it is possible to build from it a sensation, such as it is. The "Crazed by Cigarettes" news story has long been a favorite in the Hearst offices and in most cases the motive is deliberately supplied at the copy desk.

The Chicago American has been gloating over the scarehead possibilities of the Indiana situation and has already printed columns of rot that has no foundation. One article in particular, dated Indianapolis, is illustrated by gruesome pictures showing various forms of horrible deaths, suicidal and other, disreputable characters suffering arrest, etc., etc., all supposed to represent cigarette tragedies that have happened since the new law went into effect.

Near the top in prominent boldface type is printed the following, as some of "the startling results" of enforcement of the law:

One man deprived of his cigarettes died.

Two men unable to secure cigarettes committed suicide.

One man born and reared in the State has forsaken it and moved to where he can get cigarettes.

Hundreds of men are secretly smuggling the material for making cigarettes into the State.

Thousands are smoking in secret at their homes.

Many are being arrested for selling, giving away or having in their possession cigarettes or the "makings."

The price of the forbidden articles has risen three hundred per cent.

Such methods as these should by any means be suppressed. They cannot affect those who are familiar with the subject, but such wantonly distorted facts serve to convince those merely inclined to be prejudiced against the cigarette in an impression which bears no relation whatever to the truth.

Why, one might suppose from some of these articles that the country was rapidly being strangled by an insane habit beside which the hasheesh and opium enslaved races appear as exponents of hygienic perfection.

In sharpest contrast to such frenzied monitors of the masses is the New York Times, admittedly one of the ablest and most substantial newspapers in the country. In the editorial columns of this journal appeared the following:

The enactment by the Legislature of Indiana of a law not merely making it a misdemeanor to sell cigarettes, but penalizing the having of them or of the paper used in rolling them in possession, is an example of the flagrant abuse of the police powers of a Commonwealth under the stimulus of ignorant and prejudiced monomaniacs. The cigarette is a roulette of tobacco incased in a shell of paper. Obviously the smoking of tobacco is not the offense penalized, since one may smoke it in a pipe, meerschaum or corncob, as he pleases, with impunity, if not with legislative approval. What remains is the paper. This is as nearly pure cellulose as can be manufactured. It gives in burning carbonic acid, pyroligneous acid and ash. The carbonic acid is harmless, and from a dozen packages of cigarettes one would get less of it than he would absorb in a glass of soda water. The pyroligneous acid is a product of the destructive distillation of all hydrocarbons, and less of it would be taken into the system as the result of a day's smoking of cigarettes than from a pipe. In either case it would be less in volume than a dentist would put into the cavity of an aching tooth. The ash remains behind and is not taken into the system in any way. Of the cigarette it may truthfully be said that the worst thing in it is the tobacco, and this is, as a rule, better and less sophisticated than that prepared for pipe smoking.

For the prejudice against the cigarette there is absolutely no intelligent basis. If one opposes the use of tobacco his position is perfectly intelligible and to a great extent defensible. If he tolerates it or approves it, but denounces cigarette smoking as a vice, he is not necessarily a fool, but he certainly displays an ignorance of the elements of chemistry and hygiene of which a man of average intelligence should be ashamed. The Indiana cigarette law is an outrage in its invasion of personal liberty and its interference with legitimate trade. It cannot for a moment be defended upon any ground that the suppression of the cigarette comes within the police powers of a State. If it could, precisely the same argument would apply with greater force to other forms of tobacco and with equal force to the sale and use of tea and coffee, which probably do a much greater amount of harm than results from tobacco.

This article provoked a number of replies from anti-cigarettists who sent the Times into mortified seclusion by the crushing rejoinder that the vile cigarette should be abolished because the correspondents in question didn't approve of the smell.

Not to do these good witnesses injustice, we reproduce two of the answers:

I read the editorials in The New York Times very much as a theological student may be supposed to read his Bible—with reverence and respect.

But I cannot agree with your cigarette editorial in this morning's issue, which says, among other things:

"For the prejudice against the cigarette there is absolutely no intelligent basis."

If there is any intelligent basis for the prejudice we know exists against all bad odors, may not the same prejudice be justly extended to the smoke of the cigarette, on the ground that it is an unmitigated nuisance to a very large majority—a stench in the nostrils of civilization which issues, seemingly unrestricted, at all times and in all places, from the mouth of the callow youth and the sallow man—a weak, poor and inefficient apology for a pipe—an insult to a good cigar, and a pernicious, pestilential outrage upon the general public from which there seems to be no possible escape unless the Legislature of the other States follow the example of Indiana.

If, as you say, there is no intelligent basis for the prejudice against cigarettes, there should, I am sure, be none against Barren Island, the bone boiling factories of the Newark meadows, or any other similar establishment.

W. W. HALLOCK.

I read with interest and much surprise your editorial regarding "Cigarettes" in this morning's issue. Putting it mildly, I was astonished at the stand you have taken. I am sorry you cannot understand the prejudice against cigarettes, for it does exist on an intelligent basis, and I am not the only one who thinks so; witness the many banks which show a placard, "Don't smoke cigarettes in front of this window.

Did the writer of that editorial ever stand back of a grating and have the vile smoke puffed at him, or has he ever been in a closed office reeking with cigarette smoke? How did he like it? The newer Turkish and Egyptian brands are the worse offenders, for whatever it is they contain (no smoker can tell me), it makes a most disgusting and offensive odor, very unpleasant to many of us.

In our office cigarettes are not permitted, while cigars and pipes "go" as much as desired, and I, for one, do not consider that a man's intelligence and appearance are much improved by holding a little roll of paper and tobacco between his lips, and emitting clouds of foul smoke, making himself a nuisance.

W. J. BOUCHER.

This conception of the subject is almost poetic.

"Dake it away, id sbells bad!"

The world is to be legislated into an olfactory Paradise, with the execution of the cigarette as the first important step.

Oh, well! One has all sorts of ideas; as the man said who invented a valise for flies to carry their specks in.

THERE IS USUALLY MORE THAN ONE POINT OF VIEW.

Taking as its motive the meeting of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association at Lancaster, Pa., next week, one of the most important of whose business items will be the arrangement of a further campaign against the Curtis bill, one of the pro Philippine dailies which like most of its kind speaks with a half-knowledge, asserts that the opposition to the bill, as proceeding from the tobacco trade is unreasonably selfish and nothing less than a plot to keep the consumer out of his rights so that the tobacco business may continue to fatten. It says:

The tobacco interest does not want American smokers who are compelled to smoke 5-cent cigars because they cannot afford to pay for better ones, to buy a better grade for the same money, and it does not want the smokers of 10-cent cigars to buy a good article for 5 cents. We do not know whether reciprocity would bring a 10-cent cigar into the American market at so low a price as 5 cents or not; but it probably would not. It is certain, however, that wiping out the duty would greatly improve the quality of the cigars that smokers buy for 5 cents, and there are many millions who buy cigars at that price. Why should the government concern itself about the wishes of the tobacco men, who are comparatively few, and pay no attention to the wishes of the consumers, who are many?

This is just about as far into the subject as most of these editorial wiseacres go. Presumably they would like the tariff to be regulated so that the consumer could purchase every necessity and luxury foreign made and very cheap. The insignificant fact that in many cases, as in that of Philippine tobacco, we might not have anything to exchange for the goods set down so cheaply on our shores is not permitted to mar the beautiful chain of reasoning.

And the absurd probability that a number of domestic industries would thus be put much to the bad to the consequent financial dismay of hundreds of thousands of employees—consumers—is not allowed to butt its awkward way into the question.

But if a starving man knows where he can purchase an entire bakery for a dollar, and yet has no means of procuring that dollar, the knowledge simply adds to his troubles. Money has no denomination of value beyond what you can get for it, and the man who makes $15 a week and pays 5 cents for a cigar of a quality for which, making $30 a week, he formerly paid 10 cents, is retrograding rather than progressing.

According to a number of reports from the seat of the cigarette war in Indiana, certain manufacturers and retailers are getting around the law by making up and selling cigarettes in the form of "little cigars." Of course the paper wrapper is dark instead of white but it is said that the cigarette smoker can pull the same old kind of smoke through the back end.

It seems to us that this is an outrage. It should be stopped at any cost. It is a wanton violation of the sanctity of a law that was not passed as a joke, and of course it was NOT, and means should at once be taken to prevent further outrage.

The Tobacco World suggests that the Indiana legislature pass a law providing that any man desiring to smoke may submit to an examination by a public health officer. If he passes, he can be given a certificate entitling him to one cigar—no other form of smoking being allowed. This certificate with his application he should forward to the committee on If He Must Smoke Let Him Smoke a Good Cigar, to be appointed by the Legislature, which committee will pass on the application and if it is in form send it to the Governor for his signature and the State seal.

The order can then be forwarded to the State plantations where a scientifically sterilized seed shall be planted, the growth of which will later be garnered, cured and stripped and sent to the State We Do-You-No-Harm Factory. Here the cigar will be made, hygienically, shipped to the State Chemist's laboratory, on to the legislative committee and then to the man.

The man can have waited either in the doctor's office or on a part bench.

Sir William C. MacDonald, the millionaire tobacco manufacturer of Montreal, has made an offer to the Protestant committee of the council of public instruction of that city, to endow an agricultural training college for the training of school teachers, which would cost from two to four million dollars.

So far, no tendency to spurn this money has been shown, but it is getting the fashion now to look a gift horse in the mouth and declare him tainted before accepting him; and when we think of the awful evil which is supposed to lie in the tobacco business, this would seem to provide a good opportunity for a sniff on the part of the recipients.

YORK 1904 BUYING ALL DONE.

York, Pa., April 24.

During a recent interview R. D. Zech who has been buying extensively of the 1904 crop informed me that the buying is done and that the crop is practically all bought up, he, having secured for his various customers 1,400 cases. He recently engaged himself with Walter B. Hostetter & Co. as a salesman and will cover the country in another's interests. He reports business as starting out very nicely, and as he has been engaged in this line for the past thirty-seven years, he is undoubtedly a very widely known man among both growers and manufacturers.

York County manufacturers find some improvement in their trade, and their output is increasing steadily with very few exceptions.

The proposed new cigar manufacturing company in Yoe is now an actual fact, a charter having recently been received for the State Seal Cigar Company. The incorporators are: Geo. A. Kohler, I. Kohler, A. W. Kohler, Samuel Fiddler, and T. A. P. Carman all residents of Yoe.

A considerable tract of land has already been secured upon which a factory will be built and sufficient space will remain for the erection of a number of new dwelling houses which it is intended shall be erected and probably sold in the course of time to employes on easy terms.

—Samuel S. Reymer, of Allegheny, son of Jacob Reymer, the big candy manufacturer, who also has a large tobacco business, has been married to Miss Nellie H. Paris, who was first seen by Reymer dancing at a carnival given by the Elks in Allegheny.

According to reports made, the last six days have been uneven among the retail trade again, some dealers declaring that business was as good as they wanted, other complaining that there were only one or two good days in the lot. The fact that everyone packed his suit case and journeyed to Atlantic City on Saturday, practically wiped three days out of the week, Monday being included for the reason that each traveler evidently came back in an economical mood. Outside of that, business probably averaged up quite well with prospects good for May.

B. Frank Batten, at the foot of Market street, keeps his door open all the time now, and the summer traveling rush is commencing. Mr. Batten is making a display of the Red Devil brand, now, and is having quite a run on it.

Geo. O'Keefe, Fourth street dealer, is making a special offer on Gumpert Bros.' Runnymede, offering them six for a quarter, or $2 for a box of fifty.

Fire, which started in the store of the Lafayette Cigar Co., William Worthington, manager, at 1416½ Chestnut street, early Sunday morning, did considerable damage to the furnishings before it was checked. The water and smoke also practically ruined the stock.

I. Lewis & Co.'s Golden Eagle brand of little cigars is duplicating in this market and without doubt is proving a success.

The Philadelphia Cigar and Tobacco Dealer's Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at its new headquarters tomorrow night when several matters of importance will be discussed, principal of which is the Association's project to establish its own distributing bureau and sell direct to jobbers and retailers. Of course, all the goods handled will be of independent manufacture, and the scheme is large enough in conception for its success to provide a sure and important future for the Association. Those present will have an opportunity to welcome back to their midst ex-president Joseph E. Tuck, who spent the winter in Los Angelos, and who returned some days ago.

A cigar stand was recently started in the "House of Lords" lunch place at the northwest corner of Third and Chestnut streets, which was recently vacated as a cigar store by N. Young, who had purchased the stand from Goldsmith & Co., and failed to make it pay. This corner has been ill-fated for some time as a tobacco corner, and the hoodoo is evidently still operative, as the place was suddenly closed yesterday and by the abrupt departure of those interested has apparently taken its place in the unhappy history of the corner.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

This week will close another month, and one which from all accounts, has made no records either way in the local leaf trade. The demand has been good enough, at least it has been as good as stocks and prices would allow, and there is probably not a dealer on the street who could not have cleaned out his entire stock if he had been willing to come off the perch a little in the matter of quotations.

Every dealer is firmly convinced, however, that it is good policy to hold on as long as he is able, to what goods he has, and only where he had to supply his regular trade did he loosen up to any extent. The men on the road for the most part have had average good trips, and while there has usually been a lot of talk necessary before any deal was closed, at least the deals were closed, and the orders sent in.

All agree that tobacco is going to be mighty scarce and high, and a large majority of the dealers would like to look ahead a bit and see what will happen with the new crop. So far as can be told, every thing that is sold in this market will be hard to get, and of course hard to sell.

Milton Herold, Secretary of the Loeb-Nunez Company is in Havana looking the situation over, but will make no extended stay. This firm is ably maintaining its reputation on Havana tobacco.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Labe, will reach home in about ten days from Holland, where Mr. Labe, and his father, founder of the firm of B. Labe & Sons, have been attending the inscriptions. The Labe's have succeeded in getting some very good Sumatra for their trade.

George W. Newman, of Young & Newman, is back again from another trip, during which he succeeded in disposing of some choice lots of the firm's stock.

Frank Dominguez will soon have to take another trip to the Havana market to replenish the rapidly decreasing stock of E. A. Calves & Co. This house has been pretty uniformly busy all this season.

Local dealers are awaiting with interest the annual convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association which will be held in Lancaster three days commencing next Monday. The leaf trade will be well represented at the convention, but it is impossible at this time to say how many will be able to get away from their business. Among those who will surely go under present circumstances, are: J. Vetterlein, John R. Young, J. S. Batroff, Felix Eckerson, L. P. Kimmig, Morris Rosenberg, Saml. Grabosky, and Charles Hipple. It is probable that Tuesday will be the principal day of the convention in point of business, and the local delegation will be largest on that day.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The manufacturers all seemed to be in good spirits this week, as they all said they were busy, with orders coming in right along. Most firms have their men on the road and are getting good returns. Business in the South is good, and those who are returning from that direction are bringing in full order books.

Harry Goldsmith, of Goldsmith & Arndt, the new firm of distributors for the El Provedo Co., of North Fourth street, is on a short trip through New York State and reports good business.

Lester Newburger, of Stewart, Newburger & Co., Ltd., will return at the end of this week after an extensive call on his Southern trade. Mr. Newburger reports one of the best trips he ever had.

Sam Jacobs and Henry Hilbronner, who for years have been closely identified with the firm of Gumpert Bros. where each has won the reputation of being the real thing in the salesman line, sever their connection with the house this Saturday, and will at once start a business of their own in the old Langsdorf factory on Eighth street between Vine and Callowhill, as previously

THE TAXATION OF THE DEALER FOR HIS OWN SALVATION.

Reading, Pa., April 24, 1905.

Editor Tobacco World:

I have been reading with much interest the letters that have been appearing in your paper regarding the taxing of the retailer. I have had an opinion on this matter for years, and I used to express it, but I have been keeping my mouth shut lately. What's the good of getting off a lot of talk and doing nothing?

I can remember lots of times when the matter has been "agitated" in different places, by a dozen or more dealers at a time, and nothing ever came of it. It was just talk and nothing more. I got sick of the whole question. I hesitated a good deal before I wrote this, because I vowed I wouldn't get mixed up in such a discussion again.

But I have been very much interested in the articles and letters that have already appeared, and I will say for you, Mr. Editor, you and your writers have handled your subject well, and I thought that I would have my little say once more, although I don't expect any good to come of it.

You can keep on writing, and I can write, and a thousand other dealers can write until they get paralysis and it wont help us get a tax, until somebody up and does something. There isn't any other way out of it but a tax, unless all these outside competitors are systematically murdered, and it stands to reason that that tax isn't going to arrange itself.

It ought to be imposed by the Government at Washington, and not a State tax, and that will never happen until the retailers get together and work the matter up just as the great body of the people do when they want any new law passed.

If it was any other trade, representative members of the trade would get together, form a committee to form an organization, send out a circular letter providing a small initiation fee which would gladly be paid, I believe, and take the proceeds to get the thing fairly started.

It wouldn't cost a great deal, as the largest part of the expense would be for printing and postage. The members would be asked to give their opinions and whatever contributions they felt like, an executive committee should be elected by popular vote with power to act, and in addition to bringing every influence possible to bear on the dealer's representative in Congress, and on those who have influence with that representative, every dealer would be expected to get signatures to a tax petition from all his customers. This would be a cinch, and as each customer is a constituent, the aggregate result would be very imposing when it reached Washington.

That's the way I'd go about it, if you want to know, and although I may be wrong, I don't see anything impossible about the scheme. At any rate it would be doing something instead of taking it out in talk. And if anybody's got anything to say against the scheme let them suggest a better one. If they've got anything to say, let them say it.

I sign myself, with best wishes for you,

A DOER.

LANCASTER BUSINESS MODERATE.

Interest Centered in National Leaf Convention Next Week.

Lancaster, Pa., April 24.

During the past week there was a moderate volume of business done by local leaf dealers but not as much as it would seem should have been the case, considering the increased activity which is now existing among cigar manufacturers of this section. Buying is done and packers are already beginning to close up the season's work with the exception of a few of the larger ones who will buy for several weeks.

A great deal of interest is centering in the annual sessions of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association which takes place in this city next week, covering the first, second and third days of the month. Arrangements have been made by the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade to take care of the delegates who are expected to be present, and the deliberations will be held at the Hamilton Club, a more suitable place than which could not have been found.

On Wednesday last, a meeting of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Trade Inspection Company was held at the City Board of Trade's room on King street. Permanent officers and a number of directors were elected as follows: President, J. Gust Zook; Vice-President, E. M. Cohen; Secretary, Charles E. Long; Treasurer, Morris Rosenthal; Board of Directors: J. Gust Zook, E. M. Cohen, I. H. Weaver, Morris Rosenthal, Menno M. Fry, Joseph Goldberg, William De Haven, J. W. Breneman and A. B. Hess.

A letter was authorized to be issued to Secretary Roenig, of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, advising him that the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade had completed arrangements for holding the national convention of the National Association here on May first.

I. H. Weaver, of this city, recently returned from a short visit to Dayton, and other points in Ohio where he was inspecting the packings of leaf, and reports that he finds things to be in satisfactory condition.

Xenophon Hanna, of the Hanna Bros., of Dayton, O., was a recent visitor in this market.

The new cigar store of F. B. Trout, at 168 North Queen street, is now open to the public and is one of the most attractive places in the city. The establishment will be known as "Everybody's Cigar Store."

H. D. Frey, near Lititz, reports business quite good in the cigar line with him at present. Mr. Frey devotes a great deal of his spare time to music, being a skillful violinist, which instrument he has studied since he was 14 years of age. He is now the leader of a local orchestra.

READING DOING BIG BUSINESS.

Manufacturers Want More Hands and Can't Catch Up On Orders.

Reading, Pa., April 24.

Reading can truthfully boast of as good cigar business as there is in any section of the State today, and several factories are wanting more hands.

W. H. Yocum, of Yocum Bros. informs the writer that for a number of weeks past they have been working overtime during two nights of each week, and have not yet fully caught up with their orders.

J. G. Patz, of J. G. Patz & Co., returned on Saturday from among some of his wholesale houses.

Dan Fleck, of the Fleck Cigar Co., returned on Saturday last from a two months trip around the middle Western States having gone as far as Minneapolis and St. Paul. During his trip he visited many of the old customers of the firm and was favored with numerous duplicate orders. Upward of sixty cigarmakers are being steadily employed in this factory and business is still gaining at a rapid rate.

E. E. Kahler is looking most serene since his return from the Western trip, during which he found business in a very satisfactory condition.

Trinitario Vila, a native of the island of Cuba, was a recent very interesting visitor among the manufacturers in this city. Mr. Vila represents the well known house of Sylvester & Son of New York.

S. Waterman, representing Max Gans & Son of New York, was also here last week after a Western trip covering a period of nearly two months.

John U. Fehr was spending last week in the Connecticut Valley inspecting his firm's packing of new goods.

Charles Potteiger, at Sixth and Washington streets, is making a special window display of the Mercury foot 5 cent cigar, made by Frank Weber of this city.

Henry Rindskopf, leaf dealer at Fifth and Washington streets, left for New York City on Friday evening last, to spend the Easter holidays.

The Old Honest Cigar Box Co. has removed its plant from Cherry street to the rear of 634 Washington street.

It is reported here that at Pottsville there is prospect of a new cigar factory being located which would require from two to three hundred hands, and that the Baltimore Cigar Manufacturing Co. had been there for several days quietly looking over the ground, but it has not yet been ascertained as to whether any thing actually definite has been done by the prospective manufacturers.

—A new cigar factory has been opened in Cosebeer's former stand in Waterloo, Ia, by G. W. Armagost, of that city and D. O Long, of Kalmazoo, Mich.

BOSTON HOLDS HER OWN.

Retail Trade Keeps Up and Manufacturers Are Busy.

Boston, Mass., April 23.

Trade is about the same as I reported in my last week's letter. The base ball grounds have opened for the season and this of course will do the cigar business a lot of good.

Although the weather for a few days this week was not at its best, Wednesday was "All Patriots' Day" and Friday was Good Friday, still the retail business was very satisfactory to all concerned.

Cigar manufacturers are working full forces and their respective salesmen are doing plenty of canvassing. Among the independent concerns doing business here can be mentioned the firm of L. Miller & Sons, New York, which concern is getting quite a hold on the market. Their Puritan little cigars that retail at 10 for 5 cents are steadily gaining ground, and their Grumble and El Cafe popular 5 cent cigars can be seen in nearly every retail cigar stand here, while their Kozy cut plug is selling well for a 2½ ounce package, and Leroy little cigars that retail at 10 and 15 cents a package, have for a long time been in public favor.

Leo Mayer, of the Hilson Co., New York, called on their jobbers this week in company with Mr. Hyneman, of Hyneman Bros., who are the New England distributors for the well known Hoffman House Bouquet cigars.

Isaac Weil, cigarist, was in Gotham this week calling on the trade in that city.

Mortimer Frank, a leaf tobacco salesman from New York, is still here and reports doing a very satisfactory business.

Murad cigarettes are being well advertised in the local newspapers.

Emil Abrahams is doing some tall hustling in placing the Golden Eagles for I. Lewis & Co., of Newark.

Avery Asker has purchased the cigar store located at 536 Tremont street formerly run by J. Mitchell.

A representative of Mates Rucabado, New York, called on the jobbing trade this week with a line of Porto Rico cigars.

L. Miller & Sons have come out with a deal in their Old Pepper cut plug 1⅔ oz. tin foil, 5 packages of Puritan little cigars being given gratis to the dealer with every 5 pounds purchased of Old Pepper cut plug.

Ben Lett, with Hyneman Bros., spent a few days in New York.

Col. James Davidson, of Chicago, president of the National Anti-Cigarette League, has begun his crusade in Boston at the Y. M. C. A. It was at the request of the New England Anti-Cigarette League that Col. Davidson came here. "It is our intention to nationalize the league which is doing a great deal of good," says he. "Newsboys and public school boys are our special objects, much injury having been done them by the use of tobacco. College students also are almost universally addicted to the cigarette habit, and you will always find that the heaviest smokers are the poorest students. Cigarettes are injurious to everybody, but not so much so to mature men as to boys between the ages of eight and fifteen, because at that period it affects their growth."

Lois Jeselsohn, wholesale tobacconist, spent a few days in New York, and while there called at the headquarters of the American Tobacco Co. on Fifth avenue.

With the Cigar Manufacturers.

M. Cohen, maker of the Boston Courier cigar, reports a very fair trade.

N. Levenson, who has been in the manufacturing business but a few months, is gaining quite a little prominence. His Boston Smoker is selling well wherever placed.

Gordon and Abrahams are working full force. Gordon's Smokers is their leading brand, and has been on the market for a few years.

J. Dolf, maker of Dolf's Smoker and the Boston Traveler cigar, is finding it hard to keep up with the orders.

H. J. Albert, who has a retail store and manufactures cigars at Friend street, enjoys a good sale on the Nickel Lion and the H. A., his two main brands.

Elcho, from the factory of J. Driscoll, is fast becoming very popular in the line of 10 cent cigars, and can be found in mostly every bar room here.

J. Halperson, cigar manufacturer at 99 Cambridge street, is also doing a retail and wholesale leaf tobacco business under the name of the Hub Leaf Tobacco Company.

Goldsmith Silver & Co. have acquired the exclusive privilege of selling their M. C. A. and 108 brand of cigars on the grounds of the Boston American Base Ball Club for the season.

Menaski cigarettes continue to sell well and are being largely advertised by handsome window displays. E. J. Mulligan is a pioneer in the art of window dressing.

The Allen Tobacco Co., of New York, has issued a circular letter stating that from May 1 all gratis on their brands Telonettes Small La Leso, Royal Badge, Artist and Subway will be discontinued and the gratis on Telonette extra large will be 20 per cent in Allenette, their new and attractive brand, 10 for 10 cent package. The price of Allenettes, which are similar in every respect to Between the Acts, is $7.50 per M., less 10 and 2 per cent. A sample package of the Allenettes is being mailed gratis to all the wholesale tobacconists here.

• Of late many outside firms are trying to get a hold on the Boston market with their various brands of little cigars and it seems the quicker they come the better Leroy little cigars sell.

J. S. Brown, retail tobacconist at 8 Washington street, has also entered the real estate fields and has put through a few large transactions.

At Robbins & Roitman's store can be seen signs of activity. They have just added a new clerical force to meet the ncrease in trade, and report collections good with a big sale on El Cafe Havana Bouquet cigars. Sam Robbins is a hard man to find in when one calls as he is kept busy on the outside. BEN ALI.

CIGARS FROM TEXAS TOBACCO.

Nacogdoches Factory Has Turned Out 40,000 for the City.

Nacogdoches. Texas, April 22.

The Nacogdoches cigar factory which is producing a fine grade of cigars from Texas tobacco has delivered its first order to city customers, the invoice consisting of 40,000 cigars.

As the occasion was considered a gala one, the team of horses and the wagon which bore the first product of the new Texan industry, was brilliantly decorated and driven around the town so that all might see. There was considerable cheering.

The officers of the factory are L. P. DeMouch, general manager, and Dr. J. E. Mayfield, secretary and treasurer. The plant employs quite a number of hands and has orders enough ahead to keep them busy six months. The force will be rapidly increased, and altogether it looks as if Texas tobacco had come to stay.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

I was talking with a man who has been one of the inspectors in a large assorting shop at Hartford, and in the course of the conversation he said that it would be hard lines for the manufacturer before another year; for at the shop where he was working they began to ship the new leaf from the shop to New York some time in January to be put on the market, and it was snapped up in a hurry. Now this simply shows the condition of the tobacco trade, and it satisfies us all that tobacco cannot be had for the asking, although he who asks may have his pockets lined with gold, silver or bank bills; for there certainly is a shortage, and as one writer from San Francisco has put it, "if we cannot get desirable leaf to work we shall have to do the next thing, and that is to shut our shops down, as much as we dislike to do it."

Our correspondents write:

Hadley, Mass.: "The weather for the past week has been very unfavorable for the making of tobacco beds. The soil here is somewhat colder than in Hatfield, consequently the growers are later in sowing their beds, still last week quite a number of beds were made. Indications point to a much larger acreage on tobacco than last year; in fact all feel encouraged with the prices of 1904 crop, and are looking forward to good prices for this year's growth."

Conway, Mass.: "Tobacco beds have all been sowed here now, and those who sowed sprouted seed report it coming up good. The warm weather of the past week made it seem as if it were time to work the soil; but it is cold again now."

East Deerfield, Mass.: "No tobacco beds sown yet, but I think the most of them will be before the 25th. Most every one sows sprouted seed under cloth; not much glass used here. The acreage will be about the same as last year. Some will set more and a few a little less. Seed leaf doesn't seem to take very well here; no one will raise any this year."

Feeding Hills, Mass.: "Some of the farmers have their tobacco beds sown and others will sow this week. Fully as many acres will be raised this year as usual. At the Hinsdale Smith farm more will be raised under cloth tents (about forty acres) and a hundred more in the open field. Their plants are up in good shape."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The scarcity of goods remaining in the growers' hands is ample reason for the marked decline in the buying movement, though buyers are still riding the growing districts, ready to take over desirable lots of both old and new leaf. There never was a time when old goods were so thoroughly gathered in, and even the '04 crop is much more closely absorbed than the market imagines. A few recent transactions show prevailing prices:

Lars Severson, 5a at 7½ and 2c asst
R Sorenson, 5a at 6¾ and 3c asst
Simon Berg, 19cs at 7 and 2c asst
Frank Patterson, 15cs at 7 and 2c
H. W. Collins, 10a at 6½c

C. E. Sweeney has sold something over 100cs of '03 leaf during the week to a Janesville packer.

The most important transaction of late is the purchase of three local packings of

'04 crop, amounting to about 1,800cs, by W. S. Brill for account of the United Cigar Manufacturers, making this firm the largest holders of last year's Wisconsin product.

Warehouse handling is still progressing, with the end of the season's work now almost in sight.

A week of unusually cold weather has delayed the laying of plant beds somewhat, many growers preferring to hold their sprouted seed for the advent of warmer weather, which is now due.

Shipments were 1 000 cases—Reporter.

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.
M. D. Boales.

The first public sale was held this week—only 31 hhds of Low and Medium grades;

Lugs—Low, 3½; Common, 3¾ to 4¼; Medium. 4¼ to 4¾; Good, 4¾ to 5.
Leaf—Low, 5 to 5¼; Common, 5½ to 6¼; Medium, 6¼ to 7½.

Private sales, 144 hhds of good to fine wrappery Leaf, at 11 to 14½. The sales will continue from week to week. The weather has been cold and dry, preventing movement.

Loose sales small:—Lugs, 3½ to 5; Leaf, 5 to 8.

The Planters' Organization is delivering to prizing houses and prizing is being done. They have appointed an independent inspector, but no committee as yet to act on samples returned for reclamation. They are very firm and confident of being able to carry out their plans, which will revolutionize the trade.

Plants are plentiful, and early planting will be done in the first half of May. Labor is scarce, and the curtailing of the crop by the Planters' Organization, as part of their plans, will probably make the crop smaller.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.
M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts of the new crop continue good, and were for the week 689 hhds; offerings on the breaks, 4 hhds; public and private sales, 23 hhds—partly old crop, partly new wrappers. The transactions are too small to be worthy of comment.

The new crop is held for high prices, and will come on the market unusually late, too late for much of it to go to Europe by way of New Orleans shipments.

Planters seem very determined to reduce fully the plantings this year. We again have a touch of winter, the mercury falling to 31 deg. on the 16th and 28 deg. on the 17th, damaging the fruit prospects, and checking growth of the plant beds, and plantings may be later than calculated upon.

For old tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to $3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to 4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to 4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to 4.75
Low Leaf	4.75	to 5.50
Common Leaf	5.75	to 6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00	to 8.00

MUCH LEAF FROM VIRGINIA.

The World's Importations Amounted to 2,468,773 Pounds.

Washington, D. C., April 21.

According to consular reports just is sued, the last fiscal year recorded the world's importation of Virginia leaf tobacco as amounting to 2,468,773 pounds, valued at $147,131.

The Netherlands and Cuba contributed 17,332 and 15,890 pounds, respectively Sumatra and Germany were next in order. Small quantities were imported from India, Belgium, Turkey, Persia and even China, part of the tobacco from various sources going through Great Britain.

Higher duties were placed on Virginia leaf last year and this operated somewhat to change the course of the trade. In general, the importation of leaf tobacco in Mexico is increasing partly through the increased consumption of foreign tobacco, but principally through the demand for foreign commerce of the principal ports of the manufacture of cigars.

GOING SLOW IN INDIANA

Anti-Cigarette Governor Firm, but Other Officials Hesitate.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 27.

Governor Hanly evidently signed the anti cigarette bill with full knowledge of all the dust it was going to kick up, and with the firm intention of standing by his guns. He was asked what he was going to do about the law, and answered in a way to change the opinion of those who believe the Governor never intended the law to be enforced in its letter.

"The law is on the statute books," he said, "and I pledged myself and the people of the State that I would enforce it. I will see to its enforcement insofar as it is possible."

It is the opinion at the office of the Attorney General that the anti cigarette law that became effective with the publi cation of the acts is absolutely prohibitory, and that not only can cigarettes not be sold or given away, but they can not be smoked or even owned, no matter how the possessor obtained them. Attorney-General Miller will not give an official opinion on the question until he has been asked to do so officially.

Among the officials of this city there seems to be an attitude of uncertainty, which as much as anything else, probably arises from the fact that the police don't want to make themselves a laughing stock as they are likely to do if they get too enthusiastic, and the general tendency seems to be to go slow and feel the way. With some justices declaring the law a dead letter and others in the country towns grabbing off all the fines they can while the good time lasts, the city's guardians are sadly perplexed.

Some days ago Mayor Holtzman said: "Should one of our city police officers arrest a man who was smoking a cigarette, he would not be dismissed at my instance. Since there is some question as to the application of the law, I think it would be fair for the police to warn all persons smoking cigarettes before making arrests. Owing to this uncertainty, I am anxious to see the question of the law's significance established and have no doubt that a test case will soon get into the courts. Until such time, or until the Attorney General tells us just what it means, there is no definite basis to proceed on."

CIGAR FACTORY REMOVES FROM WAYCROSS TO SAVANNAH.

Savannah, Ga., April 29.

Arrangements have been made for the early removal from Waycross to this city, of the El Crecero cigar factory. It is now hoped that the plant will be in operation here in a few days, in the big building at the corner of Drayton and Macon streets.

About 25 operatives will come from Waycross with the machinery, and it is expected in a short time to increase this number to 100. V. C. Estrada will be manager of the factory.

WAREHOUSE PROPERTY SOLD.

Baltimore Buys Sites of Burnt Tobacco Buildings for $182,500.

Baltimore, Md., April 27.

The deal for the purchase of the State tobacco warehouse property in this city needed for the completion of the dock improvements on the proposed Pier 4 has finally gone through, and the property purchased by the burnt district commission for $182,500.

The sale was consummated at a joint meeting of the burnt district commission and the state board of public works, which was held in the office of Governor Warfield, in the Fidelit, building and the price was arrived at after a long struggle.

Some time ago the commission wrote to the state authorities and offered $116,000 for the property. The offer was declined, and after repeated efforts a joint meeting of the two bodies was held when the state announced that it would not take less than $225,000. The commission declined to accept these figures, and experts were asked by each body to place valuations on the property. Nine experts served on the part of the city, and the highest valuation made was $175,000. None of the state's experts put the value at a lower figure than $200,000.

The meeting consumed more than two hours, and was marked by long discussions. The state at first offered the property for $195,000 and afterward at $190,000. The city held to the figures of an expert, but finally, at the suggestion of Mayor Timanus, a compromise was effected and the sale price was unanimously agreed to.

With the acquisition of the warehouse property, the city has now obtained all the property necessary for Pier 4. It is also thought that by the sale the standard of value for other property not yet acquired in the dock district has been fixed, and that the work of purchasing the property in the district will soon be completed.

CUBAN WORKMEN STAND STILL.

Cigarmakers Have No Organization and and are not Progressing.

According to President Perkins, of the National Cigarmakers' Union, the cigarmakers in Cuba are not progressing very fast. Mr. Perkins has just returned from a tour of the island during which he studied the conditions. He says the workers have no system, and no organization worth considering.

"In Cuba," he says, "I ound a deplorable condition of affairs, as it not only concerns our trade but all others. There are estimated to be about 20,000 cigarmakers on the island, of which number about half, or 10,000, are located at Havana. The American trust has a strong hold in Havana, employing about 4,000 cigarmakers. There has been no organization worthy of being called such in our trade on the island since 1886. True, they have had the resitancia, composed of Spaniards, and the La League, composed of Cubans, but these crude organizations were divided against themselves and accomplished nothing in so far as improving the condition of the workers was concerned.

"I visited four or five large cigar factories and saw only one woman making cigars. I was informed that very few women were employed at cigarmaking on the island. There are no restrictions as to wages as far as the cigarmakers are concerned, and no restriction as to apprentices. In one shop, employing 300 cigarmakers, there were eighty-five apprentices.

"Molds and the bunch breaking and roll up system have not been introduced on the island.

"The great bulk of cigarmakers in Havana work on jobs ranging from $10 to $14 per 1,000 and they have to make very fine work and strictly on the so called Spanish style. The average wages are from $9 to $12 per week when they work a full week. Some jobs run up to $34 per 1,000, but they are the exception instead of the rule. I saw one cigar which pays $225 per 1,000 for making. The shops are all large, as a rule. They, however, have the 'Buckeye' there, in which the prevailing prices are from $5 to $8 per 1,000. These shops dispose of their product by peddling them around the streets, hotels, boats and depots."

GROWN IN THE EMERALD ISLE.

First Raised For a Century to be Sold in Dublin.

The first tobacco grown and manufactured in Ireland for over a century and placed on the market under ordinary conditions will be on sale in Dublin and elsewhere throughout Ireland in six weeks It has been grown by Colonel Everard, of Randlestown, in Meath, who last year visited America and submitted some samples of it to connoisseurs, who warmly commended it.

The tobacco is said to be of excellent quality, and the success of Colonel Everard in its culture and cure confirms the opinion long held by a section of Irish agriculturists, that the island, and especially the eastern portion of the country, is fitted for tobacco culture.

Colonel Everard has raised a crop of 1,000 pounds to the acre at Randlestown, and is confident that the results he has attained can be attained in the majority of the Irish counties. But there is a cloud in this bright sky for Irish agriculturists. The government looks coldly upon its project to turn Ireland into one of the tobacco growing countries, and has up to the present refused any rebates on Irish grown tobacco If it persists in its refusal tobacco growing can scarely become profitable; but Colonel Everard, who is a unionist, is still hopeful of inducing the government not to dash the bright prospect.

WILL OHIO BANISH CIGARETTE.

There is Some Talk Which Probably Wont Amount to Much.

Cleveland, O., April 28.

Legislators in this State are evidently getting jealous of all the notoriety which is being gained by their neighbors across the Indiana line, and some of them are beginning to talk anti cigarette themselves. In fact if nothing happens to make it ridiculous, it is probable that an attempt will be made to introduce a prohibitory cigarette law at the next session of the legislature.

Of course some of the newspapers are taking the matter up at the first hint of such an action, and are inclined to exaggerate the sentiment. Nevertheless, it is known that some of the members of the legislature are in favor of such a measure, although no particular one has yet allowed his name to be used in a quotation.

"If the Republicans of Cuyahoga county see fit to renominate me as a candidate for the house of representatives I shall make it one of my first duties to thoroughly inquire into the anti cigarette laws of Indiana and Wisconsin with a view of introducing a bill calling for similar legislation in this State," said one member of the Cuyahoga delegation to the lower house.

It is expected that church organizations, the Anti-Saloon league, W. C. T. U., and similar influences will combine for the purpose of urging and supporting the passage of an anti cigarette bill in this State.

Those favoring anti-cigarette legislation predict that every school teacher in the State will be personally appealed to and the weight of their influence toward legally ostracizing the cigarette from Ohio.

Clinton M. Schultz will Start One for Farmers and Warehousemen.

Clinton M. Schultz, publisher of the Southern Tobacconist and Modern Farmer, has applied for a charter to publish a weekly paper in the interest of the Inter-State Tobacco Growers' Association of Virginia. The style of the corporation will be The Farmers' Co Operative Publishing Co., and the concern is starting with a capital stock of $15,000. The name which the new paper will bear has not yet been announced.

Mr. Schultz said that he would probably print the organ in Danville and said that he would devote the columns of the paper to market and crop reporting and to the work of organization. The journal will also be printed in the interest of warehousemen as well tobacco growers. Mr. Schultz says that he will cover the situation as no paper at present covers it.

Five directors of the coroporation will be elected from the Inter-State Association three from the Tobacco Growers' Association and three from the North Carolina Association. The first appearance of the paper is awaited with interest by the trade.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

LEST YE BEAR FALSE WITNESS.

I came across an article in one of the largest daily papers last week which started this way:

An inquiry made of students in the Ohio State University as to how many cigarettes the ordinary smoker will consume in a year has developed the fact that ten average students, none of them regarded as unusual fiends, smoke 25 000 in the college year of 8½ months. The investigators were greatly surprised at the result of their investigations.

So am I. I'm not surprised in any such ignoramus way as these "investigators" but I'm wondering whether they don't get any decent cigarettes in the University town.

If anybody took the trouble to buy twenty five thousand cigarettes and piled them up in a heap, they would make something of a pile, and would doubtless appall any ten smokers who looked the bunch over, with only one match amongst them. The amount of food we eat in a year piled up in the same picturesque way would excite the same feeling of impotent awe.

It's the unfairness of thus flinging totals at people's heads, in an effort to create a startling and utterly wrong impression. When the investigators announce their horrible findings. they do it in such a way that the reader gets the single, striking impression of ten, immature, sickly students frantically puffing up TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND cigarettes. The time it takes them to do it is lost sight of.

That being the case, we will do a little figuring on our own hook.

There are 25,000 cigarettes to be smoked, and ten men to smoke them; they have got eight and a half months to do it in. There are about 260 days in the college year.

Accordingly each man, in 260 days must smoke 2,500 cigarettes and a fraction—not even an entire ordinary pack of ten.

As a matter of fact, I am perfectly willing to admit that the usual cigarette smoker considerably exceeds this average. In fact a man doesn't get into the fiend class until he is burning up forty or fifty a day, often more.

I know one man in particular, who possesses one of the brightest, most receptive and most reflective minds I have ever been fortunate enough to benefit by, who used to smoke ten or twelve Virginia cigarettes while writing an article or letter that might not occupy him longer than an hour. I don't know whether he is still doing it for I haven't seen him for two or three years. I wouldn't recommend anyone to follow his example, but so far as I could tell he was apparently as well as ever after I had seen him smoke that way for three years.

But let us go a little further in our calculations We left the college student smoking his nine and a fraction cigarettes a day, and by imputation of his investigators, digging his own early grave.

Few cigarettes will burn more than 8 minutes, Turkish and kindred varieties don't last that long, neither does the one a man rolls for himself.

But allowing an average of eight minutes to the smoke and multiplying that by nine and a half, we get the alarming result of seventy six minutes, or an hour and a quarter, which the college student steals from the twenty four for his smoking. A little more than one twenty-fourth of his time is thus occupied

We will now pass on to the harmless cigar, that innocuous, innocent article that is always prescribed the cigarette smoker by his censors.

An ordinary cigar smoker will average eight cigars a day. Indeed there are so many men whom I can think of at this moment who smoke more than double that number that I pat myself on the back for making the average so low. Taking the same 260 days, and counting ten smokers with the daily average of eight cigars, we have a total of 20,800, or 420 less than the cigarette average. That's pretty good, but that's not the way to look at it

A decent cigar will burn at least forty minutes. Many men can make their smoke last them a full hour. We'll say forty minutes. Eight times forty minutes make 320 minutes, or five hours and twenty minutes that the cigar smoker gives over to his habit Four hours longer, and more than four times so long as the college boy on his stint of nine and a fraction. The cigar smoker is puffing busily away during one-third of his waking hours, and probably seventy five per

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

NOW is the time, Mr. Retailer, when you can get in your best licks with advertising window cards. It's a well known fact that advertising of this nature secures more attention and obtains better results in the mild half of the year than in the cold weather. People move slower, loiter more, and are more ready to be beguiled in the spring and summer, and so this is just the time you want to get busy.

There is a pulling power, in a good window card, that can hardly be overes timated. You have doubtless noticed yourself, that whenever you have suddenly come across a display of smoker's goods that was particularly novel or tasty, you have experienced a sudden desire to smoke. You know, if you are a pipe smoker, that you have never gone by another man's window full of handsome pipes but what you wanted one, just like any ordinary consumer.

Well, the window card is to attract the attention of the man who is accustomed to passing shop windows without looking in. He is the man who would pass by a hundred windows, and if they contained nothing but the regular stock, would never hesitate.

A card is bound to be conspicuous. The artistic lettering, surrounded by an area of white card will compel the passer by's eye as nothing else among the ordinary forms of display. It is human nature to want to read every announcement that is put up in black letters and meant to be read.

Notice the crowds that stop in front of every newspaper office to read the bulletins, and you will be able to pick out half of them who wouldn't care two straws what was on the bulletins, but who stop just for the sake of reading them.

Just so, the man who passes your window card. He reads the sign as a matter of course without expecting or caring much, but if you have said anything on the card, and he is a smoker, as he probably will be, you have got his interest at once.

One man the writer knows of, used to go out every pay day and walk around among the cigar stores. He read the offers in the windows and sampled all that happened to hit his fancy. He would come home loaded down with stuff in a varied assortment, and he got as much fun out of it as the boy who goes to buy his Fourth of July fire works. He and his friends usually managed to get rid of the stuff before the next pay day.

Find some particular thing to call attention to, and if you haven't any particular bargain to offer, select some one thing to call attention to. You can t secure any results from a general card, such as; Our Goods Are the Finest in Town; We Defy Competition. Nobody is impressed with such truck as that. Ask any dealer, and he will be likely to tell you that he sells the best in town. If he told you you could get something better around the corner, you would consider him a lunkheaded chump, and walk out of his store.

Advertise one thing at a time, and change your cards frequently. There is no better way of keeping your store in the public mind than by changing its appearance frequently. The store that presents the same window front week in and week out might as well keep its curtains down, so far as the regular passers-by are concerned, because it enters into the regular perspective as much as a barber's pole, and nobody sees a barber's pole unless he is looking for one. You don't want to depend on customers who are looking for a cigar store, unless they are looking for yours.

As a matter of fact, a cigar dealer of experience ought to be an advertising expert. If he has been in the business for any length of time, he has seen dozens and dozens of different brands of cigars and smoking tobacco put on the market and advertised by every method known to advertising.

The dealer is the best judge in the world of how much success the different brands have met with, and how far mere advertising can go when not backed by quality. He has seen good cigars fail to catch on because they weren't boomed enough, and he has been able to note just how much the average consumer is impressed by clever promises made in advertising.

In a word, his experience ought to enable him to guage the probabilities of human nature, as responsive to advertising, and he ought to reap a golden benefit from this knowledge. Very few dealers are experts in this direction, though, probably because they don't put their minds on it. A dealer ought to keep tab on every new brand of any importance that is put on the market, and watch not only his own sales of it, but those in other localities, which he can often learn with fair accuracy by hearsay, provided the one who supplies the information has no ax to grind.

The writer, for instance, has no doubt, whatever, that he could start out in any city, and in two hours, secure an accurate estimate of how well any particular cigar was selling. When the dealer has determined that the cigar is not selling, he should try to settle in his own mind why it is not, and if it is selling, he should discover the reasons. It sounds like a lot of trouble and moon dreaming, but it pays.

Goods are being sold more and more every day on the strength of advertising, and the advertising that tells the public about a cigar and then sets it down in your store will soon not be enough. You will have to continue the good work to get the customer in your store.

And to hark back to the beginning of the article, the best way to do that is by window cards, and the best time to do it is now. The more you know about advertising methods and their probable results, the better and more successful window cards you will contrive.

The appeal to the public is the same, whether it occupies an entire page in a great newspaper, or the entire side of a building. You must have something quick and short to say and a reason for saying it. It's easy enough to attract attention, but if you haven't any excuse to back you up when you've caught the attention, you're in the position of the boy who arrests a friend by calling his name, and then asks him how far he would have been if hadn't stopped him.

When you get ready to write your window card, select from your offers the best one or two, according to the number of cards you want to write, and make the offer or offers in the briefest, and at the same time most forcible, manner you can command In making your selection, put yourself in the place of your customer, and try to imagine what would make the most impression on you. If you can get yourself into a frame of mind where you feel like taking advantage of your own offer, then you have got the right sort of material for a card.

THEY'RE THE BEST BUT THEY COME HIGH.

"THE best cigar box is made of Spanish cedar," said a Milwaukee tobacconist. "All our imported cigars come in Spanish cedar boxes. Look here."

He opened a box of beautiful, costly cigars, and the odor diffused through the shop was indescribably pleasant, an odor half of tobacco, half, as it seemed, of spices.

"That spicy smell—do you notice it?" said the dealer. "Well, that is the smell of the Spanish cedar. It communicates itself to the cigars, and so delicate and subtle is it that it actually improves their flavor.

"If we put up our goods in chestnut or walnut or pine boxes the flavor of the wood, impregnating the tobacco, would ruin the cigars entirely; hence moderately good cigars are put in a box that is quite odorless, and the best cigars are put up in this aromatic and costly box."

A PERFECT PIPE.

A. FRANKAU, the pipe manufacturer of London, has a pipe on the market which the company declares is perfect. It is their Morell MacKenzie pipe and is universally known on the other side of the water. Its specialty is a patent cartridge of absorbent paper which is placed in the stem, and which takes up all acrid matters which are likely to pass into the mouth of the smoker. Sir Morell MacKenzie is one of the most noted physicians of the kingdom, and the pipe received its name as the result of the distinguished medico's approval of it. A package of cartridges accompanies the pipe.

KEEP THE SUMMER DUST OUT OF YOUR STORE.

NOW that spring is here and it is warm enough for dealers to leave their store doors open, it is well to remember that this privilege brings an extra penalty. The store has to be cleaned much more frequently if it is to look as clean as it ordinarily does during the winter time.

The spring and summer winds are likely to blow clouds of dust in the store at frequent intervals, and this has its effect on the appearance of the store and stock.

For some reason, dirt shows much plainer in summer than in winter and the average customer hates to walk into a dirty or dingy store. It is hard enough to get a man indoors on any account during the hot weather, but it is a good deal easier to get him into a clean, cool and inviting looking establishment than one of the sort that shows the results of neglect.

The average retailer now a days has to fight for every dollar's worth of trade that cuplicates, and he must do it by observance of small details.

Don't be less enterprising than the apple man on the corner who never grows tired of putting an extra polish on his goods so they may the more easily attract the fickle eye of the consumer.

MONUMENT TO THE CIGARETTE.

A LAFAYETTE, Ind., tobacco dealer who is also a humorist, has arranged the interior of his show window, to represent a miniature graveyard, prominent in which is a mound backed by a tombstone. This bears the following epitaph:

THE CIGARETTE.

PEACE TO ITS ASHES.

Killed by the Indiana Legislature, February, 1905.

It is reported that many a fiend drops a tear as he passes by on his nerve racked way

JAPANESE EMPRESS SMOKES SILVER PIPE.

A SILVER tobacco pipe with a stem ten inches long is used by the empress of Japan. The bowl is small; in fact, only a quantity of tobacco sufficient to give the smoker two or three whiffs can be put into it, then the ashes are knocked out and the pipe is carefully cleaned before it is refilled—a process gone through many times in the course of an afternoon.

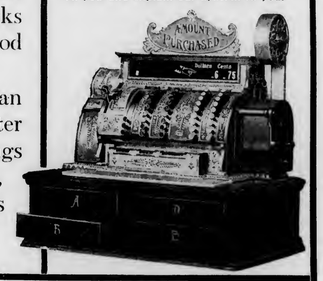
T. B. ERWIN and H. C. Meyer, of Britt, Iowa, have invented a machine for automatically selling cigars, which consists of an apparatus for vending cigars from a box or other receptacle in which the cigars are packed in separate holders, which are attached at intervals of equal length to a flexible web or strip, preferably of paper. The construction makes it impossible for persons to obtain articles from the machine by fraudulent means. The improvement may be embodied in machines for vending other articles.



National Cash Registers make careful and ambitious clerks. Your clerks will welcome the handling of the five most important daily transactions in your store—cash sales, credit sales, money received on account, money paid out and money changed—by an accurate, automatic system. Each clerk has his separate cash-drawer so that he is only responsible for the transactions which he handles.

Lighten the burden placed on your clerks and you have their good will.

The good will of an employe means greater efficiency. This brings satisfied customers, increased business and more profits.

A National Cash Register furnishes a complete system for handling the transactions in any retail store.

Let one of our representatives call on you and explain our system to you.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. BUYS HEAVILY IN HAVANA.

The Combine's Buyers Took Nearly 2,000 Bales Out of the Market During the Week, Most of Which Was of Low Priced Goods. Other Activity Shown in Spite of Easter Vacation.

HAVANA, April 24, 1905.

Quite a movement took place in the Havana market notwithstanding the fact that the past week was Holy Week and the majority of the business places were accordingly shut up from Thursday afternoon till Saturday morning.

The trust was the heaviest single purchaser, as it took from 1,500 to 2,000 bales of old Vueltas out of the market, mostly low priced goods. The independent manufacturers from the North, and also from here, operated quite largely in old and new crop styles, however, so the aggregate sales reached a fair total, considering the season of the year.

Prices remain firm with a hardening tendency, as the dealers have refused to accept bids which did not come up to their expectations on all vegas which will keep during the summer. Partido tobacco seems in no demand at the moment, although if it should prove true that the new crop will give us a smaller amount of fillers than usual, there ought to be a call for it later on.

Remedios tobacco is actively solicited, but as the stocks are insignificant in Havana, while for the few unsold parcels very high figures are asked, no business can be done to merit attention.

As far as the new crop of Vuelta Abajo is concerned one large Northern manufacturer stated to your correspondent that, from what he had seen so far, he believed the 1905 crop would be about evenly divided in the styles produced by the 1902 and 1903 growths, or in other words one half would be of the desired light, aromatic quality, while the remainder would be of the heavy, rank and uncured yellow leaf, which caused such a heartburn to all manufacturers who were finally compelled to use it because there was no better to be found, but which hung as a drug on our market for over two years.

The explanation is easily to be found in the state of the atmosphere, as part of the crop had beneficial, timely rains, while the remainder was raised and harvested without the showers. As Vuelta Abajo is principally used by the clear Havana industry, and only a small part for the so-called seed and Havana cigars, light, aromatic fillers are chiefly called for here as well as in the United States.

Partido wrappers owe their popularity to the lighter colors of the leaf, and notwithstanding all the agitation made so far, are still more called for than ever. The difference in the taste of a Vuelta Abajo wrapper and one from the Partido is as day to night; still the smoker who wants to please his eye more than his palate prefers the latter, because he imagines a light colored wrapper must be indicative of a mild tasting cigar.

The Remedios crop may be a trifle larger than at first anticipated, provided the green tobacco on the poles should dry off in good condition.

during the past week run up to 5,311 bales in all, or 4,846 of Vuelta Abajo, 115 of Partido and 350 bales of Remedios. The American buyers took 2,195 and the local manufacturers and a few dealers 3,116 bales.

Exports during the week just past were 3,840 bales to the various ports of the United States and 25 bales to Buenos Ayres.

Buyers Come and Go.

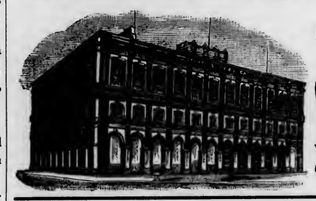
Havana Cigar Manufacturers

this week worked only four days instead of six, as all of the factories shut down on Thursday and started up again today. Business is slack, and there is no incentive yet to hurry the few accumulating orders, which are mostly from the United States and South America.

H. Upmann & Co. are doing a satisfactory business in the famous H. Upmann brand, and shipped 400,000 cigars last week.



Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. work the same as previously reported on Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co.

Por Larranaga cannot complain, as Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, holds good orders from the United States and Canada.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Santaella & Co. purchased 700 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Manuel Lazo sold 1,500 bales of old and new Vuelta Abajo. He will move to 199 Manrique street on May 1, where he will have larger accommodations for his increasing business. He has bought quite heavily of the new crop, and among his purchases is the famous vega of Pinar del Rio, El Incinan.

Fred Davis was a buyer of nearly 400 bales of Vuelta Abajo for his firm of Sam I. Davis & Co.

Oscar Reinach has secured between 200 and 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios leaf for the Fernandez Hnos. Co., of Tampa.

Simon Batt has made some purchases of the new leaf already, and as usual selected only the finest for his La Verdad factory, which will thus be in a condition to compete successfully with any Northern factory.

Jose F. Rocha closed out 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

S. L. Goldberg e Hijos have done an excellent business, as they had a number of customers to attend to.

A. M. Calzada & Co. sold 225 bales of Vuelta Abajo. They bought two large vegas of Vuelta Abajo in Las Ovas and Paso Viejo which they will pack themselves. They shipped 60 bales to one of their Tampa customers.

David del Monte has made some good, large sized purchases of old and new leaf, but refuses to give further particulars. He is still in town and hard at work.

A. Pazos & Co. sold 215 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido during the past week.

Voneiff & Vidal Cruz continue actively at work stripping for their customers. Don Francisco Vidal Cruz will start his Vuelta Abajo escojida at the beginning of May.

G. Salomon y Hnos. turned over 197 bales of Vuelta Abajo, and while Don Sol has gone to look at their Mexican leaf interests, Don Harry has gone to Manicaragua, thus leaving Don Jose Gonzalez at the helm in Havana.

The Norma Martinez Cigar Co. has bought 250 bales of high grade Vuelta Abajo leaf.

Bruno Diaz & Co. disposed of 160 bales of Vuelta Abajo, including 10 bales of new Partido wrappers, to a local factory.

Manuel Suarez & Co. are very busy here, while Don Jose Mendelsohn keeps up the good work at the New York end.

Fernando Gutierrez & Co. made a few small sales, amounting to 146 bales of Vuelta Abajo, to local factories and also to one Northern manufacturer. They start today the escojida of their famous vega Cayo la Rosa in the Partido district.

Jose F. Iribarren has established himself at 94 Dragones street as a dealer in leaf tobacco, and intends to make several escojidas in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido sections, with the assistance of Don Alfredo Valdez, who was formerly with the Luis Martinez Havana Co. Don Jose left last Tuesday on a business trip to Key West, Tampa and New York to see his various customers personally.

Rodriguez, Bautista & Co. sold 140 bales of Vuelta Abajo. They started their Artemisa packing last week, and at the head of it is Don Manuel Santi Banez, the well known and intelligent veguero. They expect to open their San Antonio de los Banos packing on May 1, under the supervision of the highly esteemed and experienced veguero Don Jose Mendez Sierra. Your correspondent saw these vegas personally and they contained some of the finest, silkiest, light colored leaf that could be raised.

Jose Menendez closed out 128 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

Aixala & Co. have secured and purchased extensively of the finest grown vegas in the famous Tumbadero district. They paid a very high price for one large vega and will commence packing early in May in San Antonio de los Banos. Of Remates they have bought sufficient to make 2,500 bales, and will open their escojida there about May 15.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez continues to buy heavily in the Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Garcia & Co. shipped 335 bales of leaf per steamer Morro Castle, but Don Antonio Suarez has opened his packing in La Salud, and has purchased largely of this year's crop of Partido.

Jose H. Cayro e Hijo are working already in their Vuelta Abajo escojida at Puerta del Golpe, and will shortly start two packings in La Salud and Santiago de las Vegas.

On account of a cry of fraud raised by a local contemporary, that other than Cuban leaf was returned to the port of Havana lately, special experts among dealers and manufacturers were appointed to examine the importations. Two of the latter were declared to be unmistakable Vuelta Abajo and Remedios. The third lot, however, brought here from Germany, was declared by one set of experts as not being of Cuban origin, while another set of experts declared it to be Partido leaf.

This has created a momentary stir, but it is hard to understand how any foreign tobacco could be brought here with the stringent rules adopted to prevent any smuggling of foreign leaf, unless there was collusion between the exporters and the custom house officials abroad. The manufacturers and dealers here are too jealous of their interests to permit any smuggling of another country's tobacco, as it would destroy the supremacy of the leaf which Cuba enjoys.

The upshot of this may be that a law will be passed to prohibit the free re-importation of Cuban leaf, and that in future all tobacco or cigars will have to pay $5 per pound duty, whether foreign or re imported Cuban leaf.

NEW YORK, May 1, 1905.

The retail market picked up again with the passing of Easter, and though a good many people returned from their outing apparently broke, there was still enough money to buy smoking. There were one or two days of the week when the weather was pretty rocky, but according to several Broadway dealers the week averaged up satisfactorily.

Now that May has come around again and the store doors can be left open as a regular thing, business will be on the boom; at least until, as was stated in last week's letter, the beaches and resorts open.

The commencement of the base ball season is also a factor in stimulating trade, together with the early arrival of the open street cars.

Of course, the manufacturers are benefiting by the good retail business, but according to reports picked up here and there last week, orders are coming in pretty evenly from all over the country. The manufacturers are still grumbling on account of the prices they have to pay for their leaf, but a number of them are finding consolation in the fact that business is so good that they have to buy it. If the season was so flat that the majority of the manufacturers would have to lay off hands instead of advertising for them, they would be in much worse shape than they are now placed in by the uniformly high quotations in the leaf market.

Very few complaints are heard from such traveling men as are returning from their trips or passing through the town, and there seems to be a reasonable certainty of a steady spring and summer.

There was little doing in the leaf market, although the latter part of the week saw a few transactions, enough to prove that there is still demand. Sumatra is selling well, despite the high prices, although several buyers, after making inquiry, held off with the idea that the prices will later break. Some little business was done in Pennsylvania goods, with a fair demand for Connecticut Havana seed. There was not so much done in Havana goods as was the case two or three weeks ago, but the dealers who make a specialty of this variety of tobacco believe that the lull will be temporary.

New York will be well represented at the annual convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association which opens in Lancaster today, and it seems fairly certain that President A. Bijur will be elected to succeed himself. The general sentiment is that Mr. Bijur has served the organization most faithfully and has not hesitated to sacrifice his own time and interests to the betterment of the association. Mr. Bijur is one of the best informed and most progressive men in the leaf business in this city and country, and the association is to be congratulated on being able to secure the services of such a leader.

The officers and directors of the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association met at the Hotel Astor last Tuesday and discussed, principally, the resignation of John Landstreet and the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co. of which Mr. Landstreet is President. It was decided that no immediate attempt be made to fill this vacancy, First Vice-President H. J. Miller serving in the executive chair until the next annual meeting of the association in October.

Mr. Landstreet's action has been discussed by the trade at large ever since he announced his purpose of withdrawing from the organization, and it now develops that the Patterson Co. had really never been a member of the association, owing to the fact that its credentials and resignation were presented at the same time.

Considerable regret was occasioned by Mr. Landstreet's action, as he is a very popular man. It is known that some of the association's views did not meet those of the retiring President, that his step was taken because he believed that the least trouble would be caused by his quiet withdrawal. Mr. Landstreet stated that his action was taken because he was not in sympathy with the policy adopted at the annual meeting in Philadelphia some months since, and under those circumstance he felt that he could not properly remain President. He said that, personally, he had the best feeling toward the association and its members.

Those present at the meeting were: Vice President H. D. Miller, S. S. Block, C. Drucklieb, A. Miller, R. F. Whelan, Hugh Campbell, John W. Surbrug, J. Larus, Chairman Membership Committee, Sam H. Harris, Acting Secretary.

Mr. Larus, Chairman of the Membership Committee, reported that his committee had several properly qualified applications for membership before it, and the same would be reported upon after investigation. Hugh Campbell also reported that several manufacturers had asked that proper forms for application be sent them. The Secretary was ordered to see that papers were sent to the names given by Mr. Campbell.

John W. Surburg, Treasurer, stated that the association had now more paid and regular members than it had according to his books the previous year, and that both the treasury and membership were in excellent condition. Several of the officers present made enthusiastic remarks.

It was regularly moved and seconded that the next regular annual meeting of this association be held October 3, 1905, at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Apropos, of this, the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of this city, also met last Tuesday evening, and during the session expressed deep regret over Mr. Landstreet's resignation. The subject was introduced by President Robert E. Lane, who spoke of Mr. Landstreet's splendid qualities and tried to describe the loss which his retirement would represent to the Manufacturers' Association. It was decided to send a letter to this effect from the association to Mr. Landstreet.

It was also decided at this meeting to give an entertainment on the evening of the regular meeting, May 23, for which some unique feature will be arranged. The members of the Brooklyn Association will be invited.

The committee on the exposition reported the progress which it has made.

In order to facilitate certain work, this committee was discharged with thanks, and a new one appointed. This consists of Robert E. Lane, Thomas J. Donigan, W. W. St. John, Sydney J. Freeman, and Fred B. Aschner.

The following was sent from Elmira, N. Y., in reference to the judgment against Joseph Mayer's Sons, of this city, in favor of M Rothfuss, of Corning, as administrator of the estate of John M. Burt, the latter of whom was one of the farmers with whom the New York firm had an argument over tobacco contracts some time ago. The story as told by the Elmira correspondent is as follows:

It will be remembered by tobacco gowers and jobbers that four years ago last month there was considerable ado as a result of the socalled general repudiation of a contract of purchase for tobacco in what is known as the Big Flats district. This takes in a large territory, embraced in Chemung and Steuben counties, where some of the finest and most saleable tobacco in the country is grown.

The alleged repudiation was by Joseph Mayer's Sons, of New York city, whose representatives had been to this vicinity and contracted for large quantities of tobacco to be delivered at the cars by growers. At the time of the delivery the representatives of the Mayers, who came to Big Flats and vicinity, are alleged to have brought with them summonses in large number, and according to the statements of the growers, were served on the spot, after the examinations of the respective crops at the point of delivery.

The growers had previously been notified by the New York firm to bring the tobacco to the Big Flats station for delivery, and they had no suspicion that their goods would not be accepted, and were not in the least prepared for the sensational turning down that tobacco got generally in the neighborhood.

The circumstances that papers had been prepared in New York before the persons to examine the tobacco came into the county of Chemung, indicated to the farmers, according to subsequent contention made formally in court, no intention on the part of Joseph Mayer's Sons to take the tobacco. Tobacco was rejected generally on the ground that it was "green, unripe and not in a merchantable condition."

The complaints against the farmers were practically identical. The action by the Mayers against the farmers was to recover damages claimed to have been sustained by the New York firm through the failure of the farmers to deliver the kind of tobacco contracted for. This stand of the Mayers was considered remarkable and unusual in the light that the complaints had been drawn, it is claimed, before the tobacco had been examined by the Mayers, and was the best tobacco that the growers could have raised for that particular season. In fact the defendants claimed that it was all that they had agreed with the Mayers that it should be.

The litigation with the Mayers on account of the season's crop took in between two and three dozen farmers, and all but one complained at one stage or another of the proceeding with the Mayers; in each case as understood the plaintiffs paying more or less substantial sums to the farmers in settlement. The amount, however, was much less than the farmers felt themselves entitled to.

Besides defending the actions brought by the Mayers the farmers commenced cross actions They sold the rejected tobacco in the local market at the best price obtainable and sued to recover the difference between the selling price and the contract price, also asking damages for the alleged refusal of the Mayers to live up to their part of the agreement.

One man who refused to settle was M. Rothfuss, of Corning, as administrator of the estate of John M. Burt, deceased. Mr. Rothfuss obtained a verdict before a New York city jury in supreme court for the full amount of his claim for the sale of tobacco with interest and costs. The Mayers appealed, and the past week the appellate division of the first department handed down a decision affirming the verdict of the lower court in favor of Mr. Rothfuss. The affirmance was unanimous.

Mr. Rothfuss' claim when he began suit in the spring of 1901 was $1,000, and it is now $1,900. He has been represented throughout the proceedings by A. C. and J. P. Eustace, the Mayers having prominent New York attorneys. Tobacco growers and jobbers throughout the country have been watching the proceedings, and lawyers, too, have had an eye on the progress of the case.

READING BUSINESS ALL RIGHT.

Factories all Have a Share and Steady Volume is Recorded.

Reading, Pa., May 1.

There is a fairly good business among Reading manufacturers, as a rule, and a few factories are very busy.

Howard W. Reigel, who had been for everal years at 317 Penn street, is now superintending a factory in Iowa, and has sold his business out to one of his former cigarmakers.

Geo. W. Lehr has been on a week's trip in the coal regions, and just returned on Friday evening.

Dan Fleck, of the Fleck Cigar Co., is now busy in helping on the shipment of goods, and is again preparing for another extended business trip through the West, on which he will start about June 1. Chas. Fleck, the senior member of the firm, is still covering local territory, but is bringing in a large number of orders.

The Penn Cigar Co., which recently bought all the brands of Newcomet & Newcomet, have moved their headquarters to the building formerly occupied by the latter at 1138 Franklin street.

Kline & Hughes, who some time ago succeeded to the cigar box business of Boyer & Heilig, at 208 Cedar street, are doing nicely.

Cressman, Belknap & Cressman, proprietors of the Old Honesty Cigar Box Co., now at 634 Washington street, have changed their firm name by the retire ment of one of the Cressman's, the firm name now being Belknap & Cressman.

E. E. Kahler reports a steady trade but no particular boom, which is perhaps a more wholesome condition, all things considered.

J. G. Spatz, of J. G. Spatz & Co., informs me that he has every reason to feel satisfied with this year's business and the prospect for continued good trade. Before leaving for his next western trip Mr. Spatz will have completed preliminary details for the launching of a new brand of seed and Havana goods, which will be put up under the name of Heidelberg, and which is calculated to make a pleasing effect. In the first place the goods are to be strictly high quality, and made under the personal direction of Mr. Saltz, a member of this firm, who devotes his energy exclusively to the manufacturing department. In addition the goods and packages will be supplied with a label of highly artistic effect, with all other trimmings to suit, together with some of the most novel and effective advertising.

J. W. Ramsey, who has for eight weeks been confined to a hospital here with a broken ankle as the result of a fall on the ice, has at last left that institution, and taken up apartments at the Hotel Lauer. It is hoped that within a week or so he will again be able to get about.

A change has resulted in the the Bon Ton Cigar Co., at Ninth and Elm streets. Mr. Edwin T. Hellerick died about two weeks ago, and H. S. Hassler, the other member of the firm, has bought all Mr. Hellerick's interest, and is making some extensive improvements, both exterior and interior.

H. R. Eisenberg, a son of Mose Eisenberg, a well known cigar leaf broker of Cincinnati, was a visitor to this city last week, in the interest of L. Schmidt & Co., of New York, Sumatra importer, which firm he is representing, with local headquarters at Lancaster.

LANCASTER MARKET QUIET.

Trade Occupied in Entertaining National Leaf Association Convention.

Lancaster, Pa., May 1.

The local leaf market has had another quiet week, with a moderate volume of business among local jobbers.

Packers have, of course, been giving their attention to the new goods, and in fact, the stock of goods remaining in their hands is comparatively small, and can be sold without much effort.

Several advance examinations of some of the early spring packing appear to indicate that the goods are sweating finely and that there is much promise of the crops coming out very satisfactory.

With continued favorable weather, seed beds will make rapid progress. It will not require a great deal of time until plants will be large enough for setting out.

There is still much talk among farmers of the proposed increased acreage. They have, of course, felt much elated at the high prices they have been getting during the past couple of years, and seem to feel confident that in view of the present apparent scarcity of old goods, prices are likely to remain high, even with an increased acreage, and abundant crops.

There is, if anything, an improvement in cigar manufacturing circles, and business seems generally to be more active. The advent of the open door season is regarded as most favorable, and several manufacturers are now feeling its effects.

John Slater & Co., stogie manufacturers, are among the more fortunate ones who are in receipt of orders demanding rush shipment.

A. D. Killheffer, of Millersville, made a short special visit last week to some of his customers in Philadelphia and other nearby points. His factory is running full handed.

The charter of the Lititz Lithographing Company has been placed on record. The capital stock is $50,000, and the officers are: President, Dr. J. C. Brobst; vice-president, P. B. Bucher; secretary, W. J. Kressling; treasurer, H. Reist Landis; general manager, Joseph E. Hertgen. The plant of the Lancaster Lithographing Company, which is absorbed by the new company, will be removed to Lititz in a few weeks.

Everything is in readiness for the convention of leaf dealers which opens today. A great deal of enthusiasm has been aroused, and there is every indication that the occasion will be one of the most interesting as well as most largely attended of any during the past few years. Under the auspices of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, the delegates will be royally entertained, and every effort will be made to make their visit to Lancaster so thoroughly enjoyable and profitable, that it will be long remembered. The trade here is a unit in expressing happiness at having the convention held in this city.

—Every union cigar factory in Lansing, Mich., was closed about a week ago, on account of the demand of the employes for an increase in the scale of wages. The workmen asked one dollar a thousand more.

AN ERROR OF JUDGMENT.

The Tobacco World has taken occasion in several issues to reprint certain articles from the Chicago Journal comprising attacks on the United Cigar Stores Co. These articles have been reproduced for the single and only reason that the Editor of The Tobacco World believed that they were doing the independent cause much more harm than good.

An effort was made editorially and otherwise to point out the weakness of the articles and the illogical and utterly untenable standpoint from which their writer penned his attacks. The Chicago Journal has felt the force of this comment sufficiently to run to the "Chicago independent dealers' publicity department" and ask it to supply some sort of an answer. Securing this, the Journal then rushed into print with an accusation as unveiled as it dared that this paper is paid by the trust for the matter it prints relating to the affairs in Chicago. The article in question is as follows:

That The Journal's articles exposing the methods of the tobacco trust's retail stores drive home and are telling blows is shown by the championing of the trust stores' cause of an eastern tobacco trade paper. How much per line the trust pays for the attempted whitewashing process through the columns of that paper is conjectural.

"Its editors' cry for the live and let live phase of the question might appeal to every right thinking consumer if that was the policy of the tobacco trust," declared the head of the Chicago independent dealers' publicity department, "but the well-known fact that the sole purpose of the trust's entry into the retail business is to crush competition and to drive independent dealers from the field answers the trade paper's appeal to 'live and let live.'

"It is true that a great many smokers are no proper judges of cigars and would be unable by smoking to tell a 10 cent brand from one which would retail at a quarter," admits the trade paper.

"And right here is where the trust gets in its work with the smoker, playing upon his ignorance by displaying in their show windows cigars said to be made from the best tobacco grown in Cuba for 5 cents. This is a bare lie on the face of it," continued the independent dealers' official, "or else all cigars sold above 5 cents must be fakes."

The public understands well enough the philanthropic principles of all trusts and is fully alive to the tobacco trust's alleged pretensions that retail stores have been opened by them solely for the benefit of the public.

"The consumer who knowingly patronizes the tobacco trust's stores is his own enemy and has only himself to blame if he finds his health shattered from the use of adulterated cheap cigars purchased in these stores," says the tobacco expert of the independent dealers.

Continuing, he declares that Chicago smokers will in time appreciate the aggressive and fearless stand taken by The Chicago Journal in exposing the foul and faker like methods pursued in the trust's retail stores in contrast to the paid-for pro trust articles referred to in the eastern trade paper.

In the first place The Tobacco World takes it for granted that The Chicago Journal is hopelessly confirmed in the error of its ways. In sorrowfully accepting the above printed interview as bona fide, we dismiss the newspaper from the case with the statement that the news department of the paper commenced the crusade after its advertising department had secured a handsome advertising contract from the independent dealers.

The head of the independent dealers' publicity department certainly must be a man of intelligence and discernment or he wouldn't have been selected for the position. Surely he knows that there is nothing so reactive as mere abuse such as has been heaped on the chain stores in The Journal's articles. Surely he does not approve such raw and crude methods.

The policy of this paper doesn't enter into the question. So far as that goes let it be stated once for all, The Tobacco World is not a trust paper, and neither the trust itself nor any member of the corporation so-called, has the slightest influence in its editorial columns. On the contrary, this paper has the greatest interest in the independent retailers' associations and has always been eager to print the news of their movements. We have no sympathy for the chain store idea, for its inevitable goal is the throttling of a free business.

It is for this very reason that we have ridiculed The Journal's misguided articles and if these were really inspired by the independent dealers in the Windy City, we ask them to think it over carefully before passing judgment, and see what proportion of statements they will admit to be not truthful and not even plausible.

In regard to the cigar claimed a Havana, and sold for a nickel, we would suggest that the publicity man go a little slow on that, for there are a whole lot of sore corns waiting to be stepped on. If every cigar advertised Havana or contained in a box marked Havana or Habana were to be thrown out on failure to pass a test requiring its filler to be made of tobacco grown in Cuba, there would be a considerable number of independent as well as chain stores with sadly depleted stocks. It is just as well not to dwell on this point.

What we take most exception to is the tiresome reiteration of the accusation that the trust's stores sell poisonously adulterated cigars, with no direct evidence to back it. Such statements carry no weight with the fickle public and defeat their own purpose.

Use your own judgment. A customer goes into a chain store and receives prompt attention, and at least gets what he asks for. He goes into an independent store and hears a lot of abuse showered on the chain store. Which store is he likely to select for regular patronage?

We assuredly hope the Chicago dealers maintain their independence on a profitable basis and in order that this hope may be consummated, we again ask them to think it over and see if we're not right.

INDIANA LAW A BOOM FOR MAIL ORDER HOUSES.

According to Assistant Attorney General C. C. Hadley, cigarettes can be mailed into the State of Indiana without any infringement of the new anti-cigarette statute. Moreover, a firm can advertise in Indiana newspapers a promise to deliver the forbidden commodity by mail on order, and the authorities cannot raise their hand.

The only way in which it might be possible to prevent such an evasion of the law, would be to get after the consumer who takes the package out of the mail, and arrest him for having cigarettes in his possession. But there is a judical difference of opinion on this point, even, and it is not believed that such extreme measures will be adopted as a rule.

Advertisements are appearing in the largest newspapers in the State, placed there by mail-order concerns, who obviously expect to reap a splendid reward as a result of their timeliness. One advertisement offers "all the popular brands of cigarettes at regular prices, adding one cent per package for shipping; also cigarette papers five cents a package."

It is truly an ill wind that blows good to nobody. The unfortunate part of this breeze is that it is blowing a lot of money out of the State that should remain in.

AT ITS spring meeting the Cincinnati Presbytery passed a resolution "earnestly deploring" the use of tobacco and intoxicating liquors on the part of ministers, elders and members of the church.

One member, who is probably not precisely anxious to give up his tobacco, made an eloquent statement to the effect that it made no difference what went into a man's mouth, but what came out of it was a matter of vital importance, and that tobacco and wine were not to be considered in comparison with scandal, gossip and backbiting.

There is a goodly proportion of decidedly wholesome truth in the reverend gentleman's remarks.

CIGARETTES or cigarette paper cannot be purchased on the passenger trains of the Lake Shore any longer. The news companies have just been notified that the sale of them will not be tolerated on the trains. Other roads, it is believed, will take similar action.

Here and There With the Retailers

Cutting out the rainy weather, last week was a good one for the retail market. The Chestnut street stores especially, did good business, some of them reporting the best week since the first of the year.

Taken all in all, though, April has been an unpleasant month and one which has brought little joy to the retailers. It is fervently hoped that May will behave itself and give a man a chance. Box trade was pretty good last week and is likely to continue so, although as the warm weather arrives more men are likely to buy their cigars as they go along, in the evening.

Atlantic City is getting a perceptible share of the week's business, and will get an increased portion as the season advances. Dealers have learned to expect this, however, and some of them have gotten away with the situation by establishing stands in the City by the Sea.

The United Cigar Stores Co. opened its new branch at Second and Market streets last Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. The store is on the southwest corner in the building formerly occupied by the Bainbridge Shoe store, and has been fitted up in the characteristic style of all the company's stores. The usual first-day inducements were offered of a double certificate to every purchaser, a metal ash tray to the purchaser of a box of cigars, a Tabard Inn Library membership as a premium on $5 worth, a Dunlap hat on an additional percentage of value, and so on. The store had a good run of business, and as it is in a good location will probably continue to have. The United has been after this section of the city for a long time.

I. Lewis & Co. sent a big crew of men over on Monday of this week under the direction of Wm. Turk, and the men will do missionary work in this city on the company's new Golden Eagle brand of little cigars. Mr. Turk will arrange a number of effective window displays, and he will find that under the direction of Z. John Morris, the brand is pretty well known in this market already.

I. Lowengrund is catching a good deal of business at his Tenth and Chestnut street store, the indow in which is always arranged with a view to catc the Chestnut street promenader's eye

Coates Coleman, on Fifteenth street, says he has no complaint at all on his business this month, and the same can also be said of Yahn & McDonnell, a half block away.

W. K. Roedel, Eleventh street dealers finds his The Philadelphia cigar as popular as ever, and he is proud of the fact that he has a cigar good enough to always duplicate.

Hancock & Adams says they're busy, and they ought to be. These energetic partners have always got an idea for a good window, and the result is that their stand is one of the tastiest little places along the line

The United News Co. is having a new store fitted up near the Fifty-second street station on the Pennsylvania Railroad, where all the brands handled by this company may be obtained.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Manfacturers report that with the close of the Lenten season and the arrival of May, one of the best months of the year, orders are coming in much more freely. Those local manufacturers who do much business in Atlantic City have been busy keeping up with their orders, as the leap in the retail trade down there has been something.

One or two manufacturers, during the week, admitted that they were more or less surprised at the number of orders which their road men had sent in during the last few days. It was expected that business would be fairly good but it was hardly hoped there would be a sudden jump immediately after Easter. Some factories are working all the hands they can get and have quite as much business as they want to attend to. In these cases, though, it is usually one particular brand that, for certain reasons, is being driven.

Every few days we hear of a new firm of manufacturers commencing business and they all seem to be able to get their share. As a traveling salesman remarked in a Chestnut street cigar store the other day: "There is always room for one more and one more is always taking advantage of that fact." The month undoubtedly shaped up well with the majority of manufacturers and they will carry forward a good balance.

The Vicente Portuondo Cigar Co., of Cuthbert street, is receiving some nice orders from the South on its clear Havana brands and the company reports April as a good month. The factory is working to its capacity now with a considerable number of orders ahead.

B. Lipschutz, head of the new "44" Cigar Co., named from the address of Mr. Lipschutz's store on North Twelfth street, is pushing his famous brand into a wide market, and the cigar can now be seen nearly everywhere one goes. The quality of the brand has carried it a long way and the company's energetic methods and have done the rest.

Teller, Kleinsmith & Co., of 806 Walnut street, a new firm of manufacturers, have entered the market for keeps and will put out a number of brands of high grade cigars. Leopold H. Teller and Isidor Kleinsmith are the two partners named and both of these gentlemen are experienced in the cigar and tobacco business. They already have a good line of custom upon which they can count.

H. Blumenthal, of Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., is at present in the West, and when heard from during the early part of the week, he was in Kansas City, and had booked some good cigar orders for the firm's Masterpiece and Statesman brands of cigars.

F. B. Robertson, the factory representative of the Match It cheroot manufacturers—the Manchester Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Baltimore, Md, has just returned from a week's sojourn at Atlantic City, where he had gone upon the advice of a physician, to recuperate. He was quite sick for several weeks, and his many friends will be glad to see him about again.

The manufacturers are glad to see the open trolley cars come gliding out of their winter stables for it means increased business. A surprising number of men have to spend a good share of their business day on the trolley cars and in the winter time they are unable to smoke. With the arrival of the summer car these men immediately crowd on the three back seats and there is a jump in retail sales at once.

Owing to the untiring efforts of Arthur Hagan & Co. the Red Devil brand is to be seen everywhere in this section, and is having a good local sale. Hagan & Co. have the direction of a large number of well known brands of tobacco in this section, and as a result each one of them is popular. No little share of this missionary work must be credited to J. Harvey McHenry.

W. J. Thompson, formerly a leaf tobacco salesman with Sutter Bros. and other houses, has taken a position as traveling representative with Julius Alvarez & Co., of Allentown. His territory includes Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and other more Southern points. He is now on a trip South.

The National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association Meets in Seventh Annual Session.

DELEGATES ENTERTAINED ROYALLY AT LANCASTER.

A. Bijur Re-elected President, Charles Fox Elected Secretary in Place of S. H. Koenig. Association Adopts Resolution on Dock Weight and Opposes Further Reduction in Philippine Tariff. Next Convention to be Held in Dayton, Ohio.

Lancaster, Pa., May 2.

THE NATIONAL CIGAR LEAF TOBACCO ASSOCIATION opened its seventh annual convention in the Hamilton Club in this city yesterday, and while a considerable amount of business was disposed of, it was done so systematically that the convention was able to adjourn this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The majority of the delegates remained over this evening to take advantage of the attractive entertainment features so lavishly provided by the local association.

One of the most important items of business transacted by the convention was the election of officers and the appointment of committees. The officers were selected as follows:

President, A. Bijur, of New York; Vice-President, Louis Newburg, of Cincinnati; Secretary, Charles Fox, of New York; Treasurer, Felix Eckerson, of Philadelphia. Board of Directors: B. A. Kaiser, Boston; Wm. Lukaswitz, Dayton; Julius Frei, Cincinnati; Julius Vetterlein, Philadelphia; J. Gust Zook, Lancaster; William Taussig, Chicago; I. L. Kemper, Baltimore; B. Haas, Hartford; T. Menninger St. Louis.

The following standing committees were appointed: Legislative: John R. Young, Philadelphia; Joseph Cullman, New York: Henry S. Rothschild, New York; E. R. Hecht, Chicago; J. Oberhelman, Cincinnati. Credentials: M. M. Fry, Lancaster; B. A. Kaiser, Boston; L. A. Wheeler, Troy; Leo Tuska, Chicago; H. Meyer, Cincinnati. Finance: B. Rosenwald, New York; I. H. Cranz, New York; Robert Granat, York; R. W. Jenkinson, Pittsburg. Arrangements: A. H. Reeder, Dayton; Louis Newburg, Hamilton, O.; Thomas Menninger, St. Louis.

There was no contest over any of the elections.

That the delegates enjoyed themselves both in and out of convention sessions was evident, and the comfort and agreeable entertainment which was provided for them, speaks well for the Lancaster association. Everything passed off in the best manner possible, and reflects great credit on those who had the affair in charge. The local entertainment committee consisted of I. H. Weaver, A. B. Hess and M. Rosenthal.

The opening of the first session yesterday morning found a goodly number of delegates in attendance, and it was announced that more were to arrive during the day and the next day. Among those presenting credentials yesterday were the following

Meeting Called to Order.

The convention was called to order by President A. Bijur, and in the absence of Secretary Koeniz, W. L. Cromse, the association's Washington representative, was appointed secretary pro tem.

J. Hampton Moore Talks.

J. Hampton Moore, chief of the Bureau of Manufactures of the Department of Commerce and Labor, was then introduced and spoke for about a half hour. He spoke in favor of the Department of Commerce and Labor, and the country. Mr. Moore then stated that his purpose in accepting the invitation to come before the association was to bring to the attention of its members the law creating the Department of Commerce and Labor, which in its Section 5 also established a Bureau of Manufactures, the purpose of which was to "foster, promote and develop" the manufacturing interests of the United States, and the markets for its products both at home and abroad. He said that the Department represented the good intent of the Congress of the United States to advance the material interests of all its people. The speaker also outlined the history of the Department and referred to the causes which led to its formation, and then declared that it was time that such an association as the one he was addressing should know that the Government was working for them.

Welcoming the Delegates.

Following Mr. Moore, J. Gust Zook. president, and on behalf of the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, welcomed the delegation. During his remarks he briefly outlined the importance of Pennsylvania as a tobacco State, and explained the suitability of Lancaster as a meeting place for the National Association.

THE PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

President A. Bijur then read his annual report, as follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention:

In tendering my report to the Seventh Annual Convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association I wish, first, to direct your attention to the very satisfactory condition of the Association itself: there is a complete absence of friction between the Association and the local organizations, which are its constituent members; its finances are in good shape; its membership is growing, thereby increasing its influence and its power to benefit the tobacco trade; it has established close relations with all of the tobacco trade organizations, and it can point to results definitely achieved by reason of the existence of a strong trade body, and demand the reasonable inference that the Association is only at the very threshold of its career and usefulness to the tobacco trade of the country. Credit for the prestige and the successes attained by the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association during the past year must be given in the fullest measure to the officers of its previous administration, as it is by the development of their plans and purposes that your present officers are enabled to make a gratifying report of what has been accomplished by the organization. The Association has been committed since its beginning to a wide and liberal view of its scope and functions, and the benefits achieved by its activities will apply rather to the tobacco trade at large than to the immediate business interests of our members as packers, dealers or importers of cigar leaf tobacco, though these have by no means been lost sight of; but it has been found that our own interests are so bound up in those of the manufacturers, the growers, the retailers, and even the departments of the government, that it is impossible for us to view anything pertaining to the welfare of any branch of the tobacco business except with the liveliest interest and most painstaking attention.

Philippine Tariff.

You are all aware of the hard fight the Association made against the proposal to reduce the tariff on Philippine tobacco and its products 75 per cent. from the Dingley rates, and you know that we have met with success thus far. Early in the last Presidential campaign Secretary Taft made an attempt in his campaign speeches to commit the Republican party to a policy of free trade with the Philippines. Taking alarm at once, strong representations on this subject were made by your officers to the different tobacco interests, and the storm of protests resulting with absolute unanimity from a trade composed of hundreds of thousands of men forced the cessation of this attempt on the part of the Secretary of War, and the advisability of reducing rates on Philippine tobacco went to Congress as an open question. You will remember that Messrs. Young, Cullman and I were invited, as representatives of your Association, to address the New England Leaf Tobacco Growers' Association at their annual meeting at Springfield, and you will be glad to learn that we and they have ever since been working in harmonious accord for the defeat of the Philippine reduction project. All of the cigar leaf growers' associations, retail dealers' associations, tobacco manufacturing associations, and the Cigar-Makers' Union, have joined us in our fight; and when the Southern growers' association learn, as we have done only lately, that the Philippine Islands manufacture annually 4,500,000,000 cigarettes, or very considerably more than the quantity of cigarettes consumed annually in the whole United States, we believe they will lend us enthusiastic aid; this will make the entire tobacco industry a unit in opposition to the Philippine tariff reduction measure, with the reservation that the position of the American Tobacco Company is unknown as regards this matter.

You know of the storm of protests that poured in on Congress from the tobacco trade when the Ways and Means Committee began its consideration of the Philippine tariff; you know of the hearing given by that Committee to the trade, and the arguments employed, as each member of the Association has received a report of that hearing. You know, too, that the project of a reduction will be revived in the next Congress, and that it will require our utmost efforts to defeat the scheme.

The demand for a reduction in the tariff rates on Philippine tobacco comes from two sources, our own Secretary of War, Mr. Taft, and from the Philippine tobacco trade, a great part of which is in the hands of Europeans. These Manila concerns naturally clamor for entry into our markets, but they absolutely fail to make out their case that the Philippine tobacco industry has suffered greatly because of the American occupation of the islands. There is no interest taken by the American public in the matter, and the many newspaper editorials endorsing the reduction on Philippine tobacco are so obviously inspired by the War Department in Washington that they may be disregarded as reflecting in any way public sentiment. We can dismiss the influence of the Philippine tobacco trade's demands with small consideration, because we can disprove their statements; we can disregard the newspaper editorials, because they contain little but abuse of us, and it is so screamingly obvious that we as tobacco men know better what will injure us than editorial writers, who know nothing of our business. But Secretary Taft's activity is a matter of the greatest concern to us. Every one knows him to be an able and energetic gentleman, with goodness, ability and resourcefulness written all over his person. He has great influence with President Roosevelt, and his position as Secretary of War adds to the influence his personality alone would have on Congress. He has not hesitated to use any means in his power to further the claims of the Philippine Islands, whose cause he has made his own; it is peculiar that, blinded perhaps to the niceties by the desperate desire to carry out a philanthropic purpose, this high-minded gentleman should use methods that he would be the first to condemn were they employed by a professional lobbyist. If the proposed junket to Manila, on which Secretary Taft intends taking an influential body of Senators and Representatives at the expense of the Philippine treasury, under the scarcely decently veiled pretext that a ten-days' stay in the islands will enable them to become familiar with Philippine trade conditions—if this junket is not a barefaced bid for voters in favor of the tariff-reduction project next fall, then the dinners, theatre parties, and other entertainments given heretofore by professional lobbyists have been innocent, and have been criticized without reason. We dare not, even if we would, answer these tactics in kind; their very impropriety shows us how hard a battle we shall have to fight, and will make us redouble previous efforts.

I do not intend discussing the details of the Philippine tariff-reduction question in my report, but I trust that they will be discussed earnestly by the convention. Your officers and your Legislative Committee are unanimous in the belief that no measure containing so many possibilities of harm to our trade has ever menaced us. I believe that equal prosperity for the Philippines may be achieved in other ways than at the expense of our industry, and that the Philippine tobacco trade will be made prosperous by its home demand when other industries, not competing with our own domestic ones, shall have been built up in the islands. The proposal that the United States impose a duty on coffee, excepting that grown in Porto Rico and the Philippines, seems to be a fair way of distributing the burden of making our island possessions prosperous, as it imposes an expense that all of our people and industries will share, and does not put the cost of charities done by the United States as a nation on the two industries, sugar and tobacco, that have heretofore alone been called on to bear it. It is high time that our legislators in Washington should show some ingenuity in providing benefits for our island possessions, and resort to other methods than continuous attacks on our sugar and tobacco industries.

I urge that a very full discussion of the Philippine tariff problem be held at this Convention, and that plans for carrying on our opposition to the excessive reductions proposed will be developed.

Cuban Reciprocity.

The Cuban Reciprocity Treaty which took effect December 27, 1903, has now been in force sixteen months. So far as general results in the way of expanding our trade with the island of Cuba are concerned, statistics are yet lacking for a conclusive demonstration, no figures compiled by the Cuban Government for a later period than the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, being available. So far as the tobacco trade is concerned, the tendency thus far manifested has borne out fully the predictions made by the officers of this Association when the treaty was under consideration in Congress. The very large proportionate reduction in the duty on cigars, as compared with that on leaf tobacco, has greatly stimulated imports of cigars, while our receipts of leaf tobacco have materially declined. For the calendar year 1904, our imports of cigars showed an increase as compared with 1902 of more than 75 per cent., while the decline in the imports of leaf tobacco during the same time was about 3,000,000 pounds, or 30,000 bales. I have chosen the year 1902 as the basis of this comparison for the reason that, as the trade will remember, conditions in 1903 were influenced by the pendency of the reciprocity treaty, dealers and manufacturers carrying small stocks to avoid loss should the treaty unexpectedly go into force.

A very determined effort has been made in certain quarters, and especially by those who have urged the reduction of the duties on Philippine products, to show that there has been a large increase in the exports of United States products to the island of Cuba as the result of the treaty. Even if this were true, it would be cold comfort to the domestic tobacco trade to learn that a few producers in other lines have increased their business with Cuba at our expense. As a matter of fact, however, no figures are yet available which furnish a fair basis for any such claims. It is immaterial what the increase has been in our general exports to Cuba; the real question is, have American exporters furnished a larger share of the total imports of the island? On this point the latest official information is far from flattering to the Cuban treaty. In his annual message to the Cuban Congress, which recently convened, President Palma, quoting the statistics for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, states that the share of Cuban imports contributed by the United States during the year was 42.5 per cent., as compared with 40 per cent. for the year 1903. The actual increase in the imports of American products is given at 15 per cent. over those of 1903, and but .03 per cent. over those of 1902. It is not surprising, in view of this showing, that the Havana Post should be moved to make the following comment upon the effect of the treaty:

"In the light of these figures we fail to see how it can be reasoned that reciprocity has been of any benefit to the United States. It appears to us that all the benefit has accrued to Cuba, and this being true, would it not be wise for Cuba to be prepared to make other advances to the United States, for when the full knowledge of the facts becomes patent in the United States a feeling is going to be created against the Cuban Reciprocity Bill which may cause its hasty repudiation, and no one knows will fail to recognize the harm that such an action would cause."

The Cigar Import Stamp.

One of the most gratifying incidents of the year, and one to which the members of our Association may refer with a very proper pride as reflecting the advantages to be gained through organized efforts, is the change in the customs stamp formerly placed on boxes of imported cigars. A large measure of our success, however, should be credited to the intelligent and courageous action of Assistant Secretary Robert B. Armstrong, to the fairness and impartial spirit manifested by the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Shaw, and to the unswerving policy of President Roosevelt to give every interest, big or small, "a square deal."

My predecessor outlined in his last annual report the circumstances that led up to the reference of this important question to the Treasury Department, and predicted that within a short time a satisfactory solution of the problem would be reached. The matter was then in the hands of Assistant Secretary Armstrong, who had begun a careful investigation to determine the necessity for an import stamp of any kind, the circumstances under which the existing conspicuous stamp had been adopted, and the practicability of abolishing the device or rendering it much less conspicuous. The Treasury experts soon satisfied themselves that what was originally intended as a mere check mark to indicate the payment of the import duty on cigars had unjustifiably been expanded into an elaborate poster widely advertised as "an official patent of excellence."

The solicitor of the Treasury having rendered an opinion that a customs stamp of some kind must be placed on imported cigars, Mr. Armstrong caused to be prepared a design for an inconspicuous stamp, resembling in color and general appearance the internal revenue stamp, to be placed on the bottom of the box, and in due course made public his ruling in the matter. Although, as you are well aware, the subject was one that had been freely canvassed in the trade for more than a year no protest against the proposed action was made in any quarter until the plates for the new stamps were well under way, when the American Tobacco Company, through its legal department, filed a formal objection, which it subsequently supported in an extended brief. Not content with these measures, the trust also invoked powerful political influences, and brought strong pressure to bear upon Mr. Armstrong to induce him to rescind his ruling. The tactics thus employed were thoroughly characteristic of this corporation, and their failure in this instance will afford all independent tobacco interests far more gratification than was derived from the mere abolition of the old import stamp.

Following the usual practice in such cases, Mr. Armstrong gave a hearing to the protestants at the New York customs house, but subsequently announced that no evidence had been adduced that would justify any modification of his ruling. President Roosevelt's attention having been drawn to the matter, he decided that, in view of the peculiar features of the controversy, it would be advisable to permit both sides to be heard at a public hearing before the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. H. A. Taylor. This hearing proved a notable event. Besides the officers and representatives of your association, there were present representatives of the Clear Havana Manufacturers' Association, a number of well-known cigar manufacturers, representatives of the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association, several officers of the American Federation of Labor and the Cigar Makers' International Union. The trust was represented by a member of its law department and an official of one of its constituent companies. The hearing was protracted and elaborate, and exhaustive arguments were presented on both sides. A complete stenographic report of the hearing was then laid before President Roosevelt, and after several conferences at the White House, participated in by the President, the Attorney General and the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, a decision was rendered which was subsequently announced by Secretary Shaw, who returned to Washington to give the matter his personal attention. In deciding the case the Secretary said:

"The testimony establishes the fact that the present stamp is used as a trade-mark by the cigar importers; that this trade-mark is valuable to them and confers an advantage upon them as against the manufacturers of cigars in the United States, and that cigars are, in effect, the only commodity imported into the United States that receive the benefit of such a trade-mark. In view of the fact that this Government stamp, in its present form, undoubtedly gives a pecuniary advantage to those using it, it seems that the order already issued by the Department is, in its essence, proper. The Government's business is to collect the revenue and to provide so far as possible against fraud; but it is not the Government's business to furnish a guaranty in the form of a trade-mark for the benefit of the goods. This should be left in the tobacco business exactly as it is in all other business.

"The Secretary permits the order made by Mr. Armstrong to stand so far as it relates to reducing the size of the stamp and to attaching it in a less conspicuous place on the box. He reverses the order wherein it required the stamp to be of the same color as the internal revenue stamp, and it will be placed on the bottom of the box, instead of the top, but at the end where it now appears opposite the internal revenue stamp.

"The result of the decision will protect the domestic manufacturer from a customs stamp available as an advertisement, and it protects the importer also by giving him a stamp of a distinctive color, which can be seen by the purchaser if he cares to make examination.

"The Secretary has given orders that new plates be prepared for printing the stamps, and placing them upon the boxes of imported cigars, in acordance with the decision reached."

It would be idle after so short a lapse of time to undertake to measure the advantages secured by the domestic cigar trade in the important modification of the import stamp thus brought about. The overshadowing consideration to be kept in mind is the notable victory over a powerful corporation by a combination of independent interests banded together in a just cause. The far-reaching effect of such a triumph cannot be overestimated, and should inspire us with an irresistible enthusiasm in all our future campaigns.

"Estimating" Contests.

The National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association has been completely successful in establishing its view that the estimating contests conducted by the Floradora Tag Company have been in effect lotteries and, therefore, illegal. You will remember in this connection that it was deemed necessary in the effort to bring this question properly before the Court to cause the technical and purely formal arrest of the editor and proprietor of the United States Tobacco Journal, Mr. Isman Ellison, a gentleman favorably known to the entire tobacco community; his published avowal of responsibility for whatever appeared in his journal did away with a great many legal difficulties surrounding an attempt to bring the question at issue home to the editors of other papers publishing the advertisement complained of.

District Attorney Jerome, Assistant District Attorney Gaus and Samuel H. Guggenheimer, counsel to the Association, all of New York, conducted the case brought to sustain our contention.

Defeated in the New York Supreme Court, and in the Appellate Division, our case was appealed to the highest State Court, the Court of Appeals. By a unanimous decision that Court found the advertisement complained of to be the advertisement of a lottery, and its further publication was necessarily stopped in New York at once upon the rendering of this decision.

Immediately after the announcement of the decision of the New York State Court of Appeals in this case I forwarded a copy of the opinion of the Court to the Association's Washington representative, with instructions to take the matter up with the Post Office Department, in the hope that the Postmaster General would see his way clear to establishing a comprehensive rule covering all such contests. At that time a peculiar condition of affairs existed in the Post Office Department. Rulings similar to that made by the New York Court of Appeals had been handed down by other tribunals in various jurisdictions, but the preponderance of opinion in Federal Court decisions favored the legality, though not the morality, of this class of contests. The decision in the Floradora case, however, was so sweeping and so strongly fortified in law and good morals that the Postmaster General at once decided to refer the entire subject to the Attorney General for his opinion. When Attorney General Moody took the matter up for consideration he found on the files of the Department of Justice the opinions of two of his predecesors declaring such contests to be within the letter, if not the spirit of the law; nevertheless, with the additional light shed upon the subject by the decision of the New York State Court of Appeals, he had no difficulty in reaching the conclusion that such schemes were unquestionably in violation of the Federal Anti-Lottery laws. In the course of an elaborate opinion forwarded to the Postmaster General, Gen. Moody said:

"The Court in this case proceeded upon the broad ground that it was not necessary to bring a scheme within the inhibitions of the statute that the distribution of prizes should be dependent wholly upon chance, but that if the scheme was not a legitimate business enterprise,' and the distribution was dependent largely upon chance, the statute was violated. . . .

"Conceding that the estimates in such a contest will be to some extent affected by intelligent calculation, the question is, nevertheless, irresistible that it is largely a matter of chance which competitor will submit the nearest correct estimate.

"The estimates cannot be predicted upon natural and fixed laws, since the total number may be affected by many conditions over which the participants in this scheme have no control, and cannot possibly foresee."

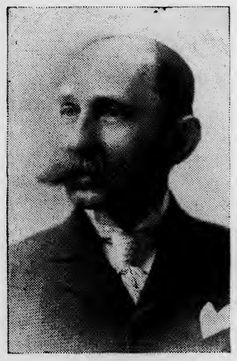
In conclusion the Attorney General said that in view of the construction given the law by the Supreme Court of the United States and the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, he was "constrained to disregard the ruling of this Department previously referred to," and to advise the Postmaster General that he was authorized to deny the use of the mails in the future to all such schemes. The opinion thus rendered was promptly adopted by the Post Office Department, and has been promulgated for the guidance of the entire service. Many contests were at that time under way on the basis of permission previously obtained from the Department, but no permits for such schemes have since been issued, and contests of this character have now been entirely abandoned.

Having been established beyond question that the enterprise conducted by the Floradora Tag Company was a lottery run under the name of an estimating contest, it is the contention of our Association that this violation of the law, even though carried on in a guise that made it seem probable that the provisions of the various anti-lottery statutes had been successfully evaded, should not go by without some deterrent penalty being visited upon the offending company, or the corporations for which it was serving as a cloak. To this end we have worked with the District Attorney of New York County, Mr. Jerome, and urged him to bring suit against the Floradora Tag Company, the American Cigar Company, the American Tobacco Company and the Continental Tobacco Company to recover from them the sum of $287,500, the amount offered as prizes for the so-called estimating contests, and which is forfeited to the poor of the County of New York under the State anti-lottery statutes. It is to be expected that the American Tobacco Company's attorneys will endeavor to prevent the bringing of this suit on the ground that they made inquiry of the Post Office Department and discovered that it would not at the time of inquiry exclude newspapers carrying this "estimating" advertisement from the mails, and on the ground that some of the lower courts virtually declared that the scheme successfully evaded the anti-lottery statutes. Our Association is not actuated by motives of spite or revenge; but if a trust can gather the fruits of an evasion of the law for three years, and when this evasion is finally laid bare and made ineffective, and a clear violation of the law on its part shown, if the trust is to go free simply on the ground that its hope of having successfully evaded the law has been disappointed, then it becomes a hopeless task for an independent association to see to it that the law is observed with equal respect by the great combination and the small individual merchant. Our counsel, Mr. Samuel H. Guggenheimer, has been instructed to assist the District Attorney in any way possible in the carrying on of this suit, and it is our reasonable hope that Mr. Jerome and Assistant District Attorney Gaus will bring this case to a successful issue. The suit has been begun, and if success can be attained, a sturdy blow will have been struck at the most miserable practice of the great corporation in perhaps following the letter, but violating the spirit of the law, a reprehensible effort that seems to occupy a great part of the time of the learned legal gentlemen whom they retain annually.

In this connection, as well as in the probable event of an investigation of the trust by the Federal Government, it is to be carefully noted that we have never expressed hostility to corporations as such, nor do we in any way deny their absolute right to compete with us fairly and legally. But we have long felt it necessary to keep close watch on their business methods, as it has seemed to us that they have been ever ready to take advantage of loopholes left in the laws. Whenever and wherever it is possible, it must be our function to call the attention of public officials to evasions of the law, and to call on them to inflict the penalties provided when we can prove that the law has been violated. The great corporation has the advantage of its wealth, in that it has no additional expenses for legal services enterprise,' and the distribution was dependent largely upon chance, the statute was violated. . . .

"Conceding that the estimates in such a contest will be to some extent affected by intelligent calculation, the question is, nevertheless, irresistible that it is largely a matter of chance which competitor will submit the nearest correct estimate.

"The estimates cannot be predicted upon natural and fixed laws, since the total number may be affected by many conditions over which the participants in this scheme have no control, and cannot possibly foresee."



In conclusion the Attorney General said that in view of the construction given the law by the Supreme Court of the United States and the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, he was "constrained to disregard the ruling of this Department previously referred to," and to advise the Postmaster General that he was authorized to deny the use of the mails in the future to all such schemes. The opinion thus rendered was promptly adopted by the Post Office Department, and has been promulgated for the guidance of the entire service. Many contests were at that time under way on the basis of permission previously obtained from the Department, but no permits for such schemes have since been issued, and contests of this character have now been entirely abandoned.

Investigation of the Tobacco Trust.

The methods pursued by the so-called Tobacco Trust, not only in the purchase of its raw material, but in the sale of its finished products, have attracted much attention during the past year, and it will be gratifying to our members to know that the methods employed by this concern are now being carefully scrutinized by the Department of Justice with a view to ascertaining whether an action for violation of the anti-trust laws can be sustained. At the date of our last convention, there was pending in the House a resolution prepared by Representative Tawney, calling for an investigation of the Trust by the Bureau of Corporations of the Department of Commerce and Labor. At the same time, Representatives John Wesley Gaines, of Tennessee, and several other Congressmen from the export tobacco districts were using their best efforts to induce the Attorney-General to make a case under the Sherman law. Mr. Gaines' efforts finally resulted in instructions to the United States Attorney for the District of Tennessee to begin an inquiry, and subsequently a special attorney was appointed to assist him in the work, the selection falling upon a lawyer peculiarly well equipped for the task.

At a later date a committee appointed by the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association called upon the Attorney General and the Chief of the Bureau of Corporations, and laid before them a large amount of information with respect to the methods employed by the Trust in the enforcement of exclusive contracts designed to shut independent goods out of the markets. Not long after a second special attorney was appointed to assist in the inquiry. It would not be proper at this stage of proceedings for me to attempt to outline what has been accomplished in this investigation, but it is confidently believed that the results will be of great value to all independent interests.

MR. LOUIS NEWBURGH,
Elected Vice President

During the closing days of the last session, Representative Kehoe, of Kentucky, presented a resolution in the House calling upon the Secretary of Commerce and Labor to make an independent investigation of the situation in the export tobacco districts with special reference to the manipulation of prices, and the restriction of competition by the Trust. Had it been deemed advisable to pass this resolution it would have been broadened so as to include the sale of manufactured products, but after conferences between the advocates of this measure and the Attorney General it was decided that the work of the Department of Justice would probably be embarrassed by a second investigation, and the resolution was, therefore, permitted to die in the House Judiciary Committee. I violate no confidence in saying that while the Department of Commerce and Labor has as yet received no instructions from Congress to investigate the methods of the Tobacco Trust, it is gathering a large amount of valuable information concerning its practices, and is in a position to report thereon upon very short notice should Congress deem it advisable to direct a special inquiry to be made.

I call upon all of the members of our association to extend their aid in every conceivable way to the representatives of the Department of Commerce and Labor, should assistance or information of any kind be asked for.

Anti-Coupon Legislation.

No attempt to secure the enactment of a Federal anti-coupon law was made during the last session of Congress, as it was recognized that no measure of this kind would have an opportunity of consideration. As the Otjen-Tawney bill, which had received our endorsement, and been favorably reported to the House in the previous session, had lately disclosed certain possibly unconstitutional features, it was determined that a new bill be drawn up ready for introduction at the first favorable moment. This has been undertaken by Mr. John Landstreet, and he has evolved a measure whose main feature is that it provides a tax on the redemption of every premium device possible in connection with packages of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, snuff, etc. This measure is constitutional beyond doubt, and has the endorsement of our association. I bespeak for it the hearty support of all of our members.

Dock Weight and Tariff Revision.

We have met with no success at all in our efforts to have the Government levy duties on the withdrawal weights of packages of tobacco instead of on dock-weights. But a splendid opportunity to secure this change will come next fall, if, as is probable, Congress shall decide to revise the tariff. There will be no opposition to this change in duty assessment from any tobacco interest, and I believe it should be possible for us to come to an understanding with the growers' associations, so that they will aid us in securing relief from the unjust imposition of customs duties involved in the method used at present. I am sanguine of securing the growers' assistance for any fair relief we may ask, as I take it that we all recognize that the tariff readjustment contemplated will be a very moderate one, and that our expectations will express themselves in accord with the possibilities. If we can agree with the growers and manufacturers before revision of the tobacco schedule is taken up by Congress I feel confident that we shall find that body very ready to give us fair and reasonable treatment. I recommend the matter of the revision of the tobacco tariff schedule to your earnest consideration, and advise that you indicate as plainly as possible the course regarding it you desire your new administration to pursue.

MR. A. BIJUR,
Re-elected President National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association.

Attempt to Repeal Bank Law.

It is with a feeling of gratification that I know you will share, that I am able to report to you the absolute failure of an attempt made during the closing days of the last Congress to repeal the Federal bankruptcy law. My predecessor, in his last annual report, described the steps taken from time to time by this association, in co-operation with the leading credit organizations of the country, to resist the movement having for its object the repeal of this most useful statute. Throughout the entire Congress efforts were made to bring forward certain of the score of pending bills proposing to strike the bankruptcy law from the statute books, but the strong opposition of the majority of the House Committee on the Judiciary rendered these attempts abortive until within a few days of the end of the session. At a meeting of the committee summoned for the consideration of other matters, the so-called Clayton bill, providing for the repeal of the law, was called up by its author, and in the absence of four of the majority members of the committee, a report favoring repeal was ordered to be sent to the House. The extraordinary position assumed by the committee in making this report may be gathered from the following extract therefrom:

"It has never been the policy of the United States to have a permanent bankruptcy law. We think that the present law has served its purpose, and that it should be repealed. . . . We do not believe that there is any necessity or any general public demand for the longer retention of the law. It has tended to burden the Federal Courts with litigation which, we believe, could be just as well conducted by the Courts of the States. Doubtless the people of the various States uphold honest laws, and the Courts of the various States administer justice as honestly, faithfully, and fully as do the Federal Courts. Bankruptcy law and other unnecessary Congressional legislation, creating new civil remedies and new penal offenses, are burdening the Federal Courts, and the administration of justice is not bettered thereby."

In view of the consistent record of this Association in favor of the maintenance of the Federal Statute, I deemed it my duty to advise the Chairman of the House Committee of our views on this important matter, and I, therefore, addressed to him the following communication:

"Hon. J. J. Jenkins, Chairman Committee on the Judiciary, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

"Dear Sir:—I desire on behalf of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, of which I have the honor to be president, to file our earnest protest with your committee against the passage of the so-called Clayton bill, providing for the repeal of the Federal bankruptcy law.

"The members of the organization which I represent were among the most energetic supporteds of the movement which resulted in the enactment of the present statute, and they have all found in the practical operation of the law the amplest justification for their course. They recognized during the course of the first year or two after the law went into force that it could be improved by certain amendments, which were afterward incorporated in the so-called Ray bill, and enacted by the last Congress. The weak points in the original statute having thus been strengthened, the operation of the law has since been highly satisfactory, and I think I may say that the tobacco trade at large regards it as one of the most important statutes in the entire body of Federal commercial law.

"There is perhaps no trade in this country in which an equitable Federal law is more necessary than the tobacco trade. Before the existing statute was enacted, we were dependent upon a patchwork of legislation comprising the codes of the various States, and great animosity was always experienced by creditor firms in securing fair and equal distribution of a bankrupt's estate. The preference permitted under the statutes of the various States gave special advantages to local concerns, and it was almost impossible for a house with a moderate capital to protect itself in all of the States in which it might desire to do business. This condition involved a discrimination in favor of a few very large firms not only in our own trade, but in all other lines, as only such firms could employ attorneys in all the States for the protection of their claims.

"The argument presented on behalf of the committee in the report favoring the Clayton bill, to the effect that a Federal bankruptcy law should never be regarded as a permanent part of the commercial statutes, is, to our mind, the greatest possible fallacy. It has never been suggested that the State insolvency laws should operate intermittently, and we can see no reason why the Federal statute should be any less permanent. It is beyond question that the Federal law has conferred great benefits upon both debtors and creditors, and has increased the confidence of the commercial community to an extent that could hardly be appreciated, unless the statute should be repealed, when I am confident that many of those who are now disposed to criticise existing conditions would view the result with dismay.

"We cannot help realizing that the forces now at work to secure the repeal of this law are the same as those that opposed its original enactment. The motives behind this movement for repeal we do not care to discuss, but we are confident that we voice the almost universal sentiment of the business community at large when we appeal to your committee to abandon the Clayton bill, and to permit the Federal bankruptcy law to remain on the statute books.

"Very respectfully yours,

"A. BIJUR,

"President, National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association."

Although the Clayton bill bore the formal indorsement of the House Judiciary Committee, it was adopted by the minority of that Committee, and I am glad to be able to state that those members friendly to the Federal statute took occasion to file a very strong protest against the committee's action. This protest embodied an exceedingly able argument for the retention of the existing law. As the controversy will probably be renewed in the next Congress I think it well to quote here the concluding portion of this protest as affording a broad basis for any arguments that our members may see fit to address to Congress in future. It is as follows:

"The present bankruptcy law is economical, prompt and efficient. It is being well administered. The tendency of legislation, as of commerce, is Federal, not State. The forty-five State systems present few instances where all creditors are treated alike. They are diverse in provisions and practice, and in many cases permit preference to a specified amount. Each of them, in particular, for instance, that of New York, encourages friendly receiverships of failing corporations. The great argument in favor of the present law is that it is uniform in its operation; that it brings each creditor and each debtor in the country under its administration; that it treats all creditors alike, not only in giving them an equal share in the distribution of assets, but also an equal share in the naming of the administering officer. It is a law that is of great service to the country, not only in times of prosperity, but will be of even greater service in times of depression and business adversity. For these reasons we earnestly protest against the passage of the bill, and the consequent repeal of the law."

MR. CHARLES FOX,

The argument so vigorously presented in this protest served to deter the House leaders from providing an opportunity for the consideration of the Clayton bill, and it, therefore, failed of passage, much to the satisfaction of the entire business community. I would earnestly request you to keep this important subject in mind, and to be prepared to respond promptly should your officers find it necessary to call upon you to co-operate in the effort to prevent the repeal of this most efficient and desirable law.

Restriction of Bulk Sales.

Your attention was drawn by my predecessor to a measure pending in Congress at the date of our last annual convention, which is directly related to the subject of bankruptcy, namely, the enactment of a Federal law prohibiting the unrestricted sale by merchants of their stock of merchandise in bulk in the District of Columbia and the Territories. This bill, which was drawn on the lines of the present New York State law, passed the House of Representatives early in the last Congress, and was pending in the Senate at the date of our last annual meeting. It was subsequently passed, and became a law in the following form:

"Be it enacted, etc., that a sale of any portion of a stock of merchandise in the District of Columbia, otherwise than in the ordinary course of trade in the regular and usual prosecution of the seller's business, or a sale of an entire stock of merchandise in gross, in the District of Columbia, will be presumed to be fraudulent and void as against the bona fide creditors of the seller, unless the seller and purchaser alike, at least five days before the sale, make a full detailed inventory showing the quantity, and, so far as possible, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, the cost price to the seller, of each article to be included in the sale; and unless such purchaser shall, at least ten days before the sale, in good faith, make full, explicit inquiry of the seller as to the names and places of residence, or places of business of each and all of the creditors of the seller, and the amount owing each creditor; and unless the purchaser shall at least five days before the sale, in good faith, notify or cause to be notified, personally or by registered mail, each of the seller's creditors of whom the purchaser has knowledge, or can with the exercise of reasonable diligence acquire knowledge of said proposed sale, and of the said cost price of the merchandise to be sold, and of the price proposed to be paid therefor by the purchaser.

"The seller shall at least five days before such sale fully and truthfully answer in writing, under oath, each and all of said inquiries.

"Sec. 2. That nothing contained in this act shall apply to sales made by executors, administrators, receivers or any public officer conducting a sale in his official capacity.

"Sec. 3. That except as expressly provided in this act, nothing therein contained, or any act thereunder shall change or affect the present rules of evidence, or the present presumptions of law."

While the operation of this statute is restricted to the District of Columbia and the Territories, its chief importance lies in the fact that, being a Congressional enactment, it will serve as a model for the Legislatures of those States which have not yet provided similar legislation. Several States have passed laws modeled on this Federal statute since our last annual convention. I would earnestly repeat the recommendation of my predecessor that local associations lend their assistance to any movement in the various States designed to render these laws uniform.

THE DELEGATES, AS THEY LOOKED PLEASANT.

Changes in the Customs Personnel.

A number of important changes in the personnel of the Customs service of special interest to the tobacco trade have been made during the past year. It was with general regret that importers and manufacturers learned of the resignation of Robert B. Armstrong, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of customs matters. Mr. Armstrong brought to the discharge of his heavy responsibilities a high degree of intelligence, and a sterling integrity that won him the confidence of all who came in contact with him. His courageous stand with regard to the import stamp will not soon be forgotten. The members of the association will be glad to know that Mr. Armstrong left the service to accept an important position with a very prosperous corporation, the change resulting greatly to his financial advantage. Mr. Armstrong's successor, James B. Reynolds, has been in office less than two months, but is rapidly mastering the intricacies of what is undoubtedly the most important division of the Treasury Department. The relations of the representatives of your association with the new Assistant Secretary are most cordial, and in every way satisfactory.

Changes in assignments of general appraisers and examiners at the port of New York have been made during the year, but I am glad to be able to state that in no case have the interests of our trade suffered thereby. The officials of the entire customs service have exhibited increased consideration and conservatism as they have become better acquainted with the details of the leaf importing business, and have come to realize the great difficulties surrounding the execution of the impracticable tobacco tariff now on the statute books.

Sampling.

A great deal of complaint regarding lack of uniformity in the sampling of domestic tobacco has developed in the course of the year. In any treatment of this question it must be remembered that while it is important that every safeguard shall be offered to the purchaser of tobacco, no unreasonable burden must be placed on the sampler. A sampler's guarantee must have established limitations, but these should be so plain as to be readily comprehensible to the buyer; and above all, a sampling standard must be fixed. A very able committee of the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade recommended a number of provisions covering this subject to that body, after long consideration of the methods of sampling now in vogue; I recommend their report, which follows: to the consideration of this convention:

1. Inspectors shall use only "Guaranteed" for "Top Sample" tickets.

A. Samples bearing guaranteed tickets shall be guaranteed by the inspector.

B. Where top samples are drawn it shall be conspicuously so stated on sample tickets.

2. Tobacco to be represented as found; and where tobacco may be either damaged, musty, mouldy, or in high order, to be so marked on sample tickets.

3. Where the contents of a case of tobacco is in unmerchantable order, a record of such case to be kept by the inspector and the party for whom such tobacco may have been sampled so notified in writing.

4. No tobacco to be sampled with a guaranteed sample ticket affixed which is not sound or the sample ticket marked.

5. Inspectors shall agree with the Trustees of the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade during the month of July in each year on a period as to their liability on their samples of all new tobacco, which shall be advertised to the trade.

I recommend very earnestly that the services of Mr. W. L. Crounse, who has so ably represented our interests in Washington, be retained for the association for another year. Mr. Crounse's work has made him so well known to you that he requires neither introduction nor commendation from me, but I cannot refrain from saying that his splendid intelligence and wide grasp of tobacco trade matters have made him invaluable to the tobacco industry of the entire country.

I desire to express my gratitude to Messrs. Young, Cullman and Fox, of the Legislative Committee, for their invariably ready assistance and advice.

I want to thank the Leaf Board of Philadelphia and New York on behalf of our association for their very generous voluntary contributions to our funds.

I am delighted to say that I can single out no Leaf Board to thank for its activities in response to requests from the National Association, as each and every one of the Boards did all that could be expected whenever called on, and by this course of action very materially strengthened the hands of the officers of your association.

Looking at what we have done in the past year I think you will agree with me that we have made great strides forward. We can do much more, and we shall if we follow out the plans and policies that have heretofore guided our association. The tobacco trade is a great industry, worthy of respectful and Credential Committee.

After the appointment of a Committee on Credentials the meeting adjourned until after lunch.

At the opening of the afternoon session the Committee on Credentials, which consisted of Messrs. Burger, Cincinnati; Fox, New York; Kaiser, Boston; Tuska, Chicago, and Rosenthal, Lancaster, reported, and the meeting proceeded.

The next hour and a half was taken up by a discussion over the advisability of adopting the sampling provisions agreed upon by the New York Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, and as outlined in the latter portion of President Bijur's address. After a lengthy argument the resolutions were adopted practically intact and as follows:

Sampling Provisions.

1. Inspectors shall use only "Guaranteed" or "Top Sample" tickets. (a.) Samples bearing "guaranteed" tickets shall be guaranteed by the inspectors. (b.) Where the samples are drawn it shall be conspicuously so stated on sample tickets.

2. Tobacco to be represented as found, and where tobacco may be either damaged, musty, mouldy or in high case, to be so marked on sample tickets.

3. Where the contents of a case of tobacco is in unmerchantable condition a record of such case or cases to be kept by the inspector, and the party for whom such tobacco may have been sampled to be so notified in writing.

4. No tobacco to be sampled with a guaranteed sample ticket affixed which is not sound as the sample ticket shall indicate.

5. Inspectors shall agree with the trustees of the various Leaf Tobacco Boards of Trade, in connection with the directors of the National Cigar Leaf Association, during the month of July in each year, on a period as to their liability on their samples of all new tobacco, and which shall be advertised to the trade.

A suggested additional clause, to the effect that inspectors should be held liable for their samples of all tobaccos, except for damages occurring after inspection, was denounced as ridiculous and impractical and failed of adoption.

At the close of the afternoon session the guests entered special trolley cars and were taken to Pequa, on the Susquehanna river, where a delightful shad dinner was served and the balance of the evening was agreeably spent, the party returning about 11 o'clock.

At the beginning of this morning's session, Mr. Cullman offered a substitute for the sixth clause of the resolutions regarding sampling, which clause failed yesterday. This read:

Inspectors shall be liable for their samples of old tobacco for a period of six months, unless it can be proven by the inspector that the damage occurred after inspection.

This substitution was carried without discussion.

Mr. Newburg, chairman of the committe on resolutions, reported a number of resolutions which the committee had prepared, and which were taken up separately for discussion. The first was:

Resolved, That we reaffirm our position favoring a specific rate of duty on all imported tobacco

Mr. Vetterlein, of Philadelphia, offered an amendment mentioning 25 cents a pound as the specific rate, which was opposed, and on motion, lost. The original resolution was carried.

The second resolution read:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the convention that the efforts heretofore made to reform the dock weight question are heartily approved, and the officials of the association are hereby authorized to continue the work along the same lines and to obtain the desired legislation in connection with any revision of the tariff that may be undertaken by the administration.

This resolution was unanimously adopted without discussion. Mr. Newburg then read three resolutions on the Philippine question which were not taken up until afternoon and which will be treated in proper sequence in this article.

A resolution was then adopted to retain for another year the services of Wm. M. Crounse, the association's representative in Washington.

This was followed by the quick and unanimous adoption of resolutions that the thanks of the association be tendered to all the tobacco trade journals for their active support of the association's measures, to the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade for the courtesy and consideration shown in its entertainment of the delegates, and to J. Hampton Moore, for his interesting address made yesterday morning.

Mr. Taussig here made a motion that the constitution be amended through the by-laws, to provide for the regular meeting of the association to be held at the call of the chair, instead of on a set date annually as at present, the meetings to occur at least as frequently as every two years. After some discussion this was defeated.

Mr. Eckerson's report as treasurer, showed a balance on hand of $2,489.21.

Mr. Eckerson, for John R. Young, of Philadelphia, who was unable to be present, offered Mr. Bijur's name in nomination for re-election to the presidency, after declaring that Mr. Bijur had rendered the organization the greatest service that any man ever could.

Mr. Taussig dwelt on Mr. Bijur's able management of an exacting office that was virtually forced on him in the first place, and Mr. Dolbeer told how the president had sacrificed his business affairs at times and spent his own money freely in the interest of the association. The election was then enthusiastically carried through by acclamation.

Mr. Cullman offered Mr. Newburg's name for vice president; Mr. Batroff, Mr. Fox's name for secretary; Mr. Kemper, Mr. Eckerson's name for treasurer, and Messrs. Tuska, Cullman, Zook, Wheeler and Kemper were appointed a committee to name the board of directors. This committee reported as detailed in the introduction.

On behalf of the Dayton, O., Board of Trade, William Lukaswitz extended a warm invitation to the Association to hold its next convention in that city. Mr. Cullman said that New York had hoped to have the honor of entertaining the organization next year, but consented to wait a year in favor of Dayton. On vote it was decided to accept this invitation and the 1906 convention will accordingly open on the first Monday of next May in the Ohio city. The convention then adjourned until afternoon, on the opening of which session, following announcement of the standing committees appointed, the Philippine resolutions were at once taken up separately. The first one read:

Resolved, That we oppose any and all reduction in duties on Philippine tobacco or its manufacture.

Mr. Newburg moved that this be adopted. Mr. Alexander thought it ought to be modified in some way as he believed it conflicted with the resolution adopted in the morning regarding the specific rate of duty on imported tobacco. Mr. Vetterlein did not see this and thought it would be quite consistent. One or two of the delegates thought it would be advisable for the association to pass such a resolution as opposing the reduction on account of what it was hoping for in the matter of Sumatra tobacco.

Mr. Crounse said that it would be disastrous not to oppose it He said the association must stand shoulder to shoulder with the beet sugar people, that the association had already outlined a policy and must stick to it.

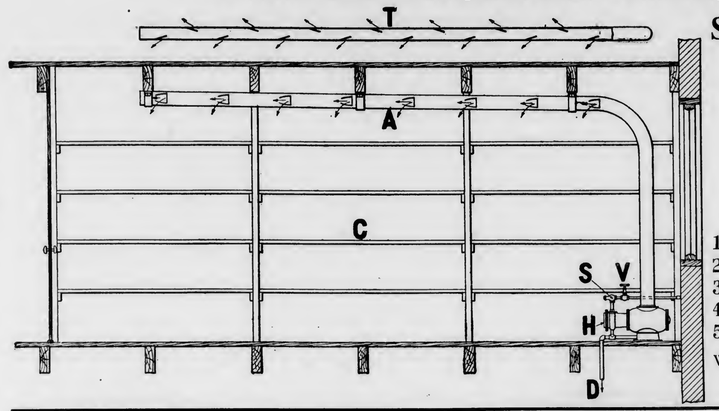
Mr. Newburg, the father of the resolution, explained its origin by saying that while there was no intimation that Congress would or could be induced to do anything in the matter of the reduction in the tariff on Sumatra, it was known that it was likely to reduce that on Philippine tobacco, and it was therefore important that such a dangerous step be forestalled.

Mr. Bijur said that the minute the reduction was permitted to go below the present 25 per cent, a beautiful chance for smuggling would be opened which would at once be taken advantage of. The question was then put and carried. The second resolution offered was:

Resolved, That the views of the Philippine question as expressed in the document presented by our Mr. A. Bijur be adopted as the sense of this convention.

To this resolution Mr. Bijur read a carefully prepared and comprehensive statement of the association's position in the Philippine question which outlined the history of the industry on the islands and showed how extensive and rapid a development was possible. It was urged that the placing of a duty on coffee would solve the question, which plant can easily be raised in the Philippines. This resolution was carried by a rising vote and the last one read as follows:

Resolved, That the legislative committee be instructed to prepare and have printed a circular letter on the Philippine question, and distribute the same to all parties interested in the cultivation and manufacturing of American cigar leaf tobacco.



Mr. Newburg said that this resolution was meant to provide a way to appeal to the farmers whose vote was so powerful, and the letter was meant to show him how his prosperity was also considerably jeopardized. The resolution was carried unanimously.

John T. Taylor, representing the Philadelphia Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, asked the the association to endorse a project set on foot by the allied trade in the Quaker city to hold a tobacco exposition at some future date. As the result of a motion, Messrs. Cullman, Eckerson and Fox were appointed a committee to investigate and report later.

After a vote of thanks to Mr. Bijur for his untiring services on a motion by Mr. Zook, the convention adjourned. The delegates were entertained at the roof garden tonight and later by a smoker in the Hamilton Club.

Boston, Mass., May 1.

There is no material change in business from the condition reported in my last week's correspondence and trade continues to improve. The appearance of open cars during the week has done a lot of good for the retail cigar stores, and the weather has been very favorable for the tobacconist.

De muth & Co., New York; Arguelles Lopez & Bro., Tampa; McGreenery & Manning, Boston; Phillip Morris & Co., New York, and many clear Havana cigar concerns, etc.

M. Frye, of Frye Bros., wholesale tobacconists, Salem, Mass., was in town one day this week.

It has been decided by the internal revenue authorities that the Union label of the Cigarmakers' Union can be placed on cigar boxes in any place or manner, so long as it does not encroach on or over the internal revenue stamp, factory brand or caution label. The decision is a victory for the Cigarmakers' Union and the label, over the tobacco trust, which tried to secure a decision opposing the label being placed on boxes of union made cigars.

NEW ASSOCIATION IN YORK.

Leaf Dealers Combine for Mutual Protection and Benefit.

York, Pa., May 1.

The leaf dealers and packers of York and vicinity met recently and formed an association for mutual benefit and protection as well as to become a part of the National Association of the United States.

The city of York has the distinction of being the third city in the State in point of varied manufacturing industries—including, of course, a large proportion of the 1,500 cigar factories in and within easy access to the city—while the quantity and frequently the quality of the tobacco raised in this county compares favorably to that of Lancaster county.

Such facts are probably true of no other tobacco and cigar section, and the need of urging the products and distributing a more general idea of the position in the trade of this city prompted the promotors of the association to act promptly.

R. M. Granat, of the firm of Gillin & Granat, was selected a delegate to the National Convention meeting in Lancaster today, and it is expected that he will be among the most active members of the convention, and will see to it that York is well represented.

Louis White, of this city, is perhaps the oldest cigarmaker in the United States He began at the bench in 1840, and has worked at the trade incessantly, with the exception of a short interval, when he plied a boat on the Mississippi. He is now 80 years old and works constantly at the bench. He is reported to average 400 cigars a day.

White says the greatest number of cigars that he has ever made in any one day was 2,000, whenhe rolled that number of stogies. He has worked in almost every cigar factory between this point and Philadelphia.

White was born in Pittsburg, and, judging from his activity and keen vision, he bids fair to make many more cigars.

Manufacturers throughout the county are not so busy as they should be at this time of the year, but there is an improvement setting in.

John E. Olp, formerly in the cigar manufacturing business at Jacobus, this county, but who also recently went through bankruptcy proceedings, is said to be taking hold of the Lafayette Cigar Store on South George street.

The Fernside cigar, made by Geo. W. Parr, which is on sale at the National Hotel, this city, was recently given a great booming, when a number of traveling men who knew Mr. Parr, started to plug for the Fernville, and in a very short time there was quite a run on it, in fact so much so that proprietor Reist could scarcely keep a stock of them on hand.

Fisher Bros. & Co., of Hanover, are apparently doing very nicely on their 10 cent leader, the Colonial Governors, and are building up a good local trade on the goods.

Smith & Sheffer, leaf dealers at Hanover, are having a good volume of business and say the greatest difficulty just now is the getting of goods that are suitable at a reasonable price. They sell themselves just now.

A. J. Brady & Sons, of McSherrys town, are finding a very healthy lot of duplicate orders coming in for their product, and are naturally very much encouraged in consequence.

DIDN'T PAY TAX ON STOGIES.

Internal Revenue Officers Make Arrests for Defrauding Government.

Cleveland, O., April 30.

Internal revenue officers after weeks of investigation have arrested three Italians and it is expected there will be uncovered an extensive scheme for defrauding the government. The men arrested are Joseph Naples, Joseph Laurionzo and Nicoli Poco.

According to the authorities hundreds of thousands of stogie cigars have been disposed of in Ohio without the payment of one cent of internal revenue.

In addition to being a distributor for a New York stogie manufacturing concern that manufactured and sold the goods without the payment of the required tax, it is asserted, Poco is charged with manufacturing stogies in violation of the internal revenue laws.

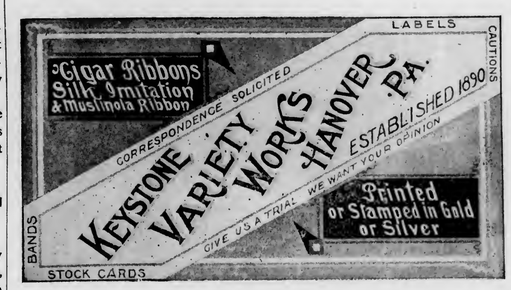
According to the government authorities the discoveries already made show that the government has probably lost something like $50,000, with the likelihood that additional information will show a largely increased loss.

The officials also expect to arrest the New York manufacturers, who, it is charged, have been making the illicit goods for distribution.

CIGARETTE YIELDS TO THE PIPE IN MARION, IND.

Marion, Ind., May 1.

Cigar and tobacco retailers in this city report a continued demand for cigarettes, in spite of the law. Among those who are inclined to abide by the edict, however, the pipe seems to be the favorite substitute for the cigarette. Dealers in this city say since the cigarette law has gone into effect the sale of pipes has more than doubled. The small pipe, suitable for carrying in the pocket, seems to be the demand. A number of the smokers substitute cigars for their smoking, but the pipe is the general favorite.



—Work on the new factory of the Rucker & Witten Tobacco Company, at Martinsville, Va., is progressing rapidly, and the new plant will be completed at as early a date as the weather will permit.

NEW PLUG PLANT IN CARROLLTON.

Wright & Caesar Co. will Probably Build One in Burley Section.

Carrollton, Ky., April 28.

Arrangements are being made, which if successful, will result in the establishment of a new plug tobacco factory in this city. John Wright,, of the firm of Cæsar & Wright, manufacturers, has paid a number of visits here lately for the purpose of looking over the situation and according to the statement he has made, reached the opinion that such a plant would be a profitable venture.

Mr. Wright argues that the chief advantage would result from the fact that the plant would be located in the heart of the Burley district, so that he would probably be able to secure his tobacco at from 5 to 6 cents less the pound and yet pay the producer more than he now pays.

The plan as outlined is to make a capital stock of $100,000, divided into equal amounts of preferred and common. The promoting firm would require of Carrollton that it take only $25,000 of the common stock.

The growers of Carroll county are elated over the prospect, as the factory will doubtless be able to use all the tobacco which they can produce. Immediate effort will be made to place the $25,000 in stock in that section, and there is every prospect that it will be taken readily.

This means a decided boom for Carrollton, for if the proposed railroad is built, another large factory will be erected here that will employ at least 200 hands:

MORE TOBACCO IN INDIANA.

Farmers Believe it Profitable and will Increase Average.

Logansport, Ind., April 28.

According to reports which have come from a number of farmers throughout those sections of this State which have been used in any degree for tobacco raising, the coming year will bring a largely increased acreage. The farmers who have given the experiment a good trial have found that it resulted profitably and in addition to there being quite a number of recruits, those who have given a portion of their soil to tobacco will now almost double the amount.

Several Cass County farmers declare that they will this year devote much more time to the cultivation of tobacco than they have formerly done. They say that there is no reason why this county should not produce as good an output of tobacco as is raised anywhere else in the State. As it is now, the best tobacco soil is in the Southern counties but the plant has been successfully grown further north even than the central portions.

The Cass County farmers will give the crop a thorough trial this year, at any rate, and if it comes up to expectations will go into the matter on a still larger basis than formerly.

THE TOBACCO CROP.

Weather-crop Bulletin's Report for Last Two Weeks.

Washington, D. C., April 28.

Following are the reports, by States of the condition of the tobacco crops, as made in the latest weather-crop bulletin from the weather bureau issued by the Department of Agriculture:

New England—Tobacco plants in good condition.

Virginia—Tobacco plants doing well.

North Carolina—Tobacco plants abundant and growing nicely.

South Carolina—Tobacco transplanting delayed.

Kentucky—Tobabcco plants still doing well and generally plentiful.

Ohio—Some damage by freeze to tobacco plants.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

It is said by many farmers that their tobacco plants are coming up in fine shape, although I have not heard of any having more than two leaves, except a few like Mr. C. L Warner, of Hatfield, and it was said that he had them with three and four leaves. The plows and carts are very busy now and small heaps of manure begin to show on most of the fields in this locality, and the look is that fully as many acres will be set to tobacco as last year.

Our correspondents write:

Conway, Mass.: "The tobacco plants are coming on well, some that were sown April 6 now have four leaves and are growing fast. The growers here are beginning to realize more than ever before the value of early tobacco, and are trying to get it in early and do for it just the best they can. Two new barns are being built here, but there will not be much increase in areage."

Bradstreet, Mass.: "The reports from farmers are to the effect that considering all the cold wind we have had our tobacco plants are doing well in covered beds."

East Whately, Mass,: "No sales to report on accout of there being no tobacco to sell. George Dickinson has put up a new tobacco barn about 100 x 30 feet.—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The process of gathering in the remnant of last season's tobacco crop is still going forward under about the same circumstances that have prevailed for several weeks past. Buyers in the field show a disposition to continue riding as long as any stock remains in growers' hands. With the country districts already more closely picked over than for many years it is easy to see the movement will exhaust itself before very long. Very little change is noted in prices as the following late transactions will show:

K. Obnstad, 7a at 7c asst
D. B. Coon, 31cs at 7c asst
M. Halverson, 4a at 7c asst
E. Haylock, 10a at 7 and 4c
L. L. Bronte, 10a at 6½c
O. E. Turner, 6a at 6c
E. Charles, 8a at 6c
Nordlen Bros,, 12a at 5½c
P. Anderson, 15a at 5c
J. J. Bickly, 10a at 5c.

A 100cs lot put up by Ladd & Thronson has been sold to H. W. Child. McIntosh Bros. report the sale of a 100cs lot of '03. Old stock of the cheaper grades especially is in strong demand, while good binder lots find ready sale.

The season of warehouse handling is fast reaching an end, though several concerns have stock in sight for some weeks yet. The seed beds for another crop have been about laid and the young plants have commenced to show.

Shipments 400cs.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week, all new crop, were 512 hhds; offerings on the breaks, 10 hhds; public and private sales, 30 hhds, old tobacco and new wrappers. Market unchanged in price.

Warehouses have now full stocks, which will steadily increase, as there seems to be no disposition to reduce them by sales for a long time to come.

We have now warm spring growing weather.

For old tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to	4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to	4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to	4.75
Low Leaf	4.75	to	5.50
Common Leaf	5.75	to	6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00	to	8.00

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

cent of the men in the United States smoke cigars.

So you see the poor little college boy, in the hands of the relentless long nosed investigators becomes the pitiful shadow of a habit when we get down to facts. The unfortunate part of it is that the daily newspapers don't bother to go behind their news reports for the actual facts as a rule, for such an operation is almost certain to spoil a "good story."

I have no doubt that thousands and thousands of anxious mothers read this article about the Ohio University and felt a great sinking of the heart at the frightful condition revealed of college life. I dare say many of those mothers as they reverently knelt that night, asked that their Father might extend His blessing and help on those who are laboring to stamp out this great evil.

I tell you these mothers have my utmost sympathy and pity, and I am generous enough to give the same to Miss Lucy Page Gaston and her devoted and blundering followers. I hate to see any one worrying and making themselves constantly unhappy on account of troubles which they imagine other persons are suffering under, but which don't exist at all.

My idea of the best remedy, is for us to have a little more of the truth of things, expressed so that everyone can understand and appreciate it. We all know the old story of the Irishman who volunteered to tell his neighbor that her cow had died, and as a means of breaking it gently, promptly announced the violent taking off of the woman's husband.

These good people who are worrying so over the cigarette curse will be all the happier when they learn how flimsy a foundation supports their fears. But just as long as standard newspapers take advantage of the delusion to foster sensational stories, just so much harder will it be finally to straighten the matter out.

THE OLD SALESMAN.

HUNDREDS OF ACRES INCREASE

Will be Made in Connecticut Tobacco but No More Shade-Grown.

Hartford, Conn., April 27.

The large yield of tobacco last year, supplemented by the high prices secured for the crop, will stimulate the tobacco farmers of the Connecticut River Valley greatly to increase their acreage this year. Reports from various large growers scattered through Hartford county indicate that the total number of acres to be planted this year will be greater by several hundred than the figure for 1904.

The towns on the west side of the Connecticut River will be largely given up to the growing of Connecticut Havana, while the towns on the east side will be devoted to Connecticut seed leaf. No

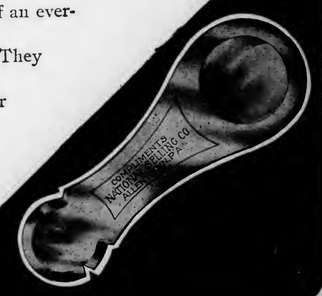
Made to work well—look well and last well. Slips into your vest pocket and takes up no more room than a flat latch key. Just the thing to tickle the trade with.

Is of best tool steel and finely nickeled—bright as a new silver dollar. Has a hardened edge that is sharp—handy to cut labels, edging and stamps—a feature the common kind don't have.

We stamp your ad clearly and deeply into each of them, so that wear can't remove it.



Don't this strike you as some thing extra good in the line of an everlasting advertisement, and a tool that would please the recipient?

They make a favorable impression on those who get them. They would help to sell more of your goods.

Why not let us fix up enough for you to give one to each of your customers? It's a splendid way to show your appreciation of their trade.

Senate Committee on Finance Will Readjust the Tariff.

Washington, D. C., May 4

The Senate Committee on Finance, in connection with its purpose to devise a scheme for readjusting the schedules of the Dingley Tariff law, will consider ways and means of providing additional revenue for the government. The committee will meet and organize soon after the return of Senator Aldrich from Europe next month, and it will then be seen whether the tobacco trade will have to suffer in an unfair proportion.

The first sessions of the committee will undoubtedly be held in Washington, and its deliberations for some time at least will be confined to the facts and figures which Secretary of the Treasury Shaw is having prepared by experts for its information.

The Secretary's purpose is to provide the committee with data from which it may evolve any sort of plan it may deem most expedient and satisfactory to prevent future repetition of the enormous deficit which is now confronting the treasury. Various items of expenditure are being scanned and analyzed with a view to enabling the committee to suggest retrenchments in appropriations, but the main purpose of the investigation is to prove that current and future revenues are not equal to the needs of the government.

The experts of the Treasury Department are a unit in the belief that the only method of keeping the revenues and expenditures together is to increase the revenues, and to that end are suggesting an increase of taxation It is being recalled that Secretary Shaw, with a prescience that is now obvious to members of the House Committee on Ways and Means and the Senate Committee on Finance, warned the Fifty-seventh Congress against repealing all the war revenue taxes. The Secretary, in a number of public addresses, specifically called attention to the fact that the wiping out of all these taxes would deprive the government of needed revenues. He especially objected to the repeal of the war tax on beer, which was yielding about $30,000,000 annually. It is pointed out now that if the beer tax had been retained the existing deficit would not have occurred. Indeed, instead of facing a deficit, which is variously estimated at from $23,000,000 to $35,000,000, a comfortable surplus would be in sight.

Persons familiar with the views of the leading members of the Finance Committee do not believe that the committee will consent to a revision of the tariff which will involve added taxation on our imports. The suggestion was repeatedly made a few months ago that a small tax might be levied on coffee, but the members of the committee who have expressed themselves on this subject say without reservation that they will not countenance such a suggestion. They are disposed to seek increased revenues by amending the internal revenue laws—adding to the existing taxes on beer and tobacco. They are sure that each of these products can stand higher rates than are now imposed on them without working serious hardship to the consumers. They gave the consumers the benefit of the new deal in internal revenue taxes.

BURLEY WILL HAVE ANOTHER BIG BOOM NEXT YEAR.

Cincinnati Trade Believes that Combine's Eager Buying will Again Force Prices Above Normal and Place Independent Manufacturers in Sore Straits for Raw Material.

Cincinnati, O., May 8

There is a growing impression in the Cincinnati leaf tobacco trade that the great boom market of last season, with its resultingly abnormally high prices for burley leaf, may be repeated in the present year.

Close observers of the situation claim that conditions prevailing at the present time are almost identically similar with those of a year ago, when it was ascertained that that there was a big shortage in the crop of 1903, which had been generally estimated at about 140,000,000 pounds.

With the advance of the redrying and rehandling season in April and May last year it became evident that there would be a big shortage in the crop, and that it would not amount, at an outside stimate, to over 110,000,000 pounds.

The American Tobacco Company, through its large corps of buyers making purchases from the country dealers and planters direct, was the first to acquire definite and reliable information in the matter, and in about 10 days purchased everything in sight throughout the entire white burley belt, sending prices upward.

When this coup was executed the great body of the crop had passed from the hands of planters and growers into those of shippers and packers. The farmers as a rule realized scarcely anything by the sudden advance in prices, but the profits of the packers and speculators were enormous, ranging in individual cases from $10,000 to $300,000.

The bitter disappointment of the planters over the turn in the market was the main incentive to the formation of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, by and through which they set out to control the tobacco and prices therefor of the crop of 1904, which project failed, however, on account of a failure to secure sufficient backing.

Here is a comparative statement of the crops of 1903 and 1904, the latter being known as the new crop, and from which all interested can draw their own deductions. The figures in each instance are believed to be approximately correct as they represent the views and opinions of the closest observers and men of the trade, who are in a position to know whereof they speak:

As stated above, the estimate of the crop of 1903 had been in round numbers 140,000,000 pounds, and it fell short 30,000,000 pounds, the boom in prices resulting under the purchases of the American Tobacco Company.

The estimating of the 1904 crop, with an increased acreage, have been about the same—that is, about 140,000 000 pounds—but it is generally conceded that the new crop is lighter in body, length and spread of leaf and that it will not, therefore, amount to over 120,000,000 pounds.

The purchases of the crop by the American Tobacco Company up to April 1 in the Louisville market amounted to about 18,000,000 pounds, and in the Cincinnati market to about 7,000,000 pounds. In the towns and at the packers' warehouses throughout the burley belt in Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia and Indiana, according to a careful calculation, the American Tobacco Company has purchased about 25,000,000 pounds.

It is estimated that the independent manufacturers up to April 1 had purchased 25,000,000; that 30,000,000 pounds are still in the hands of the growers and about 15,000,000 pounds are held by packers and dealers, making a grand total of 120,000,000 and a shortage of 20,000,000 pounds, or two thirds of the 1903 crop.

It is fully expected that the demand this year will far exceed that of last year, for according to the United States revenue returns the manufactured output is increasing from month to month, and the purchases of the American Tobacco Company are expected to be very heavy from now on for several reasons. First, it will want to fortify itself against adverse legislation against its interest the clamor for which is going up in all parts of the country.

Again it is expected to be a large buyer for export account, owing to its close alliance and community of interest with the combine of Great Britain. and if the big and expected shortage in the crop of 1904 develops as here shown it will again reach out for everything in sight and place the independent manufacturers, as last year, in sore straits for their supplies of raw material.

Increased English Duty on Stripped Tobacco Will Work Great Effect

A correspondent from Louisville, Ky., declares that the increased duty on stripped tobacco which is to remain in force in England, will create an entire revolution of the tobacco industry in the stemming districts of Kentucky and Tennessee. While there is some foundation for a statement of this nature, the unqualified assertion is doubtless rather radical.

The budget issued by Austin Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer of England, a few days ago announced that the duties would remain at three shillings for leaf tobacco and three shillings, three pence for stripped tobacco. The fact that nearly all the tobacco is stripped in this country forms the basis of the correspondent's conclusion, as he thinks it will mean that the work of stripping will be practically abandoned in America and taken up in England.

The increase first went into effect on April 20 of last year and caused a great outcry from dealers both in America and England. Influences were brought to bear and it was hoped and believed by many that the increase would be withdrawn, or at least modified. Pending such decision the stripped tobacco industry has been almost discontinued. However, it was not until the official announcement that it was positively known that Mr. Chamberlain would not make resumption possible.

The main points in the stripping industry in this section are Henderson and Owensboro. It is estimated that about 5,000 persons were formerly employed in Kentucky and Tennessee in stripping tobacco. At least half of this number will now, in all probability, be permanently dismissed from service and the half will be used as factory hands in the handling of the leaf.

Sacramento, Col., May 3.

After having been for several years engaged in business in this city the firm of Blaskower & Co., coast representatives of the American Tobacco Company, has retired and vacated. Formal announcement of the fact is made today in the advertising columns of the Union, but it has been whispered for several days past that the Capital Hotel Cigar Store, owned and operated by Blaskower & Co., or the United Cigar Stores of San Francisco, was about to change hands.

The advertisement simply states that the firm is retiring from the retail cigar and tobacco business in this city. But by dealers known to be in the confidence of the trust it is stated that Sacramento was too limited a battle ground, and that for this reason the various expedients

SCANDAL AND TOBACCO.

I see by last week's Tobacco World that the Cincinnati Presbytery had a rassle with the tobacco question. They talked it over for a while and then decided that no minister ought to use tobacco in any form.

One old chap, though, who probably enjoys his little chew, made a spirited speech to the question, and declared that it mattered more what came out of a man's mouth than what went in. He said something to the effect that the minister who encourages or carries gossip, slander or any of the other delightful forms of feminine pastime, was to be considerably more censured than a man who inoffensively gratified himself by the use of tobacco.

This man evidently spoke right out in meeting, and held nothing out in his mind. He is evidently there all right with the sense goods and he certainly has the right idea of it. The time is long past when the use of tobacco was considered either a crime or a reprehensible luxury. Our journey through this vale of tears is sad and motonous enough, anyhow, without trying to cut out all the trimmings.

My grandmother used to regard a man who smoked as a devil's deputy and as simply hurrying his smoking this side of the grave. In her eyes the smoker had no more chance of Heaven than a fish-worm, and if she were living today to hear that a member of the Presbytery had in any degree countenanced the use of tobacco, she would wonder why God had permitted such a wolf to stray into the fold.

A rather goodly proportion of the clergy uses tobacco and loses nothing in the estimation of any sane man. I believe that the two principal arguments advanced against the plant are that its use necessitates the expenditure of money that would better be put to other purposes and that the "weed" has a deleterious effect upon the human system. In short the non-tobacco advocate declares that the smoker throws away money in order to poison himself.

It is not particularly up to me, boys, to take out a brief for tobacco and there is not anything so very fresh in such a subject. I happened into Lancaster a few hours last week, however, while the annual convention of the Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association was being held, and I was struck by the uniform huskiness of the bunch. So far as I could see every man there with unvarying regularity stabbed himself in the mouth with a cigar about every hour, and with the only intermission, one for sleep.

Presumably these men have been doing the same thing for years and years, and if they have been poisoning themselves all this time I should think some thing ought to begin to show. As I said before, though, you wouldn't find a huskier, more substantial looking set of men in a month's travel and it is hardly fair to assume that the tobacco trade is peculiarly fortunate in its possession of unusually healthy men.

These men all seem to be sound in wind and limb and seem not only in average good health but rugged, and they all smoked away like a furnace in a gale the whole time I was around. Further more I notice it is usual for a man in the tobacco business to have a lighted cigar near him all the time.

If tobacco is a poison it must be the slowest poison known to man. Every once in a while I notice that death claims some careless and reckless victim of tobacco at the age of about 117, and I think you will find that nineteen out of every twenty men 70 years old, or more, use tobacco and have all their lives. Nothing doing in the early taking off line for them.

So far as the money end of it is concerned, it is generally accepted now-a-days that a man can go as far as he likes with his own money and anyone who suggests that the chap who spends a nickel for something he does not really need is throwing down his chances of future salvation, writes himself down as a chump and a hopeless back number.

To return to the sensible, old Presbyterian, who would rather smoke than talk behind a neighbor's back, I would like to have the pleasure of buying that man one of the best cigars that could be found. A minister has to deal more directly with women than with men, and this fact breeds a gassiness that is frequently a nuisance. More than one pastor who had not a malicious thought in his brain, has become a cheap gossip simply from mixing so much with the

EXECUTIVE SYSTEM OF UNITED CIGAR STORES COMPANY.

FOLLOWING is another installment of the article on the splendid executive system of the United Cigar Stores Company, two sections of which have already been printed on this page, and read with interest. The present matter deals with the coupon system and the company's advertising:

Almost coincident with the recognition by the public of the fact, that the coupons accompanying purchases made at United Cigar Stores have a stable value determined by the value of the premiums for which they were exchangeable, sale agencies sprang up where the coupons were bought and sold. It would have been and, indeed, was no difficult matter for the store clerks to steal coupons, or to appropriate those unused, and to sell them to dealers at prices varying from one cent to one and one-half cents each for the green coupons that are given at the rate of one for every 25 cents' worth purchased. It is well worth incidental mention that the immediate fixation of coupon cash values by the public was a remarkable evidence of the manner in which the public invariably acknowledges the desirability of an assuredly safe investment. The United Cigar Stores premiums, from the day when they were first put on the market, were pre-eminently the safe investment—as safe, within their limitations, as United States government bonds. The comparison is by no means a hyperbole; and it is a universally conceded fact that the public has treated them, as investments just as it treats government bonds. The achievement was more a matter of careful judgment and straightforward dealing, than of business shrewdness or adroitness. A limited premium list was devised, with excellent quality as the prime essential for every article included; and, in every instance, something was actually given for nothing, as an investment of nothing was defined in the form of premiums as an unearned increment of every purchase. The quality of the premiums never deteriotrated. Every premium possessed a considerable intrinsic cash value. Scarcely a month elapsed before the coupons had a fixed value, as a currency much smaller in denomination than the old government "shinplasters," but very nearly as negotiable.

The strong temptation to juggle coupons pressing upon the store clerks was recognized from the outset; and, from the outset, the requisite safeguards were established. When the store is called upon to deliver to a certificate holder a premium worth, for example, 50 certificates, the certificates received in exchange for the premium are required to be inclosed in a special envelope. The envelope is inscribed with the exact character of the premium chosen, the number of certificates received for it, the date of delivery of premium, the store number, and the name of the particular clerk who delivers the premium to the customer. In the New York office a record is kept of the total number of coupons and certificates sent out at any one time to any one chief clerk; and the record specifies by totals the denominations of coupons and certificates. At the usual monthly inventory, the team of special agents count, by actual count, the number of certificates and coupons in the chief clerk's possession. Of course, the general public can never take more coupons from any one store than the number furnished to the store; and, from the time of the inventory, the total face value of the coupons and certificates corresponds to the retail value of the entire stock debited to the chief clerk. The point is that the general public invariably omits to accept a certain percentage of the coupons which are in hand for delivery if the customers will accept them. It would be in the non-acceptance of certificates and coupons that a clerk could find opportunity for private profit, for he could sell those coupons the customers decline to accept. The safeguard was found in application of the simple law of average. The company determines, by general average of all stores, what is the percentage of coupons accepted upon the volume of business. When all changing conditions were taken into account, it was found that the coupons accepted amounted to 80 per cent upon the total retail trade throughout the country. There should, therefore, be on hand, with the average store, a running surplus of 20 per cent. In the light of the company's instructions to clerks that every tactful endeavor must be made to accept coupons and certificates, no rigid line of inference as to a clerk's integrity was ever drawn, so long as his surplus was greater or less than 20 per cent. But, if there was no surplus whatever—no "overage," as it is called—it was obvious that there must be some unwarranted abstraction of coupons; and, in such a case, there was almost prima facie evidence of hypothecation on the part of the clerk. This is the limit of regulation which the coupon system has thus far attained; but the accountants in the New York office keep constant record of the national average. It is rising, slowly but steadily. As it rises, the clerks of all stores are expected to furnish the average overage.

The advertising done by the company, while it has attained more slowly towards perfection, was from the outset characterized by the same return to first principles. The stores themselves were recognized as the advertising points of departure, to be accorded first attention. Newspaper publicity, and publicity in general, were regarded favorably, but cautiously, as media to be systematically experimented upon—an attitude common to all large investors not thoroughly grounded in experience yet endowed with the spirit of intelligent enterprise.

The display opportunities of the stores themselves afforded something tangible at once, and every nettle, old and new, that was discernible was vigorously grasped and crushed. It was decided that there must be a uniform scheme of interior arrangement and of window display, so that a man who had once laid eyes on a United Cigar store would recognize its brothers, from New York to San Francisco. The rear of every store was allotted to smoking and chewing tobaccos; the middle sections to cigars of low and medium grades and to ordinary brands of domestic and Turkish cigarettes; the front portion was reserved for Havana and Turkish goods of the highest grades. The whole aim of the general enterprise—sale in unusual quantity of goods of high quality, with seizure steadily upon the full volume of middle class trade—must have been apparent to the discriminating eye at a single, comprehensive glance. Admirably adapted to its ultimate purpose as the arrangement was, it presented no such brilliancy of innovation as attended the handling of the windows, the head and front of every retail store. Window depth, that relic of older time, was remorselessly cut down, to the advantage of interior selling space. But window height was tenderly respected; and window breadth was cherished like a miser's hoarded riches. So every United Cigar store was equipped with a high, broad, but very shallow window in which all arrangement of wares must hit the passing eye, for general effect and for conspicuity of detail alike at the same instant.

Today, at the company's executive offices on West Seventeenth street, in New York, in jealously guarded privacy on the second floor, there is continually in course of design a model window, constructed by the chief window dresser, in infinite variety but always in strict subordination to the fundamental principles of the company's store windows,—base for small, bright packages certain to catch the eye and fitted for minute inspection; background for artistic arrangements of cigars and large packages; and special points of vantage utilized for those articles which, at the time, the company is pushing hardest. A similar model window center exists in Chicago, for the west. Every two weeks, expert subordinates—numbering 16 now in the eastern or, as it is designated, New Jersey Corporation Territory—depart on tour from the model center, where they have studied and sketched the perfected window. Within a few hours after their arrival, every store in every city blooms forth in fresh window garb, everywhere identical, everywhere the product of the highest skill possessed by the most capable expert, everywhere striking the same blow called for in the progress of the company's formulated policy.

The first consistent employment of ink was on the company's own store window. It was a master stroke of effectiveness and economy. Paper signs, from very light material, were so cut that they were all border, in the form of ovals, triangles and diamonds—the simplest game to learn among the plays of childhood. Pasted on the windows, often as they were torn down by the sympathizers of competitors, they interfered to no appreciable extent with the view of the display, yet sufficed to draw in hundreds of the earliest customers by their advertisment of bargains. As the quality of the model window rose, with time, and as the finer art of sign placing was comprehended by the chief clerks the border plan lapsed to a pronounced degree; and uncut paper signs were used.

The use of newspapers was inaugurated, with advertisements which should afford the most immediate and directly appreciable returns—the advertisement of bargain days. Never was there more indisputable proof of the worth of advertising. On those bargain days business jumped, like a spurred horse. After a year or so this company took its bachalaureate degree in advertising; it bought more space—sometimes as much as one-quarter of a page—and used that space, not so much for the promotion of bargain business as for the commendation of its staple lines. It was the company's acknowedgement of its comprehension of the great main fact, that advertising pays all the time.

Not quite a year has elapsed since the company was suddenly numbered among the Doctors of Laws in advertising. It had grown up to the magazine field, that highest and most difficult, yet most remunerative branch of the modern learning. Wedded to a mail order business, magazine advertising gives the richest direct returns. The company, now assured by ample practical experience, wedded its advertising to a mail order department, and on no mean scale. The returns were so considerable that, today, a force of nearly two-score people is continually at work making up packages for delivery in compliance with mail orders.

THE SEDUCTIVE HAVANA.

ONE night Sir Henry Irving, the great English tragedian, on getting into a cab, gave the driver a fine Havana cigar. By the time the end of the journey was reached the cabby was putting on airs. His hat was on one side and sitting bolt upright, he was smoking with keen enjoyment—an enjoyment that rejoiced the heart of the actor, who told him he was glad he liked the cigar. "Yes, I do, I never dreamed of such tobacco!" Thereupon Irving gave the Jehu another cigar of the same brand, with the instruction to smoke it after supper. "No, sir, I won't, for the very smell of such a cigar as this in my house would make the landlord double my rent."

The "Felix Grundy" Cigar, Made by S. S. Watts.

A cigar which makes an excellent smoke and has built up a strong measure of popularity on that account is the "Felix Grundy," manufactured by S. S. Watts, of Terre Hill, Pa. The brand is a five-cent one, put up with the above attractive label, which bears a quiet distinction that is very pleasing. The cigar is a good exponent of the fact that a smoke of quality can be made to sell for five cents, and it is found to duplicate in nearly every case.

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

women and desiring always to have something interesting to say.

One of the finest men I know, keeps a cigar store, and makes his living from the sale of tobacco. I hardly know whether this man could be regarded as a Christian, in the church sense of the term, but I do know that there is no whiter man living. He has a great deal of respect for the Christian religion, and absolutely forbids the use of profanity in his store. Of course if a stranger comes in and chooses to swear while he is making his purchase, the proprietor can do nothing, but if the customer is known to my friend, he will hush him up quickly enough, if there is a slip in his conversation.

This man would rather do a favor than eat a meal and he has probably helped more persons when they certainly needed help, than any minister who ever lived. Yet he makes his living by the sale of cigars and tobacco, and it is by these commodities that he is able to extend such a persistant helping hand. What argument non-tobacco people would make against him, I do not know. Neither do I care. But I have never heard this man speak an ill word about anyone and I would rather take his word than that of any other man, Cincinnati Presbytery included, that I can think of at present.

BUSINESS IN HAVANA MARKET SATISFACTORY.

Some Vuelta Abajo Remains Unsold, However, but the Prices Asked are Regarded as High. These are Largely Regulated by the Relative Anxiety of the Buyers.

HAVANA, May 1, 1905.

Business during the past week did not reach the same proportions as during the previous one, still it can be called satisfactory, taking into consideration that this was the tail end of the season. The Spanish leaf dealers mostly close their books by the end of April, and commence their commercial year with the first day of May, as this date corresponds closest to the beginning of the new crop.

Under normal circumstances the old crop has disppeared from first hands, excepting trifling quantities which play no role to speak of. This year, however, there are still some stocks left unsold, chiefly Vuelta Abajo, for which the owners are asking higher figures, as they are under the impression that they will all be wanted, as the good part of the new growth may be higher than last year.

Prices, however, are regulated more by the buyers than by the sellers, as according to the more or less urgent necessities of the former they will go up, remain stationary or decline. The sellers, who in this instance comprise the leaf dealers and packers of tobacco, on their part are buyers originally, and they are certainly exercising their best judgment in securing the new crop from the farmers as cheaply as they possibly can, in order to be able afterward to dispose of it with a living profit, to which they are entitled.

They are risking their capital and a mistake made by them results often in losses, which are usually heavier than the legitimate profit on their purchase of a vega. While a few large factories buy directly from the farmers, the majority of them prefer to employ the middleman, and it is an open question which of the two classes fare the best. In theory many things can be figured out to the advantage of buying directly from the producer, but in reality the middleman is a necessity, and is bound to exist until the millenium takes place.

Even the trusts, which started out with the idea of suppressing the middlemen, have found out that the idea of doing away with them entirely is an impossibility, as they only created a new set of middlemen of their own by forming separate companies which do the buying, others that manufacture, and finally others that attend to the sale of their commodities.

It is claimed that owing to the continuous rains in the Santa Clara province the green tobacco still hanging on the poles is showing signs of rot, and that all the tobacco cut during the month of April may be fit only for manure, thus reducing the quantity by perhaps 30 per cent, and as this represents the first and second capaduras principally, the outlook for the United States market is gloomy indeed, provided reports are not exaggerated.

during the week amounted to a total of 3,448 bales, divided into 3 300 of Vuelta Abajo, 50 of Partido, and 98 of Remedios. Buyers for the American market secured 2,438 bales, and for local consumption 1,010 bales were written off.

Exports during the week to the several American ports amounted to 4 633 bales, while only 27 bales were shipped to Europe.

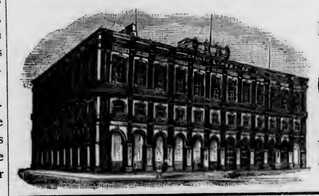
are working steadily, although the volume of business does not show any signs of expanding yet, as the orders are mostly for current sizes in small quantities.

H. Upmann & Co. say that their factory is busy enough in executing orders for their celebrated H. Upmann brand, chiefly for the United States and South America. They shipped 400,000 cigars last week of their own and other independent manufacturers' goods.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. are perfectly satisfied with the business they are doing, as no matter how poor business may be in general, Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co. always are called for from the principal markets of the world.



Por Larranaga is doing fairly well in the dull season, and in order to extend its relations, Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, intends to leave on Saturday next for the United States and Europe.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. are in receipt of respectable orders from the United States, Europe and South America for Ramon Allones, Cruz Roja, Marques de Rabell and other annexed brands.

Behrens & Co. are doing a satisfactory business in their Sol factory, and are constantly receiving sufficient orders to keep all of their forces fully occupied.

At the moment your correspondent walked in he witnessed the placing of a large order for dark colored cigars for the Archbishop of New Orleans, Monseignor Chapelle, which is a proof again that the real connoisseurs preter the dark to the light colors, as the former are the most aromatic and sweetest in taste.

J. F. Rocha & Co admit frankly enough that business is temporarily quiet in their Crepusculo factory, although Nene and Jefferson have enough friends in the United States who do not fail to order them steadily.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Edgar J. Stachelberg, was a large buyer this past week, as he secured over 1,500 bales of Vuelta Abajo leaf for the new combination of M. Stachelberg & Co., and Esberg-Gunst Co., Tampa.

Antonio Suarez sold 392 bales Vuelta Abajo last week.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez are very busy now buying new tobacco in bundles in all the tobacco growing sections of the Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Santa Clara province, for their various escojidas. They have the honor of having sold the first vega of new Vuelta Abajo to a local factory, some time ago, although for some reason this was not reported at the right time. Their Bejucal escojida is working with full forces.

Jose F. Rocha turned over 325 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Jorge & P. Castaneda are hard at work in their three escojidas at San Antonio de los Banos, and will receive the first lots of new tobacco this week.

Muniz Hnos. & Co. disposed of 305 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Oscar Reinach purchased 200 bales additional of Vuelta Abajo for his firm of Fernandez Hnos. Co., Tampa.

Bruno Diaz & Co. sold 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido, nearly half o which was of the 1905 crop.

Manuel Suarez & Co. are as busy as ever, and Don Jose Mendelsohn is expected here next week from New York to help Don Manuel.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. made sales to the extent of 198 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Garcia & Co. are as usual non com mittal, although, as they shipped 496 bales of leaf last week, it stands to reason that they must have done some good new rade.

A. M. Calzada & Co disposed of 129 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week, Don Antonio will leave for the Vuelta Arriba to make some arrangements for their coming Camajuani packing.

S. L. Goldberg e Hijos have made some purchases of extra fine vegas in the fine vegas in the Rio Seco district, where they expect to open their escojida about May 15th.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. turned over 128 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

G. Salomon y Hnos. closed out 107 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Jose H. Cayro e Hijo shipped 125 bales of leaf to Key West, and have already received some bales of new tobacco of their three packings.

Aixala & Co. sold 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

According to a circular issued by the U. S. Consul General at Havana, in future all Consular invoices will have to be made out either in United States currency, or otherwise the Spanish gold dollar has to be reduced to currency at the rate of 96½ cents. This order was issued by the Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, and very likely will lead to a test case to be decided by the U. S. Supreme Court, as all the importers of cigars will pay the higher duties under protest. It is also possible that the Cuban Minister at Washington will use his diplomatic powers to bring about a revocation of this order. It does not matter at all to the leaf trade, as there is no ad valorem duty, but for the cigar importers it will mean an increased duty of $1.10 per thousand, if the cigars here cost $100. Evidently the Secretary of the Treasury has been misinformed and his action has been too hasty, because if he understood the true facts, it is not likely that he would have issued this order. To make the Spanish gold dollar to be equal to 96½ cents U. S. currency would mean an exchange rate of about 103⅝ per cent, while the monetary 3 days rate is 109⅛ per cent. In Spain $5 at 96½c would be $4.82½, which may be the true gold value, but here in Cuba the $5 Spanish gold piece is worth $5.30, or a premium of six per cent, therefore the true equivalent is almost 91 cents, at which rate the invoices used to be calculated in the U. S. Custom houses.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 8, 1905.

Brooklyn retailers say they did very little business this last week. Things were not that way in Manhattan, as goods moved very freely over the counters and the first steady warm weather brought an actual influx of customers. Just why Brooklyn should have suffered is not clear, but it is a fact that a number of Fulton street dealers were very grouchy over the week's business.

For some reason there seems to be a mania at present to cut prices as far as it is possible to go and save the cost. This cannot be blamed on the United Cigar Store's Co., but seems to have started all of itself; every other cigar store that you pass will have some tentatively attractive price-cutting schedule posted in a prominent position in the window.

The manufacturers are still shaking hands with themselves on account of the steady and most substantial volume of business. Returns from the roadmen are still good and judging by reports there is not a single kick coming from this end of the trade. Retailers are ordering well and must be disposing of the goods, or else their orders would not repeat so frequently.

The leaf market for the week yields no news, practically the only action being the inquiry for Sumatra. Even in this there were not a great many orders recorded, but lots of manufacturers manifested an interest in the samples and gagged a bit on the price. The old goods sold more readily than the new crop. There was fairly steady buying of Havana goods, but no very large transaction was recorded.

The New York Cigar and Tobacco Retailer's Association is cutting considerable of a figure in the present trade situation. The association is in a decidedly healthy condition, and is fortunate enough to number in its official board several men who are noted for their penchant for progressiveness and hard work. The membership of the association grows continually, and it is hoped that before long it will embrace a large percentage of the entire retail trade.

There was a lot of talk last week again regarding the investigation of the American Tobacco Co. and the action of the Grand Jury last Monday in asking Judge Lacombe to direct a witness, an official of a subsidiary tobacco company, to answer questions fully is by some, considered significant. Others think that the combine was not aimed at in this instance and believe that the matter has no bearing on the general situation.

It has been stated by certain persons who claimed to know, that an investigation was being prepared by Henry W. Taft, brother of Secretary of War Taft and a New York lawyer, and it is known that independent dealers have been approached in different cities and asked to volunteer testimony. What this collection of evidence may result in, is unknown to the trade at large, but, as was said, many independents hope that the real proceedings have now been started. In regard to the action of the Grand Jury, a daily paper prints the following under date of May 6:

Independent manufacturers and dealers in tobacco by the score have been asked for their testimony. Every person who might have cause for complaint at the trust's treatment has been questioned until the evidence accumulated might be measured by the bushel basket. It was to this that the attention of the Grand Jury was called on its first day's session last Monday and subpoenas issued for officials of various companies controlled by the main corporation, the American Tobacco Company.

With the first witness, Edwin F. Hale, Secretary of the McAndrews & Forbes Company, one of the largest subsidiary concerns, it became known that a bitter legal fight will be made, and upon a test case in contempt proceedings will depend whether a score or more of great financiers will be called and the books of the companies opened for Federal inspection. So far as could be learned yesterday civil proceedings to enjoin or restrain the trust have not yet been instituted, and may depend upon the outcome of the other undertaking.

So quietly have the investigators worked that not even regular assistants at the Federal Buildings knew of the inquiry until yesterday afternoon when the Grand Jurors entered the court presided over by Judge Lacombe. Accompanying them were Mr. Taft and Mr. Levy. A moment later the doors opened and De Lancey Nicoll and his partner, John D. Lindsay, with Louis Parker, entered the court room and took seats. Then W. E. Henkel, United States Marshall, came in with Mr. Hale, who had come in answer to a subpoena.

With all wondering at the strange proceedings. Judge Lacombe turned to Thomas S. Folsom, foreman of the Grand Jury, with the question, "Gentlemen, have you anything to present?"

For answer Mr. Folsom produced a bulky roll of typewritten paper, which he carefully unfolded and handed to the judge. It appeared soon after that the paper contained questions to the number of more than one hundred, which the foreman set forth Mr. Hale had refused to answer. Immediately after Mr. Taft arose.

"Your Honor," he said, pointing to Mr. Hale, who was by this time surrounded by Messrs. Nicoll, Lindsay and Parker, "this witness has refused to answer some of the questons on the ground that the answers might tend to incriminate him and also on the ground that the answers would be too voluminous to produce at such short notice. Following the procedure in such cases I would request that you direct the witness to retire with the Grand Jury and answer the questions contained in the present ment.

Mr. Nicoll, arising at once and annouc ing himself as counsel for Mr. Hale, said he had no objection to this procedure and the judge at once ordered that this be followed.

It was during the argument attending the decision of the court that it first became known that the government had begun proceedings against the tobacco companies in like manner as against the Beef Trust in Chicago. Although all counsel were sparing of words and all declined to discuss the case it was generally understood that Mr. Hale by advice of counsel, would again refuse to speak, and on Monday Mr. Taft will ask for a rule against him to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt. By this means the constitutionality of the act will be determined, as well as the request of the federal government to see books and papers.

The cigar manufacturing establishment of Samuel Kaskel, at Bowery and Stanton street, has been robbed dozens of times and last week another burglary was added to the number. The place was entered, the safe opened, and money and goods to the value of $500 taken. The rear door had been forced and the safe opened by the discovery of the combination. In the numerous times the Kaskel place has been robbed, but one arrest has been made.

M. F. Schneider, of Burling Slip, has recently concluded the purchase of more than 1,000 bales of new Sumatra tobacco which he is now offering to the trade. This lot includes the following excellent marks: W. and V. S | Deli Langkat | B | —T. T. R—Amst. Deli Co | A | — A. D. M—H | Deli. Buyers are invited to inspect samples of the purchases or the house will be pleased to submit samples for inspection, believing that the quality of these goods will quickly demonstate itself.

The Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co. is conducting a very successful new store on Union Square. M. H. Apfel is manager and says that the public has not been at all reluctant so far in patronizing the new store. The stand carries a full line of Havana and seed good, with the Partagas, Romeo and Juliet and H. Upmann as leaders.

Victor Mancebo, of V. Mancebo, Muina & Co. departed for Europe last Saturday. Mr. Mancebo has not been in the best of health lately and takes the trip with a view toward restoration. He will go back to the climate which he enjoyed as a boy.

Joseph F. Sinclair is now running the cigar store at No. 5 Ann street which has been popularly known among its customers as the "Hole in the Wall." On acquiring this stand Mr. Sinclair had the furnishers and renovators in with surprisingly happy results. The stock carried by this store is very complete.

The new store of I. N. Maaskoff at 48 Nassau street is now running regularly and so far has had a good trade. This store can be numbered among the cut price establishments, and it is that fact announced by a circular letter sent out by Mr. Maaskoff that is responsible for the large number of daily visitors. Mr. Maaskoff also has a knack of dressing windows effectively.

The Sieber Cigar Manufacturing Co. is now ready to receive callers at 79 Chambers street, where the company has moved. The present quarters are much more commodious and better in every way.

The last lot of Sweet Caporal cigarettes sent out in this market contained no coupons. There has been only a half coupon issued in the small package for some time, and this latest reduction is thought to be in line with the company's policy to reduce its coupon system.

Charles Vogt, Jr., will go to Germany on the 9th, sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. This trip will not be entirely one of business, but will furnish recreation for Mr. Vogt that has been sorely needed.

The United Cigar Store Co. opened two new branches within the past week at 531 Broadway and at Thirty third street and Fourth avenue. The company made the usual attractive offers for the opening.

The Buster Brown cigar made by the Victor Thorsch Co., Allentown, will be pushed locally by the A. H. Hillman Co. who has taken the local agency. The bands on this cigar are now redeemable.

A new and nice looking cigar store has been opened by L. Frankel at 2201 Seventh avenue.

LARGE BURLEY CROP THIS YEAR.

Growers' Association Will Make Another Attempt to Corner It.

Cincinnati, O., May 8.

Predictions are being made by some of the warehousemen of this city that it will be the largest tobacco crop this year for a long time. W. H. Whiteman, of the Globe Tobacco Warehouse, made this unqualified statement yesterday:

"All indications this year point to the largest tobacco crop the country has seen in a decade. The excellent prices realized on all grades of tobacco during the past few months is perhaps the principal reason why tobacco farmers will set out a much larger acreage this year than they have done for some time. Farmers also have reason to believe that they can dispose of much more tobacco than they have sent in for the last ten years.

"Not since 1892 has there been any surplus of tobacco in the warehouses, and practically all the offerings have been sold to the home trade.

"The foreign demand is becoming greater every year, and more tobacco is needed to supply European countries."

The Burley Tobacco Growers' Association will get together again to discuss ways and means, and a meeting is arranged to be held in this city at the Grand Hotel on Wednesday. W. B. Hawkins, who was at the head of the affairs of the Association in its recent efforts to corner the Burley crop, and Archibald Stuart, who also took a prominent part, will attend.

The Association still believes that it can create this corner, and will make another attempt on the coming crop. The principal object of the meeting is to find out just where the Association stands as regards financial backers, and as Mr. Stuart has been in communication for some time with financiers, it is believed that very favorable reports will be presented.

LANCASTER NOT VERY BUSY.

Some Transactions Were Closed Though During National Convention.

Lancaster, Pa., May 8.

The local leaf market has been expectedly dull for the past week, and the market was augmented only by the presence of several out of town buyers who were attending the convention. It is reported that several packing were contracted for, as they were found at the present time.

No large business could be expected in old goods for they are no longer in packers' hands. While inquiries are beginning to arrive and buyers are looking at the new goods, a great many are being turned down for the simple reason that holders of the new goods feel compelled to give a part first to their old customers which would seem to be only fair and right.

C. D. Collins, of the Duquesne Cigar Co., of Pittsburg, was an interesting visitor to our city last week attending several sessions of the leaf dealers' convention and took a casual look over the leaf market here, but found very little available stock for their purpose among their packing houses.

A rather interesting law suit was expected to come up in our county court this week in the case of Hoffman Bros., of Bainbridge, vs. Walter S. Bare involving an amount representing forty-seven cases of seed leaf which had been purchased by Bare from Hoffman Bros. upon inspectors' samples which were guaranteed. It is alleged, however, that when the goods arrived and were examined they were found unlike the sample and so payment was refused. The seller, however, would not permit the goods to be shipped back to them and the goods were finally sold at a public sale, realizing 6 cents per pound. The question will now arise as to how far an inspector's sample will go and the case, therefore, becomes more complex and interesting with a great deal of interest to tobacco men.

A. B. Hess, a leaf tobacco packer of this city recently purchased the properties of 630 and 632 North Prince street upon which is a three story brick warehouse 645 x 65 feet. Mr. Hess, however, comtemplates erecting thereon at an early date an addition of 45 x 33 feet, making the building all told 45 x 100.

B. H. Nissley and Elmer Good, tobacco growers, recently drew a suit against Hoffman Bros., leaf packers at Bainbridge, to recover for a breach of contract on a tobacco transaction. The case came up last week before Judge Hassler, and the verdict was rendered in favor of Nissley for $102.28 and in favor of Good for $111.05.

The S. R. Moss Cigar Co. has commenced the erection of a new building at Prince and Lemon street, and it is progressing quite satisfactorily.

The International Revenue in this district for the month of April shows an output of 57,408,000 cigars which is a considerable decrease as compared with the month of March.

Messrs. I. H. Weaver, Morris Rosenthal and A. B Hess, who were the committee having in charge the arrangements for the National Convention which was held here last week and the entertainment of the delegates, have been the recipients of numerous compliments for the way in which they conducted the affair.

YORK BUSINESS BAD.

Manufacturers, with Few Exceptions, Are Complaining.

York, Pa., May 8.

A general complaint is voiced in this county by cigar manufacturers, of slack business. In fact there are few exceptions to this report Among these few is F. Able, of Hellam, who recently returned from a western trip, during which time he disposed of not only all the goods he had in stock but now has on hand orders for more than a half million of his product, running largely in five and ten cent varieties.

Harrison Fauth, of Delroy, has taken the factory of Jos. Dehuff, at Hellam, Pa., and is expecting to operate on an extensive scale. He will, however, continue his old factory at Delroy. The product from the Hellam factory is to go over largely to a New York house.

Max Gans, of Max Gans Sons, New York has been spending several days in this country in company with the firm's representative, Mr. Waterman, and they have been visiting many of the larger factories.

D. E. Woodmansee, of Spring Grove, is also among the exceptionally busy ones, having at present writing, plenty of orders on hand. L. L. Schloss, a well known cigar broker, recently made a flying visit through this section.

G. W. Parr, at Littlestown, is moderately busy and he is pushing with a great deal of vigor and much success, the Fernside cigar, which he recently placed upon the market.

George A. Buddy, of Littlestown, is making preparations for a trip to the West, which will cover, probably, four or six weeks.

IMHOFF'S NEW FACTORY AT DENVER, PA.

Imhoff & Co., extensive cigar manufacturers at Denver, Pa., have taken possession of their new factory building at S. Union street, which will be a model establishment in every particular. The entire building has been divided into numerous departments calculated for greater convenience in handling the business promptly.

Beginning with the basement, which is cemented, there is found a specially constructed storage room for Sumatra and Havana tobacco. The first floor proper of the building is used for offices, shipping and packing room and stripping department.

The second floor is given over in its entirety to the manufacturing, and has a seating capacity for 75 hands. The third floor is divided into packing rooms, drying rooms, etc.

The building is equipped with safety automatic elevator and is steam heated throughout. It is also excellently lighted and well ventilated. The firm has long catered to the trade, handling only the highest grades of product and feel that they are now in a better position than ever to supply their trade with a superior article.

THE NATIONAL CIGAR LEAF TOBACCO ASSOCIATION.

The seventh annual convention of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association held in Lancaster last week, was a notable gathering, and brought together a number of men who, in being representative of the tobacco trade spoke forcibly for the substantial character of that trade.

The delegates were not only business men and gentlemen, but men who in debate showed a keen grasp of the exigencies of the trade, and no small facility for concise and comprehensive utterance.

One of the pleasing features of the convention was the manifest popularity of Mr. A. Bijur, and the unanimity with which he was returned to the chair. It was very patent that the delegates liked their president not only for his executive ability but for his attractive personality as well.

Mr. Bijur's annual report, in addition to being a model of clear and rhetorical English, showed the great amount of work necessary not only in actual preparation of the paper, but in the study which had obviously been put on each subject dealt with to the last detail.

It was demonstrated at these sessions that the Association is by no means yet ready to yield to Secretary Taft his point on the Philippine tariff, and at the next session of Congress, the opposition will be as strenuous as ever.

The resolutions adopted by the convention were the result of extended debate which produced a number of changes in the original resolutions offered. They embody a number of important questions, and as entered upon the minutes, represent the careful thought of the delegates.

It is regarded as a good thing that it was decided to go to Dayton, O., next year as, just as Mr. Lukaswitz said when extending the invitation, the Western delegates will be given a better chance to attend without sacrificing several days from their businesses and incurring a rather considerable expense to their various Boards.

THE most screaming climax of the anti cigarette comic opera being conducted in Indiana, has been reached. In South Bend an ape was arrested for smoking a cigarette during a performance of trained animals.

The "taoun constable" arrived at the show, backed by all the dignity and majesty of the law, to say nothing of a warrant, and pulled the management right in, b'gosh.

The trial will be formally held in a justice's court, and it is understood that the defendants will be represented by A. Chimpanzee, of the well known legal firm of Chimpanzee & Baboon. The other trained animals will prepare and circulate a petition to the Indiana legislature asking for a special allowance of three cigarettes a day.

Great Caesar's ghost! Hasn't anyone in Indiana a sense of humor?

THE Kansas City authorities are following the example of the Mayor of Richmond, and are commencing to raid "immoral" tobacco pictures. Cigar stores will be visited, and advertising pictures found that shock any of the raiders, will be torn out and the proprietors dealt with. It is understood that certain citizens have not been pleased with the character of some of the posters on view and appealed to the police commissioners.

We certainly are getting good lately.

NEW YORKERS are fond of declaring that Philadelphia is not on the map. It must be so, for none of the New York trade papers discovered the fact that there were any delegates present at the convention in Lancaster last week from the City of Brotherly Love. If they did, they didn't think it was worth while to print their names.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers

Business is just fair and no more in the retail market, and it really does seem that the only way to make a good market in this city is for about half of the retailers in the city to go out of business. In a tour through the principal stores it is not hard to find dealers who report a satisfactory trade, but the average is not what it should be, and it is a well known fact that it is a very hard thing to get a new brand on the Philadelphia market.

Peculiar conditions obtain in this city which are probably not duplicated in any other city of its size, and these are such as to hold business back. The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association is making a determined effort at present to remedy some of these conditions, and it is hoped that it will succeed. The organization is being strengthened materially, and if the members stick together and work toward a common cause, much will be accomplished.

Extensive preparations are being made for the picnic of the retail dealers association, to be held at Maple Grove, on the Reading, on June 21, and judging from the enthusiasm of the committee a gala day will be enjoyed.

One of the features will be a ball game by the Red Devil team against a picked nine of the retail dealers.

It is hoped a neat sum will be realized, which will be devoted to the New York Tobacco show.

James I. Hassan, the well known retailer at 6633 Woodland avenue, will give a little stag party tonight, to some of his friends in the trade for which a jolly entertainment has been provided. Mr. Hassan is a genial soul and he likes to get his pals around him. This store does one of the nicest businesses in West Philadelphia, and its proprietor says things are moving particularly well just now.

A tasty window display of the Golden Eagle little cigar has been arranged in the window of E. N. Moore's store at Second and Chestnut streets, by Joseph Hubert, who is a well known city salesman. Wm. Turk, advertising man for I. Lewis & Co., worked through the city last week with a crew of men and framed up some very good displays. The brand is being pushed on this market by Z. John Norris.

The Edison is a five center that is making quite a little hit in the Philadelphia market and it is duplicating pretty well. This smoke is made by Shively, Miller & Co., of Pottstown, and is looked after in this town by John T. Taylor.

Jos. Way, Market street dealer, is one of the retailers who has very little complaint on business, but then Mr. Way has a large trade that wont go anywhere else.

Since the Bingham Hotel made its alterations and erected its handsome cigar stand inside the swinging doors outside of the bar, business has much improved in the cigar line. This stand carries a high grade of smokes.

M. C. Vanaman, of Ninth and Juniper streets, has purchased the entire stock of the Lafayette Cigar Co., 1216½ Chestnut street, which is now on sale at the Juniper street store. E W. Rugby, the sign man, assists Mr. Vanaman in the busy hours.

B. F. Batten, at the foot of Market street, is putting 'em out over the counter in lively shape, principal in which movement is the Oxus cigar.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The same old report comes from the manufacturers that the most and best of the business is being done in the West and South, and from these sections alone are coming sufficient orders to keep factories average busy. Very few manufacturers can be found who will own to anything like a good business right here in the city, or even in this section, and those who do, are those who for years have made a specialty of Philadelphia cigars, and upon whom the Quaker City consumer has come to depend for his smoking.

A good many manufacturers complain that they have to sell too much on consignment, and when asked why they do it, the answer usually is "because others do and we must." It is by no means an ideal way of doing business and there is no doubt that every manufacturer would be glad to get away from it. A firm who is eager to get a certain brand on the retail counter, finds that most retailers won't put the cigar in on any other basis, and the manufacturer accordingly submits.

An instance of the unfortunate part of the credit business is the case of J. S. Geller Sons & Co., of this city, a petition for a receiver for which was made on Monday by J. P. Hale Jenkins, a Norristown attorney, at the instance of Wm. K. Gresh Sons, manufacturers of the same city.

The application was made before Judge Holland in the United States District Court, and the action was taken with a view to saving as much to the creditors as possible. The appraisers appointed by Judge Holland commenced yesterday to appraise the stock, which Mr. Geller estimates as worth $5,000. The liabilities are said to be about $10,000, of which the Gresh firm has accounts amounting to $7,990 Mr. Jenkins sent notices to all the other creditors this week, and as good a settlement as possible will be made.

The point of the situation is that the members of the Geller firm declare that they have outstanding accounts on their ledger to the face value of $18,000 and if these could have been collected in anything like due time, no suspension need have occurred. The accounts are for the most part small, however, and the company has been unable to do much with them.

Vetterlein Bros. report a good sale in the South on their brands, which the firm expects will keep up.

Jacobs & Hilbronner, the new firm of manufacturers, whose address is on Eighth street near Vine, have not actually started in business yet owing to a delay in getting out their packages. In about two weeks, however, the goods will probably be on the market.

A. S Valentine & Son are filling lots of orders these days, and their Paul Jones brand is cheering up many a smoker.

W. G. Thompson, representing the well known cigar factory of Julius Alvarez & Co., Allentown, Pa., was in this city last week and reports having placed their Quo Vadis, Flor de Alvarez, and other brands with a number of prominent houses here. He will leave shortly on an extended Southern trip.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

News items are few and far between in the leaf market this week. Business trails along and not much more, but the same is true in New York, so nobody is particularly discouraged. Some Havana was sold during the week and there was inquiry in other goods. Prices are still stiff and there is no likelihood of anything else.

All the delegates who went to Lancaster for the convention last week had a good time and a word of praise for their Lancaster entertainers. It was too bad that Mr. Young was unable to be present, but his detention was unavoidable. His voice was missed. Mr. Eckerson did not arrive until the second day and his name did not appear in the list of delegates on account of the fact that the list was made up the first day of the convention. Mr. Batroff was one of the first on deck from this city, and everybody made a grab for his hand.

Jacob Labe, who with Mrs. Labe has been in Holland attending the Amsterdam inscriptions has returned to this city. The firm secured some nice marks but they waited until some of the scramble was over.

Julius Vetterlein was no silent delegate to the convention. His voice was heard more than once in bringing forward some important point.

Jesse S. Batroff has put up a handsome new sign beside the door of his office. The sign is a winner, but nobody ever had any difficulty in finding their way to Mr. Batroff's sanctum.

The Philadelphia delegates to the convention had less trouble in finding their way about Lancaster on their arrival than some of the others. Toward the end of the second day, though, nobody had any difficulty in this respect.

DECISION ON DRAWBACK.

Amount Allowed Equal to Duty Paid Less One Percent.

The following decision has been issued by James B. On the exportation of cigarettes and smoking tobacco manufactured by the British-American Tobacco Co., Limited, when the cigarettes are made with the use in part of imported Turkish tobacco in combination with domestic tobacco, with or without glycerin refined from imported crude glycerin, or made wholly with domestic tobacco with the use of said glycerin, and smoking tobacco made wholly from domestic tobacco with the

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut loaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

use of said glycerin, a drawback will be allowed equal in amount to the duties paid on said imported materials, less the legal deduction of 1 per cent.

The preliminary entry must show the marks and numbers of the shipping packages, and, in the case of cigarettes, the number of cartons of each size, together with the quantity of cigarettes of each grade contained therein, stated separately for each size of carton and grade of cigarette, and for each shipping case. All boxes and cartons in which the cigarettes are packed for export will be labeled to show the quantity and grade of cigarettes contained therein. In the case of smoking tobacco, the said entry must show the number of unit packages of each nominal size and net weight of tobacco contained in each case separately and in the aggregate.

The drawback entry must show the quantity of cigarettes and smoking tobacco of each grade of each factory exported, together with the quantity of imported tobacco and refined glycerin consumed in the manufacture of each grade of each factory of cigarettes and smoking tobacco, and, in addition to the usual averments that the merchandise was manufactured of materials and in the manner set forth in the manufacturers' sworn statement, dated April 19, 1905, transmitted herewith for filing in your office.

In liquidation, the quantity of Turkish tobacco in condition as imported, and the quantity of refined glycerin, with 22 per cent added, as provided in T. D. 17355, which may be taken as the bases for allowance of drawback may equal the quantities consumed, as declared in the drawback entry, after official verification of exported quantities, provided that in no case shall it exceed the quantities shown in the manufacturers' sworn statement.

Supplemental sworn schedules of other grades of cigarettes and smoking tobacco than those named in said statement, with the quantities of said imported materials, may be filed.

Samples may be taken or sworn samples furnished, as ordered by the collector, for required determination.

WASHINGTON DUKE IS DEAD

Father of A. T. Co's President Passes Away Near Birthplace.

After an illness of some months, Washington Duke, practically the founder of the great tobacco combine known as the American Tobacco Co., died on Monday at his birthplace near Durham, N. C., at the ripe age of 84 years. He had been declining for some time and the fracture of a leg which he sustained sometime ago hastened the end.

The dead millionaire is survived by three sons, Brodie L. Duke, of Durham; J. B. Duke, President of the American Tobacco Co. of New York, and B. N. Duke also of New York, all of whom were with their father at the end. The funeral services will take place today, in Maplewood Cemetery, Durham, where, several years ago, Mr. Duke built, at a cost of more than $50,000, one of the finest mausoleums in the country.

Washington Duke is a striking example of the hardy American pioneer who fought his way into great wealth from a boyhood of poverty and privation. The result of his work is one of the greatest and most powerful corporations in the world, and one which doubtless exceeds its founder's most ambitious dreams.

The growth of this mighty concern from its earliest conception in the mind of Washington Duke, is a matter of but forty years. That time ago Mr. Duke and his sons began the manufacture of tobacco in a very small way in the country near their birthplace, Durham. The business grew with surprising rapidity until a comparatively few years ago his plant went into the American Tobacco Co., one of the sons, John B. Duke, becoming President. What has happened since that time is common knowledge to the tobacco trade as is the present status of the company and the importance of the Dukes. Washington Duke has had nothing to do with the business of late years, but can certainly be regarded as one of the most important factors in its birth.

FINED $5 FOR SILENCE.

Wouldn't Tell Taft on A. T. Co. and Was Punished.

New York, May 9.

United States Circuit Court Judge Lacombe has signed an order fining Edwin F. Hale, Secretary of the McAndrews & Forbes Co., $5 for refusing to answer questions relative to the company's business, and another committing him to the custody of United States Marshal Henkel until he purges himself of contempt.

The questions were put to him by Henry W. Taft, brother of Secretary Taft, who is inquiring into the affairs of the American Tobacco Co., of which the McAndrews & Forbes Co. is said to be a subsidiary. In fact it was to determine the relations between this Company and the American Tobacco Co. that the questions were asked.

A stipulation was entered into between counsel that Hale should not be formally placed in the Marshal's custody until his counsel had had time to prepare a writ of habeas corpus and certiorari to be presented to the United States Court of Appeals, so that the legality of the entire proceeding may be here reviewed and passed upon.

The presentment made by the Grand Jury on Friday last and later filed with the Clerk of the Circuit Court shows that Hale was asked and refused to answer questions relative to what business he himself was engaged in, what business he was engaged in before he came to New York city, who was president of the McAndrews & Forbes Company, and what its business was. He also refused to tell where the office of the McAndrews & Forbes Company was, as well as the office of the American Tobacco Company and the name of its president. He also refused to say whether any agreement or understanding or arrangement existed between the American Tobacco Company and the McAndrews & Forbes Company in relation to the trade or business in licorice paste or mass in the several States of the United States.

Neither would he tell whether his company sold licorice paste to the manufacturers of plug tobacco throughout the United States.

The presentment showed that Taft had informed Hale at the beginning of the examination that the investigation was under the act to protect trade and commerce from unlawful trade competition, and that he could not be punished for evidence given during the course of the examination except for perjury.

Hale respectfully declined to answer the questions upon the ground that the answers might incriminate him, and further that he had not had time in the few days given him to produce the vast amount of records and data called for in his subpœna.

Those who have been watching the movements of Attorney Taft, who was specially appointed by the President to conduct an investigation, believe that this looks more like business than anything that has yet happened although no faith is put in the story that an attempt will be made to hale the officers and directors of the American Tobacco Co. into Court.

HOPKINSVILLE MARKET GOOD.

Inspectors Report it the Best for Some Time.

Hopkinsville, Ky., May 8.

Reports received from the Board of Inspectors and Warehousemen for the week just closed show the tobacco market to be in better shape than for some time past, with both receipts and sales being among the heaviest of the season, while the volume of business by comparison shows a healthy increase over that of the earlier weeks of the season.

The weather has been more favorable for the handling of the weed than it was some time ago, and the farmers have taken advantage of it for prizing their crops and getting them ready for delivery.

Over 50,000 pounds of the weed were sold in the loose condition upon the warehouse floors, and the prices realized were better than have been offered for several weeks.

Cash receipts were unusually good this week, as something over 400 hogsheads were delivered at the warehouses, which are rapidly filling up and will soon have all the tobacco in them that they can accommodate.

Receipts were especially heavy at the warehouses of the Protective Association, and there will be a steady and strong increase from now on.

Quotations are as follows: For trash: $2.75 to $3.00 lugs, $3.50 to $5.00; common leaf, $5.00 to $5.75; medium leaf, $5.75 to 7.00; good leaf, $7 00 to $8.25. The inspectors' report shows receipts for past week to be 340 hogsheads, and for the year 2,605 hogsheads. Sales for past week, 55 hogsheads, and for the year 725 hogsheads.

DON'T LIKE ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW.

Logansport Police Didn't Like Sleuth Work For a Cent.

Logansport, Ind., May 7.

The police of this town showed that they were not in sympathy with the anti-cigarette law, by a tilt which they had a day or so ago with representatives of the American Anti cigarette Society, who were Sherlocking around to see what they could see.

Judge Brown, of Salt Lake City, founder of the League, and W. A. Shaw, of Indianapolis, secretary, arrived in town and at once bent their eagle eyes on the reckless villagers. Not far from the station were a couple of boot blacks pulling hard at cigarettes.

"What is this?" exclaimed the outraged visiting sleuths. "Help! Police! Anybody! Everybody! Arrest these miscreants."

With some effort, a policeman was located.

"Officer, do your duty," was the stern command.

"Not the same," said the cop, and absolutely refused to move. The two reformers passed on and secured Police Captain Foley. That official also refused action and backed his subordinate up.

Much incensed the two visitors appealed to the prosecutor, who referred them to the police board, each member of which referred them to another member, until they finally reached the chairman. The latter finally issued an open order to Captain Foley to arrest the first violator and there may be something doing later. The anti-cigarette people regard it rather discouraging.

BOSTON WEATHER BRINGS TRADE.

Summer Breezes, Open Beaches and Ball Games All Help.

Boston, Mass., May 8.

The retailers are enjoying good business here as the weather has been very warm and much like summer. The nearby summer resorts, Revere Beach and Nantasket have done an extra good business for this time of the year and especially yesterday, being Sunday, there were many thousands of visitors to the beaches.

According to the schedules of the American and National Leagues, there is to be a game of professional base ball played here daily throughout the season, and this naturally will be very good for the retail cigar trade.

The merry war in price cutting on the products of the American Tobacco Co. by one of our largest American Tobacco Co. jobbers here, continues to cause much excitement among the jobbers and sub jobbers. This concern has been selling of late B. L. Planet and Mayos plug at less than cost. Cut plugs are also being sold at cost, and there is no telling what will happen next.

D. Benditson, Hanover street jobber, spent a few days in New York during the week.

Joe Manning, of McGreenery & Manning, and Louis Jeselsohn also visited the Metropolis this week.

Alfowich Bros., of 152 Franklin street, say they have no kick coming on the amount of business done during the past month. Nathaniel is out most of the time attending to their wholesale trade, while Billy is kept quite busy in the store looking after the retail end of the business and counting Florodora coupons.

Sig. Baum, of the Turco-American Tobacco Co., was here last Monday booking orders for Omega their popular 5 cent Turkish cigarette, which enjoys a good sale.

Henry Goulston Sons Co. will, on or about June 1, remove to larger quarters at 2085 Washington street.

Carl Berger, of the Manhattan Briar Pipe Co., New York, has been going the rounds.

Postals have been received by the tobacconists announcing that Maurice Bondy, of Kaufman Bros. & Bondy, will call on them this coming week.

M. Rieser, with B. Levenson, has been here showing his sample line of pipes to the jobbers.

E. J. Mulligan, with the Menashi Cigarette Co., spent the greater portion of the week in Providence, and while there placed Menashi with thirty new retailers.

J. N Finkelstein and Bieringer Bros. are now on the list of American Tobacco Co. jobbers and henceforth will buy direct.

At S. S. Pierce Co.'s Tremont street store can be seen this week a window display of E. L. Leon del Rey and Eden de Bances y Lopez, Havana cigars.

Epstein's cut rate drug store will remove about June 1 to 28 Tremont Row, corner of Pemberton Square.

A. S. Bearse, of Bearse & Hannington, expects to make a business trip to New York this week.

B. A. Abrashkin, representing Butler & Butler, is in town and is doing some clever work on Pall Mall and Egyptian Straights cigarettes and the St. Leger little cigars.

M. Rosenthal of Rosenthal & Hannington, South End jobbers, has been wearing a broad smile on his face of late. Mr. Rosenthal is soon to be married, and the bride to be is at present busily engaged in a Greene street tobacco store passing Kozy cut plug over the counter.

The new Leroy Cubanas have caught on nicely with the users of that class of cigars.

Julius O. Cohen, of the South Market Cigar Store, is certainly selling a large quantity of Porto Rican cigars, and is fast becoming one of our largest importers in this class of cigars.

Rosenthal Bros. are working both night and day to make a success of William the Fourth cigars for which they are the Boston distributors. Although the sale of clear Havana cigars here is limited this brand duplicates wherever placed.

Golden Eagle cigars are selling nicely and are displayed in the windows of many of our prominent retailers.

"Trade has been very good with us," reports Miss Alter, of 880 Washington street, "and on account of the big sale we have on Level Head tobacco, it makes it difficult for us to close up much sooner than midnight."

Chas. Sherman the Hanover street tobacconist is always smiling and really takes life easy. His wholesale business consists mostly of cash customers, and so Charlie has very few headaches.

El Cafe Havana Boquet cigars are favorites with many of his patrons.

Charles Polep of 326 Hanover street has the reputation of making a new window display daily. Mr. Polep enjoys a good sale on briar and fine meerschaum pipes, and his store is one of a very few that don't keep T. D's in stock.

Although Victor Sheppard of the Khedival Co. has not been here in four weeks, Turkish Delights are fast becoming the most popular 10 cent Turkish cigarette in the Boston market.

A. Greenberg, 1 Commercial, is doing quite a little jobbing business in connection with his two retail cigar stores. Greenberg is a pusher; his leader in 5 cent cigars is the A. G., a union piece of goods manufactured for him by a local cigar manufacturer. BEN ALI.

WITH THE TRADE UP THE STATE.

What the Manufacturers, Jobbers and Dealers are Doing.

Norristown.

W. K. Gresh & Sons are experiencing a thorough revival in trade, and are again working with a full force. To meet urgent requirements, this firm recently installed a complete printing outfit, by adding to the previous equipment a large cylinder press, and the company is now in a position to do all printing for commercial purposes, as well as a considerable portion of its label printing.

B. F. Rittenhouse is making very good progress on his David Rittenhouse brand, and employing thirty-six hands. His goods are well represented in Philadelphia, which territory is looked after by Aleck Adams, a salesman well known to the local trade, while in other sections Mr. Rittenhouse personally supervises the distribution of his product.

Schwenksville.

F. H. Beltz is adding additional cigarmakers to his already good sized force. His trade is growing rapidly and a larger output is imperatively necessary to meet the demand. He has been especially successful in introducing his American Cup, and it has become by long odds his leading product in the nickel variety.

Green Lane.

The factory of Jeitles & Blumenthal at this place is somewhat dull, at any rate there is a comparatively small force of cigarmakers at work at present.

Red Hill.

L. B. Miller's factory is operating about 250 people at this time, and yet they claim to be only moderately busy.

East Greenville.

J. L. Dimmig & Bro. will soon incorporate as the Dimmig Cigar Co., and under some special arrangements which have been made there is good reason to believe that this factory will soon begin to grow at a very rapid rate. In fact, it is not so long since the present building was erected, but even this it is thought will have to be materially enlarged in the course of another year.

Phoenixville.

A. Keely & Son, jobbers and dealers, are most comfortably housed in a new building which was erected on the site of their old premises.

William L. Carter, at 26 South Main street, is perhaps one of the best known, as well as one of the oldest, retail dealers here. In his stock is included a large line of the products of John H. Witter, of Newmanstown; Eisenlohr's (Philadelphia) Cinco; H. F. Fiddler & Co's (Womelsdorf) El Rocco; Bayuk Bros. Cigar Co. (Philadelphia) Havana Ribbon; Dempsey & Koch's (Philadelphia) Consumo; J. Weingartner's Sons' (North Wales) J. W.'s Sons, and others, while in Key West goods Duncan & Moorehead's Marcello has the lead.

J. E. Hallman has lately opened a new cigar store and pool room at 19 South Gay street, where he carries a nice line of goods, including Eisenlohr Bros' (Philadelphia) Cinco; Pent Bros' (Philadelphia) Tahoma; J. E. Shertz & Co's (Lancaster) Wyno, and B. F. Rittenhouse's (Norristown) David Rittenhouse, in five-cent goods; also, Pent Bros' (Philadelphia) Duke de Oro, sold at five cents, and the Asphodel, sold at ten cents. This establishment is a branch of Mr. Hallman's main store at 19 South Main street.

T. B. Buzzard, on Bridge street, carries a general line of all the more popular brands of cigars and tobacco.

DeWann Bros., cigar manufacturers, are contemplating the erection of a new factory in the rear of their present establishment.

Spring City.

The Active Cigar Co. has practically closed down its business, and after the disposal of some stock yet on hand will retire from the field altogether.

The Reliance Cigar Co., which was started after the Active Cigar Co. was given up, is continuing, and working ahead slowly. They are at present doing only a small business, but think they have fair prospects before them.

Royersford.

James B. Brown, who succeeded DeHuff & Brown, is working a moderate sized force, but his efforts are confined almost entirely to local trade. Mr. DeHuff has also resumed business on his own account.

Pottstown.

Shively, Miller & Co. are experiencing a steady increase in trade. Mr. W. H. Sassaman, of this firm, has again gone on the road, and is securing his usual good volume of business. The firm has also added to its selling force Mr. John T. Taylor, who was formerly in the tobacco manufacturing business at Reading. Mr. Taylor has been looking after Philadelphia trade. J. Carl Brill, formerly a member of the one-time jobbing firm of Brooks & Co., on North Third street, Philadelphia, also has a general selling agency for the products of Shively, Miller & Co.

F. S. & H. C. Roesch report a better trade than for some time. Their product is not only having an immense sale at home, but is meeting with a great increase in several of the larger New Jersey towns.

Boyertown.

D. S. Erb & Co., of this town, report very favorably of the prospects as they appear to them, and believe that the year's business should prove wholly satisfactory. They are, of course, continuing to push vigorously their Castle Hall 5c

Quakertown.

H. Sommer Co. lately opened a cigar factory at Doylestown, which is reported to be progressing well. The main factory, at Quakertown, is well filled with orders.

The M. A. S. Cigar Works have been removed to new quarters on Main street, where increased facilities are provided.

Richlandtown.

J. F. Walp, of this place, is making satisfactory headway, and is putting out an attractive line of goods.

Sellersville.

A. R. Cressman's Sons have greatly improved their plant and office headquarters, and have equipped a special label stock room, as well as enlarged storage vaults. The offices are also finely appointed and luxuriously comfortable. Business with them is reported as excellent, and in fact larger than ever at this time of the year, requiring the output of full forces at their three factories.

L. J. Sellers & Son, cigar box manufacturers, are exceedingly busy, and are obliged to work overtime to get orders out promptly. They will soon begin the erection of a large addition to their factory, which will about double the present capacity.

H. S. Souder, cigar box manufacturer and label printer, is also exceedingly busy at the present time, in both the box and the label departments.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The tobacco plants continue to grow very well for all the cold wind, and in this locality setting will begin probably about the usual time. I have heard of one or two beds where a half dollar would hardly cover some of the plants, but in the majority of the beds that I have seen a 25 cent piece would cover the plants easily.

Our correspondents write:

North Hatfield, Mass.: "Tobacco plants are looking well in this locality, the beds being well stocked. It is thought that setting will begin by May 25 in good earnest. A few growers will begin before that time."

South Deerfield, Mass.: "I am informed Franklin Belden, of East Whately sold his 1904 crop last week for 20c. Tobacco plants are growing finely in spite of the cold, dry winds, and will be ready to transplant earlier than last year. The acreage will be slightly increased with more seed leaf than last year. Everything possible is being done to insure a fine crop which will be had if suitable weather is given. Only two crops are left in this vicinity, E. J. Everett, of Deerfield, Mass., and W. W. Sanderson, of South Deerfield, Mass. Each have about 75 cases of as good crops as were grown in 1904, and held at reasonable prices. In Hatfield, Mass., 4 new tobacco barns are being built from 75 to 100 feet long by 30 feet in width."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

While some riding is still maintained and the hunt for desirable lots still kept up in the growing districts, the buying movement is surely falling away and the aggregate transactions steadily declining. Every scattering lot is being looked up and brought in from country hands, all looking towards a thorough gathering in of leaf in first hands. One farmer's lot of the '97 crop has been unearthed and marketed during the week. Chas. Geary sold 11a of '05 at 6c in bl. and 40cs of '03 at 6½ cents. C. E. Langworthy delivered 34cs of '93 to Jenson and 49cs of '03 delivered by the Hardwick Bros. at probably the best price paid for '03, comprise some of the sales from growers.

The 500cs packing put up by Peterson & Reme at Orfordville is reported sold to M. H. Bekkedahl, the Westby packer, for the account of his New York connection. S. C. Chambers reports the sale of 100cs to a Detroit manufacturer All goods of a serviceable binder nature or answering the demands of the exporters are in strong demand. A few warehouses are still engaged in handling the new crop but generally speaking the season is about closed. The weather of late has been decidedly favorable for the starting of the plant beds which are now showing

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Receipts in	April	3,009 hhds,
Sales	" "	223 "
Shipments in	"	781 "
Total Stocks May 1st		5,521 "

Buyers' stock, 164 hhds; unsold stocks. 5,357 hhds.

Our receipts of new crop this week were 592 hhds; offerings upon the breaks, 38 hhds; public and private sales, 168 hhds, composed largely of old tobacco at firm prices, the stocks of which are now very small. The sales of new tobacco were mainly of wrappers and spinners of various grades at full prices.

We have had warm showery weather favorable for the plant beds, and plantings will be made next week if the conditions should be favorable.

The planters of the "association" declare their firm determination to fully reduce their area to be planted. Plants are reported not to be abundant in some sections, and labor scarce, it having sought the railroads being built in the South, in which there is great activity at this time.

For old tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to	4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to	4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to	4.75
Low Leaf	4.75	to	5.50
Common Leaf	5.75	to	6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00	to	8.00

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.
M. D. Boales.

Market is still quiet; nothing doing. Scarcity in public sales, while private sales of 1903 stock and specialties in new crop have been fairly good at fair prices: Old Leaf, 6 to 8c, good condition; new wrappers, 10 to 14c, break prices.

New Lugs—Low, 3½ to 3¾c; Common, 3¾ to 4c; Medium, 4 to 4½c; Good, 4½ to 5¼c.

Leaf—Low, 5¼ to 5¾c; Common, 6 to 7½c; Medium, 7½ to 8½c; Good, 8 to 10c.

Condition—New showing much softness and in sweat.

The Planters' Association is prizing, storing, holding. They have appointed an inspector to sample their tobacco, and a salesman to sell in lots for classification or as a whole when buyer wants it.

Planting will commence soon. Plants are plentiful, but labor is scarce, having found other vocations more remunerative. Crop by organization is to be curtailed, and it looks as if the movement of present 1904 crop will be late.

Offerings for the week, 63 hhds; sales for the week, 51 hhds.

Note.—It is estimated that two-thirds to three-quarters of the receipts is Italian Regie, and A. T. Co's own prizing, and will not be offered on sale; also organization tobacco held for private sale, leaving small independent receipts.

RETIRES FROM SACRAMENTO.

resorted to in San Francisco for increase of business were never employed here. Trust methods, it is explained, were effective only in cities having a population of 80,000 or over, and in future the United Cigar Stores Company will confine its operations to San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Los Angeles.

There is a prospect, however, that another branch of the trust, known as the Royal Cigar Stores Company, may make an effort to secure a portion of Sacramento's retail tobacco trade at any time within the next few years. This branch is intended to cover cities of Sacramento's size, but its representatives are just now engaged elsewhere.

The Capital Cigar Store has been purchased by Ed Bowen, who has been, for some time, the manager for Blaskower & Co. He announced yesterday that all connections with the firm had been severed.

resorted to in San Francisco for increase of business were never employed here. Trust methods, it is explained, were effective only in cities having a population of 80,000 or over, and in future the United Cigar Stores Company will confine its operations to San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Los Angeles.

There is a prospect, however, that another branch of the trust, known as the Royal Cigar Stores Company, may make an effort to secure a portion of Sacramento's retail tobacco trade at any time within the next few years. This branch is intended to cover cities of Sacramento's size, but its representatives are just now engaged elsewhere.

The Capital Cigar Store has been purchased by Ed Bowen, who has been, for some time, the manager for Blaskower & Co. He announced yesterday that all connections with the firm had been severed.

WASHINGTON DUKE IS AT REST.

The Funeral was the Largest Ever Held in Durham.

Durham, N. C., May 11.

The last tribute of respect was paid to the mortal remains of Washington Duke, the tobacco magnate, yesterday in the Main Street Methodist Church and in Maplewood Cemetery, where the body was laid to rest in the great mausoleum. Never before has there been such a largely attended funeral in Durham.

Long previous to the ceremonies floral designs came into the town in carloads and were banked in beautiful profusion at the Duke residence. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. C. Kilgo, assisted by the Rev. Drs. E. A. Yates and T. A. Smoot. The gathering was enormous and beside the out-of-town people included the trustees and students of Trinity College, the board of county commissioners, the fire department, militia, and nearly every citizen not included in these.

The pall-bearers were: Captain E. J. Parrish, J. B. Cobb, F. L. Fuller, C. W. Toms, W. T. O'Brien, W. A. Erwin, T. J. Walker, James H. Southgate, Professor A. H. Merritt and W. H. McCabe.

Special trains bore officers of the American Tobacco Company and many prominent men from Northern States to Durham so that they might attend the funeral.

Telegrams of sympathy have reached the bereaved family from all parts of the country.

Those who witnessed the pomp with which Washington Duke was laid to rest and saw the sorrow that was written on the face of every townsman would find it hard to realize the man's humble beginning. His life was the uneventful life on a small southern farm until the civil war commenced. Then he joined the army of Northern Virginia.

When the struggle was ended, he was landed in the city of Newbern and discharged with only a silver half dollar in his pocket. He walked home and again took up his work on his farm with energy.

He commenced manufacturing tobacco in an old log house, and it was here that the foundation was laid for the immense fortune that he accumulated. After a short time he came to Durham, where he began business on a larger scale.

At that time the manufacture of tobacco was simple and in its infancy, but he used only the best tobacco that was to be obtained, and it was not long before he had a large sale, mostly in the Eastern counties of the State, where he carried it in a one horse wagon and sold it.

At first he granulated the tobacco by beating it with frails It was slow work, but at that time there was no machinery for the manufacturing of the weed. It was then packed in small bags and it was ready for the market. But the trade soon grew to such dimensions as to require the use of machinery, that at this time began to make its appearance in the country. And this continued it until the business developed into the greatest tobacco factory in the world.

EFFECT OF INDIANA LAW A SURPRISE.

Traveling Man Writes that its Enforcement is Much More Complete than was Generally Expected, and that the Outcome seems Doubtful. Comment on Tennessee Law Enacted in 1897.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 13.

Editor Tobacco World:

A traveling man, passing rapidly from one city to another, has a good chance to size up, if he wants to, the degree of respect paid to any particular law, when that law provides for the restriction of an act that is usually indulged in publicly.

In the course of my business, I have visited a number of towns in this State lately, and I am free to admit my surprise at the seriousness with which the anti-cigarette law has been and is regarded.

To all outsiders, I think, it appeared ridiculous to suppose that any freeborn American citizen would actually be taken into custody for committing the time-honored act of smoking tobacco—in whatever form—and a substantial sum of money taken from him as a penalty. I say, I think, no one believed that such a law would really be enforced for the reason that such a proposition harks back a couple of centuries to a time when human life and liberty were so cheap, and instinct generally so strenuous, that the punishment invariably outweighed the offense.

We all thought that the Indiana legislature merely carried out one of those peculiar whims which occasionaly seize all legislatures, and that Governor Hanly signed the measure as a sort of polite thing to do. The law passed, would have a certain moral effect and would constitute a sword of Damocles perpetually threatening the imprudent dealer. Further than that, we had no idea the thing would go.

But it has. Its effect has been positively surprising. Naturally, few smokers for the sake of defying a foolish law, care to risk $25 or more; and when the news of various fines imposed and paid begun to be printed, those who had been impudently indifferent began to think a little.

Nobody's opinion of the law is changed, but the undeniable fact that a policeman can arrest a man and lock him up for cigarette smoking just as surely as if he had broken into a bank, has had its effect as a cooler.

Of course, sales of cigarettes are made, and, of course, cigarettes are smoked; but I have seen no flaunting of it and the moderation of the habits, at least in public, is very noticeable. I enclose an extract from an article in a local paper on the subject of anti-cigarette law which I think is pertinent and will prove interesting to your readers.

And now I must say goodby as I am going down in the cellar to have a little smoke. Yours, etc., R. G. B.

The accompanying extract is as follows:

Learned judges of the Supreme Court of the United States, a few years ago, delivered long on the anti cigarette law enacted by Tennessee in 1897 as it affected interstate commerce, and by the close vote of five to four sustained the conviction in the State courts of one Austin, who sold a package of ten cigarettes to W. G. Brown, of Madisonville, Monroe county. The decision of the United States Supreme Court in this case, which is found in 179th United States Reports, affords little comfort to the resident of Indiana who has been longing for a smoke since Governor Hanly proclaimed the anti cigarette law in effect. The decision does not throw any light on the question that has been raised in Indiana as to whether one may have cigarettes in one's possession and may smoke them, but it has much to do with the question as to how cigarettes could be brought into the State in the event the courts should hold that it is not against the law to have them in one's possession and smoke them.

Justice Brown delivered the opinion in which Justices White, Gray, Harlan and McKenna joined. Justice Brewer wrote a dissenting opinion of much length and in this he was joined by Chief Justice Fuller and Justices Shiras and Peckham. The Supreme Court of Tennessee held that cigarettes were inherently "bad and bad only," and said the courts would take judicial knowledge of the cigarette evil. The United States Supreme Court did not go thus far, but said the courts could not well overlook the opinion of many people, as expressed in cards to the newspapers and elsewhere, that cigarettes were an evil and on these grounds the Legislature of Tennessee had a right to exercise the police power of the State.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court, boiled down, was this:

Tobacco is a legitimate article of commerce and the courts can not take judicial notice of the fact that it is more noxious in the form of cigarettes than any other form.

Tobacco is, like intoxicating liquors, within the police powers of the State.

States can prohibit the sale of cigarettes entirely after they are taken from original packages.

A package of cigarettes three inches long and one and a half inches wide, containing ten cigarettes, is not an original package.

The Tennessee law is a great deal like the first half of the Indiana law. The latter, after forbidding the sale or giving away, however, adds "or keep or own," and this has raised the question as to whether a man can smoke a cigarette without violating the law.

The Tennessee law is as follows:

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, that it shall be a misdemeanor for any person, firm or corporation to sell, offer to sell, or to bring into the State for the purpose of selling, giving away or otherwise disposing of, any cigarettes, cigarette paper, or substitute for the same, and a violation of any of the provisions of this act shall be a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $50."

The next section gives grand juries inquisitorial powers and the last says the law shall take effect in May, 1897.

Says the United States Supreme Court: "There is no reason to doubt the good faith of the Legislature of Tennessee in prohibiting the sale of cigarettes as a sanitary measure, and if it be inoperative as applied to sales by the owner in the original packages, of cigarettes manufactured in and brought from another State, we are remitted to the inquiry whether a package of three inches in length and one and a half inches in width, containing ten cigarettes, is an original package protected by the constitution of the United States against any interference by the State while in the hands of the importer? This we regard as the vital question in the case."

In the dissenting opinion Justice Brewer insisted on the supremacy of Congress and thought Congress and not the States should say what articles should be imported. As he looked at the matter a package of ten cigarettes was an original package. He thought it better to let a State be annoyed for a while than to destroy the commercial unity created by the constitution by relegating to each State the determination of the articles that it will allow to be imported. Justice Brewer summed up the Tennessee law and the prevailing opinion of the United States Supreme Court thus:

"It will, therefore, stop all importations of cigarettes for sale, and the only permissible importations will be those for personal use."

DANVILLE WILL NOT CLOSE.

Market Will Remain Open During Month of July.

Danville, Va., May 13.

The Danville Tobacco Association has decided not to close the market during July, the decision being made in response to a communication from the South Boston Association which suggested the closing during the month named, of the Danville, South Boston, Martinsville, Greensboro and Roxboro markets. The local association considered the question and then adopted the following resolutions:

The opposing resolutions of the Danville Association read in part as follows:

"Whereas, the conditions are such that the Danville market is peculiarly situated as to other markets, being the largest loose leaf tobacco market of the world, and, unlike other loose markets, being not local in scope, but wide and far-reaching in territory, selling tobacco from every section of the bright belt and at all seasons of the year, and

"Whereas, the marketing of the eastern and southern crop usually begins in July; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we, as a body and as individual members of the trade, are opposed to the closing of our market and of our warehouses for any month of the year."

TO FIGHT AGAINST COMBINE.

Plan to Reorganize Texas-Cuba Company

Beaumont, Tex., May 11.

Charles F. Taylor, of Chicago, and attorney, George S. King, left here a day a two ago for Nacogdoches to hold a conference with reference to the reorganization of the Texas-Cuba Tobacco Co., which went out of business some months ago.

Following this, Mr. Taylor announced that he would go to Chicago to confer with Mrs. Alice Webb-Duke, who is interested in the company. Mr. Taylor expects to be able to raise sufficient money to carry out his plans for a big tobacco plantation in competition with the tobacco combine.

The Tennessee law is a great deal like the first half of the Indiana law. The latter, after forbidding the sale or giving away, however, adds "or keep or own," and this has raised the question as to whether a man can smoke a cigarette without violating the law.

The Tennessee law is as follows:

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, that it shall be a misdemeanor for any person, firm or corporation to sell, offer to sell, or to bring into the State for the purpose of selling, giving away or otherwise disposing of, any cigarettes, cigarette paper, or substitute for the same, and a violation of any of the provisions of this act shall be a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $50."

The next section gives grand juries inquisitorial powers and the last says the law shall take effect in May, 1897.

Says the United States Supreme Court: "There is no reason to doubt the good faith of the Legislature of Tennessee in prohibiting the sale of cigarettes as a sanitary measure, and if it be inoperative as applied to sales by the owner in the original packages, of cigarettes manufactured in and brought from another State, we are remitted to the inquiry whether a package of three inches in length and one and a half inches in width, containing ten cigarettes, is an original package protected by the constitution of the United States against any interference by the State while in the hands of the importer? This we regard as the vital question in the case."

In the dissenting opinion Justice Brewer insisted on the supremacy of Congress and thought Congress and not the States should say what articles should be imported. As he looked at the matter a package of ten cigarettes was an original package. He thought it better to let a State be annoyed for a while than to destroy the commercial unity created by the constitution by relegating to each State the determination of the articles that it will allow to be imported. Justice Brewer summed up the Tennessee law and the prevailing opinion of the United States Supreme Court thus:

"It will, therefore, stop all importations of cigarettes for sale, and the only permissible importations will be those for personal use."

DANVILLE WILL NOT CLOSE.

Market Will Remain Open During Month of July.

Danville, Va., May 13.

The Danville Tobacco Association has decided not to close the market during July, the decision being made in response to a communication from the South Boston Association which suggested the closing during the month named, of the Danville, South Boston, Martinsville, Greensboro and Roxboro markets. The local association considered the question and then adopted the following resolutions:

The opposing resolutions of the Danville Association read in part as follows:

"Whereas, the conditions are such that the Danville market is peculiarly situated as to other markets, being the largest loose leaf tobacco market of the world, and, unlike other loose markets, being not local in scope, but wide and far-reaching in territory, sellilng tobacco from every section of the bright belt and at all seasons of the year, and

"Whereas, the marketing of the eastern and southern crop usually begins in July; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we, as a body and as individual members of the trade, are opposed to the closing of our market and of our warehouses for any month of the year."

TO FIGHT AGAINST COMBINE.

Plan to Reorganize Texas-Cuba Company

Beaumont, Tex., May 11.

Charles F. Taylor, of Chicago, and attorney, George S. King, left here a day a two ago for Nacogdoches to hold a conference with reference to the reorganization of the Texas-Cuba Tobacco Co., which went out of business some months ago.

Following this, Mr. Taylor announced that he would go to Chicago to confer with Mrs. Alice Webb-Duke, who is interested in the company. Mr. Taylor expects to be able to raise sufficient money to carry out his plans for a big tobacco plantation in competition with the tobacco combine.

BAYUK BROS. CIGAR CO. MAKERS, PHILADELPHIA.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

A WOEFUL TALE.

Oh me, oh my, but this is a knock, boys! I'll bet after this sizzles its way through the retail trade there won't be a dealer left with strength enough to say where he wants to be buried.

The thing originated this way: I got into conversation with a salesman the other day, a rather young chap, and when I saw how properly he admired and respected me, I let him listen to two or three of my experience when I used to have 'em all pointing me out.

"Things were evidently different in those days," said he, and at once launched into a story of his troubles.

"Write it out and send it in, my boy," said I. "If it don't melt the type, we'll print it."

So yesterday I got it; seven sheets of asbestos paper all nicely done up. And here it is:

Probably no other vocation under the sun offers such a variety of "hard luck" stories, as that of a cigar salesman, selling retail trade.

Neither does any other business provide such a variegated bundle of human nature as the retail cigar and tobacco dealers of a big city. Indeed, to adequately describe some of them and their business tactics would be utterly impossible, for our language is not sufficiently ample in scope to do 'em justice.

There are, however, many men in this business who are bright and up to date business men, and gentlemen the whole clock round, and who really know how to treat a salesman. They are men to whom you can address an interrogation and get an intelligent answer.

But the other fellow: When you enter his store, or to be a little more exact, his shack, and try to create an impression by acting like a gentleman, he looks at you with about the same degree of suspicion that a Jap regards a Russian. You feel a chill chasing up your back; you look around to catch something to give you an inspiration for an attempt at storming the citadel, and then you stammer out with little regard for the truth:

"I see you carry a very complete stock, have a good location, fine window," etc., which, if the fellow is not too calloused, will bring a sickly smile to his face—which when it comes off leaves traces of pain, as his mug is not accustomed to smiling.

Then you talk a word or two about the war, or you ask him what he thinks of the ball season chances. But alas! You find his skull too thick for any question of even general interest, so you take another full breath, and say:

"Well, how do you find business, and how are things generally?" Immediately you'd give much to recall those words.

He looks a look that would turn milk sour, and tells you he don't think it any of your business, as he is not telling his business to anybody. Then you collect all your faculties and go back at him once more. You tell him you did not mean to be impertinent, but that you were trying—with the accent on the "t"—to introduce a new cigar of exceptional quality, and at a price more than consistent with the merits of the goods, and that you will allow him ten cigars free simply for his good offices in getting his friends to try the brand.

Here again he spouts like a peevish whale, and says, "I have no friends in this business; and I keep only what people ask for. I'm only a machine back of this counter, and I'm not a fool to commit business suicide by trying to sell a cigar I have no call for."

Then you feel like saying what isn't taught in Sunday School, and are only restrained by your early training to respect old age and pity a fool. With what little ambition you have left, you pack up your samples and get out.

The next place you strike is a store of pleasing aspect, with well filled cases and shelves full of dummies. You encounter a good-natured proprietor, who makes you forget your late episode, and you hope to interest him in your goods. He looks you over, tries 'em all and gets down to the price—and right here you get to know that he is a rank cutter, and you feel like getting a job as street cleaner, when he tells you he sells his 5 cent cigars, seven for a quarter.

A glance at his cases or windows tells you the same story for, there you find a few boxes of reputable cigars that he is selling at about cost, as he says, as an advertisement—a sad thing for him—for in my estimation he is even a bigger dub than the self styled machine man.

The most frequent tale of woe, however, comes from the smaller store, who constantly cry "dull business," "can't see anything."

As a salesman I would like to suggest a few reminders for some of the evils that exist in the trade but will refrain from it until later.

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

THE editor of this page was in conversation with a cigar dealer some time ago, and the conversation fell upon the suggestions made here from time to time on store management. The dealer was kind enough to compliment them, but ventured the opinion that some of them involved too much expense.

"There isn't so darn much profit in this business, now-a-days," said he, "that we can afford to waste any of it on unnecessary schemes."

He is quite right. There certainly is not. But if these schemes are worth anything, they do not represent a penny wasted, but so much investment, and investment made necessary for the very reason that profits are not large.

Certainly every retailer realizes that he has to do something to meet competition, beside merely opening a store and waiting behind the counter until sufficient customers find their way into the place to buy his stock. He's got to advertise in some way, whether it is by newspaper, mail literature, window cards or displays, street freaks with placards, or any of the hundred different ways. The most conservative way is by special offers occasionally displayed in the windows. This is also the cheapest way, for in many cases it represents only the time and the cost of the materials. Every dealer does this at times.

Another way is to arrange more or less elaborate window displays from time to time, in order to provide a variety. This costs more, and the majority of dealers use the plan. And the fact that they do, proves that they know they must do something of the sort and make some such investment.

Now, a good window display brings more business than a window card, unless the offer the latter bears is phenomenally attractive. It also costs more, and thus follows out the rule of investment, that the more money invested, the larger the returns. Of course this rule is susceptible of modification, but it can be stated as a fact that the more money judiciously invested, the greater the return.

And the whole point hinges on the word "judiciously." The dealer who starts to make a splurge without carefully thinking it out beforehand, or employing an expert to think it out for him, might as well throw his money into the gutter. But if the dealer would spend the time he usually spends worrying over bad business, in framing up some way to make it better, and laying the results of his thinking before his clerks or his friends, before he experiments, he would find that the bad business would take care of itself.

Always put yourself in the place of the man you want to appeal to, and remember that while you've got a special reason for selling, he, as yet, has no special reason for buying. You have to provide that reason.

The public long ago reasoned out that the man who advertises in dull times must be the man who is doing the business, and they figure that there must be a good reason why. Consequently, they take their trade to him.

SOME WINDOW CARDS.

AS was stated a couple of weeks ago, now is the time to display window cards most effectively. Passersby will pay attention to almost any thing, days like these, and the better bid you make, the more attention they pay. Here are three cards that will help, if you will get them up neatly. The first is for a dealer who wants to push a specal cigar for a time, which may be either a new or an old brand. The card wants to be flanked by an arrangement of boxes of the brand, some of them open, and it is taken for granted that the package is a good one for display. Here's the card:

YOU'RE A GENTLEMAN,
At Least We Hope So, and
So We Call Your Attention to A GENTLEMAN'S SMOKE
It's the PULLMAN
Best for the Money We've Ever Seen,
And We've Seen a Few.
Dare You to Spend — Cents?

The second is to advertise cigarettes and of course, to fulfill the card, must be some good grade with a dainty package. With the artistic style of packing now in vogue, there is nothing easier to make a good showing with than cigarettes. If you want to stand a little expense it would better the card a great deal by having an artist draw around the wording a picture of long whiskered hayseeders, supposed to represent the Legislature. This is the card:

The Poor Indiana Legislators
Never Smoked One of Our DOODLEDUM
CIGARETTES
If They Had, They Wouldn't Have Acted So Foolishly.

The third card lends itself readily to illustration, too, and of the lot will probably prove the most attractive. There is an indefinable magnetism about a pipe, in itself, and when the reader imagines himself in some sweet smelling orchard leaning comfortably back against a tree trunk, lazily puffing away, and occasionally turning the leaves of a book, he is caught right away. He'll get the tobacco and imagine the rest. The card:

In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree,

With a Good Book, and a Supply of Our —— Cut Plug, and Who Cares Whether School Keeps or Not?

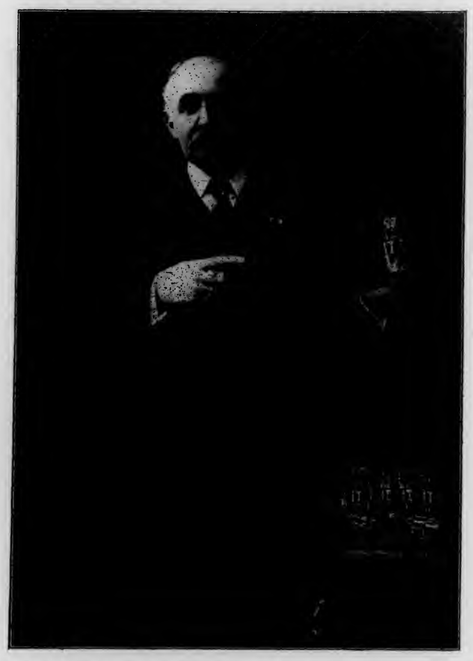
JAPAN IS THE PLACE FOR A TOBACCONIST.

YOU retailers who are grumbling because you have to reach way down to the bottom of the cash register drawer at the end of the day, why don't you move your store to Japan? Everybody is always smoking over there, they say, and it must be a cinch for a dealer in possession of a corner stand.

The foreigner, landing in Japan for the first time, is inclined to believe that the whole nation, men and women, are slaves to tobacco, so constantly is the pipe and cigarette seen.

The clerk who sells you a stamp at the Post Office, the cashier who deals with your circular notes at the bank, the official who "vises" your passport, the customs officer who looks at your baggage—all have a cigarette between their teeth or puff at a pipe. You will even see a nursemaid indulging in a quiet pipe while her baby charge sleeps.



In fact, Japan is now looking to her smokers for financial salvation. The interest on the new loan, and the heavy war expenditure, will largely be defrayed by the taxation of the tobacco monopoly and the liquor trade.

A tourist recently returned from the Land of the Wistaria declares that he does not remember a single non-smoking Japanese male, and met very few women who did not smoke. Yet, he says, he never heard of a case of a Japanese suffering from what is known as a "tobacco heart" or "smoker's blindness."

Japanese women are great smokers, though the habit does not seem to lessen their womanliness or destroy any of their charms. Two or three dozen cigarettes a day seem to have no effect in sullying the gleaming ivory teeth or dulling the brilliancy of the soft almond eyes of those fair devotees of Lady Nicotine. It is not considered at all a rakish thing for Japanese women to smoke. A pretty, well bred girl of 18 will produce her tiny silken pouch and dainty silver pipe with as much matter-of fact calm as might a man of 50.

Among the old women the pipe, which is often as long as a walking stick, is frequently used as an instrument of correction for children and others. The "Oba-san," or grandmother, rules her son's wife with a rod of iron, and often the pipe is the convenient symbol of her authority. A few smart blows with this redoubtable weapon soon bring the erring girl to a proper sense of her position.

Mr. F. B. ROBERTSON OF MATCH-IT FAME.

HERE we have Mr. F. B. Robertson in the act of telling you why you ought to buy Match It Cheroots and so be happy and prosperous. The camera was snapped just as Mr. Robertson had reached the point where you feel you can't refuse, and a picture taken a few minutes later would show our subject in the act of putting your order into his pocket ready to send to the Manchester Cigar Manufacturing Co. in company with a lot of others.

The only way in which Mr. Robertson's pleasant expression, as seen in the picture, can be induced to come off, is for someone to mention the word "trust." That means battle to this independent warhorse, and he looks up, prepared for anything.

Mr. Robertson's best friends call him "Robbie." He has a depot for his goods at 1004 Ridge avenue, Philadelphia, where he can now be seen, restored to health after a sojourn in Atlantic City on the advice of his physician.

New Orleans Association Says No Interest is Shown and Wants to Wind Up.

The members of the Louisiana Liquor and Tobacco Dealers and Manufacturers' Co operative Association of New Orleans, La., have petitioned the Civil District Court to permit the affairs of the association to be liquidated. There is a sum amounting to about $1,000 in the hands of the Treasurer, and it is desired that this amount be divided among the remaining members of the association.

The organization was originally formed for the purpose of testing the Sunday law and to form a sort of alliance between the liquor and tobacco interests of the city. The present petition is based on the claim that interest in the affair has been lacking for some time, and the meetings have not been attended.

FACTORIES ARE NOW BUYING IN HAVANA MARKET.

New Tobacco From Vuelta Abajo and Partido Sections is Now Arriving and Receipts Will Become Heavier Each Week. Manufacturers Are Not Very Busy.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, May 8, 1905.

While there is very little variation in the total numbers of bales, which changed hands last week, as compared with the previous one, the difference is that the local cigar and cigarette factories were the principal buyers and the Americans only operated sparingly, thus reversing the relative position of the two chief forces which keep the Havana market alive.

Old crop (1904) styles of Vuelta Abajo were mostly traded in at high prices, although a sprinkling of the new growth, Vuelta Abajo and Partido, was taken upon trial by a few local factories, as well as by a couple of Tampa manufacturers.

The new tobacco from these two sections is now arriving from the different packings, and receipts will become heavier with each successive week, so that with the beginning of July the Havana market ought to offer a fair selection of the so called factory vegas to American manufacturers of clear Havana cigars. Then a better judgment may be formed as to the quality, while at the moment, with the green tobacco still in fermentation in the bales, there is no possibility of a taste.

However, one good point seems reasonably certain, and that is that the 1905 crop is a free burner. A couple of vegas of temprano growth which arrived here very early had an excellent aroma; but one or two swallows do not make a summer.

The heavy part of Vuelta Abajo may not be ready for shipment until October. Remedios is backward, and the bulk of the escojidas may not open before the middle of June, exceptions to be made of the lighter part for Germany which may be started earlier.

As the farmers have obtained higher prices for their bundled tobacco everything will now depend upon the yield in the escojidas, although it would be a delusion to speak of lower prices, when everything points the other way. The unexpected may happen, but it is undoubtedly safer to base calculations only upon what is in sight. The best judges say that in quantity the 1905 crop is shorter than the previous one.

As the unsold stocks of the 1904 growth are so much reduced, they cannot play any role to speak of, and unless reports from the North are misrepresented the American manufacturers carry no surplus stocks to fall back upon.

Sales

during the week amounted to a total of 3,322 bales, divided into 2,702 of Vuelta Abajo, 370 of Partido, and 250 of Remedios. Buyers for the American market have taken only 1,241 bales, while local manufacturers have purchased 2,081 bales

Exports to all ports during the week were 3,298 bales, of which the various American ports will receive 3,212, the remainder going to Europe, South America and Australia.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals: Bernard Lichtenstein, of Lichtenstein Bros., and Max Stern, of Lewis Sylvester & Son, New York.

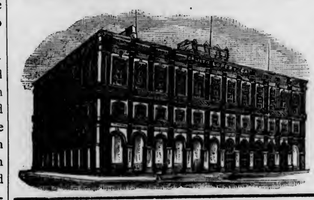
Havana Cigar Manufacturers

do not complain, because it would not do them any good, but business in general is dull, and very likely the tide will not commence to turn until July, when Germany usally is the first in the field to ask for new cigars.

There is an old saying that it is dangerous to swap horses when crossing a stream, but evidently the trust does not believe it. There have been wholesale discharges of foremen from the various factories, or perhaps it has been intimated that in order not to be dismissed it would be well for them to hand in their resignations. The latter may be the more polite form, but in the end it amounts to the same thing.



The new manager from Tampa, evidently, has something up his sleeve, and thinks that old approved methods in manufacture ought to be abolished and new ones substituted. Men who have been employed in the factories from ten to thirty years have had to make room for new brooms and consolidation and retrenchment of expenses are the watchwords.

Things have come to such a pass that finally Don Gustavo Bock, the president of the Havana Tobacco Co. at Havana could stand it no longer, and handed in his resignation to the Fifth Avenue Council at New York, which undoubtedly will be accepted, or has perhaps been acted upon already, as the whole manoeuvre seems to have been carefully planned.

However, it remains to be seen how the trust may fare in the future. That a concern, even if managed well, cannot pay dividends upon an inflated value or excessively watered stock is easily enough understood, and there have been enough examples of trusts, or would be trusts, which have gone under, or passed through a reorganization, before they finally, on a reduced capital, could be made to pay.

It is said that Don Gustavo Bock may establish himself as an independent manufacturer, and as he is universally esteemed and well liked success cannot fail him in any new undertaking, especially as his private capital is estimated in the seven figure mark. That the independent manufacturers are rejoicing it is needless to say.

H. Upmann & Co. are doing better this year at this period, and while the quantity of cigars is larger, the bulk is also more of Regalia cigar. They shipped 430,000 cigars last week.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. are quite content with their daily output of Flor de Tabaco de Partagas & Co.

Behrens & Co. are woking as usual in their Sol factory, and report satisfactory business.

Por Larranaga is likewise doing a fine business. Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, postponed his departure until the 13th inst., per steamship Mexico.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. have good orders from the National Cuba Co. for Ramon Allones, Cruz Roja and Marquez de Rabell.

J. F. Rocha & Co. are working steadily in their Crepusculo factory, although Don Jose F. Rocha has seen fit to avail himself of the dull period of the year to become a benedict, and left with his young wife last week for a bridal trip to the United States.

Calixto Lopez & Co. are busy enough in their Eden factory. Don Calixto Lopez left on Saturday, per steamship Morro Castle to take a well earned vacation, leaving the management during his absence to Don Manuel Lopez.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Sol Hamburger did not make a very long stay this time, but managed to purchase 700 bales of very fine Vuelta Abajo leaf, which Hamburger Bros. & Co. will have no trouble in disposing of quickly.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez sold 315 bales of Vuelta Abajo, and have received the first lot from their Bejucal escojida. Their buyers in the meantime do not stop buying a fine vega whenever they can find it in the Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta or in the Partidos.

Max Stern left for the Santa Clara province to form his own impression about the new Remedios crop.

Suarez & Co. closed out 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week, and are receiving fairly good sized lots of their several Vuelta Abajo escojidas weekly.

Joseph Mendelsohn returned from New York last Thursday, looking as chipper as ever, and has been seen all over the market hustling as usual. Manuel Suarez & Co. are never idle, even in the dull season.

A. Pazos & Co. shipped 150 bales of leaf during the past eight days, while Don Jesus Vazquez is in the country looking after the buying part and also superintending their escojidas.

G. Salomon & Hnos. made several transactions, amounting to 245 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Muniz Hnos. & Co. have purchased 20,000 matules additionally of the famous Santi Spiritu tobacco, which is considered eqnal to the Manicaragua leaf in flavor. They will open their escojida June 1, and calculate that the yield will be from 3,000 to 3,500 bales. Manuel Muniz, who has charge of all the buying and superintending of the escojida at Santi Spiritu, was here last week for a few days, but left again for the Santa Clara province. Hilario Muniz, the youngest brother, is in charge of the two packings in the Remates and Montezuelo districts, where Muniz Hnos. & Co. have purchased enough matules to result in from 2,000 to 2,500 bales of Remates and from 4,000 to 4,500 bales of the highly prized Montezuelo tobacco. Don Luis Muniz, the head of the firm, is usually at Havana, although he also goes to the country occasionally in case of need.

B. Diaz & Co. sold 170 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido, 60 bales of which were of the new crop.

Jorge & P. Castaneda have already received some bales from their famous Tumbadero packings, which are now turning out weekly shipment of fine sizes.

Rz. Rautista & C. disposed of 161 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Jose F. Iribarren returned from his trip to the United States well pleased with the promises of support given to him, and will soon open his escojidas in in the country.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. closed out about 120 bales of Vuelta Abajo local factories.

Charles Blasco returned from his trip to the United States in the best of health, and is ready to do some hustling work in the interest of his customers.

Jose F. Rocha turned over 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

Manuel Garcia Pulido is in the country making some heavy purchases in the Remates and Partido section.

Sobrinos de V. Diaz have already received some new tobcaco from the Vuelta Abajo.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 15, 1905.

With the opening of Luna Park and the beaches, business took a hump and from now on the number of cigars sold in Greater New York will be largely increased. The summer street cars are now running freely, and that also makes no little difference. Of course, the beaches will draw quite a little business from Manhattan, but a number of dealers either conduct or are interested in stands along the shore, and so are able to come out even. The weather was first rate last week and on the whole, a good week's business was recorded.

Orders kept up pretty well with the manufacturers, last week, most of them still coming from the West and the South. In fact more effort is being made for that trade with few exceptions, as the market in those sections seems to be more capable of expansion Two or three manufacturers about the middle of the week said their factories had all they could do and that they were seated to capacity. What proportion of the goods turned out are sold outright, it is impossible to say.

The leaf tobacco markets seem to have been universally quiet during the past week, and New York was no exception, so far as sales of seed leaf go.

Business consisted mostly of answering the many inquiries which are coming in concerning the new goods, which are just now in process of natural sweat or fermentation, consequently the present time may be called the in between season, for until the final results are definitely known no general revival is looked for, and in view of the exhausted condition in old goods, no large business is expected immediately. Indications at present of the new goods coming out of the sweat satisfactorily are good, which is at least some encouragement to packers, and it is a source of satisfaction to manufacturers and jobbers as well.

In Sumatra several houses have had a fairly active business for a month or more, and some good sized lots of the new goods have already been sold to manufacturers. Old goods also seem to have been more diligently looked after, buyers fully realizing perhaps, that there is certainly no present indication, or even possibility, of lower prices judging by the scant stocks of old goods and the apparent comparatively small quantities of new goods suitable for American manufacturers that have been secured this year so far, and the result of last Friday's Amsterdam inspection seems to fully substantiate the thories advanced. Even with an addition of 2,500 bales to the list of purchases this year by Americans the total is not yet up to the average of recent years.

At the inscription of Friday last at Amsterdam the following purchases were secured by New York houses: A. Cohn & Co., 400 bales and 350 bales out of hand; E. Rosenwald & Bros., 665 bales; Leonard Friedman & Co., 400 bales; L. Schmid & Co., 350 bales; H. Duys & Co., 334 bales; S. Rossin & Sons, 250 bales; L. P. Sutter & Bros., 25 bales.

The Havana market is fairly uniform, that is to say the lateness of new goods coming in makes it necessary for manufacturers to take such goods as can be procured, if needed for immediate use. It may be also said that the Cuban market is so thoroughly cleaned up of old goods as to make it impossible for importers to increase present supplies to any appreciable extent.

It is said that within a short time, goods shipped from Havana by the Havana Tobacco Co. for Boston concerns will be entered at the Boston instead of the New York port, which latter has been the case for nearly a year. This is in line with a general effort which the commercial organizations at the Hub are making to increase the volume of the port's business.

The business represented by the deflection of the Havana Tobacco Co.'s goods will not amount to more than $300,000 a year, but it is probable that this will constitute only a portion of the business that the port will lose.

It was after a decision of the Treasury Department that the Cuban internal revenue tax of $2 a thousand should be added to the value of the invoice in figuring the advalorem duty on the cigars, that the Havana Tobacco Co. withdrew its entries from Boston, because of the strict interpretation of the Boston officials on the ruling of the department, as compared with the more lenient interpretation at New York.

Accepting tentatively the ruling by the Treasury Department on the Cuban internal revenue tax, while not admitting its justice—for the export value of cigars from Cuba was higher than the domestic wholesale price, even with the internal tax added to the latter—the company instructed its agents in this country to add the value of the internal revenue tax at the bottom of invoices, for the purpose of figuring the advalorem, duty thereon, which action was taken to avoid being penalized by the Goverment, for trying to enter goods at below their market value from the country whence they came. The product was accepted at New York, New Orleans and San Francisco.

M. Barton, the customs officials took the ground that the goods were consigned and not purchased, as they were billed from the Havana Tobacco Co. of Cuba to the Havana Tobacco Co. of New York, therefore that under the law the value of the internal revenue stamp could not be added by the agents but should be added by the appraisers, together with the penalty for non compliance with the law. Naturally, the tobacco company preferred entering its goods at a port where no penalty was levied.

It was while affairs were in this state that the Boston Chamber of Commerce interested itself in the matter and tried to discover some solution of the problem, or to secure uniformity of treatment at the different ports. It communicated with the Havana Tobacco Co., officials at New York and got in touch with the Boston customs officials and had reached that point where it made it clear to the latter that the cigars shipped from Cuba by the Havana Tobacco Co. to Boston concerns were not consigned to branches of that company, but were purchased by individual concerns here, and hence open to the same treatment as in New York, when came the decision of the Board of General Appraisers that the Cuban internal tax of $2 a thousand was not dutible. supporting the contention of the protesting company, which purposely had allowed itself to penalized in one instance to secure a hearing.

The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association had an unusually lively meeting last Tuesday night, when a number of talks were given on subjects of vital interest to the association which were very much enjoyed by those present.

Albert Breitung, of Chicago, gave the association a very interesting and comprehensive outline of the progress of association work comparatively, as observed by him on a recent Western trip through a large number of Western cities. Sam Harris, President of the Khedivial Co., talked awhile, referring to the exposition which is going to make such a reputation for the association, and he was followed by Sidney J. Freeman, Chairman of the Exposition Committee whose remarks showed that everything is going along nicely.

An emblem of which the distinguishing feature is an eagle with outstretched wings, was decided upon to take the place of the flying horse, which for a number of reasons it was deemed best to discard.

Ghio, of St. Louis, and Juan Girbau and Jose Nigreira, of New York, compose a new firm wnich has secured the factory building at 417 East Seventy-sixth street, where they will produce a fine line of high-grade clear Havana. Mr. Ghio is the head of the Ghio Cigar Co., of St. Louis, where he will continue to live, and look after the new firm's business in that section. The other two members of the firm compose the firm of J. Girbau & Co., of 192 Pearl street.

The Brooklyn Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association held their regular meeting on Friday night, and enlivened the proceedings by a highly enjoyable smoker and entainment. There was a good attendance and while the affair was largely informal, everything passed off in the best of shape, and it was evident that the evening was a great success.

W. L. Porter, recently the Chicago representative of the E. H. Gato Cigar Co., has joined the forces of E. A. Kline & Co. in the same capacity, and will commence active operations on the field the first of next month.

No. 7 West Eighteenth street is a busy place now, as M. Stachelberg & Co. are well fixed there in their new quarters. Henry Esburg is very much on the spot. and the firm's business is going ahead with steady strides.

There is a new cigar stand in the big building at 60 Wall street. It is on the ground floor and has been opened by Abbot & Maher, who have on view a full line of varied smoking in the cigar and cigarette line.

The United Cigar Stores Co. has put a big sign up on its branch at 196 Broadway which states that that branch will be transformed into the finest store the company has, not excepting the Flatiron store. If the company keeps on, it will be building Aladdin palaces. The United Co. has also taken the store at 110 Broad street, which it will open up as soon as possible.

Last Friday and Saturday the Orient cigar store, Wall and Pearl streets, presented every customer to the extent of a dollar's worth, with a nobby little cane A large number took advantage of the offer and seemed well pleased with their bargain.

A. L. & M. L. Kaufmanns Boldt's Specials, are doing very well on this market. The cigar makes a highly enjoyable smoke and has been duplicating everywhere placed.

H. Duys & Co. are among the few leaf dealers who have been as busy as the proverbial bee. The inquiry for Sumatra has been very extensive, and this firm has disposed of close to 1,000 bales in the last month. This is not all in new goods, as this house has a good assortment of old as well, from which to choose.

J. Bernheim & Son, Havana leaf importers, are showing callers a new leaf sample cabinet, which is pretty near as much of a novelty as it is possible to get in the leaf business. The cabinet is seven feet or so high and perhaps ten feet wide, made of quartered oak with handsome brass mountings. It has three compartments, one of which holds wrapper samples. The cabinet is air-tight and is lined with white porcelain. Each of the three divisions has several sub compartments and the mechanism is arranged so that moisture can be applied to as few or as many of these compartments as is desired.

Adler & Sukovice have opened a factory at 243 Pearl street, and will direct their energies to the manufacture of high grade goods only.

C. E. Michael's resweating plant at 173 Front street has been much enlarged by taking in the whole of the building besides making many and extensive improvements, which will not only afford greatly increased facilities in handling tobacco and in their storage capacity, but will secure a reduction in insurance rates. Edward H. Michael a son of C. E., who has been very active in his father's behalf for several years, will in

There has been a good business done during the month. The inquiries mentioned in our last report resulted in several important transactions in Western Strips, and since the Budget date, the position of Old Strips has become stronger and better prices have been obtained, as buyers now see that the stocks of Strips in this country cannot be replenished except at the higher duty of 3s 6d per lb.

UNITED ENTERS SAGINAW.

Is Increasing Chain of Stores in Michigan to Dealers' Dismay.

Saginaw, Mich., May 12.

The United Cigar Store Co. has leased the cigar store of M. V. Foley, on Genesee avenue this city, negotiations for which have been pending for two or three months. The company has a large store in Grand Rapids and one in Detroit. Their new acquisition will constitute their third important stand in this State.

The retailers in this city are not prepared to welcome the newcomers with anything like open arms, as it means that outside goods will now be pushed in the city to a much greater extent than heretofore. The new branch will be altered to the company's uniform style as soon as possible, and the store opened.

ATTORNEY WILL TEST LAW.

Cigarette-Smoking Indiana Lawyer Will Find Out What's What.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16.

William W. Lowry, a well known young lawyer of this city, has made up his mind to make a decisive test of the Parks anti-cigarette law, and caused himself to be made the subject of an indictment returned by the Grand Jury, charging him with a violation.

Mr. Lowry was in the Criminal Court room some time before the jury rendered its report and at once accepted service of the customary capias issued as warrant of arrest and furnished a bond signed by leading Indianapolis business men whose aggregate capital will approximate $1,500,000. His sureties were H. S. Ohmer, Allan Lowrie, Alexander W. Thompson, George J. Marott, James L. Gaspar, W. A. Rhodes, Ernest H. Tripp, George B. Gaston and Henry W. Lawrence.

This bond, as might reasonably be supposed, was very promptly accepted by the Sheriff and Mr Lowry returned to his office.

Mr. Lowry is a man of means and is also an inveterate cigarette smoker. He has hitherto expressed himself strongly against the new law and insisted that its constitutionality would never be upheld by the Supreme Court to which tribunal he will appeal the case for the purpose of securing the test desired.

The Lowry cigarette case will in due time be set down on the Criminal Court calendar for trial. Mr. Lowry will enter a plea of not guilty, permit a finding of guilty under the indictment to go against him and at once take the case to the upper court.

It has been the desire of State's Attorney Benedict to have the law passed upon by a court of final resort and to that end Mr. Benedict and his chief deputy, Mr. Groninger, cast about for some one to indict who would be financially able to "carry an appeal up" for a final decision. And thereto "hangs a story." One day recently Mr. Lowry, who is seldom without a full cigarette holder, had occasion to go to the Grand Jury room on a professional call upon Deputy Prosecutor Groninger.

When conversing with Mr. Groninger in the outer corridor directly in front of the open door of the Grand Jury room, he drew a package of tobacco from his pocket, with the tell tale paper, delicately and deftly rolled a cigarette, lit it and literally puffed smoke into the Grand Jury room.

That was Deputy Groninger's long-sought for opportunity. He called two members of the jury to the door to note the cigarette smoking and then he and Mr. Lowry separated. They did not meet until after the indictment had been returned into court.

Three other citizens equally as prominent as Mr. Lowry were indicted, but the indictments will be "held up" to await the termination of the Lowry case before the Supreme Court.

—Three indictments for cigarette smoking were returned by the Indianapolis Grand Jury, and the accused were arrested and released on bond. The defendants propose to carry their cases to the highest court.

TO CUT PRICES IS TO CUT YOUR THROAT.

Why will retailers persist in cutting their own throats by slashing the price of a brand that is already selling well? There have been certain brands introduced on the market lately, the names of which it is not necessary to mention, which started to sell in a very satisfactory way. They were well advertised by the manufacturers and, as they seemed to be what the consumer wanted, they duplicated in every important instance. In each case the manufacturer advertised a certain price and authorized no change in it. Consumers were evidently willing to pay that price, and it looked as if the brands were going to make livings for themselves purely on their merits.

Suddenly one dealer put a sign up in his window announcing a cut of nearly 20 per cent. in these brands. Actually the cuts were made at different times on the different brands, but as they were all made in the same way the description of one instance will serve for all. The sign went up and attracted a rush of temporary custom. After a time another dealer followed and then two or three more.

Near the first dealer was a store which had had a good sale on the brand at the price at which it was advertised. Of course when the cut went into effect, sales fell off with the nearby dealer, and when the salesman for the brand came around, the dealer guessed he didn't want very many more. The salesman demanded the reason, particularly in view of the fact that the goods had been selling well.

This the dealer admitted, but declared that his was not a cut-price store, and that he could not afford to turn it into one, in order to help a manufacturer to boom his product. The salesman pleaded that his house not only did not authorize a cut but would like very much to stop it. The dealer was obdurate.

He said he had a decent trade of his own, and that it was no money in his pocket to sell this particular brand at the price he would have to, in order to meet the fellow down the street. So the sales man lost a customer that would have been more valuable to him than a dozen cut price artists.

Now, again the question: Why will a retailer make such an unnecessary cut? One dealer replied to this question with the statement that the United Cigar Stores Co. was constantly making cuts on kindred brands, and these had to be met, even if a loss were necessary.

The United Cigar Stores Co., backed by millions or not, is no more anxious to sell at a loss than the smallest dealer at a country cross-roads, and with the present percentage of dubious stores on its list, the company is probably not pining as keenly and constantly for a fight as seems to be the general impression. Naturally, when the company finds that the slightest cut finds an immediate and hysterical response from the independent store across the street, it finds it very easy to injure the chances of any new independent brand, a cut on which is not protected against by understanding or contract.

But the man who slashes his goods right and left for no better reason than that here given would seem to be a sadder victim of non reasoning than the man who accepted a thousand dollars to go off in the woods and shoot himself. The cigar dealer hasn't even anything to leave to his heirs.

The situation would be bettered considerably, if every cigar dealer took a thorough course in bookkeeping.

THE RETAILERS' PICNIC.

It is to be hoped that the picnic shortly to be given by the Philadelphia Cigar and Tobacco Retailers' Association will be a great success. The affair was instigated primarily to promote good fellowship and union, and also to provide funds with which to send a strong delegation from the Association to the New York Exposition, but if by any chance the former purpose only was accomplished, the time and labor of those in charge of the affair could by no means be accounted a loss.

Not every retailer loves his brother intrade, and with the independent trade menaced by a corporate foe whose ambition is limitless, it is decidedly well to establish as complete unity as is possible under the circumstances. The principal trouble is that in these days, when we don't wear uniforms, each man is apt to look askance at his neighbor, fearing that he will turn out a spy in the camp.

SEVERAL Indiana druggists are agitated by the fear that they will be pinched if they continue to sell the deadly cubeb cigarette to ailing customers. They argue that under the law, a cigarette is still that awful thing a cigarette no matter what its contents, and the officers of the law are as likely as not to raid their stores if it is found that they are thus defying the law.

There is nothing unreasonable about such an attitude. Authorities that could take into custody an ape for violation of a farcical law, could not be expected to make any exception in favor of anything whose only excuse was that it was supposed to be medicinal and beneficial. The Indiana druggists will do very well to go slow.

THE Indianapolis May Grand Jury has returned three indictments against as many heretofore reputable citizens charging them on specific dates with "owning and keeping a cigarette and cigarette paper." This majestic phraseology suggests the following;

Brown—"They say Smith has gone completely to the dogs."

Robinson—"Yes, he's about lost to all sense of decency; and you probably haven't heard the worst."

Brown—(with bated breath) "What is that?"

Robinson—(in hushed tones) "He keeps a cigarette paper now."

Here and There With the Retailers

Business in the retail market has been no more than fair this week, the three or four days of beastly weather interfering to a large extent with the number of goods moving over the counters. The box trade was not so good as it has been, either, and the retailers generally were not very cheerful. It looks as if summer had arrived to stay and if the coming week brings clear skies, business will probably take a brace. It is certainly time it did in this town, for the dealers with some exceptions are getting to be a disgusted lot. The market has been so uneven for months, that a dealer never knows what he can count on, and the proposition is getting to be a very uncertain one. Some of the Chestnut street stores have reported a fair May so far, while others complain bitterly of the slowness of the trade for which they cannot ascribe any definite cause. It is probable, all things considered, that the latter half of the month will be better than that which has already passed.

In the course of a week or so a new cigar will be on the local market, which from the way it looks, the way it smokes and the way it is packed, ought to make a killing. The brand has just been gotten out by I. Lewis & Co., of Newark, makers of the Golden Eagle little cigar, and they call their new smoke the Josh Billings after the famous American humorist of that name.

The cigar will sell for five cents, and the firm stakes its reputation on the quality of the smoke for that price. Philadelphia is definitely a five cent cigar town, and the manufacturer has to hustle some to keep up to the demands of the consumer. It is stated that the Josh Billings was made with this fact very much in mind, and the manufacturers expect it to give as much pleasure as did its famous namesake during his lifetime.

The package is a neat one in green and gold, and the label bears a picture of the humorist surrounded by miniature reproductions of his works. There is also a fac simile of the author's signature.

The cigar, which comes in the various popular sizes, will be pushed on this market by the firm's representative, Z. John Norris, and to the many who are acquainted with Mr. Norris's thorough way of looking after his trade, that is pretty nearly enough said.

E. G. Steane & Co., retailers at Tenth and Chestnut streets, will shortly remove from their present location to a surface store. This should result in increased business for the company, as some persons object to going below the side walk for their goods.

E. A. Bowker & Co., Market street grocers, who have a well equipped cigar department, are making preparations to remove from their present location at Thirteenth and Market streets to 1213 15 Market street.

A cigar store will shortly be opened at 131 South Tenth street by R. B. Semon, who formerly conducted a store on Chestnut street.

Davidyan, Jr., & Co., at Ninth and Arch streets, southeast corner, have an attractive display of I. Lewis & Co.'s Golden Eagle little cigars, and these goods are moving out well.

The committee appointed by the Philadelphia Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association to look after the program for the picnic to be held June 21, will meet tomorrow night at the home of D. A. Schaible, 411 Girard avenue.

The stag party which James I. Hassan gave to a number of his friends in the trade at his home 6633 Woodland avenue, last Wednesday night proved a decidedly enjoyable affair. A number of well known city salesmen were on hand and Mr. Hassan turned the whole house over to them. An entertaining program was rendered informally, in which everybody took part and by which everybody was amused. There were enough refreshments to go around several times and to spare, and when the affair finally broke up, which was some few moments after eight o'clock in the evening, everyone voted "Jimmie" the best host in the world.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The majority of manufacturers are keeping fairly busy, most of the goods going West, and while a land office business is not the rule, no particular dissatisfaction is manifested. The 5 cent cigars are running well, although there are a number of 10 cent brands made by Philadelphia manufacturers that have a very large sale in the West and South.

H. Rosenblum, manufacturer of the Belhaven cigar, formerly at Second and Chestnut streets, has removed to 2323 Germantown avenue, where he will continue to manufacture in connection with a retail stand.

Announcement is made that Scheinfeld & Batzofin will in about two weeks open a jobbing and retail place at 434 Market street Mr. Scheinfeld, is already known to the trade as a dealer at Sixteenth street and Ridge avenue, and Mr. Batzofin recently returned to this country after a lengthy absence.

Channing Allen & Co. are settled in their new quarters at 60 North Fourth street, where they removed from 519 Locust street. The firm has much more room in the new building both for office and factory, and is in every way better prepared to attend to the desires of their various customers.

Thomas C. Fluke & Co., grocers and cigar dealers, will, as announced several weeks ago, remove the first of June to Second near Market, where the company has leased a large building. At the time this change was announced many shook their heads over it, and considered that the company was making a mistake in deserting such a prominent location for one, which comparatively speaking, is obscure. Especially was it predicted that the cigar department would suffer. This possibility will be obviated to some extent, however, by the company's establishment of a depot in the Mint Arcade building, where much of the retail trade will be cared for.

John N. Kolb, of the Theobald Oppenheimer Co., is back from his visit to Amsterdam, and has already taken up his duties on this side of the water. Mr. Kolb secured some fine Sumatra while he was abroad.

W. W. Stewart, of Stewart, Newburger & Co., Ltd., is also back from a successful attendance of the Sumatra inscription.

Good, snappy business is reported by Sig C. Mayer & Co., manufacturers, at 417 Locust street. This is a comparatively young firm, but is more than holding its own. Mr. Mayer is at present having a fruitful Southern tripand his returns are keeping the factory hustling.

T. H. Hart & Co., report that they are oversold on both their blunt and point end Ledas, and that their factory is considerably behind on the orders already on hand.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

Another uneventful week can be recorded in the leaf market, very few transactions that amounted to anything having come off. The situation in Havana is still more or less of a tie up, caused by the reluctance on the part of the manufacturers to pay the prices which necessity demands, and while there was some inquiry, buyers contented themselves with just as small lots as they required to get out their orders. Why this should still be so is not quite clear, as manufacturers seem at last to be getting wise to the fact that there is absolutely nothing in sight to justify them in

Authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut loaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

expecting an easier market; in fact they are paying today without much grumbling, a little higher price than they kicked like steers on a month ago, and which they now wish they had taken advantage of. There is very eager inquiry for old Pennsylvania goods, and no tobacco to answer it. Those packers who have anything on hand are in a position to make their own terms, and buyers are helpless. Nearly all stocks are barren in this respect, and nobody seems to be able to supply the demand. Some Connecticut goods are moving at a good price, but there is little real activity.

Frank Linck, a member of the staff of the Loeb-Nunez Tobacco Co., has been sent to Havana to assume charge of one of the company's warehouses, and will probably remain there for some time.

NOTES FROM CINCINNATI.

Offerings at Cigar Leaf Sales Heaviest for Weeks.

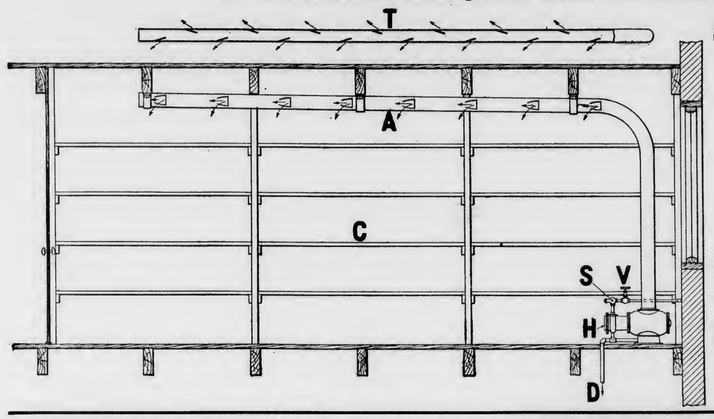
Cincinnati, O., May 15.

Offerings at last Saturday s cigar leaf sales were the heaviest for several weeks, amounting to 72 cases, consisting principally of Zimmer Spanish. The market was strong under keen competition. The Zimmers ranged from $2.30 to $12.25 per 100 pounds; Little Dutch from $10.50 to $12.25, and Wisconsins from $2.60 to $3.70.

"The cigar business in both wholesale and retail lines has been especially good for the past two weeks" said Henry Straus. "The coming of the summer weather, and the consequent increase in outdoor life has helped business."

Reports to Cincinnati handlers of white burley from Kentucky and Ohio districts state that the plants have been delayed by cool weather and damaged by continuous and an unknown insect. The loss though, will be light and indications are that the crop will be a large one.

The official announcement that the American Tobacco Co. is out of the market on 1903 tobacco has caused a withdrawal of offerings in that crop in the local burley leaf market. Brokers who held the tobacco in anticipation of a higher market are making private sales.



F. W. Galbraith, president of the Red Devil Co. returned from a business trip to Boston. A number of agents were appointed by him while in that city.

Dealers generally do not believe that another boom market, as was experienced last year, will be developed before the summer. Last year all the tobacco was in the hands of speculators while now the farmers control the situation.

J. C. W. Frishmuth, of Frishmuth Bros. & Co., Philadelphia, visited the local office last week. BUHRMAN.

TOBACCO NEWS FROM LANCASTER.

Leaf Market Continues Dull. Notes About the Manufacturers.

Lancaster, Pa., May 15.

The local leaf market continues in a lethargic condition. Nothing is doing in old tobacco for the simple reason that there is scarcely any in the hands of packers, it having been so thoroughly cleaned up, and in the new leaf, of course, interest is entirely centered in its condition and progress.

Seed beds have been progressing quite satisfactorily, and with continued warm and sultry weather such as we are having today, the young plants will make even more rapid progress. The belief is still generally prevalent that the acreage will be greatly increased if the plants continue to thrive as they appear to be doing now.

So far as can be ascertained, the earlier packings of the 1904 crop are going through the fermentation process very nicely, and indications now point to a fairly early selling season.

The plant of the Minnich Machine Works at Landisville, Pa., which is a two story brick structure 40 x 120 feet in dimensions, will probably be somewhat enlarged in the near future, by the installation of a foundry for making their own castings. This concern is of greater importance than may be generally known, for they are the makers of a patented portable bailing press, which press is in use by quite a number of packers in this section, by whom it is pronounced the most satisfactory apparatus of its kind known to the trade here. It is an ingeniously devised machine adaptable to many purposes, and should be more widely known to the leaf tobacco packers of other states. It is the intention of the Minnich Machine Co. to acquaint the leaf trade with this fact through the columns of The Tobacco World, and their announcements will appear regularly hereafter in the advertising columns of this paper. The Minnich Bailing Press is constructed for hand or steam power.

A. D. Killheffer, of the Eureka Cigar Factory, at Millersville, has just returned to the factory headquarters after an absence of nearly three weeks, and brought back with him quite a large number of orders for his product.

The cigar box factory of A. M. Wechter, at Lincoln, was completely destroyed by fire last week, entailing a loss of $5,000 which is believed to be fully covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion or ignition from a lamp used in heating glue pots. It is expected that he will rebuild.

J. E. Hertgen, lithographer, is now busy in making preparations for the removal of his plant to Lititz, where it will be merged with the Lititz Lithographing Co. This company, it will be remembered, is now erecting a building specially designed for that purpose. The structure is progressing very nicely, and will be under roof by the end of the present week.

J. K. Brenneman, of Bareville, this county, was on a visit to Philadelphia and other nearby points during the early part of the week.

The cigar industry throughout the country is not any too good at the present time. Quite a number of factories are working either on short time or short handed. We know of some few exceptions, of course.

AGED KENTUCKIAN DIES.

John P. Gray, of Elizabethtown, Ky., and well known in Louisville, Ky., where he was for years a member of the old tobacco firm of G. Spratt & Co., which conducted the Pickett Warehouse about the close of the civil war, died a few days ago in a hospital, following an operation. He was eighty-two years old.

TRADE KEEPS GOOD IN BOSTON.

American Tobacco Company's Goods Sold at Cut Prices.

Boston, Mass., May 14.

There is no material change in trade for the past week. The American Tobacco Company's products are being sold at very low figures and the retailers are hoping for a continuance of the same, but it is expected that by June first, the cutting in prices will cease, and that there will be some understanding established between the jobbers and the sub jobbers as to a schedule of prices.

There has been a big demand for Sweet Caporal cigarettes in which coupons were packed, as the news had spread around that the American Tobacco Co. had ceased packing coupons in these cigarettes. Every one was eager to buy as many of the old as they could get. These coupons will never reach the consumer of the cigarettes as they are being extracted from the packages before they even reach the retailer.

The United States Tobacco Company, which manufactures a brand of cut plug tobacco known as Central Union, popular in New England, has brought a bill of equity in the Circuit Court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts, against McGreenery & Manning, of Boston, who are the largest distributors of the trust goods in New England. The United States Tobacco Company claims that McGreenery & Manning are offering for sale and distributing a brand of cut plug manufactured by the trust, called Union Leader which is a close imitation of the complainants' brand of tobacco, Central Union. It is claimed by the United States Tobacco Company that the trust brand was gotten out in its present form and dress of package to mislead the consumer. The name of the trust does not appear anywhere upon its package, but it is alleged that the wrapping, packing and labeling of their Union Leader package so closely resembles the Central Union package, that persons desiring to buy Central Union are liable to be deceived and misled into purchasing Union Leader. The attorney of the United States Tobacco Company, Paul Blackburn, is also the general counsel for the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association of the United States.

Mr. Blackburn, when seen, declined to say more than that a suit had in fact been commenced against McGreenery & Manning to enjoin them from selling Union Leader, that counsel for the trust had been notified to withdraw the objectionable brand and that they had refused to do so, whereupon as service couldn't be obtained upon the officers of the trust in New England, suit had been brought against the largest distributors here of the trust goods in question which were McGreenery & Manning. Mr. Campbell, president of the United States Tobacco Company, has been closely identified with the fight in New England against the trust.

The cigar and tobacco store of M. J. Rosendorf, 33 Beach street, was visited by fire last Sunday night. The damage done is said to be in the neighborhood of $1,500.

John McGuire, who operates a cigar stand in the cafe at 17 Court square, carries a full line of imported and Key West cigars and enjoys a good trade.

Messrs. Greenwald, Welch and Armstrong, with the American Tobacco Co., are here doing missionary work on Lotus, the new chewing plug, similar tobacco to Piper Hiedsick.

M. Bondy, of Kaufman Bros. & Bondy, was here with his samples of C. P. F. pipes, and is reported to have done very satisfactory work in his brief stay in the Hub this trip.

Robert Stephenson a boy of twelve years was arrested yesterday morning in Thomas Clark's store, Cambridge, and was later held under $500 bonds charged with the larceny of tobacco. It is claimed that it has been the custom of the young man to visit Clark's store mornings to make small purchases. Each time he had with him a large basket, and after he had gone goods were discovered to be missing.

At 1.30 last night a thief broke into the cigar and tobacco store of Chas. Sherman, 288 Hanover street, and while attempting to depart with $5 in cash and $50 worth of cigars, tobacco and cigarettes, was caught by the policeman on the beat.

Kozy cut plug enjoys a good sale on Hanover street, and it seems to the writer, as if the people were so anxious to get it, that they would even go so far as to burglarize a tobacco store to gain their desire.

Edward Wischmeyer, Jr., of E. Wischmeyer & Co., Baltimore, Md., spent a few days in town calling on the wholesales trade with a line of cheap Pennsylvania cigars.

Joe Manning, of McGreeney & Manning, went on a week's vacation to Maine to indulge in the sport provided by the rod and reel.

A handsome window display of Pall Mall cigarettes is in evidence this week at G. Frank Davenport's, 422 Washington street.

Frank Coleman, a wholesale tobacconist, of Portsmouth, N H., was in Boston the early part of the week.

E. Sterling, tobacconist, of Worcester, Mass., was doing some buying in town on Wednesday last.

The Waitt & Bond Co. is doing plenty of local advertising on Totem, their leader in nickle goods.

Frank Pike, local representative of the Globe Tobacco Co., is well pleased at YORK TRADE NORMAL.

Manufacturers Have Frir Amount of Orders But Are Not Rushed.

York, Pa., May 15.

The industry in this county at present is in a normal condition. A majority of manufacturers are working steady forces but not one of them can be said to be rushed. The leaf dealers are also complaining somewhat of the inactivity of the manufacturers as buyers.

The State Seal Co., a recently organized project, which is composed principally of members of the manufacturing trade at Yoe, this county, is pushing its plan to completion with considerable rapidity. Several dwellings are in course of erection and the cigar factory which is also to be built on the grounds (which are just immediately beyond Yoe on an elevation of a couple of hundred feet above the borough proper), will be undertaken next. It will be so constructed that should it be desirable at any time it can readily be changed into dwelling houses.

John E. Olp, formerly in the cigar manufacturing business at Jacobus, this county, but who was more recently put through bankruptcy, and only a few weeks ago came to York to open a cigar store on George street, was arrested last week on a charge of forgery by H. G. Reever, of Springfield township. He entered bail before Alderman Owen for a hearing. The prosecutor claims that he endorsed a $50 note for the defendant, and that he also endorsed one renewal of the note; but that subsequently several renewals were made of which he had no knowledge, and to which his name had been forged.

V. R. Welsh & Son, manufacturers and retail dealers, of West Market street, this city, are building an extension to their manufacturing department.

Noah Gillen, of Gillen & Granat, has just returned from a flying visit through the leaf centers of Wisconsin.

John E. Detwiler and Fred Smith, cigar box manufacturer, and cigar manufacturer respectively, of Red Lion, recently made a business trip to Pittsburg.

■—An anti-cigarette bill, similar to the Indiana law, has been introduced in the Legislature of Florida.

READING UP TO SNUFF.

Manufacturers are all Moderately Busy and Apparently Satisfied.

Reading, Pa., May 15.

In view of the reported present condition in the cigar manufacturing trade of other sections of the State, Reading can justly claim to be getting its full share of business as quite a number of cigar manufacturers are moderately busy and it is not hard for cigarmakers to find employment, which is an unmistakable indication of a good business being enjoyed by our manufacturers.

J. W. Fehr, of the leaf firm of J. W. Fehr & Son, recently returned from a trip through Connecticut where they have put up a packing of 1,000 cases of leaf, and speaks most encourageingly of its progress. To a World reporter he said he believed his firm would be able to show the trade the nicest lot of Connecticut tobacco that had ever been shown in Connecticut unless all signs failed.

H. E. Spannuth, the veteran representative of Louis Bremer Sons, Philadelphia, was a recent visitor among the trade here.

The Womelsdorf factories are busy without an exception, H. F. Fiddler & Co. are having as large a trade as they have ever experienced at this time of the year. William Schaffner & Co. are also pushing the cigar manufacturing business more vigorously than they have done for some time past.

Weidman & Moyer, cigar box manufacturers, say they are very busy, which is conclusive evidence that the cigar trade in this vicinity is having its full share of business.

M. Steppacher, of Reading, informs me that orders are beginning to arrive very satisfactorily for their union made product and they are employing a force of cigar makers to the full capacity of their factory.

Frank S. Rader, of the cigar manufacturing firm of Ibach & Rader, met with a serious accident several days ago which has landed him in the Lebanon Hospital. He was driving from their factory to Sheridan, only a mile distant, in a small wagon with several cases of goods for delivery to the railroad station, when the horse suddenly took fright and threw Mr. Rader violently to the roadside. The injury from the fall was declared to be a compound fracture of one limb necessitating his removal to the hospital as stated above.

RUMPUS IN STOGIE COMPANY.

Pittsburg Stockholders of the Stogie Trust Want an Accounting.

Pittsburg, May 15.

Much talk has been occasioned in the trade by the actions of the Pittsburg stockholders of the American Stogie Company in adopting toward the controlling New York crowd, a "show me" attitude. The local stockholders demanded some days ago that the officers be required to make a statement at once, under pain of being brought into court.

This action was taken, following a meeting of the Pittsburg people and Attorney M. R. Trauerman, H. V. Curil and S. Vandersall were appointed to demand the statement from President C. M. Logue. Attorney Trauerman made the followtng statement:

"The American Stogie Company was organized in 1903 by George B. Hanford of New York and C. M. Logue of Pittsburg. It is capitalized at almost $12,000,000, of which about $4,500,000 is held by Pittsburg people, the remainder in New York. The report of the directors states that the company is making money, but it has never paid a dividend and to us at this end all information as to the standing of the company has been refused.

"At the annual meeting of the stockholders in Jersey City, April 3, Pittsburg stockholders had a representative present to go on the directorate who made a demand for a financial statement to learn why no dividend has ever been presented. This report was ignored in the vote for directors and the directorate was made up of the New York people and two men who, though Pittsburgers, have been working with the New York people in the company. These two are President Logue and E. A. Katzmiller.

"The stockholders in Pittsburg then consulted me and I make a trip to New York to find some information about this company, but I was simply referred to the New York counsel who said no report was required under the charter and none would be made. We naturally do not like this style of business, and want to know."

The defense made by President Logue is to the effect that the dissatisfaction exists on account of the fact that the company has deemed it wise to call in some fat salaries that he says have been paid in Pittsburg and which were not earned.

STOGIE FIRM DISSOLVES.

Samuel Smith & Son, stogie manufacturers, at 112 4-6 East Jefferson street, Allegheny, Pa., have made a formal announcement to the trade of the dissolution of that firm, by the retirement of Samuel Smith, who proposes to conduct a retail store at Olin street and Cedar avenue, Allegheny, while the business of manufacturing will be continued by his son, Sidney S. Smith, under the old firm name of Samuel Smith & Son.

SMOKING TOBACCO RESTBICTIONS.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Delivers an Important Opinion.

Washington, D. C., May 13.

The commissioner of internal revenue has issued an opinion, partly in answer to questions submitted to him, regarding the sub division of packages of tobacco. The commissioner's letter states:

The present law and regulations require that all smoking tobacco shall be put in packages containing 1, 1⅔, 2, 2½, 3, 3½, 4, 8, and 16 ounces, and in no other manner, and that each such package shall be properly labeled and stamped before removal from the factory. Such statutory packages cannot legally be sub-divided into parcels of tobacco inclosed in envelopes or other wrappers to be distributed gratuitously as samples, nor can the tobacco be taken from such statutory packages after removal from the factory and be repacked in envelopes or other inclosures and then be sold or given away.

It is illegal for a manufacturer of tobacco to put up and remove from his factory sub division packages of smoking tobacco of the character referred to, and such packages found on the market or outside of the factory premises will be promptly seized and forfeited to the United States, and if deemed necessary criminal proceedings will be had against the offending manufacturer under the law.

This paragraph disposes of the inquiry as to whether one would be permitted to distribute the envelopes containing fractional parts of an ounce of tobacco directly from the stamped statutory sixteen ounce packages as put up by the manufacturer.

The commissioner was asked by a manufacturer whether he would be violating the law if he, or persons under his direction, took the tobacco from regular statutory packages and replaced it in envelopes, with or without advertising labels thereon, in quantities less than one ounce, and then distributed the small sample packages gratis to the public, preserving the stamped sacks and other evidence as to his having taken the tobacco from regular stamped statutory packages. He was advised that this would be illegal, and that the sample packages would be seized and he would be proceeded against for violation of the law.

Regarding this, the commissioner writes: "If he (or his agent) removes tobacco from statutory packages and repacks the same in subdivision packages containing less than the statutory quantity and then distributes these small packages to the public or to the trade as samples, even if he can prove that he took the tobacco from regularly stamped packages for such purpose, in the opinion of this office, he or they will be guilty of violation of the law and subject to prosecution."

MEETING DIDN'T PAN OUT.

Burley Belt Wasn't Sufficiently Represented at Cincinnati Meeting.

Cincinnati, O., May 15.

The meeting of burley growers last Wednesday which had been heralded for a couple of weeks or so, and at which it was promised to solve the burley question and arrange for a corner on the coming crop, did not pan out. The attendance was poor and little business of importance was transacted.

The meeting was held at the Grand Hotel, and so few sections of the burley belt were represented that it was at once appreciated that nothing could be done at the present time.

Among the officials of the association and leading planters present were President W. B. Hawkins, of Lexington, Ky.: Archibald Stuart, of this city; M. I. Barker, of Carrollton, Ky.; Scott Osborn, of Dover, Ky.; Henry C. London, of Georgetown, Ohio; Wm. Adams, of Cynthiana, Ky.; W. C. McCord, of Springfield, Ky.; Wallace Sharp, of Sharpsburg, Ky., and T. J. Skeldon, of Madison, Ind.

In the informal discussion which took place various plans to finance and control the crop were brought forward. The representatives from the Carroll County section favored co-operative buying and selling through agents appointed for that purpose, advocates of this plan claiming it would eliminate the packer and shipper, or "middleman."

Another plan suggested was the establishment of district warehouses throughout the burley belt, which would receive the tobacco from the planters and issue stock certificates therefor on the basis of $5 per 100 pounds, sampling and warehouse charges to be a lien on the tobacco when sold, but leaving it optional to the planter to sell whenever he desired.

It is not evident how this plan differs in any essential particular from the custom which has prevailed for many years of selling through the commission warehouses in this city and Louisville.

It was finally decided to await the action of the committee appointed at the Lexington meeting, but President Hawkins was requested to urge the committee on in the completion of its work and then to call a general meeting of the association either in this city or at Lexington, Ky.

It is understood that Mr. Archibald Stuart has a plan to finance the deal for the crop of 1905, but will not make it known until the general meeting.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

Our correspondents write:

Hinsdale, N. H.: "Tobacco plants are up, but on account of the cold weather are backward. About the same acreage will be put out as last year. There are two crops of 1904 tobacco in town and fifty cases of 1903 crop, and it is good tobacco."

Wetherfield, Ct.: "The weather is too dry and cold for tobacco plants to grow well. Some are watering their beds and some are waiting for rain, thinking if they begin to water they will have to keep it up. I hear there will be a little more raised this year over last year's production."

Bradstreet, Mass.: "The last assorting shop closed Saturday. A small crop of 3,000 pounds is the only tobacco in the place and was assorted and packed by Oscar Belden & Sons. Tobacco plants are doing nicely and setting will be in order soon."

Conway, Mass.: "Tobacco plants are coming on well, in spite of the cold weather. Some of the earliest will be ready to set next week, but that will be rather early if the weather does not change before that time."

East Whately, Mass.: "Dennis Hayes is building a tobacco shed 8 x 32 feet, three tiers high; tobacco plants are looking well, and setting will probably begin about the usual time, the 20th to the 25th of this month."

North Hatfield, Mass.: "The tobacco beds are looking fairly well and setting will be fully as early as usual. I have seen some beds in which silver dollars would hardly cover some of the plants, and such plants will in the ordinary course of events be ready to set inside of ten days. Mr. R M. Swift has some good beds. He thinks he will be obliged to take off his glass or the plants will be too early. Smith Briggs, Willis Holden, F. A. and C. H. Crafts will all have plants early."—American Cultivator.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 627 hhds; offerings on the breaks, 118 hhds; public and private sales, 224 hhds.

The sales were of old leaf at firm prices, and new crop, in which not all of the grades were represented. Cigar and plug wrappers, and German spinners were in much request at very full prices, but sellers seemed not fully satisfied, and expect more when orders increase in the market. The prizing of the crop shows the small percentage of lugs.

We have had good planting weather all the week, which was taken advantage of by all who had their land ready for the setting of plants.

Planting at this period of the year is usually damaged by cut worms, and complaints will probably be heard next week. Not enough of the new crop has been sold to furnish reliable quotations for all grades.

For old tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$3.75
Common Lugs	3.75	to	4.00
Medium Lugs	4.00	to	4.25
Good Lugs	4.25	to	4.75
Low Leaf	4.75	to	5.50
Common Leaf	5.75	to	6.75
Medium Leaf	7.00	to	8.00

DUKE MONEY GOES TO CHURCHES.

Durham, N. C., May 15.

The will of the late founder of the Tobacco combine disposes of an estate valued at about $1,000,000. To some 30 nephews, nieces, grand nephews, grand-nieces and other kinspeople he left $1,000 each; to the North Carolina Methodist Conference, $10 000; to Home Missions, $5,000; to provide a fund for taking care of the aged and infirm ministers of the Conference, $5,000; to the Western North Carolina Conference, $10,000; to Home Missions, $5,000; to care for aged ministers $5,000; to the North Carolina African Conference and the Western North Carolina African Conference of the Methodist Church, $2,500 each; Watts Hospital, Durham, $,3,000; Oxford Orphan Asylum, $3,000; Methodist Orphanage, Raleigh, $3,000, and Kittrell Institute, colored, $5,000.

There is set aside in trust 30 per cent of the entire estate, to be divided at different times until the youngest heir has reached 35 years of age.

Thirty per cent of this trust fund goes to B. N. Duke and a like amount to J. B. Duke, 28 per cent to Brodie L. Duke and the remaining 12 per cent to the heirs of Mrs. Lyon, the only daughter, who died a number of years ago.

Brodie L. Duke's 28 per cent of the trust fund is to be divided so that he will get half the fund during his life. The remaining half of this fund will go to his children, the sons to get one-third each at 20, 25 and 30 years of age, and the daughter to get one third each at 25, 30 and 35 years of age.

National Cigar Clipper

It Clips a V in Ends of Cigars---

A LITTLE vest pocket instrument for the smoker that puts a V in ends of cigars—neatly—accurately—without breaking wrapper, no matter how dry or brittle the cigar is.

It doesn't bite and pull and squeeze; but cuts "shear ways," the common sense way—a way that can't dull the the cutter and disfigure the point of cigar.

Design is elegant—nothing like it on the market anywhere Finest tool steel—nickel plated, and polished.

Makes an effective and lasting piece of advertising for the cigar manufacturer and distributer because of its ability to attract attention—its utility and durability.

The dealer can't put a better selling novelty before a smoker. Hits two ways,—snug profit when sold—fetching advertising with name on.

Sample 15 cents. Dozen lots without ad. $1.25.

Gross lots without ad. $14.00; with ad. if not more than three lines, three eighth of an inch long, $16.50.

NEW CUBAN CUSTOMS RULE.

Change in Red Tape Around Entrance and Exit of Travelers' Samples.

Washington, D. C., May 20.

United States Minister Squiers, at Havana, Cuba, has written to the Department of Commerce and Labor announcing the fact that by a decision of the department of finance, when a foreign commercial traveler's samples are exported from a port other than the one through which they were imported, the custom house of the first port will issue a voucher in exchange for the certificate of deposit, which voucher, together with a certified copy of the verbal declaration on which the import duties were based, must be presented to the custom house of the port of clearance in order to secure the reimbursement of 75 per cent of the duties paid.

The following is a translation of a circular (No. 345) issued for the Havana customs upon the subject:

The delay caused by the procedure up to now to make reimbursements, which, in accordance with the note to paragraphs 326 and 327 of the tariff, are made to commercial travelers when, within three months, they re export the samples which they bring in their baggage and whose value does not exceed $500, forces this department to adopt means to prevent the frequent difficulties which are caused to custom house functionaries by the delay in the return of 75 per cent of these collections.

Therefore it is provided:

1. That in the future the full amount of the duties assessed in the custom houses on samples imported by commercial travelers shall be collected in the form set forth in the note to paragraph 327 of the tariff in force.

2. When samples are exported from the custom house of the port of entry within a period of three months, to which the note to paragraph 327 refers, the custom house will proceed to deduct from the amount deposited 25 per cent of the lawful duties for final collection, as it belongs to the State, and the 75 per cent shall be returned to the commercial traveler

3. In cases in which the period of three months mentioned shall have passed without the exportation of the sample being effected, the respective custom houses shall proceed to the final collection of the whole of the duties placed on deposit, because the period set forth by the law for obtaining the reimbursement of the 75 per cent of said duties shall have elapsed.

4. When exportation of samples takes place in a port other than that in which importation was effected the latter port will proceed to the collection of the whole of the duties deposited; the receipt of the deposit will be taken up and a voucher furnished in its place, so that the custom house through which exportation takes place may return the 75 per cent on presentation of that document and a certified copy of the verbal declaration on which was based the assessment at entrance as a due proof and guaranty for the State. These reimbursements will be made in accordance with a special fund which on this date and with said object exclusively will be assigned to the order of the respective cashiers of the custom houses.

Collectors of customs are by this circular authorized to proceed to the reimbursement of import duties collected on samples of commercial travelers as mentioned above without the necessity of other authorization from this department.

WILL FIGHT TO BITTER END.

Indiana Lawyer, Arrested for Cigarette Smoking, Will Prove Law Invalid.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 19.

William W. Lowry, who has been indicted by the Grand Jury for smoking cigarettes, has asked that his case be continued, and will put up a determined fight to prove the absurdity of the law. His case will be prepared as thoroughly as possible in view of the fact that Judge Alford, of the Criminal Court, expressed himself as believing the anti-cigarette law to be constitutional.

"While I have every confidence in the world in the honesty and ability of Judge Alford," said Mr. Lowry, "if I find that he is firm in his belief that the present statute covering the cigarette law is constitutional, I shall ask that my case be tried before another judge, as I wish to make it a test case."

"I believe that the law is an interference with interstate commerce," he replied. "There is a case reported in the one-hundred-and-twenty-fifth volume of the United States Reports, which, I think, is very much in point, and this decision seems to touch our cigarette law in more places than one. The State of Iowa passed a law forbidding the issuing of licenses for the sale of liquor; the Legislature, not satisfied with its work, passed another law making it an offense for a common carrier to accept a shipment of liquor consigned to any person in the State of Iowa, unless the consignee had a permit to sell liquor. Of course, as no permits were issued, no railroad or other common carrier could accept a shipment of liquor without laying itself liable to the penalty under this last mentioned law.

"A firm doing business in the State of Iowa purchased 5,000 barrels of beer in Chicago and tendered them to the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, requesting that the beer be transported to Marshalltown, Ia. The railroad declined to accept the beer because the consignee at Marshalltown had no permit to sell liquor. Suit was brought in the United States Circuit Court for the northern district of Illinois. The court held that the railroad was right in declining to accept the shipment of beer in the face of the Iowa statute. The case was appealed to the United States Supreme Court, and was there reversed. The opinion was written by Mr. Justice Matthews, and is supported by copious quotations from former decisions of the Supreme Court.

"The court said: 'It has never been regarded as within the legitimate scope o inspection laws to forbid trade in respect to any known article of commerce, irrespective of its condition and quality, merely on account of its intrinsic nature and the injurious consequences of its use or abuse. * * * Can it be supposed that, by omitting any express declarations on the subject, Congress had intended to submit to the several States the decision of the question in each locality of what shall not be articles of traffic in the interstate commerce of the country?

"'If so, it has left to each State, according to its own caprice and arbitrary will, to discriminate for or against every article grown, produced, manufactured or sold in any State and sought to be introduced as an article of commerce into any other. If the State of Iowa may prohibit the importation of intoxicating liquors from all other States, it may also include tobacco or any other article, the use or abuse of which it may deem deleterious. * * * In view of the commercial anarchy and confusion that would result from the diverse exertions of power by the several States of the Union, it can not be supposed that the constitution or Congress have intended to limit the freedom of commercial intercourse among the people of the several States. * * * It is enough to say that the power to regulate or forbid the sale of a commodity after it has been brought into the State, does not carry with it the right and power to prevent its introduction by transportation from another State.'"

THE NEW TOBACCO CROPS.

Government Reports Showing Its Condition in All the States.

Washington, D. C., May 20

The latest weather crop bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture, states that the transplanting of tobacco has been begun in Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana, and plants generally are abundant. Much tobacco land is prepared and with the favorable conditions resulting from the rains of the latter part of the week, this work will now be prosecuted actively. Dealing with the crop by States, the bulletin makes the following reports:

New England—Tobacco excellent

Pennsylvania—Tobacco ground being prepared, but no transplanting.

Maryland—Much tobacco ready to transplant.

Virginia—Tobacco transplanting begun, weather favorable, plants abundant and vigorous.

North Carolina—Tobacco starting off nicely.

South Carolina—Tobacco doing well.

Tennessee—Tobacco being set.

Kentucky—Tobacco setting begun but delayed by rains; cut worms damaging tobacco beds.

Indiana—Tobacco being transplanted.

Ohio—Tobacco only fair.

ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW PUT HIM OUT OF BUSINESS.

Lafayette, Ind., May 19.

The first failure from the enforcement of the anti cigarette law, is announced in the suspension of George M. Timberlake, cigar and tobacco dealer, who blames his insolvency on the law in question combined with the disastrous eviction of the slot machine. The Timberlake store was a favorite resort for Purdue University students and as the attention of these was occupied almost exclusively with the two banished articles, the cigarist's trade has dropped off lately as it he had the pest.

J. HAMPTON MOORE RESIGNS,

Chief of Bureau of Manufactures is Now President of Trust Company.

Washington, D. C., May 18.

J. Hampton Moore, of Phildelphia, Chief of the Bureau of Manufacturers, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, has resigned, in order to attend to his duties as President of the City Trust, Safe Deposit and Surety Company, of Philadelphia, to which office he was recently elected.

Mr. Moore attracted the attention of the tobacco trade by an address which he delivered in Lancaster before the recent annual meeting of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association. In his letter of resignation, Mr. Moore states that he is reluctant to relinquish the opportunities for public service, but is compelled to do so by considerations of a personal and domestic nature.

MONEY SAVED BY FERTILIZER.

Results of Agricultural Department's Experiments in This Direction.

Washington, D. C., May 18.

George T. McNess, one of the Agricultural Department's tobacco experts has made the following report concerning the proper fertilizing of soil for tobacco:

"The Agricultural Department secured five acres of ordinary ground at Appomattox, Va.—almost the spot where General Lee surrendered—and planted tobacco. We did not plow deep except in the first acre, where we followed the methods of the farmers round about and used $10 worth of fertilizer. On the next two acres we increased the amount of ammonia and spent $16 for fertilizer. On the remaining two acres we put still more ammonia and spent $32 for fertilizer. From the first acre we got 673 pounds of salted tobacco; from the second plot we got 883 pounds of salted tobacco per acre, and from the last plot we got 1,350 pounds of salted tobacco per acre. The 673 pounds sold for $45.50, the 883 pounds sold for $81.09, and the 1,350 pounds sold for $111.29.

"With the first acre we spent $30 for labor and $10 for fertilizer, or a total of $40. The gross receipts were $45.50 showing a net profit of $5.50 per acre per annum. On plot No. 2 we spent $44 for labor, or a total of $60, which from $81.09 leaves $21,09 profit per acre per annum. On plot No. 3 we spent $50 for labor, or a total of $82, giving us per annum profit per acre of 29.29, which is just six times the profit possible under the old scheme. If the farmers will accept this and do as we recommend they will all die rich and prosperous."

While the experiments of the department in this respect have been carried on only in Virginia, the soil is the same as in Ohio and other tobacco growing states, and what will apply to Virginia will apply anywhere else.

NEW CUBAN CUSTOMS RULE.

Change in Red Tape Around Entrance and Exit of Travelers' Samples.

Washington, D. C., May 20.

United States Minister Squiers, at Havana, Cuba, has written to the Department of Commerce and Labor announcing the fact that by a decision of the department of finance, when a foreign commercial traveler's samples are exported from a port other than the one through which they were imported, the custom house of the first port will issue a voucher in exchange for the certificate of deposit, which voucher, together with a certified copy of the verbal declaration on which the import duties were based, must be presented to the custom house of the port of clearance in order to secure the reimbursement of 75 per cent of the duties paid.

The following is a translation of a circular (No. 345) issued for the Havana customs upon the subject:

The delay caused by the procedure up to now to make reimbursements, which, in accordance with the note to paragraphs 326 and 327 of the tariff, are made to commercial travelers when, within three months, they re export the samples which they bring in their baggage and whose value does not exceed $500, forces this department to adopt means to prevent the frequent difficulties which are caused to custom house functionaries by the delay in the return of 75 per cent of these collections.

Therefore it is provided:

1. That in the future the full amount of the duties assessed in the custom houses on samples imported by commercial travelers shall be collected in the form set forth in the note to paragraph 327 of the tariff in force.

2. When samples are exported from the custom house of the port of entry within a period of three months, to which the note to paragraph 327 refers, the custom house will proceed to deduct from the amount deposited 25 per cent of the lawful duties for final collection, as it belongs to the State, and the 75 per cent shall be returned to the commercial traveler.

3. In cases in which the period of three months mentioned shall have passed without the exportation of the sample being effected, the respective custom houses shall proceed to the final collection of the whole of the duties placed on deposit, because the period set forth by the law for obtaining the reimbursement of the 75 per cent of said duties shall have elapsed.

4. When exportation of samples takes place in a port other than that in which importation was effected the latter port will proceed to the collection of the whole of the duties deposited; the receipt of the deposit will be taken up and a voucher furnished in its place, so that the custom house through which exportation takes place may return the 75 per cent on presentation of that document and a certified copy of the verbal declaration on which was based the assessment at entrance as a due proof and guaranty for the State. These reimbursements will be made in accordance with a special fund which on this date and with said object exclusively will be assigned to the order of the respective cashiers of the custom houses.

Collectors of customs are by this circular authorized to proceed to the reimbursement of import duties collected on samples of commercial travelers as mentioned above without the necessity of other authorization from this department.

WILL FIGHT TO BITTER END.

Indiana Lawyer, Arrested for Cigarette Smoking, Will Prove Law Invalid.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 19.

William W. Lowry, who has been indicted by the Grand Jury for smoking cigarettes, has asked that his case be continued, and will put up a determined fight to prove the absurdity of the law. His case will be prepared as thoroughly as possible in view of the fact that Judge Alford, of the Criminal Court, expressed himself as believing the anti-cigarette law to be constitutional.

"While I have every confidence in the world in the honesty and ability of Judge Alford," said Mr. Lowry, "if I find that he is firm in his belief that the present statute covering the cigarette law is constitutional, I shall ask that my case be tried before another judge, as I wish to make it a test case."

"I believe that the law is an interference with interstate commerce," he replied. "There is a case reported in the one-hundred-and-twenty-fifth volume of the United States Reports, which, I think, is very much in point, and this decision seems to touch our cigarette law in more places than one. The State of Iowa passed a law forbidding the issuing of licenses for the sale of liquor; the Legislature, not satisfied with its work, passed another law making it an offense for a common carrier to accept a shipment of liquor consigned to any person in the State of Iowa, unless the consignee had a permit to sell liquor. Of course, as no permits were issued, no railroad or other common carrier could accept a shipment of liquor without laying itself liable to the penalty under this last mentioned law.

"A firm doing business in the State of Iowa purchased 5,000 barrels of beer in Chicago and tendered them to the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, requesting that the beer be transported to Marshalltown, Ia. The railroad declined to accept the beer because the consignee at Marshalltown had no permit to sell liquor. Suit was brought in the United States Circuit Court for the northern district of Illinois. The court held that the railroad was right in declining to accept the shipment of beer in the face of the Iowa statute. The case was appealed to the United States Supreme Court, and was there reversed. The opinion was written by Mr. Justice Matthews, and is supported by copious quotations from former decisions of the Supreme Court.

"The court said: 'It has never been regarded as within the legitimate scope o inspection laws to forbid trade in respect to any known article of commerce, irrespective of its condition and quality, merely on account of its intrinsic nature and the injurious consequences of its use or abuse. * * * Can it be supposed that, by omitting any express declarations on the subject, Congress had intended to submit to the several States the decision of the question in each locality of what shall not be articles of traffic in the interstate commerce of the country?

"'If so, it has left to each State, according to its own caprice and arbitrary will, to discriminate for or against every article grown, produced, manufactured or sold in any State and sought to be introduced as an article of commerce into any other. If the State of Iowa may prohibit the importation of intoxicating liquors from all other States, it may also include tobacco or any other article, the use or abuse of which it may deem deleterious. * * * In view of the commercial anarchy and confusion that would result from the diverse exertions of power by the several States of the Union, it can not be supposed that the constitution or Congress have intended to limit the freedom of commercial intercourse among the people of the several States. * * * It is enough to say that the power to regulate or forbid the sale of a commodity after it has been brought into the State, does not carry with it the right and power to prevent its introduction by transportation from another State.'"

THE NEW TOBACCO CROPS.

Government Reports Showing Its Condition in All the States.

Washington, D. C., May 20

The latest weather crop bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture, states that the transplanting of tobacco has been begun in Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana, and plants generally are abundant. Much tobacco land is prepared and with the favorable conditions resulting from the rains of the latter part of the week, this work will now be prosecuted actively. Dealing with the crop by States, the bulletin makes the following reports:

New England—Tobacco excellent

Pennsylvania—Tobacco ground being prepared, but no transplanting.

Maryland—Much tobacco ready to transplant.

Virginia—Tobacco transplanting begun, weather favorable, plants abundant and vigorous.

North Carolina—Tobacco starting off nicely.

South Carolina—Tobacco doing well.

Tennessee—Tobacco being set.

Kentucky—Tobacco setting begun but delayed by rains; cut worms damaging tobacco beds.

Indiana—Tobacco being transplanted.

Ohio—Tobacco only fair.

ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW PUT HIM OUT OF BUSINESS.

Lafayette, Ind., May 19.

The first failure from the enforcement of the anti cigarette law, is announced in the suspension of George M. Timberlake, cigar and tobacco dealer, who blames his insolvency on the law in question combined with the disastrous eviction of the slot machine. The Timberlake store was a favorite resort for Purdue University students and as the attention of these was occupied almost exclusively with the two banished articles, the cigarist's trade has dropped off lately as if he had the pest.

J. HAMPTON MOORE RESIGNS,

Chief of Bureau of Manufactures is Now President of Trust Company.

Washington, D. C., May 18.

J. Hampton Moore, of Phildelphia, Chief of the Bureau of Manufacturers, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, has resigned, in order to attend to his duties as President of the City Trust, Safe Deposit and Surety Company, of Philadelphia, to which office he was recently elected.

Mr. Moore attracted the attention of the tobacco trade by an address which he delivered in Lancaster before the recent annual meeting of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association. In his letter of resignation, Mr. Moore states that he is reluctant to relinquish the opportunities for public service, but is compelled to do so by considerations of a personal and domestic nature.

MONEY SAVED BY FERTILIZER.

Results of Agricultural Department's Experiments in This Direction.

Washington, D. C., May 20.

George T. McNess, one of the Agricultural Department's tobacco experts has made the following report concerning the proper fertilizing of soil for tobacco:

"The Agricultural Department secured five acres of ordinary ground at Appomattox, Va.—almost the spot where General Lee surrendered—and planted tobacco. We did not plow deep except in the first acre, where we followed the methods of the farmers round about and used $10 worth of fertilizer. On the next two acres we increased the amount of ammonia and spent $16 for fertilizer. On the remaining two acres we put still more ammonia and spent $32 for fertilizer. From the first acre we got 673 pounds of salted tobacco; from the second plot we got 883 pounds of salted tobacco per acre, and from the last plot we got 1,350 pounds of salted tobacco per acre. The 673 pounds sold for $45.50, the 883 pounds sold for $81.09, and the 1,350 pounds sold for $111.29.

"With the first acre we spent $30 for labor and $10 for fertilizer, or a total of $40. The gross receipts were $45.50 showing a net profit of $5.50 per acre per annum. On plot No. 2 we spent $44 for labor, or a total of $60, which from $81.09 leaves $21,09 profit per acre per annum. On plot No. 3 we spent $50 for labor, or a total of $82, giving us per annum profit per acre of 29.29, which is just six times the profit possible under the old scheme. If the farmers will accept this and do as we recommend they will all die rich and prosperous."

While the experiments of the department in this respect have been carried on only in Virginia, the soil is the same as in Ohio and other tobacco growing states, and what will apply to Virginia will apply anywhere else.

THE PREMIUM SYSTEM IS DOOMED.

Believe me fellow patriots, human nature is a grand, grand, old thing. It's what takes the place of instinct in the dumb animals, and it's equally wonderful, unexplainable, and at times laughable. We go ahead and do things that we know are foolish, and we not only go ahead and do them once, but repeat the act time and time again, even while we may be declaring to ourselves that we are dummed fools.

We go even further. We will patiently lie to ourselves about a certain thing until we make ourselves make believe that we believe it, and then regulate our actions accordingly. All the time we know that we really don't believe anything of the kind, but we simply keep that knowledge buried deep in our mind beneath all the sophistry we have managed to cook up, until we finally get tired of the whole thing, and give our sane selves a look-in.

I think every one can plead guilty to this, some of us more guilty than others. It is the human weakness of us demonstrating itself, and it is what provides us with the quality of sympathy.

This heavy, philosophical introduction came to me after a short meditation on coupons and trading stamps; and if there ever was a scheme that fattened on human nature it is that. I found myself at an informal little company the other evening, which was enlivened by some very fine music. In order that a piano duet might be pulled off scientifically, the hostess touched up a neighbor, who was in attendance, for her piano stool, or rather chair, for it was one of those fancy boys with tall backs.

"Just look, Uncle Jasper," exclaimed the daughter of the house, directing my attention to the borrowed article. "Isn't that great? And only two billion trading stamps." (That was not the exact number, which I forget, but it is near enough).

"Sh! Hush, dear!" warned the mother. "You shouldn't tell that."

I said it was very nice, and changed the subject in my graceful, self-possessed way, to the evident relief of the owner of the stool, who sat near. But why she should be ashamed of the way she got the thing, I can't for the life of me see. That is, how she could consistently be ashamed. It would have been natural enough if she had not wanted people to know that she had been gulled by the trading stamp idea. But that wasn't it. She evidently imagined that people would think she was poor, because she hadn't bought all her furniture.

Foolish vooman vat she vass! She had paid three times as much for the chair as if she had walked into a first class furniture store and planked down the cash. And before I leave this part of the subject let me remark that during the evening, a small boy, son of the woman who owned the stool, came into the room, and the irrepressible daughter of the house whispered to me that the little boy's suit had been obtained with cigar bands or some such thing.

Now let's get to the point. I make a predicton here, and I'm by no means the first to make it, that it will not be a long time before premium coupons, tags, and cigar bands will be done away with. I believe this will be the result of a natural reaction, and already, the heaviest company in this business is gradually condensing the number of its premium certificates issued. The trouble with the scheme is that it necessitates a tremendous outlay, an incredible amount of trouble, and practically pays no profits. Moreover, the majority of those who take advantage of the proposition are those who may be classed among the least valuable of the customers.

It is very probable indeed, that if the progenitors of the premium idea had known as much at the first as they do now, the system would never have been started. As a matter of fact, cigars, cigarettes and tobacco sell themselves more readily than perhaps any of the commodities with which trading stamps are usually given, and the birth of the coupon, brought no great increase in consumption.

This being a fact, the death of the coupon will be followed by no material decrease. The consumer is pretty nearly ready for it. He is getting a little tired of the idea, and the vagaries of a number of the trading stamp companies have helped him to change his mind. The sudden removals and dissolutions and evasions have made him rather intolerant of the whole premium scheme, although

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

IN your desire to have a spick and span store, don't have things so neat that you are afraid to disturb anything to find a customer what he wants. There is nothing disgusts a man so much as an appearance of impatience on the part of the clerk. Nothing makes him mad so quick, and nothing is so likely to keep him out of your store forever afterward.

The writer has stood in cigar stores where a clerk has dragged down a dozen or two boxes and spread them out all over the counter, in order to help a man to spend a dime. After the man had gone out, the clerk patiently replaced everything and said never a word. Somebody else did say something.

"Well," said the clerk, in explanation, "that man buys every cigar he smokes right in this store, and I know he sends a lot of other people here. I admit he's a good deal of trouble, and I understand that he tried about fifty other stores before he hit us. But he's a satisfied crank, and they're valuable customers, for their very crankiness is likely to cause them to advertise widely a place that hits their fancy."

A dealer cannot be too careful how his stock looks. He can't be too finicky as to dust, dirt or untidiness, and he wants to drill his clerks in this respect, until it becomes second nature to them to follow out his ideas.

But in doing this he has to guard against the danger of defeating his own purpose. The clerk may become all that could be desired in the matter of neatness, but may get so he fairly hates to disturb anything no matter for how short a time, and though he may not mean to let it do so, this is very apt to crop out in his manner of treating a difficult customer.

Most smokers have a favorite cigar store where they feel at home and where their tastes are understood and promptly suited. When such men enter a strange store, if they are at all particular about their smoking, and most men are, they don't feel at home, and at once assume an attitude of defense. They are afraid they aren't going to get just what they want, and they keep the clerk busy handing out boxes.

If this is done unwillingly, or the man behind the counter exhibits (unconsciously perhaps) the slightest reluctance or impatience, the customer at once puts the store down on his black list. On the contrary, if the new customer is made much of, he is likely to get the idea that it might not be a bad thing to switch stores for a while and so enjoy the extra attention which comes to a customer who cannot be counted among the regular ones.

There was one instance the writer knew of which worked out this way quite lately. It was in Philadelphia, and during the time when every day brought two or three sudden showers. A certain business man was overtaken by one of these not a great way from his office and stopped in a cigar store. This store was only a block from the place where the man had been accustomed to buy all his cigars.

The proprietor of the store made some remark about the uncertainty of the weather, and said pleasantly that he was glad to extend shelter. The business man replied in kind, and moved up to the counter to get a cigar. He asked for a certain not very well known brand which he liked, without much expectation of getting it, but he was promptly supplied, and even offered a new size in the brand which he hadn't seen before.

This started him telling why he preferred that particular cigar and a brisk conversation ensued for three or four minutes, or until the rain stopped.

The business man forgot all about the incident until about a week later when the store attracted his attention as he happened to be passing, and he thought he would stop in and buy a couple of cigars more from courtesy than anything else.

He went in and walked to the counter. The man behind smiled pleasantly and reached for the brand he had bought before. When the customer had selected his cigars, the clerk got another box and pushed it on the show case.

"Here is a cigar that we are pretty sure will suit your taste, Mr. Brown," said he. "It has a full flavor, without being too strong, and I think on the average, it will burn a little better than the brand you have been using."

Mr. Brown, who was rather surprised to learn that his name was known, selected one of the cigars, and laid down a quarter. The clerk behind the counter waved it away.

"We want you to smoke this on us," he said, "because we're after your opinion."

This also sounded good to the customer, and that night he smoked the cigar with much critical enjoyment. And of course he had to step into the store to tell them what he thought of the cigar, and he took occasion to buy some of them while there, and hardly knowing how it happened, he found himself going to that store exclusively for his cigars. Naturally, by the same rule, some other store may wean him away from this one sometime, but they have got to be pretty foxy to do it, and the chances are that the enterprising dealer will have evolved a better scheme to hold his customer.

WHEN a strange salesman comes into your store and tries to sell you a new brand, treat him courteously, even if you can't buy anything of him. He is trying to earn his living just as you are, and he has a right to the civility of one gentleman to another. At the end of a hard day he'll remember you gratefully.

HOW ABOUT A TURKISH SMOKING PARLOR?

THE consumption of Turkish cigarettes in this country is increasing so rapidly that it is a wonder that more smoking parlors for the public are not opened. Every city of size has a tea room like the English, where the fashionable can stop in at tea time and have their tea and cakes. Why shouldn't there be a place where a man or a couple of men who want to rest for a while or discuss some business matter can do it amid luxurious surroundings and the enjoyment of a pleasant smoke.

New York has some of these rooms and they are well patronized. Philadelphia had one on Walnut street some years ago which was a dismal failure, and the nearest approach at present, is the establishment of Notara Bros. on Chestnut street, which is not really a smoking parlor at all.

The place should be supplied with Turkish furnishings exclusively and should be shrouded in the Oriental half gloom which lends much of its fascination to it. Properly advertised, such places should pay in every city. When a man got used to turning abruptly from the hot, steaming streets, into a languorous Cairo, there to cuddle up in a corner, smoke fine cigarettes and drink the rich Turkish coffee while chatting with a friend, he would become a very frequent customer, and as the scheme would not be intended to appeal to any but men with money in their pockets, the prices which the proprietors would be able to charge for their cigarettes and coffee would make the place pay. The water pipe might also be included in the list of refreshments. In New York, the Bohemian atmosphere of these places has been their greatest drawing card.

DO YOU LIVE IN YOUR STORE?

A CUSTOMER was chatting with the proprietor of a certain Philadelphia cigar store during a dull hour the other night and took occasion to remark on the fine and harmonious furnishings of the place.

"Why one might think you were furnishing your best room at home," said the customer. "You've certainly taken a lot of trouble, and from things I've heard myself I know your customers appreciate what you've done for them."

"I haven't done anything for them," said the dealer. "Not a darn thing. Of course I like them to have the advantage of it, but I've done this all for myself. I'm in this place from twelve to fourteen hours every day of my life, so this is really more my home than where I sleep, for I don't see anything much there. I woke up to that fact some time ago, and I made up my mind I was going to have a pleasant home. I called in the decorators and spent a whole lot more money than I would otherwise have felt justified in doing. And this is pretty near good enough for any white man," he added, as he looked proudly around.

DARK HAIRED CLERKS THE MOST VALUABLE.

"IF I was going to open another store and had to hire clerks for it, I'd get men that were just as swarthy as I could find," said a retired cigar dealer, the other day, who had formerly conducted large stores in more than one city.

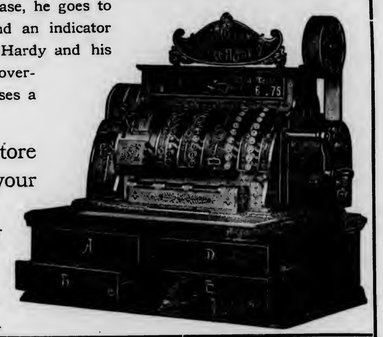
"Why? Well, I'll tell you. I believe they can sell a whole lot more goods, and with more satisfactory results. Have you ever been approached by one of those dark, mysterious, romantic looking chaps, who snap their eyes around on all sides to see if anyone is looking, like the villain on the stage, and then propose to sell you smuggled cigars at a small price? You know the cigar will be made of cheap domestic filler with a dark wrapper, although the sample he gives you to smoke will be all right, and if you buy of him, you will pay about half again what the goods are worth.

"You don't see the connection between this and dark haired clerks. It's this. If these pseudo smugglers looked like light haired college boys they wouldn't make a sale. You wouldn't even listen to them. But when this foreign looking individual with his piercing black eyes, and little mustache glides up, suggesting all sorts of possibilities, you are hypnotized right away.

"Just so with the retail clerk that looks something like a Cuban or Spaniard. A Cuban is popularly supposed to know all there is to know about tobacco, and I am pretty sure that the lay mind believes that no Cuban would demean himself by handling anything but the finest cigars.

"Consequently, when a customer is waited on by a man who looks as if he might have come from the land of tobacco and who handles the stock with a fine contempt, born of supposed lifelong familiarity the customer is pretty sure to be pleased with whatever he gets, and to accept the advice of the clerk as law.

"This may sound like hot air, but it's gospel truth in my own experience. When a light haired and dark haired clerk were in the same store, practically every customer who could selected the latter.



"Why didn't I hire Cubans as clerks? I'll tell you why. I don't think you could get many Cubans who could stand the wear and tear on their nerves. The American is inordinately fond of what we call kidding or jollying, and when he gets to like a clerk a little, he will hand out an installment of jolly every time he comes in the store. The average Cuban, or in fact any foreigner, would not understand this, and I don't think he would take very kindly to it. The American puts up with it, because he feels that way himself."

WALK by your store on the other side of the street once in a while and see how it looks to you. Try to put yourself in the place of the casual passer-by and see if the place attracts you.

A customer who always pays cash for her purchases gave the following reason for preferring to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register:

"I trade with Mr. Hardy because mistakes are seldom made in handling cash purchases. When I make a purchase a National Cash Register shows me the amount I have paid for the article and I know it is correct.

"If I hand a clerk a dollar to pay for a 25-cent purchase, he goes to the cash register in order to make change. A bell rings and an indicator shows that the amount of my purchase was 25 cents. Mr. Hardy and his clerks handle all cash sales in the same way. I am never overcharged. It is a pleasure to trade with a merchant who uses a complete system."

With a National Cash Register in your store you are equipped to handle the business of your customers to their perfect satisfaction.

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

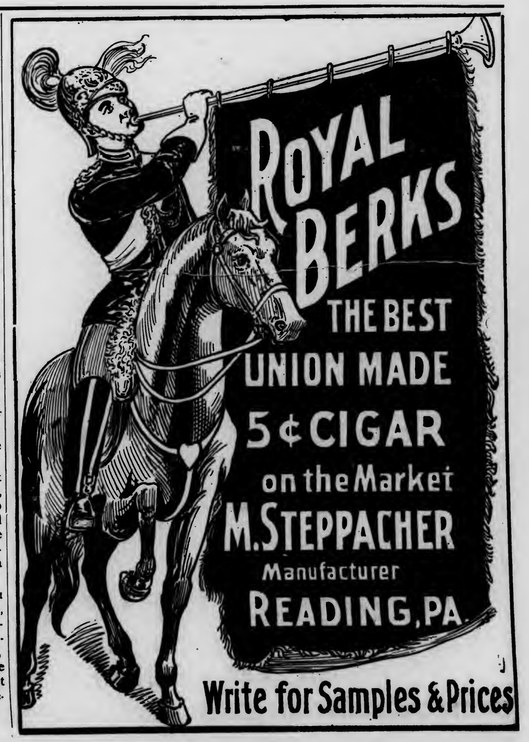
he knows that the tobacco premium companies are substantial concerns and that he will get the advertised returns for his certificates.

But after a wilfully blind belief of long duration that companies actually exist for the sole purpose of presenting the general public with something for nothing, the consumer is reasoning a little, and is reaching the point where he believes he would just about as lief pay for what he gets, and feel that he is buying his money's worth.

When a merchant sets a price on his goods, he is supposed to give as good value for the price named as he can afford. That is as much as can be expected of him. Consequently, if he suddenly offers a bonus on this price, unless the goods have not been selling at all, it stands to reason that this bonus will be taken out of the consumer somewhere. The merchant is not, and very much not, in business for his health.

The argument is made, and in some respects it is a fair one, that this bonus increases sales to such an extent, that though the profit is reduced, the aggregate is satisfactory. This may be true in some instances, but in the case of the trading stamps, the merchants who use them usually do so because they are practically forced to by the methods of the trading stamp companies, while in the cigar and tobacco business, the consumption is not so mercurial as to fluctuate greatly on account of premiums.

If a certain article has been selling at a fixed price, an article which has already gained a steady patronage, and the consumer discovers one day that his purchase is accompanied by a certificate supposedly worth ten per cent of the face value of his purchase, he naturally wonders why he gets it. It is announced as a free gift, one which really takes nothing from the quality of the goods. But it must be charged up on the manufacturer's books somewhere. Where do you think is the most likely place?



Now, on the other hand. Suppose the article in question has not been selling but is new on the market, and with it is issued the free certificate. It is pretty hard for the consumer who reasons it out, to believe that the manufacturer made no allowance for his premiums when he prepared his article.

In either case, we will admit that the consumer gets his money's worth. But he get no more than his money's worth, and though it has taken a long time, as I say, I believe he would rather have his money's worth in tobacco or cigars minus the extras; and as soon as he can be convinced that the elimination of the coupon does not mean the deliberate filching of his ten per cent back again, with no change in quality, he will welcome the return of the old system.

But in convincing the consumer that he will receive ten per cent better quality, the manufacturer will virtually have to admit that the quality of his goods had been reduced that much. That is, he would be obliged to make such an admission, if the consumer was much of a reasoning animal.

Fortunately he isn't, and as I told you before, tobacco sells itself so readily, that when the coupon is wiped out of existence, the consumer will keep on planking down his little nickel, just the same, and he'll take what he gets. And the manufacturers will be mighty glad to get rid of the whole cumbersome, trouble-system of premiums.

BUSINESS IN HAVANA FAIR, CONSIDERING THE SEASON.

American Tobacco Co. Still Buying Heavily of Old Vuelta and Partido Wrappers. Northern Buyers Who Arrived Late Were Disappointed with Stock of Tobacco Left in the Market.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, May 15, 1905.

A superficial glance at the Havana market would give the impression that it was dull, but upon closer investigation it turns out that notwithstanding the few Northern buyers in town, there has been quite a fair business done considering that this is the season of the "dol drums."

The trust has again been the heaviest buyer of old Vueltas and some new Partido wrappers, while the American buyers and export houses have been credited with purchases amounting to about one-half of all the transactions completed last week.

One of the United States buyers who left today openly confessed, however, that he was greatly disappointed in having come down here so late in the season, as with the exception of a few good vegas which were held way above the ruling prices in the North, the remnants of the old crop now lying unsold were unsuitable for the American market.

This seems a rather harsh criticism, and while it is undoubtedly true that the cream of the 1904 crop has been skimmed off long ago, there is some tobacco left, which, if it will not suit one party may find favor in the eyes of somebody else. As a matter of fact, it seems that no matter how poor a vega of tobacco may be, it nevertheless finds a buyer ultimately, and that therefore, it is really only a question of price.

Certain desirable styles and classes here have without doubt disappeared and anybody coming here and expecting to find them will naturally be sorely disappointed.

The best judges in speaking about the new crop say that it is impossible to give a true and correct opinion of the 1905 crop, until they have seen more of the incoming receipts from the Vuelta Abajo and Partido sections, and until the latter have passed the fermentation in the bales. There are types of this year's growth which promise to be very fine in open grain, colors and of a fine aroma, but on the other hand there are some vegas of a ranker character with yellow leaves which may or may not be acceptable later on.

Generally speaking, the Vuelta Abajo crop will not give many light wrappers, and Partidos will have to fill the bill for most of the American manufacturers, but it is claimed by the best authorities that this latter crop is shorter than last year. The less said about Remedios the better it will be for the future, as owing to the dry weather only a few escojidas may open June 1, while most of them may be delayed until the 15th or 20th of that month.

Prices will undoubtedly rule high, as the farmer insisted upon higher prices and got them. The new tobacco is mostly entering into a heavy fermentation and this is considered a good sign.

Sales

amounted to 3,235 bales, in all divided into 2,278 of Vuelta Abajo, 247 of Partido, and 710 bales of Remedios. For the American market 1,640 bales were purchased, and the local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes supplied themselves with 1,595 bales.

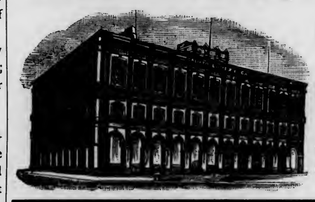
Havana Cigar Manufacturers



Business in general is quiet and although some independent factories have received better orders last week from all quarters, upon which they had not counted at all, it is still too early to look for any improvement worth speaking about.

There are lots of rumors about the trust, but there is no need to repeat them when perhaps in a short time some actual facts may become known which will let daylight into the workings of the would be monopolizers of the Havana cigar and cigarette industry. Let the smokers of imported cigars impartially compare the products of the trust with those of the independent manufacturers, and then take their choice of the cigars they prefer to consume.

H. Upmann & Co. are busy turning out their famous H. Upmann brand, and shipped 400,000 cigars of their own make and other independent factories last week.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co., while feeling the dull season like all factories, nevertheless have a fair slate of unfilled orders to execute yet for Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co.

"Sol" has received lately some pleasing orders from the United States, and soon Behrens & Co. expect to hear how the sample boxes of new cigars have been judged abroad.

Por Larranaga—Don Antonio J. Rivero sailed Saturday by the steamer Mexico, leaving his brother, Don Ricardo, in charge of the factory as manager pro tem. Por Larranaga cigars are always called for from the United States, Great Britain, Germany and South America.

Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. cannot complain, as Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja keep up activity considering the season. Their brand Amor en Sueno is a good seller in Boston and is constantly ordered. J. Vales & Co.'s cigarettes, La Eminencia, continue as the leading brand in the iland of Cuba and abroad.

Crepusculo in doing a fair enough business, and J. F. Rocha & Co. get their full share of all that is going. In the United States Jefferson is a winning card for any dealer to handle.

Calixto Lopez & Co. are still in receipt of good orders from Germany and fair ones from the United States.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Don Bernardo Lichtenstein, who left today, purchased about 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo—less than half what he intended to buy, but he complained that the market had been picked over too much, and that for the few remaining good lots the holders' prices were beyond his reach.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. sold 390 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo to their customers.

Don Emilio Auerbach has already several hundred bales of Vuelta Abajo, and is trading upon several fair size vegas.

Muniz Hnos. & Co. turned over 280 bales of new Vuelta Abajo, libre de pie Remates, to local and Tampa factories.

John Wardlow, President of the Ruy Lopez Cigar Co., made a flying trip from Key West to look over his previous purchases, and to have a look at some of the receipts of the new crop.

Jorge & P. Castaneda closed out 300 bales of old Vuelta Abajo Colas to local cigarette factories. The new Tumbadero wrappers of their three escojidas are far superior to last year's crop in color, burn, texture and quality

Suarez Hnos. disposed of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo to Northern customers.

Antonio Suarez sold 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo to a Key West manufaeturer.

Voneiff & Vidal Cruz are doing a fair business. Don Pancho Vidal Cruz is always in the market or in the country buying.

Manuel Suarez & Co, are busy always buying. They are stripping 25 bales of leaf per day, which results in their shipping 100 bags and barrels of booked fillers per week.

Jose F. Rocha made one transaction of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo to a local manufacturing concern.

S. L. Goldberg e Hijos has just received the first lot of Tumbadero from their Alquizar packing.

B. Diaz & Co., turned over 187 bales of new Partido and Vuelta Abajo. Don Bruno Diaz arrived here in good health from New York. They have received some large quantities of new Vuelta Abajo and Partido.

Joaquin Hedesa returned from his trip to the United States and brought along some good orders to be filled.

Rz Bautista & Co, disposed of 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo. They have some very fine Artemisa and Partido wrappers, but will not show them until they have passed the sweat.

Leslie Pantin is busy as usual, having made some good purchases for his customers.

J. M. Garcia & Co. closed one transaction of 130 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to an American buyer.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez had a quiet week as far as selling was concerned, but they are busy paying out money for country drafts which means heavy purchases of Vuelta Abajo, Partidos and Remedios. Their receipts from the country of the two former districts are already beginning to be quite heavy.

Jose Menendez sold 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo to city manufacturers.

A. Pazos & Co. have sold some vegas to local factories. Don Avelino is expected here by the end of May.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. turned over 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Manuel Lazo has gone to the Vuelta Abajo, supervising his packings and making some new purchases.

Don Sol. G. Salomon has left Mexico and ought to be in New York by this time. He is expected here the latter part of this month.

Sobrinos de Gregorio Palacios.—Don Pablo Hernandez returned from his late trip to the Vuelta Abajo. This firm has already bought 7,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo, 4,000 of which are factory vegas A No. 1 from the "tierra llana," and 3,000 bales of Remates. Their escojidas are at San Luis and Remates de Guane. They will handle no Remedios.

Aixala & Co. are very busy in the country, and have already received good sized lots from their Tumbadero packing at San Antonio de los Banos. They claim to have been the largest buyers of the legitimate Tumbadero. The tobacco is excellent this year, and Don Jose says that while he is sure he will earn the reputation of having the finest wrappers, on the other hand he does not feel as sure that he will make any money as the prices paid to the farmers were very high and the yield has to be known later on.

A. M. Calzada & Co. have purchased over 35,000 matules of Remedios in the Santa Clara province for their coming packing at Camajuani, which, however, they do not expect to open before June 20. Don Antonio left last night for Camajuani to watch the receipts of the bundles.

J. M. Cayro e Hijo have already received some lots of new tobacco from their several escojidas. The one at Puerte de Golpe is working only leaf from the Rio Hondo section. The other two at La Salud and Santiago de las Vegas are selecting some of the best grown Partido tobacco. The lots so far received from Vuelta Abajo are superfine in quality, texture and aroma, and are entering well in fermentation. The Partido wrappers are light in colors, good in burn and of a silky character. Don Jose is one of the self-made men, working his way up from the bench, and when he started in 1881, he had a capital of only $90 to commence with. This shows that hard work, capability, honesty and frugal living are bound to bring success in the end. Don Jose's son, Don Antero, is a great help to his father.

Jose F. Iribarren is a young man and a new comer in the field of almaconistas here, and he has yet to win his laurels. However, as he has capital, friends, who promised him a show when he saw them in the North, and is willing to work hard and intelligently, he ought to meet with success. He has just started to buy of the Tumbadero section between San Antonio de los Banos, Guira de Melena and Aliquizar, and has been receiving the matules at his warehouse, Dragones No. 94, where he intends to make his escojida. The matules when unloaded showed some beautiful, light, clean colors, and the leaf was of a silky nature.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 22, 1905.

The consumer is in high feather in this town just now, for if he chooses to go shopping, he can get his smoking and chewing cheaper than ever before. An out-of-town manufacturer who took a trip around the town last week with an eye out for cigar stores came back to his starting point with a decided case of blues.

"I don't see how anybody in this business outside of the American Tobacco Co. is going to make a cent," he moaned. "It looks to me as if every retailer in the business has gone crazy with cutting. Eight out of every ten stores I passed seemed to be nothing but big bargain counters. Why do they do it? The consumer spends his money freely in this city. They could get the prices."

It was gently explained to him that competition was at white heat in the metropolis just now, and that all dealers except those whose trade is firmly established believe it neaessary to make extraordinary inducements. Whatever the reason, there are some astonishing cuts to be seen advertised in the windows of some of the stores both in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and it is not easy to see how the dealers do it. When goods are cut in a department store, it is usual to make some other department pay the freight, but this cannot very well be done in a cigar store.

These methods are bringing business all right, but it is a question of how valuable it is. Goods are moving very freely in New York and with the present nice weather, sales should continue good right along.

Manufacturers are in a fairly amiable frame of mind, and while there is little doubt that they would be able to handle more orders, their factories are comfortably busy with no signs of a moderation. A great many goods are going West, and road men who are fortunate enough to have territory in that section are making the fattest returns. Missionary work is pretty extensively carried on here in the city by a nnmber of manufacturers, and two or three new brands in particular, lately put on the market, are going well.

Probably the least really active branch of the business last week was the leaf market, in which there was demand enough for certain varieties, but nothing in hand to satisfy them. For instance there are a lot of manufacturers who need old Pennsylvania filler and are unable to find it. There was some sale in 1904 Connecticut Havana seed at good prices. Very little was doing in Havana, and no dealer can be found who believes that prices will moderate. Apparently nothing can be expected from Havana. It is believed that there will soon be more doing on the new Sumatra, the market being pretty well emptied of old stocks.

Judge Wallace, of the United States Circuit Court, in Albany, issued a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Edwin F. Hale, which is returnable this coming Wednesday on which day argument will be held by Judge Wallace, in the United States Circuit Court in this city. Mr. Hale is the man who created a mild sensation in the trade by refusing to answer questions put to him by the Federal Grand Jury, in its efforts to find out things about the American Tobacco Co. and the McAndrew & Forbes Co., the latter of which Mr. Hale is secretary.

The trade is still talking about this investigation, but there are plenty of prophets who do not hesitate to predict that the whole matter will come to naught.

"They're simply stalling," say some of the seers, "and what little gunplay we have, will be made with blank cartridges." There is no doubt that agents of the government have been around in more cities than New York asking questions, but how successful they have been in gathering evidence, and what will be done with what they have gathered, remains to be seen.

The Board of Directors of the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Co., at its recent meeting voted to double the capital stock of the company, and in every way enlarge the business of the concern. This action was practically forced on the officers as a result of greatly increased business.

The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of this city will hold its regular semi-annual meeting tomorrow night at the headquarters on Third avenue. The routine business has been set aside for the occasion, and an enjoyable entertainment will be provided.

One of the nicest stores in the city, is the new one of A. Schulte, at Broadway and Cordtland street, in which the clerks are already kept quite busy. In opening a new place, the Schulte people are able to take advantage of their reputation for fair dealing, and it is by no means like starting a new enterprise. The present store was one of the pioneer stands of the United Cigar Stores Co., and it is stocked with a full line of all the goods that are to be found in the other Schulte stores. The stand will catch considerable transient and suburban trade.

The New York Cigarette Machine Co. is the name of a new concern which has been organized for the purpose of starting on the market a new scheme of putting cork tips on cigarettes by machine instead of hand, as has been the case heretofore. Although the firm is new, it is formed of old acquaintances, the incorporators being Sam H. Harris, Charles A. Drucklieb and John W. Surbrug. The method is said to save much time and expense.

Mr. Surbrug, of the Surbrug Co. mentioned above, leaves today for an extensive trip through the West, during which his firm will hear from his substantially more than once.

The real estate department of the United Cigar Stores Co. is inclined to work overtime these days. They have just put through two big deals which will enable the company to get its shield and name up on as many more important addresses. These deals take in the Knox building at the corner of Broadway and Fulton street and the building at the northwest corner of Park Place and Broadway, and it is said that the leases have been taken for a long period. Both buildings will provide good stores. The United Cigar Stores Co. will hold its annual meeting next Friday in Jersey City.

A new cigar will soon be put on the market by Simon Batt & Co., and Mr. Batt has used the firm name for a label, as the cigar will be called the Simbatco. The product will be a clear Havana, and will sell at varied prices for its different grades.

The Waldorf-Astoria Co. has been making itself more poplar than ever by the distribution of a handsome leather match book, the contents of which the company offers to replenish as often as needed.

A. Daussa, of L. Daussa & Co., is making a business trip through the Middle West for his house.

Ricardo Gonzalez, of Gonzalez & Caras, is in Havana for a few days looking after some business for his firm.

John H. Goetze, of J. H. Goetze & Co., who has been buying Sumatra at the inscriptions in Holland, will reach New York on the Kronprinz Wilhelm which is due here on tomorrow.

H. Weil, President of the David Weil Sons Co., 14 and 16 Lispenard street, New York, sailed last week on the "Grosser Kurfuerst," for a two or three months absence in Europe. Mr. Weil was accompanied by his family.

The company of which he is President, does lithographing and embossing, as well as manufacturing folding boxes. The cigar label department is complete in every respect and many of the most attractive and best known labels emanate from this plant. The company is ably represented in Pennsylvania by William W. Reynolds who has made hosts of friends among the trade in the Keystone State.

The American Tobacco Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent on its common stock, payable June 1. Books closed April 19 and will reopen June 2.

BIG PLANT FOR LOUISVILLE.

British Trust Has Bought Site on Which they will Shortly Build.

Louisville, Ky., May 19.

The Imperial Tobacco Co., through its local representative, has bought and paid $7,500 for a lot in the eastern portion of the city, on which they will erect a plant costing from $50,000 to $75,000. This is one of the largest and strongest tobacco trusts in the world, being in reality the British government, and they selected this city as the location of this enormous plant after carefully considering several other places. This plant will handle millions of pounds of tobacco each year, and will give employment to over a hundred people, besides the several buyers who will be employed to ride through the country making purchases of the crops.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. WINS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Appealed Case of Continental Co.'s Agent, Convicted in Lower Court of Using Illegal Methods to Restrict Trade, is Reversed by Supreme Court Which Declares Such Methods Proper.

Boston, Mass., May 21.

The Supreme Court has reversed the lower court in its finding for the Commonwealth, in the case of Abe Strauss, representative of the Continental Tobacco Co., of New York, who was charged with having employed unlawful methods to secure the exclusive sale of his company's goods by the plaintiff tobacco firms.

The first finding was against the defendant, and the case was carried up on exceptions. Strauss has now been declared not guilty.

The case was heard before Judge Lawton, in the Plymouth county session of the Supreme Court, and was decided in favor of the Commonwealth.

Five counts were brought against Strauss under Section 1, Chapter 56, of the Revised Statutes, which says:

"A person, firm, corporation or association of persons doing business in this Commonwealth shall not make it a condition of the sale of goods, wares or merchandise that the purchaser shall not sell or deal in the goods, wares or merchandise of any other person, firm, corporation or association of persons; but the provisions of this section shall not prohibit the appointment of agents, or special agents for the sale of, nor the making of contracts for the exclusive sale of goods, wares or merchandise. Whoever as principal or agent violates the provisions of this section shall be punished for the first offense by a fine not less than $50 nor more than $100, and for each succeeding offense not less than $100 nor more than $500, or by imprisonment of not more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment."

The courts charged that Strauss went to Frank J. Dutsa, E. C. Hall, Scott Edson, Robert F. Owen tobacco dealers of Brockton, Richard J. Carsey, of Bridgewater, and offered them a discount of 2 per cent, with 2 off, and at the end of a year a further discount of 6 per cent if they would handle no other plug tobacco than that dealt in by his firm.

Judge Lawton said in his charge: "If upon all the evidence you are satisfied the defendant, acting for the Continental Tobacco Company, offered his tobacco for sale to persons or concerns upon more favorable terms, if such person or concern should not sell or deal in plug tobacco made by any other firm or corporation, it would be your duty to find the defendant guilty," and guilty the jury found him.

Strauss appealed and in the decision handed down by Chief Justice Knowlton his appeal was sustained.

After stating that the purpose of the statute is to prevent unfair competition to establish a monopoly, but that it gives the right to make proper contracts for the advance of one's own interest, the full bench decision goes on to say, "There is a great difference between saying you cannot buy my goods except upon the condition you will not sell goods obtained from others. If you sell goods manufactured by others you cannot have any of mine, and saying, I am ready to sell you my goods freely and you may sell goods of others as much as you choose, but I will make you a reasonable offer as an inducement to increase the sale of my goods and I will give you a discount to sell mine exclusively."

Chief Justice Knowlton then found for the defendant.

SLOT MACHINE KING.

"Automatic Cigar Salesman" Trust on Foot in Des Moines.

Des Moines, Ia., May 22.

The slot machine question is likely soon to come to an issue in this city, and cigar dealers are greatly interested to know whether these trade-bringers will survive the investigation which Mayor Mattern declares he will undertake in the matter.

Within a comparatively few days, a large number of slot machines labeled "automatic cigar salesmen" have appeared in suburban stores. These machines are manufactured by the Mills Novelty Manufacturing company and on each of them is the following label: "This machine is the property of Gus Gutfreund."

The machines are equipped with three disks on which numbers appear from naught to nine and which revolve when a nickle is dropped in the slot. The odd combinations pay and the even combination are blanks. There are prizes of one cigar for a majority of the combinations, of three cigars for three combinations and of twenty cigars where the numbers total twenty-seven. The payments are in trade only in 5 cent cigars.

Gus Gutfreund is a cigar dealer at West Fifth and Locust and he has a very ambitious scheme mapped out. He has put in all the machines so far and makes the statement that he has the exclusive agency for Des Moines and that he will sell the machines for $25 apiece, but would prefer to put them in on commission.

Gutfreund's proposal is that he is to take as his bit, every seventh nickle played into the machines. The machine is equipped with an automatic adding device that indicates the number of nickles played in the machine, and his representative calls each day, reads the record, gives a receipt indicating its condition and takes out every seventh nickle.

Mayor Mattern was told about this sudden and wholesale arrival of the cigar machines and said that he had not before heard of them, but would make an investigation without delay.

"I don't know what they are and cannot express an opinion on them," said he. "I am opposed to slot machines that are gambling devices and if these are such, they will have to suffer."

—Efforts to organize the Havana cigarmakers have met with poor success, the lack of harmony between the Cuban and Spanish elements being the chief cause. The better class of Havana manufacturers now use Vuelta Abajo tobacco exclusively for their American trade.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. WINS.

The American Tobacco Co. has in Massachusetts gained what may be regarded as a signal victory. By virtue of the Supreme Court, the company's agents can now go to a jobber and "induce" him to throw out independent goods. If he doesn't want to do it, the agent can hold on to his inducement and it is hardly necessary to explain the result of such an action as that.

As told fully in our news columns, the case was the suit of the Commonwealth against Abe Strauss, an accredited agent of the Continental Tobacco Co., when that company existed under a separate name, who was convicted in a lower court of offering discounts to jobbers in return for the exclusive handling of the company's goods, which Judge Lawton charged was flatly against Section 1, Chapter 56, of the Revised Statutes which states that no person, firm or corporation shall make it a condition of the sale of their goods that the purchaser shall not deal in the goods of any other firm, person or corporation.

The jury found Strauss guilty, and there was much rejoicing among the Massachusetts jobbers. So important did the victory seem that independents in others States began to think about framing a similar law and having it passed.

But of course the American Tobacco Co. carried the case up on exceptions and it got into the Supreme Court. The appeal was sustained on the ground that a company had a right to offer an inducement in the way of a discount, to a customer who was willing to discriminate against other goods.

In his decision the learned judge does not admit that the company can deliberately refuse to sell its goods to any customer who will not promise to disregard rival goods, but he says the company can say: "You may sell goods to others as much as you choose, but I will make you a reasonable offer as an inducement to increase the sale of my goods, and I will give you a discount to sell mine exclusively."

This sounds very plausible and apparently permits no more liberty than is consistent with a competitive business. Unfortunately, however, the court did not touch the crux of the matter at all.

If A is a manufacturer controlling a large number of goods in imperative demand which go to the consumer at a fixed price say of ten cents, and A goes to B, a customer, and offers his goods for $1.25 a dozen, B will throw up his hands and promptly refuse to lose five cents on every dozen.

Then A explains that the goods really do not cost that much, as there is a discount which will bring the price down to a dollar. "We offer this discount as an inducement to customers who think enough of us to decline to handle rival goods," says A.

B has his own customers to consider, who are not dealing with him for sentimental reasons, and he has to have the goods. He can't put the price up to his customer, for there is a man down the street who by virtue of his discount is selling at regular prices. B consents. There has been no threat, and no actual restriction; but in order to live B must get that discount in whatever way he can.

The Superior Court of Massachusetts did not attempt to deal with this phase of the question, consequently the complaining jobbers are worse off than they were before they started, for now the American Tobacco Co. can transact its business, happy in the knowledge that its methods have passed through legal fire and escaped unharmed.

ONE MORE "SUBSTITUTE."

Still another "something to smoke," and this also is supposed to be a pleasant and harmless substitute for tobacco, but like all other substitute; heretofore, it won't amount to shucks. The proposition is described as follows in the London Lancet:

In Debember last A. W. Martin, the medical officer of health of Gorton, recommended the smoking of dried chrysanthemum petals as a pleasant and harmless substitute for tobacco. Perhaps he thought that it would be a gentle mode of warning those in danger of becoming slaves to the pipe, or providing a pleasant substitute for those with whom tobacco did not agree. But a case has been reported of unlooked for improvement, attributed to chrysanthemum smoking, in a person who had been a victim for fifteen years of frequent and violent epileptic fits, due to chronic dyspepsia. He smoked his first pipe on January 1, and began at once to improve, so that now he is able to take his half-hour's walk without a stick instead of being afraid to cross a space of nine feet with it. He can get six nights rest out of seven instead of one out of four, and can even attend church.

However sceptical any one may be as to the cause of the improvement, and however mindful of post hoc propter hoc, the patient is to be congratulated. He adds that the flowers act best when mixed with cascarilla bark, as suggested by Mr. Martin. Should this case attain much publicity there will soon be a run on chrysanthemum blooms.

In view of this it seems fairly likely that the smoking of geraniums might be good for ingrowing toe nails.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers

Once more in reporting on business for the week, the retailers have been obliged to call in that overworked word "fair." With the majority of dealers the box trade does not appear to be very good, but there is not great complaint on the rest of the business. Curiously, the miserable weather which lasted nearly all last week did not seem to have had much of a depressing effect on sales, some dealers even going so far as to say they believed their business to have been better.

"My box trade is always better in bad weather," said one Market street retailer. "When the skies are clear and the day inviting, a man will come in, buy a couple of cigars and chase right out. "When its unpleasant outside, he's likely to stay a while, and it isn't long before we've sold him a box."

It doesn't work out that way with some dealers, however, who have no use for bad weather.

J. M. Cooling, who has a nice store at Emerald and Cumberland streets, is making an attractive display of I. Lewis & Co.'s Golden Eagle brand of little cigars.

T. Fortescue, whose sub-jobbing stand at 1130 North Second street is one of the most up-to-date establishments in that section of the city, reports good business with every prospect of a steady trade throughout the summer.

Saturday specials, sold at 6 for a quarter, are being advertised at Moore's store, at Second and Market streets, by a big placard outside the store. The cigars are sold on Fridays and Saturdays. With the advent of the United Cigar Stores Co.'s new branch on the opposite corner of Second street, competition is very lively in this neighborhood.

A new smoking tobacco on the market that has made an instant hit is Grain plug cut, which sells for ten cents in 1¾ ounce cans. This has moved out rapidly wherever placed and had an especially good sale at I. Lowengrund's stores and George O'Keefe's place on Fourth street. The brand is put up by the Surbrug company in a can with a patent top to regulate the amount of tobacco poured out. The can and advertising cards are in green and white and are very striking.

Joseph E. Tuck has been kept so busy in his Market street store since his return from Los Angeles that he is almost sorry he came back. Mr. Tuck is beginning to get his summer run o transient trade and has no kick on business whatever.

Although The Tobacco World did not know it at the time, the picture of F. B. Robertson, which appeared on the Retailers' page in the last issue, was printed on the day of Mr. Robertson birthday. It is understood that Mr. Robertson has now seen 22 summers and several winters.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The Philadelphia manufacturers all reported good business this week with a steady run of orders. Some concerns are taking on more hands and declare that they are considerably behind in their orders, while nearly everybody is well supplied with work. Business still remains better in the West than elsewhere, and certain manufacturers who have heretofore made no great effort to capture business in this section of the country, are now covering or preparing to cover the field thoroughly. The majority of firms say that goods are moving rather slowly right in town, but there is nothing particularly new in that fact.

T. D. Berry, of the Berry-Suhling Tobacco Co., of Bedford City, Va., who was injured in the frightful railroad wreck near Harrisburg a couple of weeks ago, and was brought to this city, left on Friday for his home. He was in fair condition, considering, but his bad ankle will compell him to go on crutches for some time. Mr. Berry was taken to a hospital in Harrisburg after the accident from which he was brought to this city by J. Harvey McHenry, who made the trip to Harrisburg for that purpose. On reaching this city the injured man was attended to at the German Hospital where he remained until Friday. The ankle will not be of much service for at least two months.

W. W. Stewart, of the Stewart, Newburger Co., Ltd., was in town during the week and made a call on the trade. Mr. Stewart was in Holland at the Sumatra inscriptions and secured some nice tobacco.

Sheinfeld & Batzofin, the new firm of jobbers at 434 Market street, will be open for business by the first of June. The firm has roomy quarters which are being fixed up in good shape. A specialty will be made of the Henry E Abbey cigar.

Jacob M. Duncan, senior member of the manufacturing firm of Duncan & Moorhead, Inc., 606 Chestnut street, and extremely well known in the trade, died at his home, 2081 North Sixty-third street, early Wednesday morning. He was 69 years old. He had been suffering from serious heart trouble for some time, and the end was not entirely unexpected. The funeral services took place last Saturday. Mr. Duncan is survived by three sisters, one of whom, Mrs. Elizabeth Westerman, he lived with. He had never married.

The firm of Duncan & Moorhead is one of the important ones of the city and does a large business. Mr. Duncan was born in Harrisburg and received his education in that city coming to Philadelphia when he was 17 years old, and entering the office of the Pennsylvania Railroad. In 1860 with Marcellus E. MacDowell he found the firm of MacDowell & Duncan from which he retired about fifteen years later, becoming engaged in the sugar business.

Sometime after this he became interested in a Colorado mining venture founding the firm of Duncan, Matthews & Co., but in 1878 he returned to Philadelphia and associated himself with the cigar business of the Blackwell's Durham Company, for which he made a trip in 1882 encircling the world. He was made secretary of the company in 1883 and retained that office until 1898 when the company was merged into the American Tobacco Co. At that time, with H. Stewart Moorhead, he succeeded to the business of the Blackwell Company and on July 1, 1904, the firm of Duncan & Moorhead was incorporated of which Mr. Duncan became president and Mr. Moorhead vice president.

Mr. Duncan had an extremely wide acquaintance in the business, and on account of his various club and association affiliations, was also well known socially.

Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. advertised in all the Sunday papers for cigarmakers, offering steady work at seven factories. The Cinco is certainly a wonder.

Dempsey & Koch have moved into their new quarters at 255 South Second street, where they are comfortably situated to handle the big Western business which this firm carries.

Teller, Kleinsmith & Co., one of the enterprising young firms of the city are getting into shape for supplying their rapidly growing trade with a high grade of clear Havana and seed goods. Mr. Kleinsmith, the inside manager of the firm, was formerly with John W. Merriam, of New York, while Mr. Teller, who is on the road, is a son of Jacob Teller, of the formerly well known firm of Teller Bros., dealers in leaf tobacco.

The increasing business of A. S. Valentine & Son, has caused the firm to take the first floor of the building which it occupies on Seventh street above Arch, so that the company now occupies the entire large building. The firm does a very large business on its Paul Jones and Betsy Ross brands.

Arthur Hagan & Co. have got their new place all spruced up and are now ready for all comers. The members of this company are well known as hustlers and deserve the growing business which they are enjoying.

It is a little early yet to begin to talk about the tobacco show in Philadelphia. The idea has been in the minds of certain members of the trade almost since the last show was given, but everything is so extremely indefinite that it is just as well not to begin to talk about it at this time. Otherwise the subject will be worn out before anything is actually done. The idea is to make the affair much more complete than the last one.

FAC SIMILE OF LABEL.

EXPORT STAMP ISSUED BY CUBAN CIGAR MANUFACTURERS

Authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut leaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

package for their popular Lillipuritanos, little cigars, which will be a decided improvement on the old form. The new style will be out in about a week. The present form of packing the brand is in a paper roll like Cuban cigarettes; the new package will be a box so that the smokes can be carried with no danger of breaking.

It is gossip among the trade that the Penn Tobacco Co. will shortly move to the building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Cherry streets, which building has been acquired by the company. It is thought by some that the company will remove its entire business there, while there is also a report that the place will be used only for storage for a time.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

There was a few leaf dealers who declared that the last week was a splendid one for business, but in nearly every case, these dealers were the fortunate ones who had some Pennsylvania broad leaf. There is still an eager hunt for this class of goods, and an almost vain hunt. Prices are so high that the manufacturers are getting along with as small quantities of Havana as they can manage, and the demand for this class of tobacco was not very heavy during the week. There was something doing in Sumatra, but no particular activity. The market will probably be rather dull for some time.

Charles Robinson a salesman for the Amsterdam Sumatra Tobacco Co. has returned from a trip during which he covered the State, and says he did very good business. The house disposed of some good lots of Pennsylvania broad leaf during the week.

Charles Moulter, a well known leaf dealers of Buffalo is in town looking for some good deals, and may be shaken hands with at Jesse S. Batroff's office.

A. H. Reeder, of the Miami Valley Leaf Tobacco Co. was among the callers on the local trade last week.

L. Kruppenbach, leaf dealer, has taken a portion of the building which adjoins his present address, 1642 4, on the north side, and will make good use of the added quarters. Mr. Kruppenbach's business has been crowded for some time, and the change will enable him better to look after his extensive trade.

NEW THEATRICAL CIGAR LABELS.

Wm. Steiner, Sons & Co., well known lithographers, of New York, are getting out some very handsome cigar labels of which they make a specialty, the titles of which are taken from the most popular stage celebrities of the day. Among these are the names and pictures of George M. Cohan, James T. Powers, Alice Fischer and others. Labels of this sort, which are doubtless destined to become popular, can be obtained by communicating with the firm at its offices 116 122 East Fourteenth street.

A PROGRESSIVE HAVANA TOBACCO FIRM.

J. M. Garcia & Co. are Justly Ranked Among the Most Substantial Leaf Dealers of Cuba.

EVARISTO GARCIA

JOSE DIAZ

J. M. Garcia & Co. is a firm established as Almacenistas (leaf tobacco dealers) in Havana at 126 and 128 San Nicolas street for the last five years, the members of which are Don Evaristo Garcia, J. M. Garcia and Don Jose Diaz. The portraits of the first and the last are reproduced above.

Don Evaristo Garcia began work when he was seventeen years old and is now in the prime of life, being only thirty-seven years of age. He has been a hard worker and a frugal liver.

Don Jose Diaz was the founder of the "Mazzantini" cigar factory, way back in 1886, and which was quite successful until the year 1890, when owing to the McKinley bill, this and a great many of the other cigar factories received their death blow. Don Jose started in to work when he was sixteen years of age and now has the experience of thirty-eight years.

J. M. Garcia, who is at present in Spain, also has one of the largest lithographing establishments in the city of Havana.

The firm of J M. Garcia & Co., has made a speciality of handling only the finest factory vegas of the Vuelta Abajo, but it also works an escojida of Partido leaf at Santiago de las Vegas. They have farms in the Vuelta Abajo which they own and let on shares to their tenants, receiving the product for sale at their warehouse.

Anybody who wishes to purchase fine Vuelta Abajo never fails to see this house, as it has a good reputation of handling the best vegas and is fair in all its dealings, besides being classed among the best judges of tobacco.

INDEPENDENT MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION STRONG.

Secretary Friedlander Says Organization is Purged of all But Stalwarts.

In the campaign which is being urged to better the condition of the independent in the trade in the United States, the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association will take a prominent part and the association now regards itself as in a position to conduct a fight to the finish.

The association is greatly encouraged by the evident intention of the government to suppress the tendency to complete monopoly in the trade and hopes for very important things to happen during the year. Walter J. Friedlander, the energetic secretary of the association, voiced this in an interview with The Tobacco World.

"The results of the investigations which are being undertaken, one by the Department of Justice and the other by the Department of Commerce and Labor," said Mr. Friedlander, "will be at the disposal of the next Congress, when we hope to bring sufficient influence to bear, to have it take some action upon the existing evils of the tobacco business.

Our association has now purged itself of all tobacco manufacturers who are in any way connected with the trust and all those who are averse, in case they should sell the control of, or all of their business, to the trust, to have it generally known.

"While we cannot claim that every independent tobacco manufacturer in the United States is a member of our association, we do guarantee the entire trade that every member is an absolutely independent manufacturer. The quality of our membership is far more important than numbers and though we are anxious to have every independent manufacturer join our association, as much for his benefit as for ours, we will never accept any one who will not sign affidavits and contract of resignation which the present members have.

"We have already had ample proof of the sincerity of President Roosevelt's declaration to give every one a square deal and believe that even the mighty trust will be compelled to desist from its most questionable methods of stifling competition."

THE NEWS IN CINCINNATI.

Business is Fair but Bad Weather Had Some Effect.

Cincinnati, O., May 23.

Offerings were light, amounting to 62 cases at last Saturday's cigar leaf sales at the Front street commission warehouses. The variety was limited to three types—Zimmers, seed leaf and Wisconsins. The Zimmers and binders 34 cases were the best stripped for more than two years, the greater portion selling from 6½@2½c, the latter being the record high price for Zimmers in five years. The quality of 18 cases of seed leaf was about the average, the lot selling from $5.90@$8.60 per 100 pounds. The Wisconsins as usual were poor and mostly stogie stock. Realizations on 10 cases ran from $1.60@$2.90.

The Ezekiel & Bernheim Co. auctioned 125 packages at their warehouse on Main street last Friday. There was a good attendance of buyers and satisfactory prices obtained as follows:

Connecticut wrappers and binders, 19 boxes at $3.30 to $8.

Connecticut broad leaf, 10 boxes at $3.50 to $5.50.

Connecticut wrappers, 26 boxes at $4.50 to $11.25.

New York State. 6 boxes at $3.50 to $4.25.

Spanish, 1 box at $6.25.

Wisconsin binders, 39 boxes at $4.25 to $9.25.

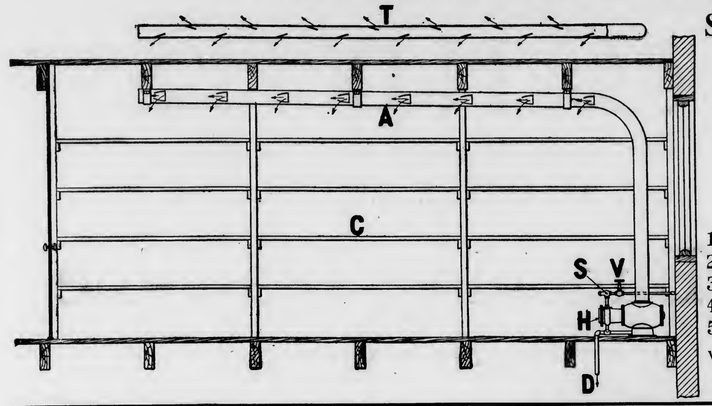
Connecticut shade grown, 11 bales at $5.50 to $39.50.

The sales were different from those held at the commission houses, in that no rejections were allowed.

Retail business the past week suffered to some extent owing to rainy weather on a number of days. Box trade though was fairly good.

The Burley leaf market was a listless affair last week, and average realizations were 30c per 100 pounds lower than during the preceding week.

M. L. Kirkpatrick, manager of the Farmers & Shippers Warehouse Co., is home from a ten days trip to Hot Springs, Ark.



The American Cigarette Machine Co., of this city, with a capitalization of $2,000 has been incorporated by Lewis O. Maddox, James M. Seldon, Thornton M. Himon and E. C. Phelps. They will manufacture a pocket cigarette-making device, with a lead pencil attached.

Several cigar packers left the "open shop" of L. Newberger & Bros., East Eighth street, on the 18th, on account of a wage dispute. Their places were promptly filled and the firm was not inconvenienced.

M. Eisenberg, a prominent leaf dealer, of this city, has the sympathy of the trade in the recent bereavement of his wife who died as the climax of an illness of some duration. BUHRMAN.

READING CIGAR TRADE IS O. K.

A Few Interesting Personals Bunched for Quick Perusal.

Reading, Pa., May 22.

The local cigar trade is in a fairly satisfactory condition in this section. The factory of John H. Witter, Newmanstown and other plants are again more active after a dull period of a few weeks.

W. W. Stewart recently returned from a buying expedition of Amsterdam at the Sumatra inscriptions.

Lengel & Ernst have removed from West Buttonwood street to new factory headquarters at 153 North Third street.

Some of the local and other papers erroneously stated that L. E. Reigel & Son, of J. H. Reigel, cigar manufacturer of this city, had purchased a cigar factory in the West. The facts in the matter are that the owner is Howard W. Reigel, who is not a son of John H. Reigel, and who has purchased the business of the Nusbaum Cigar Co., at Marysville, Mo. Mr. Reigel went West in March after having disposed of his business on Fenn street, of this city, to take charge of this factory and as reports would indicate, has bought the entire business.

There is talk of the erection of two new cigar factories at Gilbertsville, not far from Pottstown, but nothing definite could be learned regarding this.

PICKED FROM THE FIELD IN YORK.

Newsy Notes of What is Doing in the Trade in this Section.

York, Pa., May 22.

There is very little noticeable change in the trade in this section that has occurred since the last report. The manufacturers experienced rather dull business and consequently the leaf dealers are complaining, while none of the box manufacturers have had any rush, which would seem to fully confirm the report of uniform dullness. Most factories, however, are working steadily with a few exceptional ones busy.

George W. McGuigan, of Red Lion, has just returned from a trip to Pittsburg and other points during which he also took in a shooting tournament in which it is rumored, he was one of the successful contestants for a trophy. At any rate George is a good shot and his friends declare he is entitled to a mark of merit of some kind.

S. S. Sechrist and B. A. Horn, of the Porto Rico Cigar Co., were on a short business trip to New York City last week and were rather pleased with their success.

Meyers & Waughtel, cigar manufacturers, of Red Lion, are excavating for a new cigar factory on Lancaster street.

The new Blockinger Cigar Factory is practically finished although Mr. Louis Blochinger, the head of the firm, has been laid up with rheumatism for some weeks past. He is now able to be about again.

LANCASTER MARKET PICKED UP.

The Week Saw a Sudden Activity in Smaller 1904 Packings.

Lancaster, Pa., May 22.

The local leaf market during the past week, much to the surprise of many of the older members of the trade, became suddenly more active and quite a few lots of goods changed hands. The transactions consisted, principally, of purchases of the smaller packings of the 1904 crop, and a few lots of old goods which appeared to have been just lately located.

The cigar trade in this country is at present in an unsatisfactory condition. There appeared to be a general lack of orders with only an occasional factory here and there really busy.

The cigar factory of George Fritsch, of this city, was robbed some days ago of considerable Sumatra tobacco and to say that George, as he is familiarly known here, was "hoppin' mad" is putting it mildly, for on the next night the thieves returned. Fritsch was on the lookout for them with a shot gun already loaded and cocked. What makes him so mad is that they did not tarry long enough to give him a chance to fire the volley which he meant to make disastrous. He is still lying awake at night for another chance to fulfill the promise he has made to some of his friends. In fact it is said he has offered a wager that he could hit the bull's eye if he was again put to the test.

L. D. Zugschmidt, representing the American Stogie Co., of New York, was recently visiting the local jobbing trade.

The new building of the S. R. Moore Co. at North Prince and Lemon streets, is now progressing quite rapidly and will soon be ready for occupancy. When this is completed the Moore plant here will be among the very largest in the country.

The Clime Cigar Co., of Water street, is now beginning to progress with considerably rapidity. Sample lines have been completed and representatives are now on the road energetically at work in placing the new line of goods.

It is reported that several of our local manufacturers were somewhat affected by the receivership for J. S. Geller Sons & Co., of Philadelphia, to whom they had sold considerable quantities of goods.

Howard Stevenson, representing E. Rosenwald & Bro. and Dave Kalberman, representing Jos. Hirsch & Son, both of New York, and Simon Swartz with the Loeb Creagh Havana Co., were visitors here during the week.

ANOTHER BURLEY MEETING.

Held Yesterday in Lexington, Ky., to Talk About a Corner.

Lexington, Ky., May 23.

The district convention of the Burley tobacco growers, representing each of the thirty-four counties in the Burley belt is being held in this city today. A large attendance of delegates is on hand, who were selected at county conventions held ten days ago. The convention is discussing ways and means of financiering the next Burley crop and it is hoped that the meeting will be more decisive than the one held in Cincinnati recently. President W. B. Hawkins, Archibald Stuart and Charles S. Moore, a special government agent, are here.

BIG ORDER FOR WEST TENNESSEE PLANTERS.

Memphis, Tenn., May 22.

The Dark Tobacco District Planters' Association in West Tennessee is in receipt of an order for one thousand hogsheads of tobacco from a large importer at Bremen. It was reported a short time ago that foreign buyers would attempt to boycott the association, buying only from those not identified therewith, but it is now conceded by buyers that they will have to patronize the organization because of the grip it has on the old tobacco crop.

THE KENTUCKY CROP.

Reports are made from Louisville, Ky., on the State's crop to the effect that there has been some progress made in setting out tobacco plants, but the work has been hindered by the rains, also by the flooding of bottom lands. Plants are plentiful in most localities, but there is considerable complaint of cut worms.

KAUFMAN S. ROTHSCHILD'S WILL.

The will of the late Kaufman S. Rothschild, who died in Detroit about two weeks ago, arranges for the payment of $4,000 annually to the widow, a marriage portion of $3,000 each for the daughters, and the interest from $8,000 for each while single.

The deceased was a brother of Sigmund Rothschild, of New York, and head of the Detroit branch of Rothschild & Bro.

Recent Incorporations, Etc.

The El Crucero Cigar Co., of Savannah, reported incorporated last month with $10,000 capital stock, has completed organization with J. H. H. Entelman, president, and F. W. Henges, vice president. The company has secured a building, and machinery is being installed for the manufacture of cigars.

The Kiessling Cigar Company, of Chicago, has been incorporated with a capital of $2,000 to manufacture tobacco. The incorporators are George J. Kiessling, Carl Von Hermann and Joseph Weissenbach.

The Noah Foster Co., of Buffalo, has been incorporated for tobacco and cigars; capital, $10,000. Incorporators: Elkin J. Noah, Henry J. Jungferman and John J. Crumlish, Buffalo.

REVENUE SWOOP IN BOSTON.

Agents Confiscate Stuff for Non-Stamping and Other Offenses.

Boston, Mass., May 22.

Business for the last week has been very fair, considering the undesirable weather we experienced for three days.

The local cigar manufacturers are pushing their various brands; H. Traiser & Co. have engaged the services of a professional window dresser, who has already made a number of displays advertising both the Harvard and Pippin cigars.

The U. S. revenue officers have been going the rounds, and during the past week seized quite a number of cigars made up by some of the smaller manufacturers here. Some of the cigars were not cancelled according to the law and the officers claim that in some cases the boxes were used more than once. In one of our prominent cigar stores the officers confiscated twelve packages of Telonettes and fifteen packages of Golden Eagle, which were exhibited in the show window without being in the stamped box according to the law. Most of the retailers have been looking over their stock and preparing things properly should the revenue agents call.

Claiming that the United States government, through its internal revenue department, has defrauded him out of $1,800, and that his rights as an American citizen have been usurped, Henry M. Hyams, senior member of the Henry M. Hyams Tobacco Company, proprietors of seven tobacco stores in Boston, is anxiously awaiting the decision of Judge Hale of the United States District Court in his suit against Collector of Internal Revenue James D. Gill, later transferred against the United States Government. Over $4,000 has already been spent to win the suit of $1,800, Mr. Hyams says.

Collector of Internal Revenue James D. Gill said: "In 1902 manufacturers and dealers in tobacco having stocks on hand were entitled to a rebate of 3 6-10 per pound, that being the amount of the reduction in the tax. Some 650 claims were filed with me, Mr. Hyams' being among them. His claim was not allowed by me because I was unwilling to certify it, as I deemed it excessive."

An alleged present of tobacco valued at $6 sent to him by his father in Canada may cost Joseph O. Vandal of Fall River a couple of hundred dollars, the value of a carload of hay in which the tobacco was sent, and which Collector Marble of Fall River is seeking from Judge Dodge in the United States District Court permission to confiscate.

Vandal is a grocer and hay dealer. He claims that he was not informed of the present of tobacco until after the hay had already been entered at Richford, Vt., and was on its way to him. The tobacco is the native Canadian leaf, and is dutiable at 5 cents per pound.

Collector Marble discovered the tobacco between two bales of hay but failed to find it entered in the manifest. As a result he held the entire consignment.

Assistant United States District Attorney William H. Garland is representing Collector Marble. Confiscation is asked on the ground that the hay was used as a means to conceal the tobacco.

John F. Keeler, formerly with Estabrook & Eaton, is now one of the city salesmen representing the cigar department of McGreenery & Manning. Mr. Keeler is at present working on Continental 10c cigar, Little Continentals 5c cigar and Cubanola londres, all trust made brands. McGreenery & Manning have secured the New England agency for the Anna Held cigar and intends to do considerable work on same. Joe Manning has just returned from a week's vacation down in Maine.

M. Cohen & Co., dealers in leaf tobacco, are now located at 3313 Washington street.

The Allen Tobacco Co. has secured the services of Frank Locke, who in conjunction with Ed. Leader, their New England representative, is doing plenty of missionary work and advertising on Telonettes.

Frank Goodwin, of Lecky & Goodwin, tobacconists, Portsmouth, N. H., spent a day in the city this week and while here purchased a quantity of cigarettes, tobaccos, etc.

Myer J. Haim, representing Schinasi Bros., New York, was in town Monday and departed well satisfied with the amount of Egyptian Prettiest and Naturals he sold during his brief stay here.

N. Brenner has purchased the cigar and tobacco store located at 188 Main street, Charlestown.

Notification has been received by Boston Cigarmakers' Union that the amendment levying a ten cent assessment upon all of the members of the International Union to advertise the blue label of the cigarmakers at the Fair at Portland, Ore., has been passed.

The Label Committee of Cigarmakers' Union, No. 97, is distributing a new card of unique design advertising the blue label. Fire alarm cards have been distributed in Waltham and a list of fire alarm boxes in Medford will also be distributed the coming week.

E. Van Syckel with the American Snuff Co. is here distributing free 1 oz. samples of Checkerberry Snuff to consumers of snuff. Each box contains a coupon good for a rebate of two cents in cash. Mr. Van Syckel is creating quite a demand for this snuff and the orders are coming in quick and fast to the jobbers.

W. Bacon, with Weyman Bros., is putting out some attractive advertising matter on Copenhagen Snuff.

H. M. Ross, the Irvington street tobacconist, placed a large order with L. Miller & Sons, New York, for some of their Grumbler and El Cafe Bouquet cigars.

RICHMOND EXCHANGE VERY BUSY.

Biggest Sales in Leaf Tobacco Been Seen in Years.

Richmond, Va., May 18.

There was animation and great activity on the tobacco market yesterday There were no sales of loose leaf on the warehouse floors and the exchange had it all its own way. One hundred and eleven packages, great and small, mostly small, were sampled, and with much of the stock better than any sun cured seen here for a long time, and all the buyers out in full force, the bidding was lively from the time the first sample was thrown on the bin until the last package was knocked out.

Silas Shelburne & Son, of Shelburne's warehouse, sold a crop of 5,000 pounds for Mr. J. W. Bell, of Caroline county, for prices that created enthusiasm among the buyers as well as sellers. One package of sun-cured wrappers from this crop was knocked out to W. T. Hancock for the Ricker Whitten Company for $66. Other piles were bought by the same concern at $46, $39, $37, $35 and $30. Other packages of the crop went to various buyers at from $14 down to $8.25. The whole crop averaged $20.

W. D. Butler & Co. also got some fancy prices for the crop of E. C. Beckley, of Louisa county, such as $36, $32 and $28

All wrappers are selling high, while good fillers are bringing from $8 to $11, and common and medium grades are holding stiff at former quotations.

CREDITORS OF SHADE-GROWING COMPANY GET ADDITIONAL DIVIDEND.

The creditors of the International Tobacco Culture Corporation of Connecticut are to receive an additional dividend of 11 per cent. Judge Alberto T. Roraback in the Supreme Court, on application of Fred B. Griffin, the receiver, passed an order for Mr. Griffin to make the payment. The creditors had previously received 25 per cent.

Mr. Griffin was appointed receiver on November 18, 1903, and he asked Judge Roraback that he be allowed $3,000 for his services. Mr. Griffin explained the nature and character of the service he performed. Judge Roraback allowed him the compensation he asked.

KENTUCKY COMPANY INCREASES CAPITAL STOCK.

Amended articles of incorporation have been filed by H. W. Martin & Co., tobacco manufacturers of Louisville, Ky., increasing their capital stock from $200,000 to $300,000. Of the new stock $75,000 is preferred and $25,000 common. The increase is to furnish funds for an increase in the company's plant.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The movement in the markets have been light and slow for the past few months, but in the near future we may see quite a change in the business of tobacco handling for there is likely to be a rush as soon as the packers announce to the public that packings are ready for inspection.

Our correspondents write:

Feeding Hills, Mass.: "Young plants are doing well. No setting here as yet, but the farmers will begin the last of this week on the earlier pieces and will be well under way by next week."

Conway, Mass.: "Tobacco setting will begin here this week. The plants have come on very well for all the cold weather. We have had a few light showers, but the ground is far from being soaked in good shape."

Hatfield, Mass.: "Charles I. Warner began setting his tobacco the tenth. Plants are now plenty and looking well, and many will be transplanted next week."

Bradstreet, Mass.: "Oscar Belden & Sons set out today 1¾ acres of tobacco, being the first to transplant the weed in Bradstreet this season."

North Hatfield, Mass.: "There will be very little setting here this week. Those who would have heen ready removed the glass from their beds to check the rapid growth, claiming it to be a little early to set."

Windsor Locks, Ct.: "Twenty-five acres broad leaf tobacco will be raised under cloth in this town the coming season, in addition to a large acreage outdoors."

Tariffville, Ct.: "It is expected that the average this year will be from one-fifth to one-third greater than last year.

Many growers have bought new implements, also large amounts of fertilizer. The winter vetch has been used to some extent as a cover crop on tobacco beds and endured the winter without injury, giving a moderate growth to plow under this spring. Growers here have had good success in destroying cutworms by using one tablespoonful of spirits of turpentine to each barrel of water at time of setting the plants."

Glastonbury: "Recent sales have been made here at 24 to 30 cents of crops ranging from two to thirteen acres."

A crop of 13,644 pounds of tobacco on 5⅞ acres is reported by A. B. Taylor of Middlesex county, Ct. The crop was sold for 18 to 20 cents for $2,682. The soil was fertilized with one ton cottonseed meal, 500 pounds complete fertilizer, 1200 pounds lime ashes and 7 cords stable manure. The variety was Havana seed. Plants were hoed four times and cultivated nine times. The manure was applied with a spreader, which Mr. Taylor considered a great advantage.—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Business in the local tobacco markets is on a declining scale. Some leaf is yet marketed, though there is little riding being done this week. Walter Little sold 36 acres of his '03 and '04 crop in bundle to Geo. Rumrill. Ole Saunderson sold 6a to a Stoughton dealer at 7½c asst. and John Hyland 65cs '03 at 8c comprise some of the movements from first hands. N. E. Nelson's packing of '04 some 225cs, has been sold to Culton & Weil. Halverson & Bitters sold 113cs of '04 to Child and 70cs of '03 to New York parties. Pomeroy & Co. are loading seven cars of export and have received four cars of northern leaf, are some of movements with packers in a dull week.

The weather of the week has been extremely unfavorable to farm work and growers have been unable to do but little in the way of preparing their fields for the new crop. The plant beds are making but slow progress, but the plants are in abundance and healthy.

Shipments 300 boxes.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.
M. H. Clark & Bro.

Our receipts this week were 960 hhds, offerings on the breaks 206 hhds, total sales 283 hhds, nearly all new crop tobacco, running from Lugs to Fine Leaf. The market was active and strong.

It is reported that the Planters Association has virtually closed a deal which will give it a good outlet at full prices for its entire holdings, and samplings of the initial delivery are now being made.

There is a strong undercurrent in Lugs, and speculative offers and purchases are being made, based upon the practical exhaustion of stocks of old, and the small percentage of lugs in the new crop.

Planting continues favorably though complaints of cut worms are numerous. Planters say there is no surplus supply of plants.

For new tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to	$4.00
Common Lugs	4.25	to	4.50
Medium Lugs	4.50	to	5.00
Good Lugs	5.00	to	5.50
Low Leaf	5.00	to	6.00
Common Leaf	6.25	to	7.00
Medium Leaf	7.50	to	8.50
Good Leaf	9.00	to	10.50
Fine Leaf	11.00	to	13 00

Government Agent in Cincinnati Admits Hunt For Evidence.

Cincinnati, O., May 19.

An admission has at last been gained from Charles Moore who has been in this city for several days, that he is here to secure testimony in regard to the tobacco combine. Mr. Moore is an attache of the Bureau of Corporations at Washington, and on his arrival in this city he denied that his object was the one named.

Mr. Moore has now stated that he will extend his work to Louisville, and a number of other cities. Previously he contented himself with the statement made to interviewers that he was simply spending a vacation in the city. To a friend he at last stated the real purpose of his visit and said that he would make Cincinnati his headquarters from which he will visit a number of the Kentucky tobacco markets.

BRITISH TRUST WILL SOON BUILD IN HOPKINSVILLE.

Hopkinsville, Ky., May 20.

The British trust will begin work on its large plant in this city as soon as satisfactory arrangements have been made for letting the contract. The lot purchased on North Clay street cost $7,500, and two buildings will be built on this site, each being of brick with asphalt floors two stories in height and of the most substantial type.

This plant will not be termed a manufactory as it will be used for packing tobacco and getting it ready for shipment to England. The plant will cost from $50,000 to $70,000 and it will give employment to about one hundred and fifty people.

National Cigar Clipper

It Clips a V in Ends of Cigars---

A LITTLE vest pocket instrument for the smoker that puts a V in ends of cigars—neatly—accurately—without breaking wrapper, no matter how dry or brittle the cigar is.

It doesn't bite and pull and squeeze; but cuts "shear ways," the common sense way—a way that can't dull the the cutter and disfigure the point of cigar.

Design is elegant—nothing like it on the market anywhere Finest tool steel—nickel plated, and polished.

Makes an effective and lasting piece of advertising for the cigar manufacturer and distributer because of its ability to attract attention—its utility and durability.

The dealer can't put a better selling novelty before a smoker. Hits two ways,—snug profit when sold—fetching advertising with name on.

Sample 15 cents. Dozen lots without ad. $1.25.

Gross lots without ad. $14.00; with ad. if not more than three lines, three eighth of an inch long, $16.50.

PORTO RICO IS LOOKING UP.

As a Custom District of United States it Does a Big Business.

Washington, D. C., May 26.

The numerous inquiries for information regarding Porto Rico received by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statistics has led that department to prepare the following statement regarding the area, population, resources and commerce of the island:

The beginning of the present month marked the completion of the fifth year of civil government in Porto Rico, which dates from May 1, 1900. While the governor and executive council, consisting of six heads of departments and five natives, are appointed by the President of the United States, the house of delegates, consisting of 35 members, is elected by the people, the council and the house of delegates together comprising the legislative assembly.

Porto Rico has an area of 3,606 square miles, or about half the size of New Jersey. Its population in 1899 was 953,243, or about the same as that of West Virginia.

Coffee is the staple product of the island, the product in 1903 being 33,450,000 pounds from a cultivated area of 170,000 acres. About 62,000 acres are devoted to sugar, from which 234,000,000 pounds were produced in the year named. Under tobacco there were 14,000 acres, yielding 12,000,000 pounds. Experiments in the cultivation of cotton are under way.

Porto Rico finds her best markets in the United States, Cuba, France, Spain, Austria, Hungary, Canada, Germany and Italy, their relative importance being in the order named. Her exports to the United States increased from $7,018,697 in 1901 to $12,963,483 in 1904.

The advantage accruing to Porto Rico following its establishment as a customs district of the United States on June 22, 1900, and the free admission of its products into our markets following the enactment and putting into operation of a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of the Government of Porto Rico, July 25, 1901, is shown by a very large increase in the value of the merchandise shipped from Porto Rico to the United States and that shipped from the United States to Porto Rico.

TO FIGHT THE COMBINE WITH ITS OWN WEAPONS.

Growers of Virginia and North Carolina Have Taken Over Factories and will Form a Trust to Manufacture 80 Per Cent of Tobacco From Bright Belt and Drive Out American Tobacco Co.

Danville, Va., May 26.

The tobacco growers of Virginia and North Carolina have commenced to manufacture their own tobacco. The Tobacco Growers' Protective Association of these two States now has a membership of about 5,000 in the Old Bright Belt. The work of organization has proceeded rather slowly until the last few months since the plan of building independent factories has been advocated when greater interest has been manifested and farmers are joining the local organizations very rapidly.

S. C. Adams was the prime mover in organization work and it is through his efforts mainly that the association now exists. He has gone about the country urging the farmers to organize, holding out the hope that when eighty per cent of the growers had pledged themselves to stand together they could control the situation by holding their crops back and thus forcing living prices.

As fully sixty per cent of the tobacco growers of Virginia borrow money on their crops before they are planted, the warehousemen seemed to have a pretty firm grip on the situation and it was difficult to convince the average farmer that he would be wise in cutting loose from his money supply and pledging himself to obey the orders of the organization which did not take the place of the warehousemen in the matter of advancing money on his crop.

President Adams hit upon the plan of establishing small factories on the joint stock plan, selling stock to the farmers and taking their tobacco in payment. This plan has aroused great interest and subscriptions to these factories are being eagerly taken and several companies are now being formed. The plan is to buy factories wherever they can be obtained instead of building new ones. Owners of small factories who have felt the heaay hand of the American Tobacco Company are approached with the proposition to turn over their plants to a oint stock company of farmers taking stock in payment. In most cases the owners of these plants are to be engaged as managers under a board of directors elected by the stockholders.

The first factory in full operation is at Copeland, N. C. A man named Doss had been conducting a small factory there with indifferent success for some time and several months ago turned it into a stock company which is controlled by farmers. Arrangements have been made with some State banks by which as much as ninety per cent is advanced on the stock in the shape of loans. This enables the farmer to take stock in the company, pay for it with his own tobacco, then take his stock to the bank and borrow ninety dollars on every hundred dollars of its face value.

In most cases, however, this financial arranagement is conducted by the factory itself, the stock remaining in the possession of the board of directors until the loan is paid. The last statement of the Doss factory shows net earnings exceeding forty per cent and that is being used effectively in the campaign to promote factories in other towns.

Philadelphia and New York capitalists have sent men down into this country to look into the factory plan and they have reported favorably on the Doss factory plan and expressed a willingness to advance as much money as may be needed to handle the crop in the manner heretofore described. Of course this money will be distributed through the local banks and in some towns the local bankers themselves have pledged the necessary money, and taken stock in the companies.

If this plan becomes general many of the warehouses would be obliged to go out of business, though President Adams and the executive committee of the association deny that there is any intention of interfering with the business of the warehousemen and say that the independent factories will have their buyers on the warehouse floors competing with other buyers for anything that is offered.

Co-operative tobacco factory companies have been organized at Clarksville, Chase City and Danville, Va., and at Rocky Mount and Oxford, N. C., and subscriptions have been offered quite freely. It is understood that the Clarksville factory will be in operation within sixty days and the one at Danville will also be ready for the new crop. At Chase City a meeting was held to organize a company at which every business man of the place and a large number of farmers were present. A vigorous canvass is now being made in more than a dozen towns in Virginia and North Carolina and within the next sixty days the success or failure of the co-operative plan will be demonstrated.

HOPKINS CO. CROP WILL BE SHORT.

Kentucky Tobacco Plants Damaged by Heavy Rains.

Madisonville, Ky., May 26.

The heavy rains have greatly damaged tobacco plants. Reports from Hopkins county are to the effect that at least 50 per cent of the tobacco plants are ruined and it is thought that unless weather conditions change the remainder of the plants will be killed.

Heavy rains cause stems to rot. This rot has been noticed in several places.

Only about 5 per cent has been planted in Hopkins county, and unless bright weather prevails, this county will have a short tobacco crop.

ONE MORE BURLEY SCHEME.

Kentucky Burley Growers Again Figure Out a Corner in Crop.

Maysville, Ky., May 27.

Tobacco growers of Kentucky have figured out a way for financing their company in the proposed 1905 tobacco corner, which is unique if nothing else.

The new scheme is to organize county associations in every county in the tobacco belt, each to have a capital stock of $50,000.

It is suggested that this stock be taken by the tobacco growers in exchange for their tobacco at the rate of $5 for each 100 pounds which means that they are to get at the rate of 5 cents a pound for all the tobacco they turn over to the association in the shape of stock.

When it has all been issued the company will then have 1,000,000 pounds of tobacco. Should the tobacco sell for more than that figure, after expenses have been deducted, there shall be paid to the county associations 80 per cent of the proceeds, the remainder to go to a controlling company.

This company will have $50,000 capitalization and is aimed to do business as the Burley Sales and Warehouse Company.

The county companies are to make advances to growers who need the money before their crops have been disposed of.

Selling prices are to be determined by the parent company. This company is to exact a commission and then return proceeds to the various subsidiary companies in proportion to their offerings of tobacco.

The plan is considered impracticable in Cincinnati tobacco circles, as it makes no provision for the raising of money needed when the $50,000 of each company's stock has been used up. It will take $15,000,000 to buy the coming crop, and the promised plan would create only about twenty companies in as many counties, or a total working capital of about $1,000,000.

MEXICAN TOBACCO ON THE BOOM.

The constantly increasing demand by France and Germany for Mexican tobacco is expected either to work a corresponding increase in the price of cause the planting of an increased acreage. In either case, Mexico will be the gainer. To the uninitiated it may seem strange that Mexican tobacco and Mexican coffee are not as favorably regarded in the United States as in Europe. To the initiated it seems quite clear that it is not a question of merit, but of manipulation.

Peter E. Sandhagen, of Pittsburg, filed a suit against Leonard W. Schafer, asking damages and charging fraud in the purchase of a half interest in Schafer Bros. Cigar Works. PORTO RICO IS LOOKING UP.

As a Custom District of United States it Does a Big Business.

Washington, D. C., May 26.

The numerous inquiries for information regarding Porto Rico received by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statistics has led that department to prepare the following statement regarding the area, population, resources and commerce of the island:

The beginning of the present month marked the completion of the fifth year of civil government in Porto Rico, which dates from May 1, 1900. While the governor and executive council, consisting of six heads of departments and five natives, are appointed by the President of the United States, the house of delegates, consisting of 35 members, is elected by the people, the council and the house of delegates together comprising the legislative assembly.

Porto Rico has an area of 3,606 square miles, or about half the size of New Jersey. Its population in 1899 was 953,243, or about the same as that of West Virginia.

Coffee is the staple product of the island, the product in 1903 being 33,450,000 pounds from a cultivated area of 170,000 acres. About 62,000 acres are devoted to sugar, from which 234,000,000 pounds were produced in the year named. Under tobacco there were 14,000 acres, yielding 12,000,000 pounds. Experiments in the cultivation of cotton are under way.

Porto Rico finds her best markets in the United States, Cuba, France, Spain, Austria, Hungary, Canada, Germany and Italy, their relative importance being in the order named. Her exports to the United States increased from $7,018,697 in 1901 to $12,963,483 in 1904.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

"THE RULING PASSION IS STRONG IN DEATH."

I was in the office of a certain tobacco firm last week, and in the course of conversation with the senior member, asked whether the traveling member was on the road at the time.

"No, he's in," was the answer, "but he took a little trip out of town for the day." Then he laughed.

"The trouble with him," he went on after a minute, "is that he can't stay home. He comes down to the office after a trip, and he can't even sit in the same chair ten minutes at a time. He fidgets around the place, in and out, down stairs and up, here and there, until he has everybody around here as nervous as a cat. He's the most unhappy being when he's not out with his samples, that I ever saw."

And he's like a whole lot of others, who have been traveling salesmen for years and who couldn't be hired to do anything else. Some of them don't know they couldn't be hired to, and they might consent to take a chance at an inside job, but it wouldn't be a month before they were handing in their resignation with a big R.

Not long ago I read an amusing story, I don't remember where, about a drummer who had sold goods on the road for thirty years and had managed to put by a little money each year. He was a good salesman, but when he wasn't grumbling over the bum hotel meals, he would be dreaming of the days when he could retire, buy a house and lot in some quiet place, and have a home of his own, just like a white man.

According to the story, this man had a quick route, didn't stay a great while in any one place, so that a big majority of the nights in the year would find him tucked away in a Pullman berth.

Well, when he got to be about fifty or so, somebody died and left him some money, which with what he had saved, made him quite a magnate. "This is where the worm turneth," quoth he to himself, so he wrote into the house and told them they were about to lose a good man. He then proceeded to look around for an estate to acquire, and after due search got a nice little place in the country, within convenient distance of the city.

The salesman was a well preserved man, and had never been sick in his life. In two months he lost forty pounds, and was commencing to look like a victim of hasty consumption. He averaged about two hours of fitful napping every night. He began to look around for a pleasant, sunny graveyard, in which to invest some more money.

He met an old friend one day, who was so shocked by the man's appearance that he could hardly talk, and who finally recommended a certain physician so strongly, that the sick man made up his mind to look him over. The doctor in question lived about a day's journey from the salesman's home, and he decided to make it a night trip.

He sat up smoking a half dozen cigars and then crawled in, facing another night of torture. In three minutes he was slumbering as peacefully as an infant, and the porter had a hen of a time getting him out in the morning. He felt like a different man. He went to the physician who looked him over and gave him a general tonic, telling him that the abrupt change of his habits had thrown his system out of gear.

The man went home the next night, and again pounded his ear to his heart's content. But the next night at home, it was another case of open eyes. No sleep at all. That started him thinking, and after several hours of profound meditation, he went out and looked up a contractor.

To him he gave copious instructions, and then bought a ticket all the way across the States. For a month he was jerked here and there by trains all over the great United States, putting in nine lovely moving hours of sleep every night, and at the end of the month he took a train home. He had regained 25 of his forty pounds and he was eating like a horse.

When he got back, the contractor met him with a smile, and a big bill, and showed him a nice little circular railroad in the lot back of the house. On the track was a cute little engine, to which was attached a car just about big enough for a soft, dreamy bed. There was also a grinning engineer. The ex salesman looked on the work and saw that it was good, and paid the contractor off on the spot.

At bedtime that night, he clambered

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

THE average salary of the clerk in a cigar store is small, and it is kept small by the fact that any number of young men can be obtained who will accept a position of any sort for very low pay. Many a dealer argues that he would be a fool voluntarily to pay more than he has to to get assistants.

But there is another side of it. Unless the clerk is one of those rare boys, such as figured as heroes in the old fashioned Sunday school library books, who were so full of ambition that they seldom left their jobs long enough to sleep, the clerk who is willing to work cheap will give his employer just as much as he absolutely has to, and not a bit more.

His thoughts will be outside the store, he will spend most of his time looking at the clock, and wishing he had a decent job, or else had so much money that he didn't have to work, and every one of his movements in the store, will be one he is forced to make to hold the place.

It stands to reason, that a man who is willing to accept small wages is either worth nothing, or knows he is worth more than he is getting, and regards his present job as a makeshift. These two classes, of course, do not include the ambitious clerk wo is working definitely for a future, but his kind are few and far between.

It ought to be clear to every dealer, however small his store, that a clerk who takes an interest in the business, is worth any number of times as much as the man who doesn't. The feeling that a proprietor can leave his store for an hour, or a day, or a week even, and know that his interests are being as carefully conserved as if he were present, and indeed that his assistants are making a special effort to make a good record to show him on his return, as much for their own sake as his, is worth paying for, and the proprietor who begrudges three or four dollars a week for the sake of that feeling is making a tremendous mistake.

When this proposition is put to a dealer who employs cheap help, he usually argues that his payroll is just as large as his receipts will stand, and that to increase the former would be business suicide. So it would, if he paid more money for the same kind of service as he is getting for what he is paying now.

But he must remember that he is to get infinitely better service which invariably has its effect on the receipts.

A couple of men walked into a cigar store in Philadelphia the other day and had occasion to look at two or three different boxes and brands of cigars before they made their selections. The store was unfamiliar to them, and they were waited on by a boy, or rather young man, by whom the proprietor was evidently economizing. With considerable difficulty, the customers got what they wanted, or rather what they were willing to put up with, and left the store. When they got outside, one of them said to the other:

"Never again! That boy was the dumbest specimen of humanity I've ever tried to communicate with."

"He was pretty fierce" admitted the other. "But we don't have to go there again, fortunately."

The dealer had certainly saved a lot of money on his cheap clerk, in this case, and it is pretty probable that it is no isolated instance.

It is worth money in your business to get away from the feeling that nothing will be done properly unless you do it yourself. You give an order and then hang around, anxiously standing over the man to see that it is done right, thus giving up not only the clerk's not very valuable time, but your own as well. It's a money-saving scheme that doesn't save.

GIRLS AS CLERKS.

IN certain sections of certain cities, a good proportion of the cigar stores employ girls as clerks. Sometime the girls are the proprietor's daughter or members of his family, and they are there in order to reduce the expenses. Sometimes they are good looking dames brought in to attract trade. And sometimes they attract it, and sometimes they repel it.

A prominent dealer, in a large city of the Middle West, being of experimental frame of mind, employed a couple of girls, to look after one of his counters. The girls were pretty and the contrast of a good looking girl in a cigar store acted as a great magnet. Men crowded in and bought all kinds of things at that counter, each one plunging recklessly in order to win a smile.

"I thought I'd discovered a gold mine," said the dealer afterward. "I got to dreaming about buying brown stone fronts and all kinds of things and then I woke up. I had forgotten the fickleness of the American public. It was all right for awhile, but after two or three trips, each customer would begin to think it over. The girl probably didn't look quite so pretty the third time, and the men began to realize that they couldn t haggle over their purchases, or couldn't even exercise judgment in making their purchases. If the girl turned on her bewitching smile, and, gazing soulfully at the guy, asked him if he wouldn't like to try this new brand, only two for a quarter, he just had to fish out a half dollar and take what she gave him.

"When he got outside he would kick himself around the block, and swear he would never come in again. And a good many of them didn't So on the whole deal I figured that I had really lost, for even after I got rid of the girls, some of my regular customers had been captured by another store, and never came back.

"One of those girls was certainly pretty, though," concluded the dealer with a dreamy expression

MONEY-MAKING RULES FOR RETAILERS.

Rise early and be at business when the store is opened.

Attend well to business during business hours.

Keep everything in the store neat and orderly.

Keep the windows clean and nicely dressed.

Have a place for everything and keep everything in its place.

Buy from the best firms and don't open too many accounts.

Never allow due prompts to remain unpaid.

Attend well to the counter and address customers immediately on approaching. Don t walk up to the counter and leave your tongue behind you. Be as polite to the customer who spends ten cents as to the one who spends a dollar.

Give the best possible value in all things.

Never practice deceit, trickery or tell lies, even white ones.

Keep yourself smart and neat.

Cultivate a ready money trade, and under no circumstances give long credit.

Be steady, industrious and careful. Remember the good motto, "waste not, want not."

Be methodical and punctual. Method is the very hinge of business and there is no method without punctuality.

Read and study good works in connection with the trade. Commit useful things to memory, and never fail to put them into practice—Salesmanship.

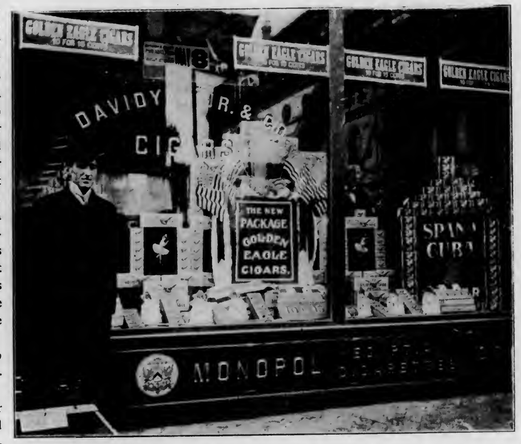
CONDENSED WISDOM FOR DEALERS.



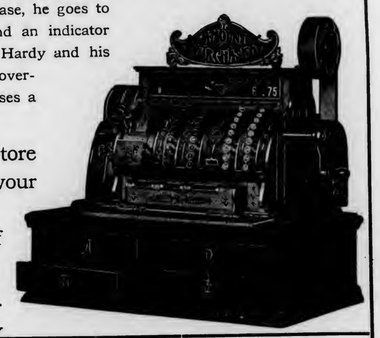
THE storekeeper's prosperity depends upon his keeping up to date by continually introducing changes for the better. He should remember, however, that he has only one pair of eyes to take note of conditions that should be improved. He should therefore endeavor to interest everyone who sets foot in his place to make suggestions. He ought to call clerks together and say to them: "You and I want to make more money in this store, but in order to do that we must do more business. Now I want suggestions from all of you about anything you think we can do to increase profits by holding present trade and securing new customers and reducing expenses. If you see any waste going on that we might save, I want you to tell me."

The proprietor can offer small monthly or quarterly prizes for the best suggestion adopted, or he can offer a small prize of 25 cents or 50 cents for every suggestion adopted which makes or saves him money. Let him place a small autographic register in some convenient place where a clerk may write down a suggestion as soon as it occurs to him.

The proprietor should also give his employes an opportunity to make complaints to him for adjustment. Dissatisfaction among employes kills loyalty and interest in the business.

Bulletins should be posted in conspicuous places in the store, inviting suggestions and complaints from customers, and offering prizes in money or merchandise for the best suggestion received. Circulars inviting suggestions can be printed and distributed in the neighborhood. This will show that the storekeeper is progressive and anxious to let his customers have the best service. It will also draw attention to his store and serve as a strong general advertisement. —Exchange.

DAVIDYAN, Jr.'s, DISPLAY OF GOLDEN EAGLE CIGARS.



THE accompanying picture is a reproduction of one of the numerous displays of I. Lewis & Co.'s Golden Eagle cigars which are to be seen about Philadelphia. This shows the well stocked establishment of Davidyan, Jr., at Ninth and Arch streets, which is one of the best known stores in the city. There is always an attractive display to be seen in these windows, and the present arrangement can be ranked among the best. Golden Eagle little cigars are proving very popular in this market and are duplicating rapidly.

A customer who always pays cash for her purchases gave the following reason for preferring to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register:

"I trade with Mr. Hardy because mistakes are seldom made in handling cash purchases. When I make a purchase a National Cash Register shows me the amount I have paid for the article and I know it is correct.

"If I hand a clerk a dollar to pay for a 25-cent purchase, he goes to the cash register in order to make change. A bell rings and an indicator shows that the amount of my purchase was 25 cents. Mr. Hardy and his clerks handle all cash sales in the same way. I am never overcharged. It is a pleasure to trade with a merchant who uses a complete system."

With a National Cash Register in your store you are equipped to handle the business of your customers to their perfect satisfaction.

A National Cash Register pays for itself in the time we give you for payment.

Let our representative call and explain our system to you.

A VERY DULL WEEK REPORTED IN HAVANA.

What Buyers Are on Hand Seem Inclined to Study the New Crop Before Making Purchases of Any Size. This Year's Lowland Vuelta Abajo Superior.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, May 22, 1905.

The past week has been one of the dullest as far as sales were concerned, although as most of the dealers here are now busy receiving the new tobacco from the country and looking after their escojidas, they are quite satisfied with the present state of affairs. The old stocks need not occasion any worry, as they will find takers later on.

The buyers who have arrived here lately seem to be intent upon studying the new crop before they make their accustomed purchases upon a large scale. The local independent manufacturers seem to have grasped the true situation correctly as they have not hesitated to purchase quite freely in the country, while a few have also secured a temprano vega here and there from the Havana dealers.

The opinion seems to be gaining ground that the larger part of the lowland Vuelta Abajo of this year's crop is superior to the 1904 crop, as it is lighter in leaf than expected and therefore just what the clear Havana cigar manufacturer is always looking for, light filler, but at the same time of a subtle and penetrating aroma. Besides this, the leaf is of good size and there will be more light colored wrappers than was anticipated, therefore, even though the price for a vega may appear high, it will be more profitable to work in a factory.

The burning quality is excellent and it looks as if the tobacco will pass the fermentation in the bales sooner than usual, and thus be fit to be worked before long.

As far as the hilly portion of the Vuelta Abajo is concerned it is too early to say anything, although this class of leaf is said to have more gum, and therefore may need more time to cure thoroughly.

The Partido tobacco this year is said have more body, generally speaking, and for this reason may need more time to cure thoroughly, although there will also undoubtedly be a portion of lighter growth, which might be worked sooner.

Late reports from Remedios say that a large portion of the last cutting in April is rotting in the piles, and as these were the so-called Capadaras, the chances are that the final sound quality may be even less than calculated upon at first, provided the above reports are trustworthy. The first cutting of the original plant, or what is called here "Principal," is all right, but the chief yield is wrappers or large, lighter leaves called 6a, and mostly exported to Germany, while the American buyers usually care only for the second or third cuttings which give the Capaduras. Time will determine the final outcome.

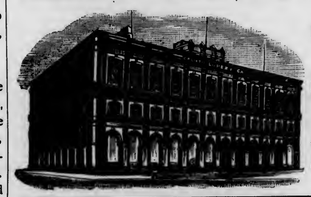
Sales

foot up to a total of 1,429 bales, of which 1,074 were of Vuelta Abajo, 55 of new Partido, and 300 bales of Remedios. American buyers provided themselves with 661 bales, while the local cigars and cigarettes factories purchased 768 bales.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals—F. San Martin, of P. San Martin & Co., Facundo Arguelles, of Arguelles, Lopez & Bros., Ignacio Haya, of Sanchez & Haya, M. Menendez, of Menendez Bros. & Verplank, Tampa; L. W. Scott, of L. W. Scott & Co., Boston; Luis L. Cantor of L. Friedman & Co., New York.

Departures—Emil Auerbach, Antonio Rocha, Norberto Cueva, Manuel Garcia, for New York.



Havana Cigar Manufacturers

Business continues dull, and while there are always some orders coming in, they are more in the nature of a little mountain brook which never dries up, but which has to travel for quite a distance before it meets the big stream. Until the new tobacco is fit to be worked upon a large scale, no revival in the bigger orders is looked for.

According to a local daily, "La Lucha," Don Gustavo Bock replied to a reporter, as regards his tendered resignation, thus: "It was simply a little misunderstanding which arose between myself and the company in New York, and which I am happy to say has been arranged satisfactorily to both parties." Don Gustavo admits, however, that the resignation of the different managers of the several factories had been accepted as a matter of economy, in order to retrench the finances of the trust.

This action of Don Gustavo Bock is very unfavorably commented upon in independent circles, and it has cost him the friendship of many who considered him of too strong character to submit tamely to the dictates of a manager sent from Tampa, while he was the President. Of course he may continue as President of the Havana Tobacco Co. in name, and draw his $35,000 per year salary, but in reality he is only a figurehead, while W. J. Seidenberg, in name general manager, in reality has the functions of President, regulated by the superior orders of the Fifth Avenue Council of New York.

The principal independent factories such as H. Upmann, of H. Upmann & Co., Flor de Tabacco de Partagas & Co., of Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co., Sol of Behrens & Co., Por Larranga, of Antonia Lopez Cuervo, Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja, of Rabell, Costa, Valves & Co., Crepusculo, of J. F. Rocha & Co., Eden, of Calixto Lopez & Co., are all doing a satisfactory business, considering the season of the year.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Viuda de Jose Gener purchased 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo for its cigar and cigarette factory.

J. M. Garcia & Co. did some good business last week, as they sold in all 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo old crop. That some of these vegas must have been fine, may be surmised from the prices obtained for them, as they realized as high as $70 per bale, the latter perhaps not weighing over 70 to 75 pounds net per bale. Furthermore, if it is taken into consideration that the 1904 Vuelta Abajo hardly produced any light wrappers an idea may be formed of how high the fillers had to be classified to bring the average cost. The colas of the same vega were sold by them at $26 per qq. previously to local factories.

Emil Auerbach purchased in all 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios.

Loeb-Nunez Havana Co. have already sold and shipped 335 bales of Remedios and some new Partido wrappers of their escojida.

Jorge & P. Castaneda are in treaty with three or four manufacturers about a fine, large lot of their choice Tumbadero packing.

Jose Menedez disposed of 212 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

The Cuban American Manufacturing Co. purchased several vegas of new Vuelta Abajo from San Luis, among which was the famous one of Agustin Vera.

G. Salomon y Hnos. turned over 162 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Don Manuel Garcia and Don Norberto Cueva left, via Key West, for New York, but before reaching the latter city they will accept the invitation of President Wardlow, of the Ruy Lopez Co. to do some tarpon fishing in his yacht along the Florida coast.

B. Diaz & Co. sold 120 bales of new Vuelta Abajo and Partidos last week. They have already received 2,000 bales of the 1905 crop, mostly from the Vuelta Abajo lowland district, and a smaller quantity from their Alquizar packing of Tumbadero leaf. Among the fine vegas from San Luis are the renowned ones of the Vera family which are second to none in aroma, texture of leaf and fine light wrappers. Don Bruno Diaz stated that his firm has already purchased up to 10,000 bales. It is said that the trust, in its plantation in the Vuelta Abajo, will realize only 3,800 bales in all of shade grown wrappers and fillers.

Jose F. Iribarren has opened his Semi Vuelta escojida, and will start his Tembadero packing at 94 Dragones street this week.

Jose H. Cayro e Hijo shipped 69 bales stripped filler to Key West last week. Don Jose has gone to the Vuelta Abajo to supervise his escojidas and eventually to purchase more leaf in bundles.

Sobrinos de Gregorio Palacio are continuing to buy fine vegas of Vuelta Abajo at or near San Luis.

Avelino Pazos & Co.—Don Juan Vasquez returned from the country after having added 40,000 matules to the purchases for their escojida.

Aixala & Co. are very busy, receiving tobacco almost daily from the Vuelta Abajo and San Antonio de los Banos.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales are as busy as they can be, not as far as selling is concerned just now, because their stock of old goods is limited, but in attending to the purchase of leaf in bundles and in vegas. All their buyers are in the country from the Vuelta Abajo, Semi Vuelta, Partido and up the Vuelta Arriba, and as this house bundles at least twenty-five to thirty-five thousand bales of tobacco—purchased from the farmers in the country each year—an idea may be formed of the magnitude and responsibility which rests chiefly upon the shoulders of Don Antero Prieto y Gonzalez. He is ably assisted, however, by Don Antonio Quesada and their buyers, trustworthy, and in most cases have been a long number of years in their employ.

Suarez Hnos. are regularly receiving weekly lots from their several Vuelta Abajo escojidas and are very busy.

Jose F. Rocha did not sell a bale this week. However, his old stock barely reaches 200 bales, but he is busy in receiving tobacco of the new crop from Vuelta Abajo and Partido. Don Jose will return here from his wedding trip early in June

Manuel Lazo is one of the rising dealers since he established his warehouse at 199 Manrique street. He has been in business only a little over a year. During the war he was a Colonel in the liberating army and before the Republic was inaugurated he was elected Senator for the Province of Pinar del Rio. There is no man better liked in the Vuelta Abajo than Don Manuel, who is working indefatigably to further the interests of his beloved province, Pinar del Rio, of which he is a native. He knows the majority of the vegueros personally, and most of them will not only give him the preference but actually sell to him cheaper than to a less known buyer, therefore he is in a favorable position to sell as low, or lower, than the other dealers here. He has received already 1,300 bales of the new crop of about 4,000 bales purchased so far, and will leave again tomorrow for Pinar del Rio to receive the balance of his purchases and perhaps increase them yet to 5,000 bales. Amongst the famous vegas acquired by him are El Conuco de la Yuca, Felix Pulido, Patron Lazo, Policarpo Fajardo, Ricardo Abreu, Cayo de los Peladas, Marquez, Padillo, Pulgaron, etc. Don Manuel handles only Vuelta Abajo leaf, and his specialty is Remates.

The third anniversary of the Cuban Republic, May 20th, was celebrated in the same style as the 4th of July is ushered in, year after year, in the United States. Firecrackers, bombs, cannon salutes, parades, regattas, official receptions by the President, fireworks and balls in the evening, were in order, and everything passed off pleasantly, and the people were happy.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 29, 1905.

Business in town is satisfactory with most of the retailers, but the warmer weather has caused a rush to the beaches which reduces the evening trade in Brooklyn and Manhattan considerably. According to reports, the straight cigar stores lose some of their trade to the saloon stands about this time of year, although at first thought, it would seem probable that the saloons would do more in the winter.

"It's this way," said the proprietor of one popular stand, in a well known saloon in the Tenderloin, "Men seem to have more time on their hands in the summer time, somehow, at least they are willing to act as if they had. Then again they are on the streets more than during the cold season, and a man is much more likely to meet a friend. Each is in search of something to while away the evening, and they adjourn to the nearest saloon to have a drink.

"Once there, they are likely to sit down for a little chat and before they have gone, they will probably have bought more than a half dozen cigars, sometimes a good many more. When there's a group, and they spend two or three hours in the place, they are likely to alternate by taking cigars, and some of them may 'have a cigar' every trip. Of course we don't get any box trade that way, but the other sales mount up surprisingly."

The manufacturers appear to be completely satisfied with the number of orders they are receiving, and a visit to the principal factories was productive of nothing but favorable reports. On certain occasions such reports may be made a little too sanguine on general principles, but it is likely that the present volume of business is quite up to the late spring average. It is apparently safe to count on a steady Western business, and those manufacturers who have established a clientele in the best territory to that section find that their goods move very steadily.

The only complaint that can be made is on the prices at which a good many manufacturers declare they have to sell their product. Those who are not able to demand a certain figure are obliged to put out a very good cigar at an extremely low margin, which with the present high prices of leaf, which seem likely to last for awhile, brings calculations down to a very close basis. Even at that the situation is a great deal better than if there were no orders to fill, and the atmosphere is generally very cheerful.

Buyers that were in the leaf market last week were on the lookout for cheap filler and binders. There was very little of either, and those dealers who have it, are pretty nearly able to make their own terms. Wisconsin binders seem to be favorite in demand, and something was done in this line of goods. Anyone who had a stock of Pennsylvania tobacco could sell it as fast as he wanted to, but there is very little in sight, and those who have any are inclined to hang on wherever possible. There was almost a stagnation in Havana, manufacturers evidently trying to get along with as little as possible, although prices still rule firm. There were a few sales made of the new Sumatra with a fair prospect of a busier market. Prices are scary, though, and the buyer hangs off to the last minute.

The trade was shocked at the news last

Wednesday that Louis F. Fromer had died of heart trouble the night before at his home on Long Island. Mr. Fromer had been a large manufacturer and well known in the trade. He had not been in good health for some time, but it was not supposed that his trouble was of so serious a nature, and the news of his sudden taking came as a sad surprise to his many friends.

The dead manufacturer was a native of Austria and came to America when a young man. He traveled for a pipe house and later accepted a position with Morris Jacoby, selling so many cigars for that manufacturer that it was not long before the firm of Jacoby & Co. was formed, Mr. Fromer being taken into the firm.

Later the head of the firm bought out Mr. Fromer who formed a new firm of Fromer & Hirsh, and still later manufactured under his own name alone. This last arrangement continued until about 1903 when the business became a corporation. Since 1896 Mr. Fromer has had his brands made for him by outside factories, operating none himself. His wife survives him.

The meeting and entertainment which was to have been held last Tuesday night by the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association was postponed until a week from tomorrow night, when the affair will be all the better for the delay. A number of members who hadn't heard of the postponement showed up last week and had a pleasant little chat on association affairs.

Joseph Berran & Co., cigar manufacturers at Forty-second street and First avenue, have secured the services of Julius Hirsch, one of the best known drummers on the road. Mr. Hirsch will start out in about a week with an assorted line of samples which will include the best known brands of the firm.

A reorganization is taking place in the affairs of the firm of Park & Tilford, and under the new style, a practically new concern will be conducted with H. J. Park, as president. The company will continue to operate its stores at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street at the entrance of the Park and at Columbus avenue and Seventy-second street, the companies retaining the places on a lease.

In a week the United Cigar Stores Co. will open another store in Harlem. The company has taken a store in the Marion building at Lenox avenue and 125th street, and will furnish it in the usual style. Last Friday represented the fourth anniversary of the United Cigar Stores Co., which was celebrated by the giving of double certificates in all the branches. The original store on Nassau street was also "fixed up" in honor of the occasion.

The R. Steinecke Co. has announced a change in its affairs. William Roberts, who has been president of the concern since the death of Mr. Steinecke, and Thomas W. Maley, Jr., secretary and treasurer, have succeeded as proprietors of the company and extend an invitation to all their friends and patrons to visit them. Mr. Roberts has been with this company for more than a quarter of a century and is fully calculated to guide it in continued prosperity.

Louis P. Sutter, of Louis P. Sutter & Bro., is back from Amsterdam where he attended all the inscriptions and secured some good Sumatra for his house. John H. Goetz, of John H. Goetz & Co., has also returned from Amsterdam with some good purchases to his credit.

Argument was heard last week by Judge Wallace in the United States Circuit Court in the habeas corpus proceedings in behalf of Edwin F. Hale, who was taken into custody in contempt of court on account of his refusal to answer questions in connection with the business affairs of McAndrew & Forbes, of which Mr. Hale is secretary. An effort was made to show that this firm was connected with the American Tobacco Co.

Elihu Root, De Lancey Nicoll and John D. Lindsay appear for Mr. Hale, and Henry W. Taft, special assistant United States district attorney for the government.

The main point of the attorneys for Hale was that the grand jury had no right to demand the firm's papers in an investigation involving no charge against anybody. Judge Wallace said he wished to decide the question as soon as possible and asked that briefs be submitted within a week.

CUT-WORMS VERY DESTRUCTIVE.

Richmond Farmers Asking for Means of Destroying Pests.

Richmond, Va., May 29.

There was a very unusual amount of complaint made by farmers at the Tobacco Exchange last week regarding the damage which they say is being done the crops in several counties by cut-worms, and Commissioner of Agriculture George W. Koiner has been asked to supply the farmers with information as to how to rid themselves of these pests.

Professor H. Garman, of the Kentucky experiment station, in discussing how to destroy the worm, says:

"The strip of ground to be used for a bed, and if possible the soil for fifteen or twenty feet on all sides of it should be thoroughly burned over in the fall, say in September or October, and then plowed to destroy vegetation present on it and with it any worms in the ground that may have escaped the fire. Grass and weeds should be kept from it from this time until the tobacco seed is sown.

"When no precaution of this sort has been taken and the young plants are in immediate danger from cut worms a thorough spraying with arsenate of lead (three pounds in fifty gallons of water) will destroy the worms, though if abundant they are likely to do some mischief before this is accomplished. Good will be done by dipping bunches of red clover in paris green water and scattering them about the beds before the young plants come up.

"I have used the word 'spraying' because it indicates the best condition in which to apply poison to plants, but arsenate of lead, unlike paris green, does no injury to plants in any ordinary strength in which it may be used, so that when no sprayer is at hand in may be applied with a watering can. It sticks, too, much better than paris green, so that if it were not for rapid increase in leaf surface, due to growth, one spraying would be enough."

U. S. BOARD OF GENERAL APPRAISERS REVERSES BOSTON COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS IN CASES OF LEWIS, AND BEMIS & CO.

The Board of U. S. General Appraisers in an opinion handed down by H. M. Somerville have sustained the claims of Chas. B. Lewis and Emery Bemis & Co, of Boston, which decision reverses the action of Collector Lyman. The point of the decision is that tobacco imported from Havana and lodged in bonded warehouses before the convention between the United States and Cuba was proclaimed by the President, is subject to the 20 per cent reduction in duties provided for in the convention. The decision in full is as follows:

Each of the importations under consideration consists of tobacco which is shown by the testimony to have been produced and exported from Cuba. The goods were imported in January, 1901, and entered for warehousing in the months of February and May, 1902, respectively. The portions of these entries now under consideration were withdrawn from warehouse on September 6, 1904, more than three years after the date of being placed in bonded warehouse.

While the goods were in bond, however—that is to say, between the time they were entered in bond and prior to the time they were withdrawn from bond—the convention between the United States and the Republic of Cuba was proclaimed by the President on December 17, 1903. This convention has been construed to have become operative and in force on December 17 of said year. The claim urged in each of these cases is that inasmuch as the tobacco in question was produced in and exported from Cuba, it is liable to pay duty only at the rates prescribed by the tariff act of 1897 less the 20 per cent reduction allowed by the reciprocity treaty above named.

Section 2971 of the Revised Statntes, which has a bearing on the question at issue, reads as follows:

Sec. 2971. All merchandise which may be deposited in public store or bonded warehouse may be withdrawn by the owner for exportation to foreign countries; or may be transshipped to any port of the Pacific or western coast of the United States at any time before the expiration of three years from the date of original importation; such goods on arrival at a Pacific or western port to be subject to the same rules and regulations as if originally imported there. Any goods remaining in public store or bonded warehouse beyond three years shall be regarded as abandoned to the Government and sold under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe and the proceeds paid into the Treasury.

This section was construed by the circuit court of appeal in the case of Anglo-California Bank v. Secretary of Treasury, and was held not to have been repealed by any provision in the McKinley act of October 1, 1890, the Wilson act of Februry 28, 1894, nor section 20 of the customs administrative act ot June 10, 1890, which reads:

Sec. 20. Any merchandise deposited in any public or private bonded warehouse may be withdrawn for consumption within three years from the date of original importation, on payment of the duties and charges to which it may be subject by law at the time of such withdrawal: Provided, That nothing herein shall affect or impair existing provisions of law in regard to the disposal of perishable or explosive articles.

On December 15, 1902, Congress passed an act amending said section 20 by inserting before the existing proviso an additional proviso, as follows:

Provided, That the same rate of duty shall be collected thereon as may be imposed by law upon like articles of merchandise imported at the time of withdrawal.

This law was construed in Mosle et al. v. Bidwell and often has been referred to by the Board in previous decisions.

It was decided in the case above cited (Anglo California Bank v. Secretary) that where certain steel rails had been imported and placed under bond (the warehouse entries having been liquidated under the tariff act of March 3, 1883) and remained in bond over three years, that they are liable to duty under the said act of 1883, and not under the McKinley act of 1890, or the Wilson act of 1894, which were passed subsequent to the lapse of said three years and were in existence at the time of withdrawal. It was held by the court that as the goods had remained in a bonded warehouse beyond the three years after entry, they should be regarded as abandoned to the Government and that the rights and liabilities of both the Government and the importer were fixed at the time of such abandonment.

The existing law at the time of this abandonment was that promulgated in the Cuban treaty, under which the claim is made, which, as we have said, was put in force while the goods remained in bond and prior to the lapse of the three years. If the tobacco had been withdrawn immediately after the Cuban treaty became operative and prior to the lapse of the three years from the date of entry, there could have been no question as to the right of the importer to have had the duties assessed under the provisions of this treaty, under the principles settled in the Mosle case.

When goods are in bond, their importation is regarded as incomplete. They may be withdrawn for exportation, and before withdrawal are subject to any change in the rates of duty imposed by any new tariff enacted by Congress. So, if withdrawn for consumption, the new law controls the rates of duty as fully as if the importation had been made subsequent to said law.

It follows from these principles that the Cuban convention having been put in force while the tobacco was in bond, and prior to the date of abandonment, the rights of all parties as to the dutiable character of the goods accrued on December 17, 190 , and were not affected by the fact of abandonment under said section 2971 of the Revised Statutes above cited.

HE SELLS CIGARETTES BY HIS POPULARITY.

The American Tobacco Co. seems to have more ways of selling its goods than all the outside manufacturers put together. The Company grinds almost any kind of grist in its mill, and a large part of its success has been due to its constant taking advantage of human nature.

In the current issue of McClure's Magazine is an article by Henry Beach Needham on "The College Athlete." Mr. Needham speaks bitterly of what he calls the growing commercialism in our colleges, and cites a number of instances to illustrate. One of them is the employment by the American Tobacco Co. of James T. Hogan, Yale's famous football captain, to push the sale of the combine's cigarettes in the college clubs.

"Hogan entered Exeter, a poor boy, at the age of 23," Mr. Needham writes. "He had been earning his own living when he set about to complete his education. His ambition was praiseworthy, and Exeter gave him the chance to work his way through the school. Hogan took his preliminary examination to enter Harvard. Harvard joined Yale and Princeton in competition for this great 'prep' athlete. Claim is now made at Cambridge that Harvard lost him because no definite promises would he made. As proof of this contention are cited the facts that Hogan passed all of his Harvard entrance examinations satisfactorily, and that he applied for and was assigned a Price Greenleaf Aid (a scholarship paying about $200 the freshman year). But Hogan went to Yale.

"The career of this athlete has been one of marked success. Hogan, with his room mate, Rockwell, the star quarterback, occupies a suite in Vanderbilt Hall, the most luxurious of the Yale dormitories, which is the 'hangout' for seniors. Hogan has forsaken the eating club he formed in his freshman year. He takes his meals at the University Club. This is an expensive undergraduate organization similar to any social club. The initiation fee and dues are remitted in special cases, however

"Hogan receives $100 a year, the income of the John Bennetto scholarship. In addition, according to the dean, his entire tuition is abated. The baseball association gives to Hogan, Rockwell and another athlete the score card privilege. Hogan's income is further augmented by commissions paid him by the American Tobacco Company, whose agent he is. It is well known about the campus that, through the influence of Hogan, the brands of cigarettes which he sells were placed on sale at 'Mory's,' a New Haven grill room frequented by Yale men These brands are spoken of at Yale as 'Hogan's cigarettes.' It is not to be argued that this employment affects Hogan's amateur standing. The 'business arrangement' is important only as showing the growth of commercialism in collegiate sport."

J. T. Wilcox, secretary of the American Tobacco Co., is quoted in the article as declaring that the scheme was an experiment but that it has succeeded so well that it will probably be inaugurated in other colleges. Hogan gets a commission on every box of cigarettes sold in his territory and he has done well.

It is good business for the American Tobacco Co., and nothing can be argued against that concern. But it seems rather cheap for one of the biggest men in a college to finance his popularity in this fashion. It is fair to presume that the quality of the cigarettes has nothing to do with his efforts, and if some other concern offered him a larger commission, he would doubtless switch his allegiance, and just as enthusiastically praise the merits of the new brands.

That is true of every traveling salesman, but the traveling salesman wins as many friends as he can, solely to sell his goods, and never travels under false pretenses. The college scheme is too much on the order of a famous hero, while the nation was resounding with praises of him, taking advantage of the ovation to push a brand of wine.

ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW STILL FOOD FOR DAILIES.

The famous Indiana anti-cigarette law certainly is toothsome meat for the daily newspapers, and in the comparatively short time since the law has been in operation, there have been about 400 different kinds of stories printed from out the situation. The following is reprinted from a Richmond daily of recent issue:

The unpopularity of the anti-cigarette law in Richmond was clearly demonstrated in Richmond last evening. Not the fact that it disposed of cigarettes but of the fact that it deprived persons of their personal liberty. The occasion in which the demonstration occurred was in the production of the opera "Wang" at the Gennett theatre. Miss Marguerite Clark, one of the stars of the production, in one part of the play is compelled to smoke a cigarette. Miss Clark, last evening, pulled forth a cigarette case and the audience which completely filled the house held their breath in expectancy. Miss Clark held the case in her hand a moment and then opening it took out a sure enough cigarette, the like of which has not been seen in this city for some time Not a sound could be heard in the house as she placed it in her mouth but when she lit the small dream producer the crowd went wild and for a few moments the entire house was in an uproar and some of the poor exfiends out in front endeavored to lasso one or two rings of the fragrant smoke to keep them in remembrance of the occasion. The fact that a tiny little woman defied the State law and smoked a cigarette in spite of it in a public place will go down in history.

The Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers

The Retailers Meet.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association was held last Thursday night. Business incident to the picnic at Maple Grove on June 21 was transacted, and the reports of the various committees indicate that the affair will be one long to be remembered.

Among the features will be the giving away of money prizes by a drawing, each purchaser of a ticket receiving a chance. Much interest is being manifested in the ball game between the Arthur Hagan Red Devil team and the United News Co's Invincibles.

The association was shown to be in good condition and as the Board of Trade Committee is formulating new and beneficial features soon to be incorporated, a steady healthy growth is confidently assured.

The time for the awarding of the seven prizes for ideas on how to increase the membership of the association has been extended until June 19, on which date the association will meet to award these prizes, and to complete the arrangements for the picnic Several new members were elected.

James I. Hassan, the hustling dealer at 6633 Woodland avenue, and B. M. Clapp, of Leda fame, spent Sunday at Reading, the guests of John D. Taylor, representative of the Edison cigar in this city. A delightful day was spent riding over the mountains, and the guests were much impressed with Reading and its environs.

In the window of the Moore store at Second and Market streets, is a model of a racing shell made so beautifully and with such faithful attention to detail that it has attracted a constant crowd.

The Saturday specials, at two of the stores near the new United store at Second and Market streets, are moving out well and have proven a good offer.

The store of R. B. Semon, at 131 South Tenth street, presents a very pleasing appearance to the eye of the passer-by, owing to the artistic arrangement of the stock and the store furnishings.

E. G. Steane & Co., the Tenth and Chestnut street dealers, show no signs of moving to the opposite side of the street, although it is still presumed that the removal will shortly take place.

Barney Greenburg, manager of the United Cigar Stores Company's Philadelphia branches, says that business is all that he could ask, and declares that he is kept just about as busy as he wants to be looking after the various stocks.

The opening of Washington Park on the Delaware, has added some business to that already enjoyed by the dealers near the foot of Market and Arch streets. The regular summer transient trade has begun, and especially on Saturday afternoon, business brisks up materially. Many smokers who are going away for over Sunday will step in a store near the ferry and buy enough smoking or chewing to last them until their return.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

E. Montero, manufacturer at 1603 Susquehanna avenue, has been for several years engaged in building up good patronage in higher grade goods, among consumers in his immediate neighborhood, and has met with substential success. He now employs about fifteen cigarmakers, and his product ranges in price to box trade from $5.50 to $25 per hundred. Lately he has placed his goods among the retail dealers, and now does a very fair wholesale trade. He is specializing his Bouquet de Montero 10 cents and Pride of Susquehanna 5 cent cigars.

Rubenstone & Fisher, at 202 North Seventeenth street, are now forging ahead on their Union Ribbon 5 cent cigar, which will also soon be placed on the market, Flora Montez, is a brand used on a 6 cent cigar and El Impartial and La Geografia on 10 cent goods. They are building up some western in addition to a good local trade.

Policeman Parker, of the Lehigh avenue station, saw two men one evening last week leave Tresler's cigar factory, on Dauphin street, and gave chase. He captured one, who was carrying sixteen boxes of ten cent cigars and a jimmy. The other man, who had no plunder, escaped.

At the police station the prisoner said he was Robert Smith, and that he had several addresses. This is the second time the factory has been broken into by two men recently, and on each occasion Policeman Parker caught one of the robbers.

The manufacturers are still keeping pretty busy and are making no kick on the number of orders received. Business in town could be better, but the road men are sending in enough to make up for this slight dullness. Collections are better, and the general atmosphere is cheerful.

Sig. C. Mayer & Co., of 417 Locust street, are building up a firm trade on their high grade cigars owing to the enterprising methods of those who look after the business. Especially is the office business kept in shipshape order by George I. Watson, treasurer of the company.

Bayuk Brothers are still having a very large sale on their BB Blunts, which for a five cent cigar is all the money. Ever since this smoke was put on the market the firm has had to increase its factory force to keep up with orders.

A. S. Valentine & Sons have not fully decided yet to what use they will put the first floor of the Seventh street building, which they have just leased, but the offices on the second floor will not be disturbed. It is thought probable that the floor will be used for the shipping department.

Business with Gumpert Brothers is reported good, in fact all that could be asked at this season.

The El Draco Co., at Second and Arch street, is being kept busy these days filling orders on its popular brands. This house is branching out more in the West now, and its brands make a good name for themselves wherever they go.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

There is still nothing of great interest in the local leaf situation, some dealers doing a fair business on certain scarce goods, while others haven't any tobacco to sell. There was not much doing in Havana during the week, as buyers don't seem very anxious for this grade of tobacco at present prices. Whenever good stocks of cheaper filler were heard of there was immediate inquiry which in many cases resulted in a sale. The brokers are not finding it easy to get samples of Pennsylvania goods, and are finding those up-the-State packers who have anything on hand to be very independent, as they can well afford to be.

Captain MacIver, Jr., of the customs inspectors made a seizure of Sumatra leaf at the Port Richmond piers last week, and arrested Rudolph Von Ende and Philip Fransea, sailors, both of which men were held in bail and sent to jail. The captured tobacco consists of three bags of Sumatra leaf brought from Holland on the Pennmanor, weighing 140 pounds, the duty on which is $1.85 per pound.

Captain Homewood, of the steamship Pennmanor from which the tobacco was taken, was later taken into custody and given a hearing before Collector Thomas. The latter fined the man $300 because the tobacco was not entered in the vessel's manifest. This fine was protested and will be fought out in court, although the captain gave bond so that his vessel might clear.

Customs Inspectors Hartman and Welsh, who had charge of the Pennmanor, had suspected the two sailors and watched them from the start. Von Ende came from the Viking and was seen assisting Fransea carry the tobacco ashore in bags. He was arrested at once, but Fransea ran away and hid in the hold of the Pennmanor. Word was sent to Captain MacIver, Jr., of the night force, and with Lieutenant Wetzner and Inspectors Sullivan and Barnes he started for the ship at once to look for Fransea. After two hours' search he was found hiding in the extreme lower portion of the vessel's stoke hole.

It is believed that the men belong to a regularly organized band of tobacco smugglers. Fransea claimed to have obtained the tobacco from a Rotterdam firm and said that he was to make a return of $1 per pound.

Theodore Bixby and D. A. Shaw, of the Florida Tobacco Co., were in town last week on their way back from Quincy, Florida, where they have been paying a visit to the plantations of the company. Both gentlemen were very enthusiastic over the way their goods have been moving lately.

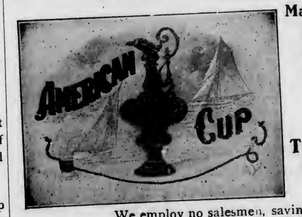
L. G. Hauessermann & Sons have just received some fine marks of Sumatra leaf which they purchased out of hand, and which they offer their trade.

B. Labe & Sons are managing to keep pretty busy, and report a good steady demand.

LANCASTER BOOM DIDN'T LAST.

Business is Fair but Few Old Goods Are Obtainable.

Lancaster, Pa., May 29.



The local leaf market is again in normal condition, a moderate and mostly local business only being transacted. The recent spurt was but short, principally it seems, for the reason that goods are not obtainable, that is to say old goods, of which the recent transactions mostly consisted.

The planting of the new crop is now going on and with continued favorable weather, is likely to progress very rapidly. At that particular season of the year when local packers are inspecting their packings with a view of determining as closely as possible, the amount of dam

THE OLD AND ANCIENT ORDER of independently redeemable coupons has passed away. The consumer is tired of mismated, mismatched coupons that are waste-paper—to him—unless he uses an inordinate amount of one brand or article. Manufacturers, why not give coupons which can be reinforced and supplemented by the makers of cigars, cereals, soap, condensed milk, crackers, canned goods and the hundreds of other people from whom the consumer must eventually obtain his supplies of the necessities, and even luxuries, of life? Can you conceive of a universal co-operative coupon which will be redeemable with those of other manufacturers? Your business will be benefited by an interchangeable, yes even a universal, coupon.

If you try to run your own coupon business, you will find it expensive; you will need more help; you will overstock; you cannot buy right; you have breakage, interest, cartage, expressage, disgruntled patrons, and five per cent. cut clean out of your profits. We do all the work for you; give you an absolutely superior premium, and by our co-operative method you share only a part of the expense; cut your premium expenses in half, and double your sales. The profits will look after themselves. You cannot buy Morris chairs by the hundred. If you did, where would you store them? Let us buy the Morris chairs by the thousand, and save you money in buying, storing, and all the other things which go to make up profit and loss in the premium business. Remember, you are in business to sell goods. Keep up your product and let others do the giving away at a minimum expense. Let everybody run their own business and leave the premium worry to us. We will sell more goods for you than you thought could be sold. We are salesmen of the twentieth century. We will furnish the experience, and your customers do not have to wait years for the dress-suit case, umbrella or desk. No painful filling of stamp books. Our coupons, derived from all sources, multiply like compound interest, and are redeemed by us—yours among the rest—in large blocks. You can never hope to successfully compete with vast corporations in the premium field; but you can become an integral part of our system, and derive all the tangible benefits of large merchandizing at a minimum of cost. The value of having a co-operative interchangeable system at your elbow must be apparent to all. If there are details, such as "What will it cost?" write us and receive the fullest possible information by return mail. We have already done so, and intend to cut a great, wide swath in the premium field, and we invite you to become participants in the assured profits. What we want are results; and what you want are results. Your product is good—why not sell more? We can increase your sales without trouble to you and at very little expense. Try to let our Association butt into your tobacco business for a while, and watch the results. What we have done for others, we can do for you. The strenuous competition of modern business is handled by us on "mutual" lines, for the benefit of all manufacturers.

Our universal coupon is the most valuable premium voucher in the world, and interested parties should make application at once to be enrolled in the Association, as the number of firms represented in the system will be limited. The fullest information, sample coupons, and catalogues showing premiums, etc., will be mailed on application.

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut loaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

age which is likely to be shown when the packings shall have been through the fermentation process, there seems always to be a few people, who for reasons not clearly definable, yell murder before they are even touched.

We had an illustration of this not many days ago when a certain individual of this city who is doing a heap more harm to tobacco interests of this section than he ever did it good, set up a howl about the immense percentage of damaged tobacco the new packings were likely to show, judging by the advance inspections which are now being made, which has been a detriment to the packings and to the undoubted injury of holders of tobacco for there was not a scintilla of truth in it.

Every responsible leaf packer in this city will tell you that there never was a packing put up yet that was absolutely perfect, sometimes there being shown, of course, a greater percentage of damage than at other times. While this year is no exception to the rule, yet the conditions of the packings are not nearly so bad as was undertaken to be proclaimed by the alarmist before referred to. On the other hand the amount of damage thus far noticeable would appear to be a trifle less than the average year's results and packers certainly have no reason to feel in the least dismayed concerning the ultimate outcome of the present sweating season, if matters do not go any worse than they are so far.

It is the opinion that the chap who first circulated the false rumor is a fit subject for the Osler treatment and that he has attained the age limit.

The cigar industry throughout this county is in anything but a satisfactory condition. It cannot be said that there is no business for there is lots of it, but it is dragging along in such a way that neither manufacturer, leaf dealer or others are making any actual progress.

In October of 1904 a leaf tobacco warehouse and other buildings belonging to Tobias Hershey, at East Petersburg, were destroyed by fire which is believed to have been caused by the spark of an engine of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, trains of which company run close by. Mr. Hershey, sustained a loss placed at $21,000 and has brought legal preceedings against the company to recover his loss alleging that the defendant company was negligent in allowing sparks to be thrown out from its locomotives. Attorney John M. Groff, is counsel for Mr. Hershey and the suit has caused considerable interest in the local leaf trade.

Wm. G. Kendig, attorney for W. H. McLaughlin, leaf tobacco dealer of this city, has issued an excution in the sum of $525 against H. S. Graybill, a cigar manufacturer of Litiz.

Since the return of A. D. Kilheffer, of Millersville, from his recent trip he has been adding daily to his force of cigarmakers and is now advertising in the Lancaster papers for a dozen or more experienced cigarmakers for steady work.

GOOD RETAIL DEMAND IN BOSTON.

What the Dealers Are Selling Most of at the Hub.

Boston, Mass., May 28.

Summer weather predominated nearly all of the past week, and with the retailers there was quite a demand for panatelas, bouquet ponies and all sorts of short smokes. Business was fairly good. A noticeable uneasiness can be seen on the part of many of the subjobbers, on account of the slashing in prices by our largest American Tobacco Co. jobbers here and there is no telling what may happen next on account of the American Tobacco Co. being the victors in the recent law suits against the trust.

H. C. Traiser & Co have about fifty window displays about the city advertising both their Havana and Pippin cigars.

The R. A. Patterson Co is extensively advertising its Lucky Strike on every available wall or fence, while down Maine this concern is largely advertising its Patterson Seal cut plug.

Jonas Gans, of Gans Bros., New York makers of the renowned William the Fourth clear Havana cigar was in town Thursday calling on Rosenthal Bros. their local distributors. Mr. Gans left town again Thursday night for Worcester, well satisfied with the good sale his cigar enjoys here.

the trade a new little cigar similar to Leroy called Glorifier. The jobbing price on this brand is $11 less 10 and 2 per cent with 10 per cent additional gratis in goods.

A new cigar manufacturer here is R. A. Dashever, located at 17 Milk street.

Sam Marcuson with the American Tobacco Co. is once more in town, putting out some handsome advertising matter on Hassan the 5 cent cork tip Turkish cigarettes.

S. Strauch, of the Strauch Co., New York, makers of the Hygienic unpasted cigarette tubes, and importers of French cigarette paper, spent the greater portion of the week here visiting the cigarette manufacturers.

On Sunday, May 21, a small fire visited the cigar store of H. E. Lombard, of Court street, the damage done amounting to $150.

Andrew Kelper a cigarmaker in the employ of Frank Smith, 251 Cambridge street, died from hemorrages, in front of the shop Wednesday evening.

E. Sterling a tobacconist from Worcester, Mass., was in town this week. Mr. Sterling reports having had a good trade during the past month and has recently added to his establishment the El Cafe Havana Bouquet cigar from the factory of L. Miller & Sons, New York.

An attractive window display of the Menashi cigarettes holds sway this week at Gorden Bros. cigar emporium, 999 Washington street.

In Springfield, Mass, the closing of the "Lid" will make serious inroads on the profits of most holders of liquor licenses, who assert that the License Commissioner had overlooked altogether the fashionable hotels where wearers of diamonds and rustling silks are served regardless of results. One hotel man stated that the restriction upon the sale of liquor to women would mean the loss of half his cigar stand trade, the fair sex being inveterate smokers of the most expensive brands of cigarettes.

Wm. Norden formerly with T. Rosenbaum & Co. as city salesman for Batchellor cigar has served his connection with that concern, and henceforth will be one of the salesmen of McGreenery & Manning.

H. J. Mandel has leased the store at the corner of Bowdoin and Cambridge streets, and intend to have a first class cigar and periodical store similar to the one he now runs at 49 Howard street. Mr. H. J. Mandel will give his personal attention to the new store while his brother will take care of the Howard street branch.

A visitor in this market last week was A. Ellen a tobacconist of Bangor, Me.

Louis Jeselsohn, wholesale tobacconist has removed from 214 Hanover street to larger quarters at 128 North street.

The Allen Tobacco Co., of New York, intends shortly to place with the trade a cigar packed 3 for 5 cents. According to Ed Leader's opinion it will be a "hummer."

James M. Farren one of the city salesmen for J. McGreenery is doing clever work in placing the Poet panatelas. Mr. Farren is well liked and his many friends greatly assist him.

On or about June 10, Joseph Strauss, of 37 Washington street, will open his new cigar store at 121 Hanover street.

S. A. Frank, representative of L. Miller & Sons, of New York, of Leroy fame spent a few days the past week canvassing Lynn, Mass., with good success.

M. Schlesinger, tobacconist of Worcester, Mass, was in this city on Thursday.

Joe Kramer, manager of B. M. Wollenberger's East Boston store left on a pleasure trip to New York. Joe certainly needs a vacation. BEN ALI.

INCREASE DEMAND IN TENNESSEE.

Sales Will Be Held Oftener and Prices Better.

Memphis, Tenn., May 29.

Owing to the increased demand for tobacco in the west Tennessee and southwestern Kentucky dark tobacco districts, sales will be held every week from now on at the various warehouses controlled by the Planters' Protective Association. Several hogheads of western Kentucky tobacco have been sold at prices ranging from $6.30 to $8.90 for the leaf.

This represents the beginning of the sales of western Kentucky and Tennessee tobacco which was bought early in the season at $5 50 to $7 per 100 by the independents, as well as the trust, as a subtitute for the tobacco produced in the Clarksville, Tenn., dark leaf district. The effort to substitute this tobacco in the foreign field has failed, it is said, because of the vast difference between the types.

As giving some idea of what the firm stand taken by the planters through close organization has done for prices in the Clarksville district, it may be stated that the American Tobacco Co. has purchased on the breaks a hoghead of tobacco at $12,75 per 100 which could have been bought at the same time last year for about one-half of that figure.

The Planters' Protective Association controls 50,000 hogsheads of the dark tobacco crop, which is the bulk of it. Offerings outside of the association are light and mostly of low grade.

MORE TEXAS-MADE CIGARS.

Another Manufacturing Company is Formed in Nacogdoches.

Nacogdoches, Tex., May 28.

The cigar manufacturing industry in this State is steadily increasing and a considerable quantity of Texas grown tobacco is already being used in the product of a good grade of cigars.

A few days ago a number of cigarmakers employed in the Nacogdoches Cigar Factory met and organized themselves into a company for the purpose of growing and curing tobacco, and also to purchase real estate. At this meeting, permanent organization was entered into and articles of agreement signed.

An ideal farm has been purchased and will be known as "The Blue Label Tobacco Plantation." The first crop will be grown next season, which will contain about fifteen acres.

The officers of the new company are: L. P. Demouche, president; C. K. Luden, vice-president; John F. Glaze, secretary-treasurer; directors, H. F. Wilson, C. T. Skoog, O. C. Mickey.

The president, Mr. Demouche, is the general manager of the Nacogdoches Cigar Factory of this city and is an expert tobacco man. The cigarmakers entering the combination are experienced tobacco men as well as cigarmakers.

JULIUS ALVAREZ & CO.'S FACTORY.

Model New Structure at Allentown, Pa., Built Specially for Cigar Manufacturing Purposes.

BRIEF SKETCH OF THE CAREER OF A SUCCESSFUL HOUSE.

It is just about eight years since there was hung out in front of a small building in Allentown a small sign bearing this announcement:

JULIUS ALVAREZ & CO.
Manufacturers of FINE CIGARS

And it was in this humble manner that Julius Alvarez & Co. announced their advent in a field hitherto unexploited in the particular direction and manner in which they proposed to do business—principally by mail. But the methodic and thoroughly systematic way in which they set about it soon made it evident that their plans had been fully formulated and thoroughly thought out before anything in particular was attempted, and then it was done with a vim and energy that fairly astonished many older houses in the trade who marveled at the apparent rapid progress which was made. The merit of their product soon began to assert itself, which together with a system atic method of publicity, promoted the welfare of the young firm at an astonishingly fast rate.

The only deviation from the original principle upon which the business was founded consists of a more elaborate system for marketing its product, by the addition of a force of traveling salesmen and resident agents in various sections of the country. Their rapidly increasing output soon required a practical revolution of the entire plant and its equipment, resulting in the erection, in 1904, of a fine new building, which is herewith shown for the first time in public print, from which it will be readily understood that the new building is a large modern structure, possessing every known improvement and convenience.

This building, which was completed in August of last year, was taken possession of in the following month, and every department is now in complete working order, and is operated to its full capacity. It is a four-story structure, built entirely of brick, and in point of sanitary arrangements and in the matter of ventilation it has been pronounced practically perfect. In addition to its excellent natural light, it is also equipped with electric lighting throughout, electric elevator power, etc.

The interior of the building is uniquely and most conveniently arranged. The first floor is divided into a reception room, private offices, and general offices or counting room for the convenience of the several bookkeepers and stenographers. In addition there is also a well appointed shipping room, with cigar box storage facilities and a label department. A portion of this floor is also set apart and partitioned off by a brick wall, and made into what is known as an up-to-date stock storage vault, for the preservation

JOHN SWARTZ DIES.

Well Known Poughkeepsie Jobber Succumbs to Heart Trouble.

John Schwartz, well known tobacco merchant of Poughkeepsie, died suddenly a few days ago at his home on Mansion Square. He succumbed to heart trouble.

John Schwartz was born in Bavaria, Germany, September 9, 1839, and among the prominent citizens of German birth in Poughkeepsie none held a higher place in the estimation of the community. When he was ten years of age he came with his mother to America, landing at New York city, and in January, 1850, the entire family came to Poughkeepsie. He became an apprentice to learn the cigar business with Geo. M. Welker, with whom he remained six or seven years, and on May 1, 1864, engaged in the tobacco business for himself at 315 Main street. He made a success of this enterprise and in 1879 he purchased the store at 313 Main, where he carried on the business to the time of his death. Although having a large retail trade, he was principally engaged in wholesaling, and his goods have been shipped to all points of New York as well as to other States. He has conducted the largest business of the kind in this section.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The tobacco season is once more upon us. To be sure, only upon a small scale at present, but from this time on it will be growing quite fast, as one grower after another begins to transplant the delicate little things from the plant beds to the open fields. With the cold, drying northwest winds that we have had this last week one would almost think that the little plants would be blown from the soil. The weather has been too cold the last few days for rapid growth, and with the dry condition of the soil it is a little risky and slow in getting started.

Our correspondents write:

Bradstreet, Mass.: "O. Belden & Sons are nearly half through setting tobacco. They raise about twenty acres. Those who have made a beginning are John Brennon, Edgar H. Field, C. W. and Harry Marsh and Walter Langdon. Tobacco setting will be quite general this week. Look out sharp for frost."

"Suffield, Ct.. "Tobacco plants are making a slow growth, the nights are so cool. But a few of our tobacco growers have begun to set their plants, and others are getting the ground in shape, and as soon as plants are ready will begin to set them."

Conway, Mass.: "Tobacco growers have had a hard time to transplant their tobacco at the start this year. Five of the farmers began last week, but the wind blew so and the plants were so tender that most of them perished, so that those having tobacco setters will go right over the ground again. The morning of May 22 themometer stood at 32 degrees, but we are in hopes that the weather may change to a still, damp time."

Montague, Mass.: "A. M. Lyman began setting tobacco May 17, but most beds are about two weeks later. The prospects are for several acres increase this season."

Feeding Hills, Mass.: "Some commenced setting their young plants last week, but all pieces not protected by tents will have to reset this week, as the high cold winds that prevailed whipped the life out of the tender plants."

North Hatfield, Mass.: "Setting has begun a little. Frost Sunday and Monday morning killed some tobacco, potatoes and garden vegetables."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

There is so little about the closing in of the fag ends of a tobacco crop deserving of mention that it hardly seems necessary to repeat statements made over and over again concerning the gathering in of the few remaining lots in growers' hands, especially as they involve the cheaper grades generally. Some riding is still indulged in and sales coming to notice are:

O. E. Severson, 26cs at 7¼ & 3c asst.
E. Penewell, 4a at 7&3c asst.
T. H. Femrite, 7a at 6½&3c asst.
A. Thompson, 4a at 6¾&3c asst.
O. L. Stenson, 6a at 6½c.

Among packers there is a moderate amount of business being done, the cheaper grades being especially in demand. W. T. Pomeroy & Co. purchased 150 cases of fillers of a Stoughton concern, and H. T. Sweeney sold a car load of low grades.

The weather so far is much too cold for rapid growth of the plant beds, which in fact have made but little progress for the past two weeks. Warm days are specially needed now to bring them on for the usual transplanting season.

Shipments 200 boxes.—Reporter.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

M. H. Clark & Bro.

With good prizing and handling weather deliveries have been full at the prizing houses, and warehouse receipts for the week were 1,300 hhds.; offerings on the breaks were 313 hhds.; and public and private sales were 469 hhds.; nearly all new tobacco.

The quality and order both showed improvement which gave a strong market, and rejections were few in number.

The Planters' Protective Association continues steadily its samplings, which go forward to its buyer. The association is having the 1905 crop signed to it for sale.

The weather continues showery, and planting has gone on steadily, and the larger half of the intended crop has been set. The usual complaint of damage by cut worms comes in from the country.

The frequent rains have swollen all of the water courses.

For new tobacco we quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50 to $4.00
Common Lugs	4.25 to 4.50
Medium Lugs	4.50 to 5.00
Good Lugs	5.00 to 5.50

COMBINE WON'T HELP?

Indiana Cigarette Smokers Must Get Themselves Out of Trouble.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 26.

While no arrests have been made in Terra Haute of men and boys violating the cigarette law, there have been numerous arrests in other cities.

In a number of cities men have been encouraged, it is alleged, to violate the anti-cigarette law in order that their cases might be taken to the Supreme Court. In numerous instances, it is said, the violators were committed on the advice and in collusion with lawyers who wish to attract the attention of the tobacco trust, from which it was believed financial support would be received.

Now comes the information that the tobacco trust does not care for the anti-cigarette law. The trust attacked similar laws in Tennessee and Iowa and failed. The Indiana law is said to be far safer from attack than the acts of either Tennessee or Iowa. The trust recognizes that it is beaten and does not intend to squander money in Indiana on lawyers and briefs. The trust will do considerable cigarette business through the mails and will rest on its oars.

The men who have submitted to arrest and have been fined will be left to fight their battle alone.

RICHMOND TOBACCO BOOM.

But Farmers in That Section Distressed by Cut Worms.

Richmond, Va., May 26.

An encouraging and decided change in the condition of the tobacco market prevailed here yesterday. Prices were higher and finer grades of wrappers sold from $40 to $50, about the best prices of the week.

Planter Martin, of Caroline county, received $50 for his lot of wrappers. B. W. Palmer sold two lots for another farmer for $40. Some grades sold low.

One of the finest lots of sun-cured product offered for sale today was that of J. M. Bell, of New London, Caroline county. Mr. Bell is a brother of J. W. Bell, of Central Point, Va., who sold a lot of tobacco here about two weeks ago for $66, averaging $20 on 5,000 pounds. A lot of sun-cured tobacco belonging to Mr. Grant, of Louisa, averaged $25.

Silas Shelburne & Son's warehouse sold 70 packages on the exchange, the highest price being $50.

All good, rich wrappers offered by Shelburne & Son sold high, the market being very low on medium to good fillers. The sales of these classes are very unsatisfactory to the planters.

Farmers from the surrounding counties are much wrought up about the damage being done to tobacco by what they call the "cut worms."

John Pickett and T. J. Whitiker, of Caroline county, and James F. Wright, of Louisa, who have been here looking after the sale of their product at the Tobacco Exchange declare that the worms have done incalculable damage to crops in their counties.

C. L. Gray, of Caroline county, does not think that the next crop will be as large as that of the last year. He, too, is much exercised about the damage being done by the worms.

CIGARS DETERIORATING IN LONDON.

A report comes from London to the effect that many Americans are complaining of the inferior quality of the cigars sold in many places in the British metropoles.

It is alleged that some brands which have been favorites for years past have deteriorated during the last two years. Clerks in at least twenty shops say the statement is true. Retailers allege that the goods put on nowadays are lighter in weight and that prices are higher than two years ago.

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

into his private car, the engine gave a demure little toot, and started off. And all night the outfit sped around the track, while its owner softly slumbered, a sweet smile on his face. And I suppose he is still doing it, if the story is true.

Whether it is or not I have no means of knowing, but I have seen case after case, where a man's health suffered severely from such a change. Two instances in particular that came near home, are those of two men, relatives of mine by marriage. They are pretty well along by this time, and the lives of both have been spent on the road. They are brothers, and lately, one of them decided that he would like to settle down and become acquainted with his family.

He secured an office job, and thought everything was just lovely. But it is an actual fact that after the novelty had worn off, the man began to pine away until he got so he would spend all his time moping and brooding, until he was no good to himself or anyone else.

He was used to traveling, it suited him, he had done it all his working years, and it was too late to change. He went back to the road, and there never has been a happier man in the world than this one the day he started with his samples.

The other has not so fortunate an ending. He is a pretty old man, and it was decided that he would be better off the road than on. He came in and worked in the office, and the thing acted in precisely the same way. But this man brooded so often over the fact that his road days were over for all time, that he finally had to take his bed, and at this moment he is a very sick man, with a poor chance of ever being anything else. His heart is always following the course of his route, and he is as pathetic a sight as could be.

So that is the penalty which the man who jumps a sample grip around the country must pay. Some day he must bring his samples back for the last time, and enter upon a period of listlessly waiting for the final call.

THE OLD SALESMAN.

WEATHER-CROP BULLETIN.

Department of Agriculture's Weekly Report on Tobacco

Washington, D. C., May 26.

The latest weather-crop bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture reports that tobacco plants are plentiful in Kentucky, and transplanting continues in that State as well as in Indiana, Maryland, and North Carolina. (Concluded from page 5) into his private car, the engine gave a demure little toot, and started off. And all night the outfit sped around the track, while its owner softly slumbered, a sweet smile on his face. And I suppose he is still doing it, if the story is true.

Whether it is or not I have no means of knowing, but I have seen case after case, where a man's health suffered severely from such a change. Two instances in particular that came near home, are those of two men, relatives of mine by marriage. They are pretty well along by this time, and the lives of both have been spent on the road. They are brothers, and lately, one of them decided that he would like to settle down and become acquainted with his family.

He secured an office job, and thought everything was just lovely. But it is an actual fact that after the novelty had worn off, the man began to pine away until he got so he would spend all his time moping and brooding, until he was no good to himself or anyone else.

He was used to traveling, it suited him, he had done it all his working years, and it was too late to change. He went back to the road, and there never has been a happier man in the world than this one the day he started with his samples.

The other has not so fortunate an ending. He is a pretty old man, and it was decided that he would be better off the road than on. He came in and worked in the office, and the thing acted in precisely the same way. But this man brooded so often over the fact that his road days were over for all time, that he finally had to take his bed, and at this moment he is a very sick man, with a poor chance of ever being anything else. His heart is always following the course of his route, and he is as pathetic a sight as could be.

So that is the penalty which the man who jumps a sample grip around the country must pay. Some day he must bring his samples back for the last time, and enter upon a period of listlessly waiting for the final call.

National Cigar Clipper

It Clips a V in Ends of Cigars---

A LITTLE vest pocket instrument for the smoker that puts a V in ends of cigars—neatly—accurately—without breaking wrapper, no matter how dry or brittle the cigar is.

It doesn't bite and pull and squeeze; but cuts "shear ways," the common sense way—a way that can't dull the the cutter and disfigure the point of cigar.

Design is elegant—nothing like it on the market anywhere Finest tool steel—nickel plated, and polished.

Makes an effective and lasting piece of advertising for the cigar manufacturer and distributer because of its ability to attract attention—its utility and durability.

The dealer can't put a better selling novelty before a smoker. Hits two ways,—snug profit when sold—fetching advertising with name on.

Sample 15 cents. Dozen lots without ad. $1.25.

Gross lots without ad. $14.00; with ad. if not more than three lines, three eighth of an inch long, $16.50.

EXPORT OF CIGARS FROM CUBA.

Statistical Bureau at Havana Publishes Statement for Nine Months.

Washington, D. C., June 3.

Consul General Guenther, at Frankfort, Germany, has written to the Department of Commerce and Labor the following regarding the exports of cigars from Cuba for the last nine months of 1904.

Since April 1, 1904, the statistical bureau at Habana has published monthly statements of the exports of cigars, which shows the name of the manufacturers and the destination of the product. According to these data the exports during the last nine months of 1904 were as follows:

Whither Exp'd.	Exported by trust factories. Number.	Exported by independent factories. Number.
England,	33,740,000	32,801,000
United States,	28,446,000	16,976,000
Germany,	11,562,000	12,525,000
Canada,	2,530,000	2,540,000
Other countries,	10,348,000	17,242,000
Total,	86,626,000	82,084,000

These figures show that 51.3 per cent of the total exports came from the trust factories and 48.7 per cent from the independent concerns. When the trust was formed the trust factories supplied about 75 per cent—according to the statement of the trust itself, 85 per cent—of the total exports. It is therefore evident that the trust, up to December 31, 1904, has lost at least 30 per cent—more than 50,000,000 cigars—in trade.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says that while the exports of the independent factories to the United States are not very great, it should be borne in mind that the trust, in consequence of its almost complete monopoly of the trade in cigars, cigarettes, and smoking and chewing tobacco, exerted great pressure upon American importers and dealers, and, besides, shipped several millions of so-called reciprocity cigars and cigars of very low grade. If these millions of trust cigars had been deducted, the showing of last year would have been in favor of the independent factories. From all appearances the attempted monopolization of the cigar trade of Habana is not a success.

BURLEY COMMITTEE CAN'T AGREE ON PLANS.

Cincinnati, O., June 1.

Archibald Stewart, who was in Lexington to meet with the Ways and Means Committee of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Company for the purpose of devising a plan to secure the money to finance the organization this year, is back in Cincinnati this morning, the committee having failed to agree on any of the plans suggested by the Cincinnati promoter.

Another meeting will be held in the near future, but several members stated that it now looked as if the committee was hoplessly hung, and would be unable to agree on the plans so far outlined.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE.

Des Moines Sports Don't Know Whether They Will Keep Cigar Machines.

Des Moines, Ia., June 3.

This city is still wrestling in the throes of the cigar machine problem, and it is now believed that the authorities may follow the example of those in Portland, Oregon, who some months ago, after throwing the machines out of all cigar stores, tacitly allowed the dealers to put them in again, with the understanding that they would be jacked up every three months and fined for violating the law.

Whether the Des Moines officials will work it in this Yankee fashion or not remains to be seen, but unless Mayor Mattern sets his foot down flat, some scheme will be devised to regulate the number of machines.

The majority of dealers seem to be favorable to the machines, nearly all of which pay in cigars, and say that they increase business. They also say that the authorities should not raid these practically harmless devices, and allow big gambling houses to run under cover, but known to all sporting men as is the case now.

The officials most interested, so far as can be learned, have no special objection to the machines, if they can be limited. The undesirable thing would be for every cigar store in town to get them in, which it is argued, has always proven disastrous.

Police Judge J. A. Mathis advocates regulating the machines and collecting a monthly fine, "just," as he explains not very complimentarily, "as is done with disorderly houses." By this scheme the city would get a very satisfactory revenue.

Mayor Mattern has not yet come out in any definite statement, and has evidently not completely made up his mind, as to what will be the best thing to do. Meanwhile the sports are trying hard to throw all sixes and royal flushes.

HERE'S RED TAPE FOR YOU.

In its last issue, Printers' Ink prints the following regarding the registration of labels, etc.

Korea has no trademark registry law, but protects trademarks in a unique way. The agent of the British and American Tobacco Co. recently visited the American Consul at Seoul, Korea, and asked to have the company's trademark registered in that country. The consul succeeded in having an imperial proclamation issued, forbidden the counterfeiting of the labels of this company and the use of its boxes for containg spurious goods.

SECRETARY TAFT OFF JULY 1.

He and His Party will Leave for Philippines to Look Things Over.

Washington, D. C., June 6.

Secretary Taft and his party will leave for the Philippines on July 1 and commence a junket which may be of very great significance to the tobacco trade. Secretary Taft goes ostensibly to interpret to the Filipinos some of the laws which the United States is preparing to enforce, but it goes without saying that this father of the Philippines will neglect no opportunity to further the interest of his pet Curtis bill, which he failed to have passed at the last session of Congress.

The Filipinos have been complaining of some of the new laws which they do not understand, an important instance of which is a new set of internal revenue laws which taxes many of the chief commodities of the island, including tobacco, cigarettes and matches. These articles have always been free of these taxes in the islands and the islanders cannot understand why they should be taxed. It is the first step toward ultimate free trade between the islands and the United States.

Secretary Taft declares that this principle would be advocated more heartily at the present time by the administration were it not for the fact that the treaty of Paris gives to Spain equal trade rights in the islands with the United States for a period of ten years after the signing of that treaty and that inasmuch as it is expected that during those ten years Spain and the United States will almost corral the commerce of the Philippines, it is manifest that a promulgation of free trade at this time would practically deprive the Philippine government of all revenue from customs.

It is in looking forward to the time when the goods of the United States are admitted free to the islands that the revenue laws now opposed in the islands were prepared. Tobacco, being one of the principal products of the islands, can always be depended upon to yield a large revenue, which in time may be expected to take place of revenues now derived from taxing American goods.

W. F. Greene, druggist at Franklin street corner Western avenue, retails all 10 cent cigars at 7 cents, 3 for 20 cents, and all 5 cent cigars at 3 for 10 cents.

C. S. Bird, proprietor of the Post Office Pharmacy also has a store in West Lynn. Mr. Bird recently took hold of El Cafe, the popular 5 cent cigar.

J. W. Doty, of 3 Andrew street, has a pool room adjourning his cigar store and carries a large assortment of both domestic and imported cigars. The Grumbler 5 cent cigar is a favorite with many of Mr. Doty's patrons.

A. S. Hovey runs one of the neatest cigar stores here. Among his leaders in clear Havana goods is the Regenburg American Principee de Gales and various brands of R. A. Bachia & Co. clear Havana. A window display this week of Berkley clear Havana little cigars retailing at 30 cents a package is drawing much attention.

Goshenites Can Smoke Cigarettes to Their Heart's Content.

Goshen, Ind., June 2.

Indiana's cigarette law is not enforced in Elkhart county. When the law went into effect there was a general concealment of the outlawed article. Recently a young man, member of a farmer family, was in the city to attend church. As he walked down the street smoking a cigarette Marshal Banta stepped up and ordered him to throw it away, with the advice that arrest would follow the second offense.

The next day Prosecutor Hile announced that the law did not apply to cigarette smokers, and there was no prosecution. Attorney General Miller has stated that the law is constitutional and applies to the cigarette smoker as well as the dealer. But Prosecutor Hile is fixed in his views and states that there will be no prosecutions.

A few evenings ago a young man sat next to Marshal Banta in a cigar store. While he sat watching a game of "pitch" several persons decorated his broad-brimmed hat with cigarettes, sticking them in his hat band and around the rim. Then they added a cigarette premium card. Banta later marched up the street in all the splendor of his decorations.

There is a great deal of cigarette smoking in seclusion and little in public. The non-smokers feel that it wouldn't cost Prosecutor Hile anything to change his mind and come to an agreement with the legal views of the attorney general.

Attorney General Miller has stated that the law is constitutional and applies to the cigarette smoker as well as the dealer. But Prosecutor Hile is fixed in his views and states that there will be no prosecutions.

A few evenings ago a young man sat next to Marshal Banta in a cigar store. While he sat watching a game of "pitch" several persons decorated his broad-brimmed hat with cigarettes, sticking them in his hat band and around the rim. Then they added a cigarette premium card. Banta later marched up the street in all the splendor of his decorations.

There is a great deal of cigarette smoking in seclusion and little in public. The non-smokers feel that it wouldn't cost Prosecutor Hile anything to change his mind and come to an agreement with the legal views of the attorney general.

The Price Cigar Co., of Benton Harbor, Mich., has been incorporated with a capital of $3,000.

The Old Salesman's Musings.

IT IS TIME THIS FAKE IS EXPOSED.

When the average layman, passing along the street, sees an Italian or a small boy stoop and pick up a cigar or a cigarette butt and put it in his pocket or in a bag with some others, he believes that the boy or the man is a scavenger collecting material for some cigar manufacturer.

This belief is fostered by the daily newspapers, either wilfully or through careless ignorance, until probably seven out of every ten persons outside the trade, believe that cigar manufacturers re-use these filthy stinking butts. Could any belief be more silly?

A case in point is illustrated by an article which appeared in an issue of the Brooklyn Citizen a few days ago, which paper is by no means alone in the printing of such stuff. In fact both reporter and news editor usually take it for granted that butts are used in re manufacture and write and edit their "story" from that viewpoint. The article is as follows:

For picking from the sidewalk and streets all the cigar and cigarette butts they could find along lower Fulton street seven boys at 5 o'clock this morning were arrested by plain clothesmen Christian and Peterson of the Adams street station. The boys are Frank Culivar, 9; his brother James 8, of No. 461 Adelphi street; Jas Larkey, 8, of No. 481 Adelphi street; Frank Mocase, 10, of No. 4 Front street; Frank Quale, 10, of No. 31 Front street; Salvatore Lombardo, 10, of No. 27 Front street, and his brother Eugene, 12 The lads were arraigned in the Children's Court this morning before Judge Wilkin.

The boys have made a practice of rising early in the morning for the purpose of hunting butts. After collecting a large quantity of the cast-off tobacco the lads said they sold it for 15 cents per pound. They would not tell, however, to whom they had been selling the butts.

The boys reaped the largest harvest in front of theaters and saloons.

Agent John Ludecke of the Children's Society said that this practice was a means of spreading disease, inasmuch as the butts which were thrown away and picked up by the boys were often smoked by persons who had consumption. The disease might be acquired by smoking cigars that are made by dealers to whom the boys sold the cigars.

There have been other articles printed in The Tobacco World pointing out the carelessness of daily newspapers in publishing statements that cause and nurse misapprehensions. This is another important instance, for it harms every cigar manufacturer, more or less, and deceives sensible people, who, knowing nothing of tobacco manufacture could not be expected to perceive at once how fallacious such a proposition is.

In making a cigar or cigarette from fragments of old ones, half smoked and thrown away, one of two things would result. Either the new cigar would have the distinctive butt odor in such a strong degree as to cause instant detection, or the manufacturer in eliminating that odor has destroyed the nicotine, thus rendering the tobacco tasteless, and hence, out of the argument.

Many smokers never relight a cigar that has gone out, no matter how little a proportion of it may have been smoked, on account of the offensive smell, and the difference of taste noticeable. This odor never leaves as long as any of the cigar remains, and would stick to the butt through all the rejuvenation process unless overcome by chemicals, which, as I said, would also take all the life out of the tobacco.

I suppose, of course, everybody in the cigar trade knows this, and pays no attention to such stories as these when they come out in the newspapers. Other persons don't know it, though, and those who are opposed to the tobacco business on moral principles find a text ready made to hand.

I should think, though, any sensible person ought to realize that the health authorities would never permit such a thing, which would undoubtedly spread all kinds of diseaee.

Of course the butts are collected, and in walking along the streets of a city, you are likely any day to see the scavenger at his work. They are also sold, but seldom at so much a pound, and never to a manufacturer. Certain smokers, naturally not of a very high order of society, break the butts up and smoke them in their pipe. Such smoking doubtless has a gaminess of flavor which has its appeal, but I don't think I would care for any in mine.

The sale is usually made at the rate of so many for a cent, and the butts are usually bought in by what might be called a tobacco butt jobber, on a small scale, who sorts them over according to length,

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

ACTOR-CLERK BOOMS BUSINESS.

THERE is a cigar store on Broadway, New York, that has done a largely increased business since the employment of a certain clerk about two months ago. This clerk, until he secured his present job, was an actor; not a great actor, or a particularly poor one, but a man who had been all over the country and has played a good many character parts. His health began to fail a few months ago, and his doctor told him that he would have to quit the road for at least a year, and do something where he could live and sleep regularly.

The actor pleaded that he didn't know anything else, and that he hadn't saved enough money to keep him a month. But he had to quit all the same, and by pure accident he heard that a clerk was needed suddenly at the Broadway store, and applied for the job.

The actor has a rather distinguished appearance, and he applied for the job in such a peculiar way, that the proprietor forgot to ask him whether he had had any experience. The actor said:

"I haven't been used to living on the wages you have been accustomed to pay, but I can always manage to live on just as little or as much as I am worth. If it becomes evident to you that your trade has increased after I have been here awhile, are you willing to pay me accordingly?"

The cigarist is a sensible man, and such a proposition as this appealed to him. He agreed, and in the two months, the man has had his pay raised twice, and is now getting a pretty fair salary. When he was an actor, the man made it a point to absorb as much of all he saw as he could. He learned all he could of men and manners, in order to make good his character work. He found time to keep posted on racing, pugilism, baseball, all men's sports in fact, and could make about as good an impression in the first five minutes as any man you ever saw.

One of the first days he was in the store, the proprietor overheard him talking to an old Southerner who occasionally came in to buy a cigar. He bought his cigar this time, and when he produced the dime, the clerk gave a little bow and said:

"Thenk y, suh."

The customer perked up a little, and made a remark. The clerk answered with a dialect from 'way down in Alabama. That started the ball, and in ten minutes he had sold the man a box of cigars and received a promise from him that he was going to send two or three "Cunnells" around.

A Westerner came in a little later, some sporting men, and so on and so on, and whenever he could, the ex actor clerk regulated his conversation to his customer. In nearly every case he sold more than he otherwise would have, and without saying or doing anything that was likely to mix him up in a break later. He works along that plan today, and is always the suave, courteous, well-informed gentleman. He represents the difference between the intelligent salesman and a dummy, and he has learned enough about the stock to save any loss on account of inexpert handling.

The proprietor, is much pleased with his bargain, for his box trade has increased, and he is beginning to get orders from clubs. He is only afraid that it is too good to last.

CIGAR DEALERS AS TICKET BROKERS.

IT IS rather odd that the practice of selling theatre tickets in cigar stores at bargain rates, has not become more prevalent outside of New York, although it could not be carried on to entirely the same profitable extent in any other city, owing to the absence of some of the favorable conditions.

On Sixth avenue, New York, below Thirty third and for a good many blocks down, nearly every cigar store has a sign offering "theatre tickets." Each store has a large number of regular customers for these, who are also always sending transients around to the store, so that a very tidy business is done.

The man who wants tickets, stops into one of the stores and looks the list of theatres over, tickets for which may be had. These comprise a majority of the best houses in the city, although when a certain house is doing an exceptionally fine business, there are likely to be no tickets for sale in these stores, as practically everything that is sold there is what is termed in theatrical parlance "paper," that is, complimentary.

Some of them may be given for the placing of lithographs in windows, some for other privileges, and many of them will have been given here and there by the press agent of the show for various reasons. The recipient may not want to or may not be able to avail himself of the tickets, so he brings them to the cigar store. Here they will sometimes bring as much as half price, sometimes more. When the tickets are for a certain date, and a customer stops in a few minutes before the performance is to commence for which the tickets are good he can get them for about a quarter of their face value, as otherwise they would probably not be used.

This has grown to large dimensions, and the theatres apparently do not object. As a matter of fact they frequently profit from the scheme. A young fellow who has to economize and refuses to patronize the "peanut gallery" but who can't pay $1.50 or $2 for a seat, will go to the cigar store, buy admission tickets for fifteen or twenty five cents, and then go to the theatre, and for a half dollar or seventy-cents more, get a reserved seat.

There is no doubt that the scheme could be worked in every large city, but it would have to be done in a more limited way, as no other city has anything like so many theatres, nor are so many complimentary tickets given away.

CHARACTER BY CIGARETTES.

A MEXICAN writer gives the following rules for judging character by the manner in which cigarettes are smoked:

He who smokes his cigarette down to the bitter end is either a miser or an egotist. Out of each ten, nine are misers.

He who smokes fast without ever taking the cigarette from his mouth is hot tempered, jealous, of strong character and quarrelsome.

Those who knock off the ashes at short intervals have something on their mind or are worrying over their bad luck.

Those who play with their cigarettes until they burn their fingers or their tips are either poets or newspaper men. Out of every ten, eight are newspaper men and two are poets.

Those who carry their cigarettes delicately between the index and the middle finger are first-class liars, and the truth is not in them.

Those who puff out the smoke in big clouds enjoy good health.

Those who blow it out in thin, little streams are invalids or lazy.

Those who take great pains to prevent the ashes dropping from the cigarettes are foolish and weak-minded.

Those who smoke in front of the ladies have never read a work on good manners.

The ladies who smoke believe in exercising the rights of men.

And those who do not smoke at all have the best sense and health of all.

ALSO RETAILERS' PARADISE.

HOLLAND is the smoker's paradise. Not only is the climate one which almost compels indulgence in tobacco, but the fragrant leaf may be had in abundance and at small cost.

The humidity of the climate leads naturally to continual smoking, and so common is the habit that instead of measuring distances by miles it is customary for the boatmen to declare a place to be so many pipes distant.

On entering the house of a friend a cigar is offered you, the host sees that you are kept well supplied during your visit, and a fresh cigar upon leaving is as necessary as a hat. Old friends are not permitted to depart until their cases have been refilled, and the necessity for this becomes apparent when it is known that a smoker usually lights his fresh cigar from the stump of the previous one, keeping one in his mouth continually.

Pipe smokers are equally devoted to their habit, taking their pipe to bed with them and only lay it down when they become sleepy. Should they awake during the night they indulge in a short smoke before going to sleep again, and they always light their pipes before getting out of bed in the morning.

In spite of this devotion to tobacco there are few who feel any harmful effects, and physicians declare that the habit is actually beneficial.

DINGY STORES.

WHY is it so many retailers in the cigar and tobacco business are content with dingy, uninviting looking stores? Give a drug store the same general appearance, as far too many cigar stores have, and there wouldn't be a pill sold. Sometimes it isn't untidiness, or dirt, but just that dingy look, caused perhaps by a careless or unintelligent arrangement of stock.

The man may have new goods, and plenty of room to show them, and yet nothing in the place will look worth buying. If a dealer realizes that he is not capable of making his place look smart, he will find that it is much cheaper in the end to hire somebody to supply him with ideas, than to keep on letting his store look like despair. Nobody buys anything in a place like this unless there is no other store in sight, and the dealer who is content with that class of business would be much better off working in a mill.

ANOTHER GIRL CLERK.

A RETAIL tobacco company managing a number of branch stores throughout Milwaukee has introduced a novelty in the employment of a young woman clerk in one of them, that in the New Insurance building. She says, she likes her job very much. She says: "The men in these four buildings on this street are among the best in the city and they all treat me as perfect gentlemen should. The store was started three weeks ago. It is going to be fixed up, the walls touched up, the window projected for a show window, new fixtures and lights, a big rug, and made pretty all over."

During this conversation a slick young fellow dropped in and asked for "a good nickel cigar." "This is a fine nickel cigar," said the clerk, shoving out a box. The customer obediently took what was passed him and went out. "We do a good business," said the clerk.

PIPES COMING INTO FAVOR.

"THIS summer is going to see a great increase in pipe smoking," said a tobacco salesman in a Kansas City store. "The custom has been growing quietly for months. We did not notice its rapid increase so much on account of the demand for pipe tobacco as from the sale of the pipes. Better quality pipes are in request, $3 and $4 being given readily for the imported brands, and a steady preference being shown for the curved stems with the plain black mouth-pieces. Plug cut tobacco is the best seller and the public is refusing to look at the mixtures common in the New York and London market. There is probably no city in America with a lower aggregate sale of cigarettes than Kansas City. But if you watch the streets for the next month you will notice the increase in the pipe smokers. The custom is not being engineered any. I guess it's just the desire for a change."

Protect Your Customers and Increase Your Business

A customer who occasionally pays on account gives the following reason for preferring to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register:

"I would go out of my way to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register. I have had so much trouble because my account has not been credited when I have paid money on account and I have been asked so many times to pay a bill which I knew had been paid.

"The National Cash Register owned by Mr. Hardy records all money I pay on account at the time I pay it. It is impossible to credit that payment to anyone else. For further protection I receive a receipt printed automatically by the register when the money is received and recorded."

A National Cash Register increases your trade and your profits by preventing mistakes and avoiding disputes with customers.

SHORT TALES OF DRAMATIC INDIANA—No. 1

The two men stole softly up the street. They stopped opposite a low, forbidding archway and gazed furtively about them. It was dark and still.

One man put his mouth to the other's ear.

"Are you sure this is the place, Jim?" he whispered.

"Ay, sure enough, Frank; I've been here too often to mistake it," was the bitter answer.

The pair glided silently up the dark alley until they reached a door. It was complete night, but the leader did not hesitate.

"Follow me closely now, Frank, and don't stumble," he breathed over his shoulder.

He pushed back the door and the two passed through. A long corridor, traversed amid Stygian gloom, and another door.

Beyond this steps, downward, and a faint light glimmering at the end of a long, sable vista.

"Keep your heart, Frank," said the leader hoarsely.

Down they went and on and on in the darkness, until the light grew more and more material and they at last found themselves opposite still another door, this time of heavy iron.

The man in front clanged a massive knocker, and a sinister boom resounded a response. A tiny hole was opened in the portal.

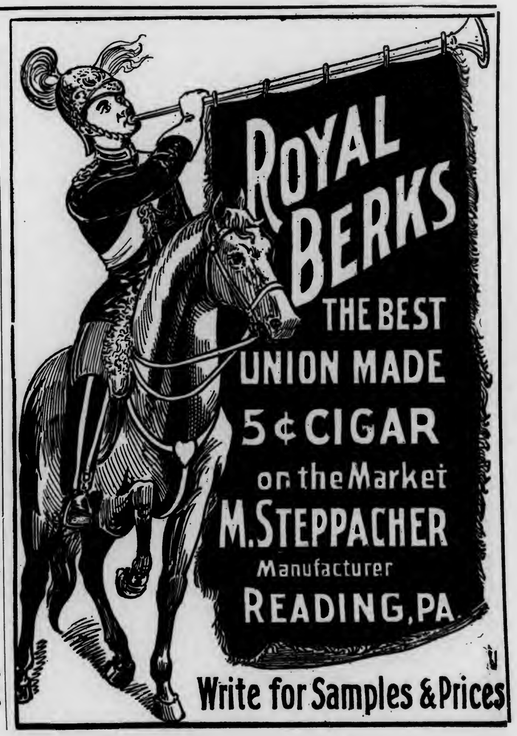
The leader uttered some strange words, there was a sound of stiff bolts, and the door swung open.

The men passed in. They were ushered into an inner apartment and finally to a private room, in which there was no opening or exit save the one door.

The servitor gave them a key, bowed and withdrew.

The door was slammed to after him, and with feverish hands, Jim shot the bolts and the key-lock. He passed over to the table and throwing himself upon a chair drew from an inner pocket a small package.

"At last! At last!" he sighed in an ecstacy of anticipation. The other man was following his example, and as the dim light gleams fell on their fluttering fingers, the packages discovered themselves.



They were Sweet Caporal CIGARETTES!

Almost in a frenzy of impatience the men lighted the small rolls and fell back in their chairs with a tremendous inhalation of relief. For a time they smoked in silence, and then Jim turned his pale, heavy-lined face to the other.

"It is terrible!" he exclaimed, "it is awful, how a strong man can let himself go like this!" Tears of self-pity rolled down his cheeks.

"I smoke seven a day, now," he said, weakly.

—On the island of Porto Rico 14,000 acres are devoted to the growing of tobacco, and the annual yield is 12,000,000 pounds.

TRANSACTIONS IN HAVANA MARKET SHOW INCREASE.

New Remedios Will Be Short of Last Year's Insufficient Crop and Buyers of This Grade Will Have to Pay Stiff Prices For a Year to Come. New Vuelta Abajo is Fine.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, May 29, 1905.

While business in the Havana leaf tobacco market remains quiet, there was still an improvement over the previous week, and the transactions reported show an increase. The last lot of prime Santa Clara, first capadura, of the 1904 crop (in first hands) was sold finally to an American exporter at $55 per qq. and this closes out Remedios tobacco in the Havana market, excepting what the few American exporters may hold for their wants; otherwise there is not a sprig left, so to speak, of first and second capaduras.

Some escojidas may start this week in the country, and when the first lots arrive here something more will be known about the quality. That the quantity under the most favorable conditions can hardly reach last year's insufficient crop is now a foregone conclusion. As high prices have been paid for the tobacco in bundles and nearly everything is bought up in the country, buyers of this style of leaf next Fall, must be prepared to pay high figures, or do without it.

Any Northern manufacturer who has to figure upon using Remedios for his cigars had better lay in enough stock now, as in all likelihood prices will be higher, rather than lower, for the next twelve months. The new Vuelta Abajo leaf which has reached the market so far, is unexceptionally fine and suitable for the clear Havana cigar manufacturers in every respect.

Should the majority of the later receipts turn out as good as the early ones, there can be no complaints, although as every crop has good, poor and indifferent tobacco, the 1905 growth cannot be counted upon to form an exception to the rule. The Partido variety is also very favorably spoken of, and will undoubtedly give some very choice light colored wrappers.

Semi Vuelta in bundles has been paid for at very stiff figures in the country, and the packers comment upon it in glowing terms as to its superior quality, although the quantity is stated to be smaller than last year.

The new Vuelta Abajo and Partido wrappers are commencing to sell, in small lots so far, as only a few complete vegas have arrived, but in August and September the annual heavy sales are expected to take place. New Vuelta Abajo Colas were bought up at a fair price, as the opinion is gaining ground that there may not be enough to go around this year for the cigarette industry, in case the Spanish Regie should need this style of goods later on this year.

Sales

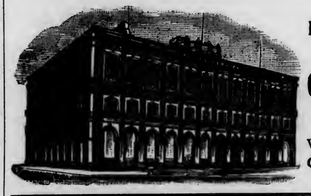
were 2,247 bales last week, consisting of 1,503 Vuelta Abajo, 419 Partido and 325 bales of Remedios. The American buyers took 1,036, local manufacturers 1,103 and European exporters 108 bales.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrival—Richard Sichel, oi B. Rosenblueth, and Arturo Ruiz, of Arturo Ruiz, New York; C. F. Koop, manager of the Manicaragua Tobacco Co., Manicaragua; Antonio Rico, of El Arte Cigar Co., Tampa.

Departures—Antonio Santaella and Antonio Rico, for Tampa; Vicente Muniz, for Spain.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers



are beginning to note an improvement in their orders, particularly from the United States, as far as the independent manufacturers are concerned, and the situation has never been better than it is now. Last week alone, four factories received orders amounting to half a million cigars, amongst which were the Partagas H. Upmann, Romeo and Julieta and Sol Factories.

The bombastic praise of Don Gustavo Bock by the trust in a pamphlet and in some newspapers in the United States, as the most intelligent and most notable manufacturer, that is or will be, must be taken as a satire, or otherwise the trust must think the intelligent readers are nothing but ignoramuses.

The Havana cigar industry was founded before Don Gustavo Bock ever came to Cuba and the notable men who created the fame were: Anselmo Gonzalez del Valle, Julian Alvarez, Antonio Caruncho, Ramon y Antonio Allones, Jose Gener, Larranaga, Manuel Valle, H. Upmann, Juan Runken, Jaime Partagas, Alejandro Villas, Pedro Bances, Juan Romero, Segundo Alvarez, Perfecto Lopez, Juan Valle, Pedro Roger, Manuel Garcia, Alonso and Gumersindo Garcia. The present men at the head of the independent manufacturers are at least equal if not superior, in intelligence to Don Gustavo Bock. Enrique Runken and Teodoro Gabarde, of the H. Upmann factory, Ramon Cifuentes and Jose Fer nandez, of the Partagas, Pepin Rodriguez, of the Romeo and Julieta, Manuel Lopez, of the Punch, Calixto Lopez, of the Eden, Antonio J. Rivero, of the Por Larranaga, Pablo Quadreny and Francisco Abella, of the La Escepcion; Jesus Vales, of Ramon Allones, Carlos Behrens, of Sol, Rafael G. Marquez, of High Life, and others too numerous to mention here. A fact is, that with Don Gustavo Bock as President of the Havana Tobacco Co the output has constantly diminished, while the independent manufacturers have come to the front, so the latter are pefectly satisfied to let the trust continue with Don Gustavo Bock in the chair, as they feel strong enough to paddle their own canoes and win the race.

H. Upmann & Co. shipped 450,000 cigars last week of their own and other independent manufacturers. They continue to be very busy and have good orders.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. are likewise busy, and orders are coming in regularly. Your correspondent saw some bales of the new San Luis leaf just coming from the country when he called. One vega, El Retiro, was particularly fine in aroma, silky in leaf and of light colors. No wonder the Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co. are selling better and better every day, when the owners employ only the choicest Vuelta Abajo leaf grown in Cuba.

Sol received some very good orders from the United States, England and Germany, and therefore Behrens & Co. had to seat more cigarmakers this week.

Por Larranaga, Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja, Calixto Lopez, and J. F. Rocha & Co., of El Crepusculo, are all doing a fair business in accordance with the season of the year.

Exports per steamship Mexico were 2,955,856 cigars.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

J. Bernheim & Sons were the heaviest buyers this week, as they purchased more than 600 bales of old and new Remedios and Vuelta Abajo leaf.

B. Diaz & Co. sold 400 bales of new Vuelta Abajo.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez disposed of 300 bales of old and new Vuelta Abajo, and are receiving weekly large shipments from their different packings in the country.

Fernando Gutierrez & Co. closed out 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to local and Northern buyers.

G. Salomon y Hnos. made sales of 223 bales of Vuelta Abajo, Partido and Remedios. They were the heaviest shippers per steamship Mexico, as they forwarded 679 bales.

Jose Menendez turned over 235 bales of new Vuelta Abajo.

Rodriguez Bautista & Co. sold 140 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Sierra & Martinez made some transactions, amounting to 128 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Aixala & Co. disposed of 100 bales of their excellent Tumbadero (new crop) escojida.

Muniz Hermos & Co. have already received 300 bales of their Remates packing and some few bales of their Montezuelo escojido.

Antonio Suarez is receiving steadily now 100 bales or more from their Vuelta Abajo and Partido packings per week, and states that he is very well satisfied with the yield so far and the fine quality of the new tobacco

Jorge & P. Castaneda have made some transactions of their superior Tumbadero packing of San Antonio de los Banos, but would not state any futher particulars.

Jose H. Cayro e Hijo shipped 66 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido last week to their customers. Don Jose has just returned from the country and is very much satisfied with his late purchases, which together with their escojidas are arriving in weekly lots.

Jose F. Iribarren is now busy at his escojida at Dragones 94.

Joaquin Hedesa will start his escojida in two weeks from today.

S. L. Goldberg & Sons are receiving regular shipments from the country every week from their Vuelta Abajo and Partido escojidas.

Voneiff & Vidal Cruz are very busy, as Don Pancho Vidal Cruz is almost constantly in the country securing the best vegas to be had, in order to be able to fill the future wants of their customers.

Manuel Lazo is continuously receiving parts of the vegas from his escojidas and purchases made by him in the Vuelta Abajo.

Gonzalez & Co. are going to do a big business this year in Remedios, as Don Ignacio Gonzalez has personally, in conjunction with their buyers, supervised all the purchases made so far, which ought to yield some 8,000 bales in all. They will make three escojidas, one in Sancti Spiritus, another at Placetas and the third one in the town of Remedios.

Ramon Cifuentes & Co who handle only the finest lowland Vuelta Abajo, have received the first few lots from San Luis and Martinez, which are superfine in every respect, as your correspondent can testify to from personal inspection. The total shipments from Havana last week were 3,160 bales of which the several United States ports received or will receive 3,052, while 108 bales were destined for Germany.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 6, 1905.

June has apparently brought in good weather, and now that summer has set in, the dealers are boasting of a satisfactory amount of activity. More goods are sold at nights, as in the summer time New York is a city where everyone lives on the streets. Some retailers report that the opening of the beaches has not hurt their business so far, as many customers will stop into their stores before taking a car for the beaches, and buy enough cigars or cigarettes to last them. The stores to benefit in the case, however, at least in Manhattan, are those near Brooklyn Bridge.

The senseless price cutting continues at full blast in this city, and it is not easy to tell when the craze will react on itself. The occasional cutting of a single article to attract customers into the store, in order that they may be induced to buy stuff that is not cut, may occasionally do some good, but by no means as a rule. The average consumer who enters a cigar store to take advantage of a price cutting sign buys what he goes in for and nothing else. In comparison with cigars and tobacco, it is a cinch to sell groceries out of the regular stock in combination with a cut article, because the grocery customer is a woman, who knows that she will have early use for anything she might buy in the store, whereas a man hates to load up his pockets with a lot of stuff that he will either have to drag around with him until he goes home, or else give away. But the merry rivalry continues, and in view of the extent of some of the cuts, it is not easy to see how the retailer manages to pay his rent, inasmuch as he is unable to balance the loss on some other article, unless it might be one of his own brands.

There is nothing much to report from the manufacturing field. Buisness is all right, and an average number of cigar makers are being kept busy. Several manufacturers show nice batches of orders which they had just received, and declare that their road men are all finding business in good shape.

Transactions in the leaf market last week were rather better than they had been, and some houses kept fairly busy. There is still the hindrance to business caused by the low stock in a good many grades, and those dealers who are selling Havana, and the demand is pretty good just now, are selling it without knowing yet what the new crop will bring them. There was considerable doing in Sumatra at stiff prices and it is evident that manufacturers figure out that they have to have this tobacco even if it does stand them a good deal. The market was not very lively on domestic tobacco, although quite a little Wisconsin binders are being sold.

The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association has decided to hold its postponed entertainment a week from tomorrow night, when the nature of the affair will be a trip to Dreamland, Coney Island. Both the New York and Brooklyn branches will be represented, and if the present plans carry, the evening will be one of the most enjoyable ever spent by the Association. The Manhattaners will meet at the Twenty second Street pier where the Coney Island boats leave, while the Brooklynites will go by trolley, that route being much more convenient. The reunited party will enter Dreamland together and see all there is to be seen.

It is reported that the American Tobacco Company will establish a bonded warehouse in this city, which will be large enough to store all the tobacco brought to this port until it is needed. The building and its arrangements will of course be a very complete affair, and it is understood that customs officials will be detailed by the government for duty at the warehouse. The scheme will reduce the expenses of the company by concentration, and will enable it to keep its tobacco in better condition, when the company has the entire control of the leaf itself.

Charles Frankenthal, of Joseph Marx & Co.. returned last week from his trip abroad and has brought a number of pipe novelties with him which will be put on the market this fall. Mr. Frankenthal declares that his trip was in every way successful.

John W. Merriam, has been back in town nearly a week from his Western jaunt, and says he sold as many as usual. Mr. Merriam was in Chicago while they were cutting up labor didoes, but found that the people were still buying things.

H. Duys & Company are able to report a sale of 1,500 bales of Sumatra tobacco during April and May, which speaks for itself. The house is doing well on the new goods, and has no complaint on the market at all.

Charles S. Morris and wife left on the Bremen last Thursday to take that long delayed vacation throughout Europe. Mr. Morris deserves it and expects to enjoy it.

D. H. Lowenstein, who was connected with Manrara Bros. Co. will enter business in the West.

Salvador Sola, of M. Sola e Hijos, is in town from Porto Rico, and reports that the factory at Caguas is being kept constantly busy.

T. J. Donigan had a pipe sale at his Cortlandt street store last week and sold quite a number. The display arranged for the occasion never failed to attract admiring attention and corralled a pipe smoker every time.

A. T. CO.'S CUTS MAY SOON CEASE.

Boston Retailers are Taking Advantage of Easy Prices.

Boston, Mass., June 14.

Rumors are afloat that the cutting in prices here on the American Tobacco Co.'s products is likely to cease any day without formal notice being sent out, and owing to this report, many retailers and subjobbers alike have placed orders for large quantities of these goods.

The various jobbers' salesmen report extra good business for the past week; they have been informing their customers of the contemplated raise in prices and most dealers are taking advantage of the low schedule of prices, as now there is some money in handling the trust goods. With B. L. and Mayo's plugs at the old prices of 53 cents a pound there was very little profit in handling them.

The weather has been very summery all week and business continues to improve. A $150,000 fire visited Renere Beach our local summer resort last night and quite a number of cigar and tobacco stands were wiped out of existence.

The semi-annual election of officers of Cigarmakers' Union 97 will be held in various factories, and at cigarmakers' headquarters on Appleton street on June 13. For the first time in many years, Henry Abrahams, the popular Secretary of the union, will have an opponent in the person of Charles Claus.

Geo. Ditmar formerly a salesman for F. R. Ginn & Co., is now selling the Trimount 10 cent cigar and is meeting with fairly good success.

M. Levine is now the proprietor of the Palace Cigar Emporium on Court Street.

Nathan Goldman who recently started a retail cigar store at 204 Essex street, reports a steadily increasing trade. Mr. Goldman keeps a full line of all the leading brands and has for patrons many of the Essex Hotel guests.

D. Bendheim representing the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., and J. Kroog representing Wm. C. Demuth & Co., New York, were both in town showing their respective lines of pipe samples.

M. Hobart local salesman for the Greater Boston 10 cent cigar has already worked up a good trade on this brand, and owing to his jolly good fellowship and liberality with samples he has made many friends.

C. A. Bryant from Buffalo, N. Y., the window dresser now in the employ of H. C. Traiser & Co., has already made some fifty window displays advertising both the Pippin and Harvard cigars. Mr. Bryant is very original in his ideas and at the present rate of increase, the Harvard will soon become the leading brand of 10 cent cigars in this market.

On Decoration Day the outside salesman and the indoor help of McGreenery & Manning had a baseball contest. Joe Manning played second base for the indoor team, and in the ninth inning with the score 20 to 20 with two men on bases, knocked a safe hit and brought in the winning run making the indoor team the victors by a score of 21 to 20.

Sam Robbins, of Robbins & Roitman, is the proud father of a "bouncing" baby boy. The christening took place on Wednesday at which the child was named Samuel David Togo Robbins.

A new granulated tobacco being placed with the trade is called Pick manufactured by the American Tobacco Co. It is packed in 1⅔ ounce packages and goes to the retailer at 37 cents a pound. With every five pounds purchased goes five packages of Duke's Mixture gratis.

A. Chertoff spent a few days in New York this week.

M. J. Rosendorf the Beach tobacconist has just returned from a business trip taking in Pennsylvania and Virginia. While in Richmond, Mr. Rosendorf made arrangements with the new Whitlock concern to distribute their cheroots in this market.

The American Tobacco Co. has issued a circular dated June 1, giving notice of an advance of 3 per cent on all their plug tobacco, taking effect from above date.

B. Frankel cigar manufacturer from Wakefield, Mass., was in town today.

Alfowich Bros. are about to place with the trade a new 5 cent cigar called La Paloma. According to the amount of advanced orders already booked it looks as if the goods will enjoy a good sale.

J. Ocohen the popular Merchants Row tobacconist reports a steady increase in business. Mr. Ocohen has added a new clerk Mr. Christein to his establishment who is a capable man having had a number of years experience with the better class of trade when he was formerly in business on Fleet street. Mr Ocohen makes a specialty of engraving initials of his customers on T. D. pipes.

Fred. Weil is canvasing this city with a line of Porto Rican cigars in the interests of his father, Isaac Weil, the Woodbury cafe cigarist.

E. C. Van Syckel, of the American Snuff Co. spent a few days canvasing the surrounding towns and report very good trade on both Checkerberry and Honest snuff.

G. F. Briggs the popular Newton retailer was in town yesterday and did considerable purchasing while in town. Mr. Briggs is very popular and is ever ready to add new brands to his stock.

Victor Sheppard with the Khedival Co. blew into town last night. He reports having had good trade on Turkish Delights while on his trip.

S. A. Frank representative of L. Miller & Sons, New York, had his son Joseph L. Frank put out some Leroy advertising matter this week. Mr. Frank, Jr., made a hit.

Smiling Mr. Binns, manager of the H. C. Carruth & Co., was kept quite busy on Thursday when no less than ten cigar salesman called to see him. Mr. Binns imforms me he received enough samples to last him the coming week.

H. K. Brown, of Province Court, contemplates summering at Bar Harbor. Mr. Brown is a hard worker and the change no doubt will do him good. Mr. McGoldrick will take charge of the business during Mr. Brown's absence.

BEN ALI.

—Negotiations are pending for the removal to Des Moines, Ia., from Ottumwa, of a cigar manufacturing and jobbing concern which will give employment to a large number of operatives.

LIVE NOTES FROM LIVE TRADE.

Internal Revenue Figures, New Factories and Manufacturing Improvements.

York, Pa., June 5.

The Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue of this division of the ninth district of Pennsylvania has given out some interesting figures of this office's transactions during the past month. In May the sales of cigars and tobacco stamps amounted to $52,000—which was $5,000 more than during May of 1904 and $10,000 more than during April, 1905, showing that this division is certainly not falling behind in the output of cigars, with twelve new factories added to the list of this division during the month of May, which were as follows:

James Adair, Red Lion; Minnie R. Lutz, Felton; J. E. Miller, New Oxford; W.W. Kopp, Red Lion; Harrison Fauth, Hellam; Strinestown Cigar Co., Strinestown; Ed. H. Wagner, Red Lion; Adam A. Young, Red Lion; Annie C. Miller, Glen Rock; Annie Boyd, Stewartstown, Alexander Houssill, Red Lion; Phares Hilderbrand, Red Lion.

Albert Noll, cigar manufacturer of Arbor, York county, gave a reception to his employees one day last week, with a splendid entertainment furnished by the Troubadour Mandolin Club. Guests from various points were present.

The Pennsylvania Tobacco Co., of York, has taken the building belonging to H.W. Heffener, and formerly occupied by him as a cigar box factory, and is now installing modern and lately improved machinery for the manufacture of scrap tobacco. The company hopes to be in full operation by August 1. It is putting on the market a new 2½ ounce package of scrap smoking and chewing tobacco.

A. Sonneman a wellknown leaf tobacco packer of this city has torn down his late residence on South George street, and will erect a new building, which will be fitted out for stores on the first floor and apartments for the remainder of the building. The apartments are to have every modern improvement and comfort obtainable.

S. R. Kocher & Sons, of Wrightsville, report business as fair with them, and that the sales of their leading brands are keeping up very well.

J. F. Sechrist, of Holtz, this county, reports an improving trade and has a normal force of cigarmakers at work. He contemplates a short business trip to Philadelphia and vicinity this week.

Holtzinger & Seitz, of Red Lion, have lately found a very satisfactory improvement in business, and have happily gotten over a short dull spell.

J. G. Spatz, of Dallastown, who recently sold his former property which constituted his old residence and cigar factory, is erecting a new building.

A. Kohler & Co., of Dallestown, report a fair increase in their business lately.

QUIET NOW IN LANCASTER.

Leaf Board of Trade Will Close at Noon Summer Saturdays.

Lancaster, Pa., June 5.

The local leaf market continued rather quiet last week, transactions being confined almost wholly to the local trade. It has been definitely decided by the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade to close their offices and warehouses at 12 o'clock on Saturdays during the months of June, July and August.

During the past week planting of the new crop was going on quite actively and already several instances of serious damage by cut-worms have been displayed.

A suit of J. D. Owens vs. B. E. Kendig, an action to recover commission for the alleged sale of 147 cases of tobacco at one dollar per case, came up for trial last week. The plaintiff claims that it was through his agency that this tobacco was sold, but E. L. Nissley & Co., of Florin, for the defendant, claim that the tobacco was sold direct and without the medium of Owens. A verdict was rendered in favor of the defendant.

J. Frank Bowman, box manufacturer of this city, informs me that he is kept working up to his full capacity, and that he has experienced very little of a dull period yet.

John Slater & Co., the prominent stogie manufacturers of this city, are having more than usually brisk days. Their shipments during the month of May were the largest of any month in the history of the firm, exceeding by half a million, the shipments of any previous month. It will be remembered that they were awarded a gold medal at the St. Louis exposition for the general excellence of their product.

J. B. Milleysack has been, for some time, packing Milleysack choice scrap for smoking and chewing tobacco and now reports a nicely growing trade on the same.

ALLEN STERNER'S NEW BUILDING.

The cigar manufacturing and jobbing business of Allen Sterner, 119 E. Main street, Lock Haven, Pa., was established as early as 1865 by Wm. Sterner, who was subsequently succeeded by Wm. Sterner & Son, which firm was succeeded by Allen Sterner.

In the manufacturing department the house employs about fifty hands having turned out several millions of their product a year for some time past. Our Fritz, which is made in several sizes and sold to the trade direct at $35 per thousand, has been the leading brand of the firm, although several other brands have grown rapidly in popularity and at this writing are not only holding their own but are increasing in sales as well.

Mr. Sterner is now erecting an addition to his factory which will cover 121 East Main street and will about double the capacity. The additional facilities are needed to meet the rapidly increasing requirements of a growing business and it will make, when completed, one of the most modern as well as one of the largest cigar factories in that section of the State.

THE Viedomosti, of St. Petersburg, says the government is contemplating establishing a tobacco monopoly.

To Benefit Our Readers.

The Tobacco World wants to receive from week to week all questions relating to the trade which may be puzzling its subscribers, and will be glad to supply any information in its possession or obtainable.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

All letters should be addressed to the "Correspondence Editor" and must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, which may be withheld when desired.

MISTAKE THAT CAN BE REMEDIED.

A certain advertising solicitor was complaining the other day of what he termed the contented ignorance of a class of business men, who, he declared bitterly, were like to keep him out of an honest living.

Asked to reduce his grievances to a single proposition, he told of a visit to a manufacturing firm, made for the purpose of securing an advertisement for his paper. The house counts itself as one of the large concerns, although it has not been in the field a long time, and when the senior member had heard what the advertising man had to say, he promptly turned him down with the declaration that advertising didn't pay.

Asked how he knew, he stated that he had advertised in another paper and had got only two or three replies. Pressed further as to the nature and extent of his advertising venture, he explained that he had placed an ad. in two consecutive weekly issues of the paper and had then withdrawn it and prepared to get busy opening mail.

Asked to show a copy of the advertisement as it appeared, he produced an issue of the paper in question, which contained a general statement of the firm's qualifications to supply the trade with the various goods it had to sell.

The advertising man asked the manufacturer what he had expected. The latter replied that he had expected to get his money back and more too, and added that if advertising was a paying proposition he had a right to expect that much. The same being unimpeachable logic.

The advertising man said that he admitted it was logic, but improperly reduced, and proceeded to explain that advertising was not such a simply concrete science, and that the principal revenue from it consisted of returns that were indirect and often practically untraceable. He also explained that the advertiser, particularly the manufacturer, who expected to capture an immediate great increase of business by the promulgation of one or two advertisements, was in the position of the man who might swallow one or perhaps two glasses of beer, and then hopefully await intoxication.

The advertising man said he did this and much more, while the manufacturer listened in an amiably indifferent way, which spurred the other on to renewed efforts, until he had himself absolutely convinced that unless the manufacturer advertised at once, his business was doomed to failure.

But he was unable to move his listener, and that was the first of three similar turn downs he got that day. He was thoroughly disgusted, not at the ignorance of the men who had refused him, but for the reason that they were not amenable to reason. He complained that he was not asking anybody to take his unsupported word for it, but only to consider the history of successful advertising.

And that is the point exactly. Too many advertisers put themselves completely on the defensive, the minute they enter into or allow themselves to be dragged into conversation with a solicitor, and force themselves to believe that the man is saying whatever comes into his head simply in order to land his man. If the advertiser's own customer were to act in the same way about the former's goods he would either get angry, or dismiss the customer as a pigheaded fool.

The advertiser doesn't consider the fact that the solicitor is in the business to make a permanent living, and has to give results for value received just as surely as the stamp clerk in the post office. He doesn't perceive that it is just as much to the solicitors' advantage to see that his advertiser gets results as it is for him to secure the contract.

And if, perhaps, this type of merchant or manufacturer is finally won over in a half hearted way, his investment is such a feeble one that the line is jerked from the water before the bait has sunk the length of its drop.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

Seldom has such a pronounced case of police negligence, indifference, or incompetency come to our notice as was exhibited by some of the Quaker City's "finest" last Friday night in connection with robbery of the cigar factory of Weaver & Son.

Goodness knows enough bad has been said about Philadelphia lately without adding anything to it, but when carelessness or worse reaches a point where the presumed guardians of the law not only take no action to guard a threatened property, but send its proprietor away from the place before the crime is to be committed, with complete assurances of safety, it seems as if something ought to be done, and done quickly.

Robberies of cigar stores, factories and leaf houses have been frequent, of late, as indeed have robberies of every sort of business house and of dwellings as well. Most of these depredations have been committed boldly and the thief or theves have escaped.

Heretofore, however, the police have not been placed in possession of a detailed advance program of the robbery including exits, entrances, time of action, and practically every thing except the list of goods to be taken. This was done in the Weaver case, and the police, accepting it gratefully, evidently thought that the whole drama was to be conducted without their assistance, and so sat around the station house waiting for the robbers to come smiling in with their booty.

This didn't happen, and the Weaver firm is out six or seven hundred dollars' worth of stuff. And to come to the main purpose of this article, it is advisable that every member of the trade in Philadelphia make his own anti-burglar arrangements without taking the police into the question at all. By making a self defended fortress of his establishment at night, a man may be able to regard his stock as fairly safe.

SECRETARY TAFT'S TRIP.

It is now reported that Secretary of War Taft will start on his trip to the Philippine Islands about the first of next month. Just who will accompany him does not seem very definite, but there does not appear to be anything like the enthusiam among the Capitol people generally, as was reported to be manifested at first, when the jaunt was framed up as a free and luxurious tour around the world.

It now apparently becomes necessary largely to reduce the itinerary for various grave and important reasons, personal expenses heretofore unconsidered loom up, and altogether, the journey ceases to be such a felicitous prospect of killing time educationally.

Doubtless Secretary Taft is much disappointed, but it is a long way from certain that his "hope would have come out" had his original program remained intact. He would probably have had little difficulty in making out a case for the Philippines which, were there nothing else to be considered, would win for him his object. But however potent his arguments for the little brown man, the domestic tobacco and sugar industries long ago went him more than one better in their argument for the constitutional right of protection.

The Filipino has a cause, Mr Taft, but you will have to work out his salvation in some less harmful way.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers.

The retailers reported business as better this and last week, Saturday particularly being a good day. The box trade is not so good, of course, as not so much smoking is done at home, but the trade is enjoying that temporary period of good business which precedes the going out of town of many Philadelphians for the greater part of the summer. It is true that perhaps the majority of business men remain in town for three or four days of each week, but an appreciable inroad is made in the trade. The running full blast of the nearby resorts has stimulated trade, as the average smoker will buy what he needs before he takes his car or boat. The stores at and near the foot of Market street are doing a good business and catching a lot of transient trade.

There was a rumor in the trade last week that the United Cigar Stores Co. would be forced to vacate its branch at Thirteenth and Market streets on account of a change in the lease, and the rumor went so far as to announce the northwest corner of Ninth and Market street as the location to which the store would remove. Barney Greenburg, general manager of all the Philadelphia stores, denied this rumor. "We have absolute possession of the place for two years longer," he said, "and there is not a particle of truth in the report. There was a change in the ownership some time ago, but it did not affect us." Mr. Greenburg says all his stores are doing well now, and is particularly pleased with the new branch at Second and Market streets. He says the recent celebration of the fourth anniversary of the company, when four certificates were given, brought great crowds to all the branches.

Z. J. Norris, the local representative of I. Lewis & Co., of Newark, was over at the factory last week and returned with a lot of new samples. This firm's new Josh Billings 5 cent cigar, is about ready to be put on this market now, and is expected to make as much of a hit as the firm's Golden Eagle brand of little cigars.

J. Murphy, who has the retail store at No. 1 Market street, Camden, and who formerly occupied No. 3, has altered and improved the store to such an extent that it is now one of the very finest establishments in the city across the river. Mr. Murphy carries a complete stock which he disposes to good advantage, among his best sellers being El Emilio, which he has reduced to 6 cents, Henry Abbey and Violetta.

O. Monellis, of I. Lewis & Co., and well known in Philadelphia, was in this market last week.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Sometime between dark last Friday night, and opening time Saturday morning, the factory of Weaver & Son, at Sixth and Race streets, was robbed of more than $600 worth of cigars and cigarettes. Early this week none of the goods had been recovered, and the following list of the stuff taken is printed in the hope that it may aid recovery:

Cigars—6,000 Americanos 10's, value, $210 or more; 2,000 Americano 20's, value, $70 or more; 1,000 Allied Clubs, value, $50 or more; 1,200 La Diosa, value, $42 or more; 3,000 Boquet Especial, value, $90 or more; 1,500 Little Ponies, value, $42 or more; 1,000 El Dorado, value, $28 or more. Cigarettes—10,000 Sweet Caporal 10's, value, $38; small lots of cigarettes in boxes of 100 as follows: Royal Bengals, Hoffman House Magnuims, etc., value unknown.

The success of the robbery is entirely inexcusable, as the police were warned in detail. The Weaver people are conducting an investigation.

On Friday evening a man, who was a stranger to Mr. Weaver, entered the place and was allowed to see the senior member of the firm. The visitor said he boarded at 902 Spring Garden street in which house he had heard a gang of men plotting to rob the Weaver factory that night. Mr. Weaver at once sent for Lieutenant Lynch, of the Fifth district, who brought with him two special officers. To them the man repeated his story going into details to the extent of telling them how the thieves intended to effect an entrance.

The police took the man in tow and asked Mr. Weaver to close his place and go home, assuring him that everything would be perfectly safe. The latter complied with this request, and the policemen left with their informant, presumably to go to the Spring Garden street house.

When the Weavers got down the next morning they found that the place had been broken into in precisely the way the informant had predicted, and that the stuff detailed above had been taken. The police knew nothing about the robbery, despite the fact that an officer was supposed to have been specially detailed to look after the factory. The strange man who had given the warning, was not to be found, it being only natural that he should make himself scarce as he would stand in danger, not only of having to incur the revenge of the burglars, but of being made the scapegoat by the police.

On Sunday Wm. Anderson, of Ninth and Spring Garden streets, and James Handley, of Sixth and Vine streets, were arrested on suspicion and held for a further hearing, although no cigars were found in connection with the arrest.

The whole affair is very mysterious, and Weaver & Son intend to know more about it before they are through.

A number of local jobbers are expecting that every new shipment of plug tobacco which they receive will be minus the paper backs of the tin tags, which is the only thing redeemable about the tags. A prominent local jobber said yesterday that while he had heard nothing official—and no official notice would be given anyhow—he had heard that the American Tobacco Company intended to withdraw these coupons very shortly, and issue all its plug without them. The company has withdrawn a number of coupons on various brands of cigarettes, cigars, etc., and it appears to be its policy to do away with the system gradually. As a matter of fact business has already fallen off in these to such an extent locally, that the Florida Tag Co. has closed its branch at Ambler and Norris streets.

Local manufacturers generally seem well pleased with May's volume of busi-

UNIVERSAL COUPONS

WRITE US TODAY

WRITE US TODAY

THE OLD AND ANCIENT ORDER of independently redeemable coupons has passed away. The consumer is tired of mismated, mismatched coupons that are waste-paper—to him—unless he uses an inordinate amount of one brand or article. Manufacturers, why not give coupons which can be reinforced and supplemented by the makers of cigars, cereals, soap, condensed milk, crackers, canned goods and the hundreds of other people from whom the consumer must eventually obtain his supplies of the necessities, and even luxuries, of life? Can you conceive of a universal co-operative coupon which will be redeemable with those of other manufacturers? Your business will be benefited by an interchangeable, yes even a universal, coupon.

If you try to run your own coupon business, you will find it expensive; you will need more help; you will overstock; you cannot buy right; you have breakage, interest, cartage, expressage, disgruntled patrons, and five per cent. cut clean out of your profits. We do all the work for you; give you an absolutely superior premium, and by our co-operative method you share only a part of the expense; cut your premium expenses in half, and double your sales. The profits will look after themselves. You cannot buy Morris chairs by the hundred. If you did, where would you store them? Let us buy the Morris chairs by the thousand, and save you money in buying, storing, and all the other things which go to make up profit and loss in the premium business. Remember, you are in business to sell goods. Keep up your product and let others do the giving away at a minimum expense. Let everybody run their own business and leave the premium worry to us. We will sell more goods for you than you thought could be sold. We are salesmen of the twentieth century. We will furnish the experience, and your customers do not have to wait years for the dress-suit case, umbrella or desk. No painful filling of stamp books. Our coupons, derived from all sources, multiply like compound interest, and are redeemed by us—yours among the rest—in large blocks. You can never hope to successfully compete with vast corporations in the premium field; but you can become an integral part of our system, and derive all the tangible benefits of large merchandizing at a minimum of cost. The value of having a co-operative interchangeable system at your elbow must be apparent to all. If there are details, such as "What will it cost?" write us and receive the fullest possible information by return mail. We have already done so, and intend to cut a great, wide swath in the premium field, and we invite you to become participants in the assured profits. What we want are results; and what you want are results. Your product is good—why not sell more? We can increase your sales without trouble to you and at very little expense. Try to let our Association butt into your tobacco business for a while, and watch the results. What we have done for others, we can do for you. The strenuous competition of modern business is handled by us on "mutual" lines, for the benefit of all manufacturers.

Our universal coupon is the most valuable premium voucher in the world, and interested parties should make application at once to be enrolled in the Association, as the number of firms represented in the system will be limited. The fullest information, sample coupons, and catalogues showing premiums, etc., will be mailed on application.

EXPORT STAMP ISSUED BY CUBAN CIGAR MANUFACTURERS

Authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut loaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

ness, and as the present activity seems likely to continue, there is an atmosphere of content all around. Cigarmakers are finding it very easy to get a job, in fact a number of manufacturers advertised widely for them during the month, and they are still just as much in demand. City sales are not particularly good, although according to most of the manufacturers for that matter, they hardly ever are, and with the exception of one or two of the larger manufacturers, not a tremendous amount of work is put on the local trade. New bands are going well in a number of cases, showing that the consumer never gets tired of trying something he hasn't had before, but this popularity in many cases proves to be ephemeral.

C. C. Rosenberg, of the Vicente Portuondo Co., is in bad shape just now, and is confined to his bed. Some time ago he underwent an operation for appendicitis and has not yet rallied from the shock.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

Last week was a better one in the leaf market than had been the case for some time past, and whatever was offered, was picked up readily. Inquiry, in fact may be said to have overbalanced stock, and several nice transactions were put through. It look now as if the manufacturers are in a position when they must absolutely have the tobacco, as the prices ruled firm all the week and there is no prospect of anything else. There was little Pennsylvania to be had and not a wide selection of Havana. Most of the business was done in Wisconsin binders, Connecticut and Zimmers.

United States Commissioner Bell, in the Federal building, had two more sailors before him last week charged with smuggling tobacco into this port and held them in $300 for court. It was only a week or so before, that two other sailors were held on a similar charge.

About a year ago the local United States custom officers made scores of arrests of sailors on the charge of smuggling tobacco into this port. At that time it was shown that a conspiracy existed between certain European shippers and the sailors. The government, it was shown, had been defrauded out of hundreds of dollars by this evasion of the law.

So strenuous was the crusade waged by the custom men against this practice that for a long time the habit was broken up. These recent arrests seem to indicate that it has been started again.

Tomasso Graniero and Piero Voteri were members of the crew of the steam ship Oxas, from San Antonio. At the hearing Captain McIver, of the night custom watch, testified that when arrested after leaving their vessel the men were searched. Several bottles of gin and several hundred Havana cigars were found upon them.

CIGARETTE STAMP DEFINED.

Revenue Dept. Says Denomination Decided by Distributor's Price.

It has been definitely decided by Acting Commissioner Wheeler of the Bureau of Internal Revenue at Washington as to who makes the wholesale price of cigarettes. According to the Commissioner, the price is determined by the distributor and not by the manufacturer and the value at which the goods are to be taxed is that which the jobber places on them when he sells to the sub-jobber or retailer or by the manufacturer if he sells in the open market.

This decision was necessary in view of the fact that manufacturers have applied for 54 cent stamps for certain brands of cigarettes on the ground that the price at which they went to the jobber was less than $2 a thousand. The jobber distributed these cigarettes at a price above the $2 however, thus, under the present decision bringing them in the $1.08 stamp class.

The decision does not apply if the manufacturer is willing to sell to everyone at a price less than $2, as that precludes the jobber from fixing the price, but only when the manufacturer has a special arrangement with a certain distributor who takes the product and controls it.

Commissioner Wheeler's letter read:

SIR:—This office is in receipt of your letter of the 19th inst., stating that ——, proprietor of Cigar factory No. ——, in your district, has applied to you for stamps for the payment of tax at the rate of 54 cents per thousand on Cigarettes of the wholesale value or price of not more than $2.00 per thousand. You further state that —— —— has filed an affidavit as to the Cigarettes he proposes to manufacture and sell at that price under the brand name of —— (sample box submitted), and you ask whether he will be privileged to buy stamps as above stated.

In reply you are advised that if, from the evidence furnished, you are satisfied that the Cigarettes will be sold by the manufacturer to jobbers and the trade generally at a wholesale price not exceeding $2 per thousand (which price shall include the tax), you are authorized to sell stamps for these Cigarettes at the rate mentioned, viz., 54 cents per thousand.

In this connection, I would say that when selling stamps at that rate it will be well for you to cause an investigation to be made in order to ascertain positively whether the manufacturer will sell his Cigarettes to any one, jobbers or dealers, at a price not exceeding $2 per thousand, or whether he is under contract or agreement to manufacture and sell his Cigarettes to one or more persons exclusively —for instance, to persons who may own the trade mark brand and take the entire product of that brand and then sell or distribute the goods to the trade at a wholesale price fixed by them at a price exceeding $2 per thousand. In such a case the jobber or person purchasing the Cigarettes and distributing them to the trade would fix the wholesale price and not the manufacturer, and the Cigarettes would properly be subject to the higher rate of tax, $1.08 per thousand, as indicated in Treasury decision 871 of March 1, 1905.

It would also be well for you to require the manufacturer to state in his affidavit that the cigarettes manufactured by him of a special brand are to be sold by him generally to jobbers, or the trade, at a wholesale price not exceeding $2 per thousand, and are not to be sold exclusively to one or more persons at that rate under either a written or verbal contract or agreement.

also 200 bales of N A T M | S K out of hand.

Taking into consideration the choice grades, the price paid was very reasonable, as several buyers had left the country in disgust, and Mr. Hirsch was in a position to make a coup. Four hundred bales of the tobacco bought will be here this week, while the balance is on the way.

SUCCOR FOR CIGARETTE FIENDS.

William L. Taylor Will Again Legitimize the Paper Tubes.

LaPorte, Ind., June 5.

William L. Taylor, lawyer, politician and statesman, is the man to whom Indiana cigarette lovers are looking to restore the paper pipes to their former legal standing. He has been retained by the tobacco trust to test the constitutionality of the anti-cigarette law which went into operation in this State on April 15.

Mr. Taylor, who is one of the leaders of the Indiana bar, declares that the law is unconstitutional throughout, and that the Supreme Court will give an immediate decision, as the questions involved do not require much study.

Mr. Taylor was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor at the last election, and has been prominently associated with the State management of the party for more than fifteen years. He has held many State offices, the last being that of Attorney General. It is said that Mr. Taylor received a retainer of $10,000 in the cigarette case.

The Smoke Shop, of Chicago, has been incorporated by Joseph Goldberg, Jacob Brill and Maurice Berkson, with a capital of $2 500.

NOTES FROM THE PACIFIC COAST.

San Francisco Business was a Trifle Slower in May.

San Francisco, June 2.

Business in this city and hereabouts has not been quite so good during the last month for the manufacturers as the month before, but as there is no special reason or cause for this, it is believed to be only one of those temporary little slumps that are likely to come along any time.

On Monday the Supreme Court heard arguments on the State anti-trading stamp act, and requested the case to be submitted on briefs. It is believed that this will put off the decision a number of weeks.

The Pacific Retailers' Exchange has removed its headquarters to 1538 Market street, from which address all business will henceforth be transacted, such as the issuing and redeeming of its certificates, etc.

The American Tobacco Company commences a new plan on its plug tobaccos this month, the regular contract expiring with May. There have been a number of suggestions and complaints made to the company, and the changes will be made on this account, although they are not expected to reach the consumer.

The plug department of the American Tobacco Co. now offer their Pick Leaf granulated smoking tobacco in 1⅗ oz. cloth bags, 5 lb. cartons, 25 lb. cases, the price of which to the retail trade will be about 38 cents per lb. less the usual discount, and each 5 lb. carton contains a gratis for the dealer of five 1⅗ oz. cloth bags of Duke's Mixture. Pick Leaf may be assorted with their plug and twist tobacco in shipments from jobbers' stocks of 50 lbs. or over, and 25 lb. case lots may be used to make up drop shipments of 100 lbs. or over of their plug and twist tobaccos, entitling the retailer in either case to an allowance of 1 cent per lb. Pick Leaf is manufactured at Durham, N. C., and can be shipped from there in lots of 100 lbs. or more; and for making up drop shipments it is carried in stock at St. Louis, Louisville, Jersey City and Richmond. Jobbers' salesmen receive a certificate equal to one tag for each pound of Pick Leaf that they sell.

A GARDEN PARTY AT A FACTORY.

When the National Cash Register Co. recently invited the people of Dayton, O., to spend an evening at its model plant, it was really a garden party which the 25,000 guests attended.

The factory, itself, was not open, but the big buildings were illuminated from top to bottom by 10,000 incandescent lights and 300 arc lights—more than the average city of 25,000 uses. The grounds, lawns, flower beds and shrubbery patches were all open to the people, who spent their time strolling about the beautiful N. C. R. vista, listening to the music of the N. C. R. band, and enjoying the brilliant spectacle of the illumination. Lights, music, flowers, shrubbery, greensward, trees, guests in summer clothing—all the characteristic features of a garden party were there—and all this at a factory.

Power Plant Entrance

The "garden party," which lasted for three evenings, was arranged by the N. C. R. Company to celebrate the completion of its new power plant, and to give the people of Dayton a chance to see what experts declare to be the handsomest and, for its size, the best equipped electrical station in the country.

The new power plant of the N. C. R. is interesting as showing what can be done in the way of making attractive an ordinarily prosaic part of a big industrial establishment. Externally, the building, itself, is unusually handsome. Built of warm red brick, its architecture is simple and dignified. It does not pretend to be anything but a power house, and accordingly its characteristics are strength and solidity. Shrubbery about the base of the building and vines around the large windows relieve the walls of monotony.

Inside the power house the visitor is struck with the beauty of the engine room. Polished maple floor, walls wainscoted with white enamel brick and finished above in cream color, make the interior as bright and clean as any parlor or ball room. Contrasting with the light color of the walls and floor are the dark green bodies of the four big engines, their sombre hue relieved by polished steel trimmings.

The boiler room of the power house is not less interesting than the engine room. Though, of course, not so beautifully finished, it impresses the visitor by its cleanliness. Aatomatic stokers feed the sixteen great furnaces with coal, and the ashes are removed through a tunnel under the grates almost entirely without the intervention of human labor. Perfect ventilation keeps the room comfortably cool

Engines and Dynamos

The equipment of the power house is an outward sign of the growth of the business of the N. C. R. Company. Until six years ago a single engine of 300 horsepower was sufficient to turn the wheels of the entire plant. In 1899 a 600 horsepower engine and dynamo were added. Before three years had passed, however, increased demand for the factory's output necessitated further enlargement of the plant and consequent extension of the power station. In 1902 a 1,200 horsepower compound engine and generator was installed. Two years later it was necessary to duplicate this unit, and now the total equipment of the plant is 3,300 horsepower. The boilers are capable of developing 5,500 horsepower, if needed.

Twenty years ago the N. C. R. factory turned out one style of register, a crude affair, which recorded sales by punching holes in a strip of paper. To get the total of the day's business one counted the holes, multiplied the number of holes by the denomination of the key pressed and added the results. Today the Dayton factory turns out 403 different styles and sizes of cash registers, built on 12 different principles and adapted to the needs of every kind of business.

Last year registers were sold to 212 different kinds of trade. The latest machines do practically everything for a merchant in keeping track of his accounts, recording each clerk's transactions separately and keeping his cash in a separate drawer.

The new N. C R. power station is the outcome of the company's policy of making the buildings and surroundings of the factory beautiful and healthful. Such an environment is an aid to good work and makes intelligent and conscientious effort characteristic of the employes of the N. C. R.

BUTLER & BOSHER GET CONTRACT.

Combine Firm will Supply the Navy Dept. with 150,000 Pounds of Tobacco.

Washington, D. C., June 5,

The contract for the 150,000 pounds of tobacco for the navy department has been awarded, the goods to be supplied at 34½ cents by Butler & Bosher, of Richmond.

The award was made on recommendation of the paymaster general of the navy after all the bids and the samples of the tobacco had been submitted to the official requirements.

Butler & Bosher is generally accepted as one of the American Tobacco Company's concerns, and the giving of the contract to that firm will create more or less feeling among the independent bidders, who protested at the time the bids were submitted that the contest was an unfair one. It is not implied that Butler & Bosher are not in a position to fulfill the contract satisfactorily. The point hinges on the restriction imposed by the government that but three samples were to be entered by each concern bidding.

The independents argued that the American Tobacco Co. by having a number of its companies bid was thus enabled to offer a proportionate increased number of samples and so had an unfair advantage over the independents.

The government after considering the protest, disregarded it and Secretary Morton awarded the contract as has been stated. The independents cannot but feel that this is the result of the condition of which they complained.

The amount of the contract will be something more than $50,000. Butler & Bosher have had the contract for a number of years, with the exception of last, when Larus & Bro., an independent firm secured the job of supplying the department with nearly 500,000 pounds of tobacco. On the present contract the bid of Butler & Bosher was the lowest.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The tobacco season has opened in good earnest. Box after box of plants are being transported from the beds to the fields to be there transplanted into their new conditions. And such conditions as they have had to undergo! First the cold drying winds, then the hot sun of midday and lastly the three frosts. Many of the fields have to be reharrowed and reset. Some must be twice set, and there are some that must be set the third time. It was a lucky strike when those who set early had plenty of plants to reset with. Loads and more loads of water are being drawn to supply the setting machines. The land is so dry that an abundance of water is required to make the plants live. Most of the large growers are busy with their transplanting, and some are from one half to three fourths through. A correspondent reports:

Agawam, Mass.: "On account of the cold weather tobacco plants have been kept back somewhat. Transplanting began last week. Havana plants are plenty, but broad leaf plants are scarce. Some beds have not come forward at all."
—American Cultivator.

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

M. D. Boales.

Since last writing, sales have been larger with good demand for all offerings at satisfactory prices. The bulk of the crop now in and the new crop planted, with some curtailment of acreage in some localities. I quote market:

Leaf—Low, 5 to 6c; Common, 6 to 7½c; Medium, 7½ to 8½c; Good, 8½ to 10c; Fine, 10 to 14c.

Loose floor sales small in quantity, good in prices—Lugs, 3 to 5c; Leaf, 5 to 13c.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Trading from first hands continues to receive about the same attention as for several weeks, except the aggregate business is all the time declining, though the growing districts are all the time being hunted over. A few recent transactions coming to notice are:

Ole Gunderson, 20cs at 8 asst
O. N. Luraas, 18a at 7c asst
Nick Anderson, 26cs at 7½ and 2c asst
Chas. Carrier, 7a at 5 and 2c bl
A. Jenson & Sons have received about 80cs of '03 from growers; 62cs 1901 02 crop was sold by O. N. Luraas to O. K. Roe at 10c.

Old leaf is traded in moderately by packers, though the low grade goods have the stronger call. The Silverthorne packing of 1901 of 250cs is reported sold to the American Tobacco Co.

Wet weather has delayed the preparing of the tobacco fields somewhat, but a commencement of planting will be started the coming week. Ten days of good growing weather is needed to bring the great bulk of plants up to standard size for setting. They are in abundance and ought to be ready by the time the average grower has his fields in condition.

Our receipts this week were 1,262 hhds offerings on the breaks 471 hhds, total sales 490 hhds.

The market was active and strong, with an advance of ¼ to ½ cent on all substantial sorts, and still farther advances are looked for by the warehouses.

But few lugs appeared in the offerings, there is an undercurrent of speculation in this grade, and sizable lots are bought privately to be held for a full advance.

The report above is of our open market, the Planters' Protective Association is at present dealing in large lots, of which samples have gone forward for approval.

The planting weather has continued, and perhaps 90 per cent of the proposed crop is now in the field with a generally good stand.

The reports to the Association indicate an area about 10 to 15 per cent less than in 1904, the opposition's estimates are larger. The moderate crop of 1904 is coming in rapidly, and will soon all be in the warehouses.

We quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to $4.00
Common Lugs	4.25	to 4.50
Medium Lugs	4.50	to 5.00
Good Lugs	5.00	to 5.50

TRUST MAY BE TRIED AGAIN.

Massachusetts District Attorney Thinks of Having a New Trial.

Boston, Mass., June 5.

District Attorney French will probably ask for a new trial of the trust cases as soon as he has studied the decision of the supreme court in the Strauss case.

When asked as to his intention he declined to talk for publication except to say that, so far as he had learned, the decision contained nothing which would make it impossible to retry the case under an indictment similar to that on which the case had originally been brought.

The supreme court decision was almost entirely upon the meaning of the statutes. The court held that the legislature did not intend to go quite so far as the trial court intimated in its instructions. It is understood that the supreme court did not pass upon the question of the exact application of the statute beyond determining that the trial court had stretched the construction of its application too far. The interpretation of the law on constitutional grounds or as applying to interstate commerce was not fully settled by the decision just made.

SINKING SPRINGS' NEW FACTORY.

Reading, Pa., June 5.

Sinking Springs is having a new manufacturing plant added to its list of enterprises. The new building belonging to Dr. James Y. Shearer, at Sinking Springs, and which for a couple of years past has been used for a leaf tobacco warehouse, has been rented to Henry Heymann's Son's cigar manufacturers of Philadelphia, who are expecting to start operations there today beginning with between twenty and thirty cigarmakers. This firm, I have been informed, has an established line of goods on the market and it is confidently believed in Sinking Springs that the inauguration of this enterprise will be a valuable acquisition for the borough.

The Connelton Tobacco Manufacturing Co., of Connelton, Ind., has been incorporated by Martin P. Casper, Henry Heck, John L. Irvin, James R. Hay, Thomas W. Irvin, Anton J. Kirst and Jesse M. Cunningham.

and either sells them that way or already broken up. You can get quite a number for a nickel, as the price has to be lower for the same quantity than any brand of smoking tobabco, but after the scavenger's eye is trained for cigars, he can get together an incredible number in a day's time.

That is all there is to it, and there never was or will be a manufacturer who tried to make a cigar from what men of all sorts and conditions had spit out of their mouths into the gutter.

It seems to me that it is almost criminal to spread such a belief, particularly when it would involve so little trouble to get the thing straight. As a prominent jobber said when he read the article in the Brooklyn paper: "The reporter could easily have followed those boys up and learned what they really did with the butts, instead of assuming that they sold them to manufacturers or dealers."

That might spoil the "story," though.

National Cigar Clipper

It Clips a V in Ends of Cigars---

A LITTLE vest pocket instrument for the smoker that puts a V in ends of cigars—neatly—accurately—without breaking wrapper, no matter how dry or brittle the cigar is.

It doesn't bite and pull and squeeze; but cuts "shear ways," the common sense way—a way that can't dull the the cutter and disfigure the point of cigar.

Design is elegant—nothing like it on the market anywhere Finest tool steel—nickel plated, and polished.

Makes an effective and lasting piece of advertising for the cigar manufacturer and distributer because of its ability to attract attention—its utility and durability.

The dealer can't put a better selling novelty before a smoker. Hits two ways,—snug profit when sold—fetching advertising with name on.

Sample 15 cents. Dozen lots without ad. $1.25.

Gross lots without ad. $14.00; with ad. if not more than three lines, three eighth of an inch long, $16.50.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT.

Latest Bulletin on Condition of Tobacco From Department of Agriculture.

Washington, D. C., June 9.

The Department of Agriculture's latest bulletin of the tobacco crops throughout the country, shows that good progress with planting has been made in the Ohio Valley and Middle Atlantic States where the outlook for this crop is promising, although cut worms are causing injury in Virginia and Kentucky. The report categorically is as follows:

New England—Tobacco good, but much reseting necessary; insect pests numerous in the South.

Pennsylvania—Large acreage of tobacco transplanted; permanent damage by recent frosts.

Maryland—Much tobacco set.

Virginia—Tobacco planted and doing very well, though complaint of cut worms locally.

North Carolina—Tobacco in excellent condition.

Tennessee—Tobacco growing well.

Kentucky—Tobacco planting nearly completed, healthy and promising; cut worms still injuring.

Indiana—Transplanting tobacco continues.

Ohio—Tobacco fair.

CAN IMPORT CIGARETTES.

Indiana Judge Decides Smoker Can Work It That Way.

Indianapolis, June 8.

Under a decision rendered today by Superior Court Judge James Leathers smokers may import cigarettes from other States and smoke them in Indiana, but cannot sell them or give them away in the State. This makes it imperative for every man who wants cigarettes to import them himself.

The decision was in the case of W. W. Lowry, who was indicted for smoking a cigarette. He proved that he had imported the cigarette from another State and pleaded his right to do so under the Interstate Commerce law. Judge Leathers sustained the plea. The Commonwealth will appeal.

Lowry was a martyr for the cause of the cigarette smoker, but feels that he is repaid for his trouble and annoyance.

ROCKFORD, ILL., SNUFF COMPANY CHANGES HANDS.

The Rockford Snuff and Tobacco Company, of Rockford, Ill., incorporated under the laws of the State in 1887, is now in the possession of Victor Nelson and Augustus Gustafson, of Chicago.

The company has been doing a thriving business under the management of E. R. Jonson and it is for the purpose of getting away from the business cares that he has sold out almost the entire stock, retaining the minority merely as an investment.

The new managers are both experienced in the manufacture of snuff, and Victor Nelson has for seventeen years past been actively engaged in producing the commodity, which has a ready sale in Rockford. The two gentlemen will move their families to the city in about one month.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE'S REPORT ON TEXAS TOBACCO.

Crop was Handled by Philadelphia Broker Who Declares Tobacco "Superior Piece of Filler" for Mixing with Havana, with Chance for a Good Future. One Manufacturing Firm Not So Favorable.

Washington, D. C., June 10.

The United States Department of Agriculture has received a complete report of the experiments in growing Cuban seed tobacco in Texas, conducted by George T. McNess and Walter M. Hinson, with a view of enabling the Texas farmer to retrieve his cotton losses, and also to expand the domestic industry.

After the tobacco had been cured it was placed in the hands of a prominent broker for sale, in order to ascertain the commercial value of the leaf. A number of the reports were favorable, although Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., of Philadelphia, were not particularly impressed by the tobacco, as witness the following letter received from them by the department:

Dear Sir: Your communication of the 1st instant at hand and carefully noted.

In reply to same, would say that we have given the tobacco of which you speak a thorough test. We find, however, that the quality is not good enough to use as a substitute for Havana tobacco, in fact it is hardly equal to the filler tobaccos which are grown in the better sections of Pennsylvania.

We have only worked a small portion of the bale. The remainder we still have in stock and will eventually work it with the other seed fillers.

Trusting that this information will be of service to you, we are,

Yours, very truly,
OTTO EISENLOHR & BROS.

The department also received the following report on the sale of the tobacco from Herman G. Vetterlein, of Philadelphia, in whose hands it was placed:

Dear Sir: The tobacco raised in Texas under the supervision of the Bureau of Soils, being now sold, I would herewith report that while there was a very complete and thorough distribution of the catalogues calling attention of the manufacturers of cigars and dealers in leaf tobacco to the experiments made in the above mentioned State, the demand for samples to test the merits of this tobacco was not as great as one would expect, and this can readily be accounted for by the fact that the manufacturers of cigars are loath to take up anything new or different to what they have been using, for fear of injuring their established brands of cigars, the results of years of work and expense.

However, various bales and samples have been sufficiently distributed to warrant the statement that the department has succeeded in raising a superior piece of filler tobacco, part of it being smooth and mellow in taste and part of it being with a trifle more body, but both being very suitable for mixing with Habana or even using it entirely clear, and with the continuance of the care in raising and handling of it, and the natural improvement that one would expect in its continual production, in the end it should find a position in the market where its merits should create satisfactory demand.

To secure this desirable result it will be necessary for the growers to be satisfied with small profits in the beginning, and prices should be made accordingly, so as to invite purchasers.

Yours truly, HERMAN VETTERLEIN.

The report of Messrs. McNess and Hinson, detail completely the experiments conducted during 1902 and 1903 and then states in part:

At the beginning of 1904 the Bureau had ascertained, through the two years' experiments the types of soil upon which a tobacco nearly approaching the Cuban leaf, and surpassing any filler now being grown in the United States, could be successfully produced; but it seemed advisable to continue the experiments during the season of 1904 to see if by different methods of fertilization and cultivation, and by eliminating past mistakes a still better leaf could be grown.

Headquarters were established at Nacogdoches, Nacogdoches county, Tex., where the Bureau had the previous year established a warehouse. Substations were also established at Crockett, Houston county, and at Giddings, Lee county. Each of these stations was placed in charge of an assistant expert, whose duties were to supervise and assist in the work of growing an experiment crop.

The first step in fitting the soil for the reception of the plants were taken in Nacogdoches county the latter part of February. The land had been planted in corn for several years. In the latter part of March the field was laid off in 3 foot rows, and prepared for setting the plants, throwing the soil into beds with a turn plow turning four furrows to each row. Later on, about the 1st of April, two furrows were turned back into the water furrow, leaving a list 1 foot wide and above the level of space between the rows. This left the soil in good condition for transplanting.

Transplanting was begun on April 8. The plants were placed 10 inches apart in the row, and just before setting the lists were leveled off by means of a board attached to a plow, which left the soil in a loose, moist condition, so that the roots of the young plants would not be injured by coming in contact with or by being set in the dry surface soil. The setting of plants was continued in this field up to April 30, and a good stand was secured, necessitating very little resetting.

The flower bud appeared from seven to eight weeks after setting out the plants. The first topping was done at Nacogdoches, about June 5, exactly seven weeks after the first setting, and it was continued at different intervals upon the various fields until all the plants were topped.

Harvesting was commenced at the north field, Nacogdoches, on June 20, when such plants as had reached the right stage of ripeness were cut and speared upon lath in the field, from 10 to 20 plants being placed on each lath. The laths were then placed upon racks built in the shady part of the field, and there the tobacco was allowed to hang until it wilted.

After the tobacco had remained on the racks in the field long enough to allow it to be handled without damaging the leaf it was hung upon the tier poles to cure.

During the first damp weather after the tobacco had been thoroughly cured it was taken down. The night before, the barns were opened, to allow free circulation of moist air to put the tobacco in good "kase" or "order." The tobacco was then stripped from the lath and the leaves picked off the stalks, making three grades—tops, middles, and sand or bottom leaves. This selection was made so that the tobacco could be better handled in the warehouses.

After it had been thoroughly fermented the tobacco was assorted into three grades, namely, heavy, flimsy, and broken filler. The first two grade represented perfect leaves, the only difference in the leaves being that those classed as heavy contained more body than those placed in the flimsy grade. The broken filler consisted of imperfect leaves from both the heavy and light leaves, which because of this condition would not command as high a price as the other two grades.

The total production from the 8¼ acres harvested was 5,461 pounds, or an average yield per acre of 624.1 pounds. The total cost of production was $1,180.78, or 21.6 cents per pound.

There is no doubt whatever that the farmer can grow this tobacco at a much lower cost than in these experimental crops, in which all the labor and teams were hired at very liberal prices, a cash rental paid for the land and barns, and much experimental work performed by the Bureau's own force, which is charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per hour, and materially increases the cost of production as given in the following tables. It is believed that the farmer having all the facilities on his plantation can grow this tobacco at a cost not exceeding 10 cents a pound. In fact, an estimate based upon the foregoing statement of expenditures and other data gathered during the progress of this work in Texas indicate that the tobacco can be produced, under normal conditions, and with a minimum yield of 600 pounds for less than 10 cents a pound.

MONTGOMERY CO., KY., CROP SOLD.

Continental Tobacco Co. Makes Larger Purchases Than Ever Before.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., June 8.

Purchasing of the 1904 tobacco crop has closed here, and about 4,000,000 pounds have been secured, of which the Connental Tobacco Co. got 3,263,000, more than they have secured in any previous year.

The tobacco cost an average of ten cents per pound and has been delivered. The crop was above the average and brought good prices, the highest price paid by this company being fourteen cents. Independent dealers purchased 200,000 pounds at an average of nine cents. The year was a money maker for the majority of raisers and increased acreage will be put in this year. The entire crop of 1904 will place over $350,000 in the hands of Montgomery county planters.

CINCINNATI JOBBING FIRM BRANCHES OUT.

The A. T. Morris wholesale cigar firm of Cincinnati, O, expects to open a wholesale branch store in Stealing, Ill., in the near future and the firm has secured the services of Charles Plunkett to take charge of the work in that city. He expects to receive his samples in a few days, they having been shipped. Mr. Plunkett is a good man, and there is no doubt but that he will make a success of the venture. For the next four or five weeks he will labor in the city and neighboring towns and after the creation of a demand for the products of the company, fifteen brands of cigars in number, the firm will open a branch house here.

WEEKLY CROP REPORT.

Latest Bulletin on Condition of Tobacco From Department of Agriculture.

Washington, D. C., June 9.

The Department of Agriculture's latest bulletin of the tobacco crops throughout the country, shows that good progress with planting has been made in the Ohio Valley and Middle Atlantic States where the outlook for this crop is promising, although cut worms are causing injury in Virginia and Kentucky. The report categorically is as follows:

New England—Tobacco good, but much resetting necessary; insect pests numerous in the South.

Pennsylvania—Large acreage of tobacco transplanted; permanent damage by recent frosts.

Maryland—Much tobacco set.

Virginia—Tobacco planted and doing very well, though complaint of cut worms locally.

North Carolina—Tobacco in excellent condition.

Tennessee—Tobacco growing well.

Kentucky—Tobacco planting nearly completed, healthy and promising; cut worms still injuring.

Indiana—Transplanting tobacco continues.

Ohio—Tobacco fair.

CAN IMPORT CIGARETTES.

Indiana Judge Decides Smoker Can Work It That Way.

Indianapolis, June 8.

Under a decision rendered today by Superior Court Judge James Leathers smokers may import cigarettes from other States and smoke them in Indiana, but cannot sell them or give them away in the State. This makes it imperative for every man who wants cigarettes to import them himself.

The decision was in the case of W. W. Lowry, who was indicted for smoking a cigarette. He proved that he had imported the cigarette from another State and pleaded his right to do so under the Interstate Commerce law. Judge Leathers sustained the plea. The Commonwealth will appeal.

Lowry was a martyr for the cause of the cigarette smoker, but feels that he is repaid for his trouble and annoyance.

ROCKFORD, ILL., SNUFF COMPANY CHANGES HANDS.

The Rockford Snuff and Tobacco Company, of Rockford, Ill., incorporated under the laws of the State in 1887, is now in the possession of Victor Nelson and Augustus Gustafson, of Chicago.

The company has been doing a thriving business under the management of E. R. Jonson and it is for the purpose of getting away from the business cares that he has sold out almost the entire stock, retaining the minority merely as an investment.

The new managers are both experienced in the manufacture of snuff, and Victor Nelson has for seventeen years past been actively engaged in producing the commodity, which has a ready sale in Rockford. The two gentlemen will move their families to the city in about one month.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE'S REPORT ON TEXAS TOBACCO.

Crop was Handled by Philadelphia Broker Who Declares Tobacco "Superior Piece of Filler" for Mixing with Havana, with Chance for a Good Future. One Manufacturing Firm Not So Favorable.

Washington, D. C., June 10.

The United States Department of Agriculture has received a complete report of the experiments in growing Cuban seed tobacco in Texas, conducted by George T. McNess and Walter M. Hinson, with a view of enabling the Texas farmer to retrieve his cotton losses, and also to expand the domestic industry.

After the tobacco had been cured it was placed in the hands of a prominent broker for sale, in order to ascertain the commercial value of the leaf. A number of the reports were favorable, although Otto Eisenlohr & Bros., of Philadelphia, were not particularly impressed by the tobacco, as witness the following letter received from them by the department:

Dear Sir: Your communication of the 1st instant at hand and carefully noted.

In reply to same, would say that we have given the tobacco of which you speak a thorough test. We find, however, that the quality is not good enough to use as a substitute for Havana tobacco, in fact it is hardly equal to the filler tobaccos which are grown in the better sections of Pennsylvania.

We have only worked a small portion of the bale. The remainder we still have in stock and will eventually work it with the other seed fillers.

Trusting that this information will be of service to you, we are,

Yours, very truly,
OTTO EISENLOHR & BROS.

The department also received the following report on the sale of the tobacco from Herman G. Vetterlein, of Philadelphia, in whose hands it was placed:

Dear Sir: The tobacco raised in Texas under the supervision of the Bureau of Soils, being now sold, I would herewith report that while there was a very complete and thorough distribution of the catalogues calling attention of the manufacturers of cigars and dealers in leaf tobacco to the experiments made in the above mentioned State, the demand for samples to test the merits of this tobacco was not as great as one would expect, and this can readily be accounted for by the fact that the manufacturers of cigars are loath to take up anything new or different to what they have been using, for fear of injuring their established brands of cigars, the results of years of work and expense.

However, various bales and samples have been sufficiently distributed to warrant the statement that the department has succeeded in raising a superior piece of filler tobacco, part of it being smooth and mellow in taste and part of it being with a trifle more body, but both being very suitable for mixing with Habana or even using it entirely clear, and with the continuance of the care in raising and handling of it, and the natural improvement that one would expect in its continual production, in the end it should find a position in the market where its merits should create satisfactory demand.

To secure this desirable result it will be necessary for the growers to be satisfied with small profits in the beginning, and prices should be made accordingly, so as to invite purchasers.

Yours truly, HERMAN VETTERLEIN.

Washington, D. C., June 10.

The report of Messrs. McNess and Hinson, detail completely the experiments conducted during 1902 and 1903 and then states in part:

At the beginning of 1904 the Bureau had ascertained, through the two years' experiments the types of soil upon which a tobacco nearly approaching the Cuban leaf, and surpassing any filler now being grown in the United States, could be successfully produced; but it seemed advisable to continue the experiments during the season of 1904 to see if by different methods of fertilization and cultivation, and by eliminating past mistakes a still better leaf could be grown.

Headquarters were established at Nacogdoches, Nacogdoches county, Tex., where the Bureau had the previous year established a warehouse. Substations were also established at Crockett, Houston county, and at Giddings, Lee county. Each of these stations was placed in charge of an assistant expert, whose duties were to supervise and assist in the work of growing an experiment crop.

The first step in fitting the soil for the reception of the plants were taken in Nacogdoches county the latter part of February. The land had been planted in corn for several years. The Old Salesman's Musings.

"LOOKING PLEASANT" OFTEN MEANS NOTHING.

Prominent among the various brands of hot air that are wafted into the public ether by the literary enthusiasts or space-fillers, is the "look pleasant" spiel.

We are being told continually by somebody, that no matter what happens, or how badly things are going, we ought to wear an expression of cheerful, good humor. One writer boldly asserts that "it makes all the difference in the world to you and to those whom you influence what kind of an expression you wear," and then askes his reader if "people smile and look happier when you approach, or do they shrink from you, and feel a chilly goose flesh sensation come over them as they see you approach?"

As a matter of fact I remember but two occasions and two men who uniformly produced the two effects described. The happiness dispensing chap was a paymaster who had been delayed two days, and the other gent was an unfortunate individual who showed up in the village one morning after indiscreetly attacking a skunk, while intoxicated. (Intoxicated, meaning the man was.)

I have had a pretty wide acquaintance with business men in my time, and though I may be very different from other persons, I always feel like fighting shy of one who has a smile on tap, and who continually wears that air of easy good humor. I have usually found either that he was a man with no backbone who was quite satisfied as long as his lines were cast in pleasant places, or that he was a man whose smile masked complete heartlessness.

The best business man I ever met, had a face not unlike a professional gambler. He met everybody as man to man, and whoever entered his office was received calmly and listened to calmly. You had the privilege of talking to an eye that was clear with intelligence, and you felt at once that the passive demeanor meant neither weakness in or indifference. So far as I am able to say, that man was absolutely just in all his dealings, and though he rarely smiled, either at his employes or customers, he had the respect and liking of all.

I have met many a man with "the smile that wont come off." One man in particular, I have known for fifteen years. He is the proprietor of a mediocre business that nets him a fairly good living for the reason that he has a capable manager. His father left him a splendid, live business that could easily have been made into one of the big industrial concerns of the country.

I remember when the young fellow stepped into his inheritance, everyone was so glad for him, and I recollect one young matron saying: "Tom will go further than his father, for nobody can help liking Tom. He has the nicest smile I've ever seen."

Well, he has. It hasn't come off in all these fifteen years, and I fancy it would take the Council of Ten to chisel it off. Tom has a wide circle of friends, any and all of whom are willing to subscribe to the statement that Tom is a corking, good fellow. But not one of them would be willing to go into a business deal with him, or trust any of their money in his business, or even give him an executive job, if he were to go broke. Tom goes along his amiable way, bland and cheerful, shaking everyone by the hand and leaving a distinct impression nowhere

That's one kind of habitual smiler, and he's the best kind at that. The other is a cruel bird that tries to escape the odium of his cruelty, by a hateful wreath of his lips. At base, a smile is not so tremendously different from a scowl, around the mouth, and if you will study the lower lines of such a man's face when he doesn't know you are watching him, you will perceive that while they may have the elements of a made to order smile, there is nothing humorous or kindly about them

I have such a man in mind. Every time I meet him he greets me with a hearty laugh and a shake of the hand. If the laugh is very hearty, I feel as if I were going to get bad news from home, and if it is only a little smile, I think perhaps the man has perhaps found a way to do himself a favor, part of the good of which may reflect on me.

The man is absolutely and completely heartless. Two or three years ago one of his employes was injured in his factory and lost a leg. It was one of those cases where the employer could not legally be held liable and the man was compelled

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

DON'T allow your store to make a loafer of you or give you an ingrowing tendency. Many a good man has been spoiled by a comfortable cigar store. He has started in full of energy and progressiveness, and in a comparatively short time has wound up a tame edition of himself, content to dope around his own store day after day and year after year until he gets to be more like a cow than a man.

When a man is running a moderate sized store, with one, possibly two clerks, there will be days when there won't be anything much for him to do but sit around the store and talk about hard times to anybody who is willing to listen. There is likely to be a dull day patronage, the members of which are willing to loaf around indefinitely, and indulge in just as idle talk as the proprietor will encourage or stand for.

The proprietor has a comfortable chair in the store, of which he grows more and more fond, until he is spending most of his time in it. That is, some proprietors, but it is a very natural tendency, for a man who hasn't a steadily lively business.

It is a good plan when a man feels himself getting lazy or indifferent, or stale, to go away for half a day, or even a day. If his store is in a good-sized city, all right; if it isn't, let him take a trip to the nearest one of size. Let him spend his time walking around the streets and sizing up the different cigar stores. Let him see how their windows are arranged, and what sort of goods are most pushed, and how it is done. Then let him buy a few cigars at different places, and size up the interior of the store, the clerks, and everything about the place.

He can have many a valuable five minute chat during the afternoon, and he will come back freshened in every way. It may be a lot of trouble, but it is presumed that a man is in business for the sake of making a success, and is willing to take a lot of trouble to accomplish it.

When the man gets home, he can start his brain to work to conceive something that is better for his own purpose than anything he has seen. He doesn't have to steal other people's ideas, for he will be able to work out his own. The man living in a great city is many times as creative as the man on a desert island, but that does not prove that the former steals ideas. He simply receives a constant stimulus to his thoughts.

Sometimes a man becomes a loafer in his own store in spite of himself. He will have time hanging on his hands, and nothing to with it. The main point is whether he would rather do nothing with it, or be busy. It may be that for a time the man frets and frets, and wishes something was done, but on each succeeding occasion frets less and less until he rather welcomes the lazy periods.

As a matter of fact, if the man can't possibly find anything else to do, it would be better for him to do crochet work than to do nothing but gas. It's all right to take one's ease, but don't do it during business hours,

There is one dealer who studies Latin during his off hours. He may never have any use for Latin, but it is good mind training. Another is learning Spanish, and that will be of benefit to him for he intends to take a trip to Cuba to study tobacco conditions. Another man works out puzzles in Sunday papers, magazines, etc., and has already won a watch, some money and various other things. All these men are better off than if they were doing nothing, but they are not so well off, as three other dealers who occupy their spare time by figuring out window displays, advertising cards and the like, which they put into service. One of these has some little talent for drawing and he utilizes it to good effect.

"I very often have three hours or so a day, all told," he said, "when there is practically nothing doing that I need attend to, and I used to mope around enough to give me the blues. I saw a window display up town one day that hit my fancy, and trying to describe it to someone later, I made a rough sketch.

"That gave me the idea, and the next day I started to design a window on paper for myself. It didn't look as well as I thought it was going to, so I started another. The third one I tried in my store window, and I received a good many compliments. So I kept on, and I got so about every one in three would be satisfactory to me. Then I wrote advertising cards, and my business has increased so on account of both, that I don't have half as much time to make them as I used to. For, awhile, though, I made enough to sell a few to some dealers I knew in another part of the town.

"Any dealer can do this if he has as much talent for drawing as the average person. It is good practice, and a man finds himself getting better at it, and learning what to leave out and what to put in, so he will soon be making very few mistakes."

CIGARS OF ANCIENT VINTAGE.

A NICOTINE treasure-trove was unearthed in the garret of the house of the late Henry Prentiss, of Danvers, Conn., a few days ago, when 1,000 boxes of imported cigars bearing revenue stamps dated 1867 were brought to light. Those who have smoked some of the cigars declare that they are not bad, in spite of their age.

—Enterprising manufacturers are now said to be flooding the States of Indiana and Wisconsin with advertisements in which they make alluring offers to sell cigarettes by mail.

CIGAR STORE DE LUXE.

THERE is a certain cigarette and cigar store in New York, or perhaps cigar "establishment" would be better, that is about as highfalutin a place as the most luxurious soul could desire. The place is run by a young man and his sister, and it is the sister's idea. Needless to say, it is a typically New York idea.

Not a great while ago, the sudden death of the father, brought the young man from an uncompleted course in college, and the daughter from a girl's school. The mother has been dead for some years. The father had owned a prosperous cigar store, or at least a store that had been prosperous but after his death, his books showed that his business had been running down for some time until it was practically no longer a paying proposition. He left only two or three thousand dollars.

The children were considerably dismayed, for they hadn't expected any such condition of affairs, and they did some hard thinking. Finally the girl evolved the proposition, and put it before her brother. He laughed incredulously, but said he didn't mind taking a chance.

Accordingly a suite of office rooms was rented in a not too expensive locality which were fixed up according to the girl's ideas. There is a small front room, the office proper, which contains a desk, typewriter, and the other necessary pharaphernalia. Back of this with its own entrance, is the reception room beautifully furnished so that it is a pleasure to enter it, and much more one to stay. In one corner is a little stand, on which are placed open boxes of the latest brands of cigars and cigarettes. The room has a piano in it. In the rear of this room is the stock room proper, although the contents of this are scarcely more than samples now, as the firm has come to fill orders direct from the jobber.

When the rooms were prepared, engraved cards were sent out to all the regular customers of the old store, whose names were obtainable, to college students, and selected business men. The card itself was a work of art, sufficiently so to attract 50 per cent of the recipients out of curiosity.

They came, and were sumptuously received. The girl is a splendid looking girl whose dignity is sufficient unto itself, and she had got a pretty little rosy cheeked contrast of a girl, who was also a stenographer, to help her. Of course all their friends turned their trade in, and a substantial box trade developed in an astonishingly short time.

If a customer who seems inclined to make himself undesirable comes in, he somehow is made to feel that his trade is not desired, and seldom repeats the visit. Cigarettes are put out with the customer's monogram, and there are a number of other kinks that have helped to make the hit. There is no doubt that the young man and his sister are doing a better business than their father ever did, are doing it at less expense, and so quietly that probably half the business houses in the immediate vicinity never heard of the place. They go after a specialized trade, and it pays them.

"IMPROPER" PICTURES.

IN various parts of the country at various times occur spasmodic crusades against the pictures which some cigar, cigarette or tobacco manufacturers issue for advertising purposes, and which many retailers display in their stores. There are two or three such crusades going on now in many benighted settlements, and it is claimed that the pictures with which fault is found are immoral and debasing.

A few of them doubtless are. There certainly have been pictures printed that had no artistic value and whose only value lay in the suggestion conveyed. But these are greatly in the minority, and in a minority which will always take care of itself. The reputable cigar dealer does not care to advertise his store by the aid of such pictures, and the disreputable dealer who does, usually has a patronage which would be very unlikely to be harmed by about the worst pictures that could be devised.

The crusaders, however, see a picture of a woman in tights, such as may be seen in reality in any theatre today, hanging in a cigar store window, and hold up their hands in horror. A few doors away they will pass an art store where may be displayed pictures of ladies who have not gone through the formality of putting on any clothing at all, and it's all right.

Hang one of the art pictures up in a cigar store, and put a manufacturer's name on it, and there would be the same complaint. How do these crusaders know these tobacco pictures are immoral? Has anyone told them so, or do they feel immoral when they gaze on them? If that is the case they would better go disinfect their own thoughts before attempting to regulate the privileges of other persons. It is a striking illustration of "evil to him who evil thinketh."

WASHINGTON AS A TOBACCONIST.

"THE leading tobacconists of Great Britain," said a pipe maker, "are the Wills firm. This firm is over 200 years old and in its office in Bristol there hangs in a fine frame an autograph lettter of George Washington.

"Washington worked for this firm. He raised tobacco for it on his Virginia estate. The letter runs as follows:

"'Virginia, 25th November, 1759

"'Gentlemen: Some time this week I expect to get on board the Cary for your house 50 hogsheads of tobacco of my own and John Parke Custis's, which please to insure in the usual manner. I shall also by the same ship send you 10 or 12 hogsheads more if I can get them on board in time; but this, I believe, will be impracticable, if Capt. Tulman uses that dispatch in loading which he now has in his power to do.

"'I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant.

"'G. WASHINGTON.'"

The best thing that can happen for you and your customers is to insure the correct handling of every account.

A customer who settles his accounts at the end of each week said:

"When my bills come to me I know they are correct. Mr. Hardy has a National Cash Register and he never makes a mistake in a single item in my bills. When I have anything charged I know that a printed record is made of the transaction by the register. The clerk is compelled to make a record of the sale as well as the customer's name at the same time. I have a great deal of confidence in the system Mr. Hardy uses."

A National Cash Register is sold on easy monthly payments which enable you to pay for the register out of the money it saves.

to live on his scanty savings while he was getting well.

Finally he got around again and bought himself a cheap artificial leg. He had usually sat down at his work, and he figured out that everything would be all right to go on again. He went back to the factory, shook hands all around, and then hopped into the office. His employer got up from the desk, held out his hand, and fairly beamed on the man.

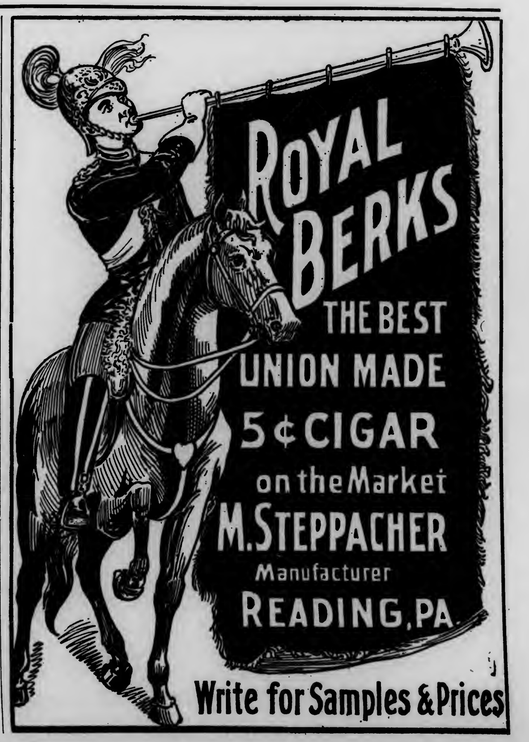
"Well, well, now!" he exclaimed with great heartiness, "who'd have thought it! I certainly am glad to see you about again, and looking so well, too."

The workman's face brightened and he felt a glow of happiness spread over him.

"I'm glad you stopped in, too, Jenkins," went on the other, turning his cheery smile full on his ex employe. "I had something to say to you." He complacently fumbled with his watch chain. "You have been with me for several years, and I know you have always had a proper appreciation of my interests."

"I've always tried to have, sir," said the other, gratefully.

"That being the case, you will understand at once how reasonable is the position I must take in this matter." The fatherly smile broadened. "No one knows better than you, that everything around a factory must be productive. The life of the factory depends on it. You have been very unfortunate. You have, I do not say through carelessness, reduced your capital, which is the power and endurance of your body, to a very doubtful working basis. You are thus unable to retain your place among well and sound men. As I say, you have been very unfortunate, but the fact remains that you can no longer offer the company adequate return for its money, and the company will therefore have to replace you. However, I have decided to give you a $5 bill from my own pocket to make up for any inconvenience. I will notify the cashier." He turned, his lips still grinning, and again extended his hand.



The poor devil took it mechanically, and passed out without a word. He was absolutely dazed. He got home before he knew where he was and sat around all day as if hypnotized. That night his fever returned and the next day found him seriously ill.

And to shorten this story, while he was convalescing, his poor half starved wife went to the factory and begged on her knees that the man might be given the job of night watchman or some other half man's job. And when, still smiling his d——d old smile, the brute turned her down, she fell in a dead faint on the office floor.

There was a great commotion, and after the woman had regained consciousness the monster asked her if she didn't think she ought to clean up a little of the mess that had been made on her account, which the wretched, shivering creature did so well, that the thing that owned the factory promptly engaged her as charwoman, at fifty cents a week less that the woman he had, had been getting.

A pleasant expression, like beauty, is one of the most superficial and meaningless things on earth.

CONSIDERING FEW NEW BUYERS, HAVANA MARKET IS VERY FAIR

Vuelta Abajo Crop Has Been Approved by One United States Buyer, at Least, Who Made Heavy Engagements. Receipts From Country Increasing, But Buyers Should Not Come Too Soon.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, June 5, 1905.

Although only a few buyers made their appearance last week, the business done shows that a very fair activity prevailed and that besides the Havana cigar manufacturers, one Tampa firm has put the stamp of approval upon the Vuelta Abajo crop for clear Havana cigar purposes, and made heavy engagements.

While the dealers and growers are as a rule always more optimistic on their judgment of a new crop, it is prerogative of the Northern buyer to concur in the favorable opinion held here or to be more skeptical in the beginning and wait until the new tobacco has had more storage in the warehouse and become further advanced in the curing process.

For this reason the early purchases of the new leaf must indicate that the manufacturer in question not alone found the Vuelta Abajo fit for early working, but also that he was convinced that the prices were right and that he would gain nothing by waiting.

While the receipts from the country are increasing in magnitude and importance from week to week it would, however, be too early to have too many buyers flock down right at once; as the vegas arrive from the country only partially complete, it would therefore be folly to urge Northern manufacturers to come here so early in the season. One or the other, who is anxious to form his own opinion, will come anyhow and pick his choice from the goods which are here.

Partido wrappers are being examined, because after all, Vuelta Abajo will not be able to supply the demand. In the Santa Clara province a few packers have already started, others are going to open by the middle of this month, and all of them will be in full operation by the end of June.

As regards prices there is more diversity of opinion, and while Vuelta Abajo may be somewhat higher than last year, the manufacturers may have a better yield in the stripped fillers and their cost may be only a trifle higher. Semi Vuelta will be higher, as the crop is shorter and very high figures were paid for the raw leaf in bundles, so unless the yield in the escojidas is far superior, prices will be higher than in 1904. Partido is also said to be shorter in quantity, still there ought not to be a big raise in the figures, as packers of experience can always equalize the cost to some extent. Remedios will be higher than in 1904, but until the yield in the escojidas becomes known, no figures can be even approximately stated. The average price paid for the bundled tobacco is however from 20 to 30 per cent more than during the previous year.

Sales

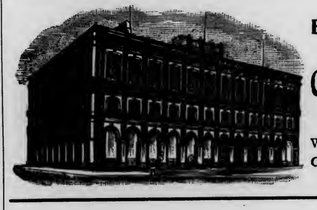
amounted to 5,820 bales in all, or divided into 4,883 of Vuelta Abajo, 737 of Partido and 200 bales of Remedios. Two-thirds of the above quantity were of the 1905 crop. American buyers supplied themselves with 3,550 bales, while the remainder of 2,270 bales were taken by the local industry.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals—E. J. Stachelberg, of M. Stachelberg & Co., and O. Reinach of the Fernandez Hnos. Co., Tampa; L. Greenhall, of S. Bach & Co., New York.

Departures — Richard Sichel, Victor Ettlinger, and Max Stern, for New York; O. Reinach, for Tampa.

Havana Cigar Manufacturers



as a rule are quiet and there is a lack of orders, as is usual at this season of the year. The large independent manufacturers of standing form an exception, however, and they have no reason to complain of dull times, as the United States particularly is asking continually for the famous Vuelta Abajo brands. The smaller Partido factories though, have a hard road to travel, and it is said that a few of them work next to nothing, and may shut down until a revival sets in from Europe, as soon as the new crop is called for.

H. Upmann & Co. received good orders from Germany, Austria, the United States, Great Britain and South America, so their factory is quite busy. Their shipments, however, show a falling off, as they only amounted to 350,000 cigars during the past week, of their own famous H. Upmann brand and other independent manufacturers, the latter being the sufferers temporarily.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. are likewise constantly in receipt of good orders from the United States, England, South America, and last but not least Australia, where La Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co. is a leader.

ders from the United States, England and Germany, to the entire satisfaction of Behrens & Co.

Por Larranaga is doing quite well during the absence of Don Antonio J. Rivero, the manager, and the latter will undoubtedly meet with good success upon his travels in Europe. Don Ricardo Rivero, the manager pro tem, is satisfied with the sale of Por Larranaga cigar during the dull season.

Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja reports fair business, and Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co have no complaints to make. The La Eminencia cigarettes of J. Vales & Co. do not know any dull season, as their output is constantly on the upward trend.

Crepusculo is busier again, particularly as J. F. Rocha & Co. received good orders for Jefferson and Nene from the United States, while the demand from London has also increased. Don Jose F. Rocha returned with his bride last week, in the best of health and happier than ever.

Calixto Lopez & Co. received some pleasing orders from the United States and Germany for their Eden cigars.

Exports per steamer Morro Castle were 2,550,694 cigars.

Edgar J. Stachelberg is said to have made some very heavy purchases of new Vuelta Abajo leaf, and while the exact quantity is unknown and he is still here looking over the market, it would cause no surprise if his purchases came close to 3,000 bales. As your correspondent did not see him personally, further particulars must be reserved until next week.

Richard Sichel bought several hundred bales of old Vueltas, and regretted that the market was in such a shape as not to allow him to invest more heavily, as either he found the tobacco held too high or it was too poor, or both combined.

Max Stern, who left on the steamer Morro Castle, is making a packing of Remedios for his firm of Louis Sylvester & Son, and after having attended to the buying of the bundles and started their escojida he is now taking a short trip North, having left a good man in charge of the packing.

Manuel Lazo reports sales of 500 bales of old Vueltas, 800 bales of new Remates, and 1,200 bales more to be delivered as they arrive from the country this week, which is a phenomenal business so early in the season, but speaks volumes for the good quality of the 1905 crop, as well as for his ability to sell tobacco at the right prices to the buyers. He will receive 2,500 bales from the Vuelta Abajo this week.

B. Diaz & Co. sold 359 bales of new Vuelta Abajo and Partido to local and Northern buyers.

Muniz Hnos. & Co. have purchased the famous La Majagua vega of Remates, and while they paid a stiff price for it, on the other hand it is considered one of the best which Remates produces, and has been worked continuously for sixteen years by the Henry Clay factory.

Jorge & P. Castaneda disposed of 300 bales of their excellent Tumbadero packings to domestic and Northern manufacturers.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez have just commenced their Camanjuans escojida and in addition will have four more packings in the Santa Clara province, viz.: Placetas, Las Vueltas, Sancti Spiritus and Cabaiguan. They expect to pack at least 15,000 bales. Intelligent buyers and connoisseurs of Partido tobacco state that there is no better Partido to be found in the market than what they are packing. They turned over all of their new completed Vuelta Abajo vegas, amounting to 250 bales, but they are constantly receiving fresh lots.

Rz. Bautista & Co. started the ball rolling by selling 240 bales of their new Artemisa packing.

Manuel Garcia Pulido has bought in all from 3,500 to 4,000 bales of Remates, and has four escojidas going in Las Martinas. He has already received some 700 bales of the new crop which is of excellent quality, making very fine fillers, although wrappers are not so plentiful this year.

Suarez Hnos. sold 180 bales of Vuelta Abajo, old crop, to Northern customers of theirs.

Jose F. Rocha has already received more than 1,000 bales of San Luis, San Juan, Martinez and Las Ovas some of the best vegas grown this year.

Loeb-Nunez Habana Co. disposed of 156 bales of Remedios and Vuelta Abajo. This firm is making seven escojidas in all this year, distributed as follows: one each in Santa Clara, one Nueces, one Remedios, one Jicotea, and one San Cristobal, and two in the Partido district, so their customers will have a choice selection later on.

Grau, Planas & Co. commenced their Camajuani packing on the 31st of May. The second one, at Mayajigua, they will not start before a week or ten days. They expect to make about 4,000 bales in all.

Jose M. Cayro e Hijo turned over 138 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido last week, and are very well pleased with the appearance of the new Vuelta Abajo and Partido as the bales arrived from the country.

Jose Menendez has already received large stocks of new Vuelta Abajo and

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 12, 1905.

The weather last week was pretty uneven, but retail business was good; in fact if it is as good all the month, it will considerably beat May. After June is over, there will be a gradual sliding off until fall, which is no more than is to be expected in view of the great many people who get out of the hot town during the sultry period.

There is usually a good spring, though, and this is up to the average so far, according to a number of representative dealers in various sections of the city.

Retailers would be making good in this city now, if they could resist the accursed tendency to slash prices. Some of them do—those who are fortunate enough to have a firmly established trade—but they are in the minority and for every one of them, there are several who are always putting up a card or two in their windows announcing that some leader can be bought below cost.

It never has paid, and it never will pay, and the dealers would soon learn that fact if they would keep closer tabs on their accounts. A cigar store is too small a proposition to get away with cutting satisfactorily, for there is nothing to make it up on. Prices on cigars and cigarettes will work but one way. If a cigar usually sells for five cents, you can reduce it to four, but you can't raise it to six, if you are trying to make up for the cutting of some other cigar. The public knows the price, and refuses to pay any more.

One dealer sees another dealer who hasn't the business he has, making certain cuts, and he believes that if that man can, he can. That is true enough, but the first man has no right to, either. It is on account of such things as these, that so many complaints are heard, and that the cigar store business is nothing like as good a proposition as it used to be. Profits are legitimately smaller anyway, but any dealer who knows his business ought to be making money with business in New York as it is now. When a man deliberately throws away what little margin is left him, however, what can be expected?

The manufacturers, one and all, tell happy tales of what the boys on the road are doing, and of the large orders that some of their customers are voluntarily sending in, and one and all, the factories seem to have as much as they care to do. It isn't for a mere correspondent to say whether some of these goods are being piled up in the stock rooms, waiting for orders or not, but from the best evidence obtainable, this branch of the business is really in a prosperous shape.

The consignment plan seems to be popular with the manufacturers, perhaps involuntarily so, now, that it is not easy to say how many of the cigars which are now being turned out so rapidly, are likely to reach the consumer in the near future. Some salesmen declare they are forced to put in goods to be "paid for when sold" almost altogether, when the brands are not particularly well known, or are new, in order to get them in the stores alongside those favored brands that are known from coast to coast.

One factory representative not long ago had a new brand to handle and commenced to put it in on this plan. In this case the factory grumbled and declared they'd lose half the cigars they made. As it happened, this particular man has considerable drag, and although he put out something more than a hundred and fifty thousand, at the start-off he declares he lost less than a thousand. The brand still has a fair sale, but the company is now selling it on a different plan, and the dealers are not so ready to promise to push it.

Judge Wallace, in the United States Circuit Court, announced his decision last Thursday in the case of Edward F. Hale, secretary of McAndrews & Forbes, who refused to answer questions put to him by the Federal Grand Jury, and was held in contempt of court. The decision is rather divided in its nature, as while the court declares that Hale must answer the questions which were put to him, it avers that he cannot be compelled to produce the books and papers of the company of which he is secretary, the Judge holding that to force him to do this would be a violation of his constitutional rights.

Hale has been technically under arrest for two or three weeks following the refusal to answer the questions, most of which tended to show whether the McAndrews & Forbes Company is controlled by the American Tobacco Co. Judge Wallace's decision, of course, greatly interests the trade, but it can scarcely be regarded as definite, inasmuch as it is understood that the case will be carried up to the United States Supreme Court. If this case should fall through, it is hard to see how the government investigators of the tobacco trust will be able to manipulate the case which they have building up, through the courts.

The four-story building at the corner of Broadway and Wall street, was sold last week for $700,000, the sale subject to the lease of the United Cigar Stores Co. which will not expire until 1908. The purchase was made by L. E. Anderson, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co., of St. Louis, who has not made public whom he represented. The rent under the United Cigar Store Co.'s lease, counting in the taxes, said is to foot up nearly to $35,000 a year.

Sam H. Harris is back in town after a trip through the West, during which he found everything O. K., and says he is not all satisfied with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue's decision in regard to the proper stamp to be placed on cigarettes. As was printed in The Tobacco World last week, the commissioner decided that the price set by the person controlling the distribution of the goods, must be the price to be considered in determining the denomination of stamps to be affixed. Thus, though the Khedivial Co may be placed in the position of the jobber, by buying a certain brand of cigarettes from the manufacturer, it cannot take advantage of the fact thst it buys the cigarettes at less than $2 per thousand, and so use the 54 cent stamps, but must be guided by the fact that the company itself distributes the goods at more than $2, and must therefore use the $1.08 stamps. Harris has declared his intention of asking for a rehearing from the commissioner, and if this is refused, or the case goes against him, to place the question in the courts.

The Circle Cigar Store, in Broadway, near Fifty-eighth street, is pushing Arcadia smoking tobacco, and has an unusually good window display. The back of the window is filled in with a canvas screen, on which is painted in outline a map of the world. Slits in the canvas permit colored ribbons to be run from various parts of the map to a number of bowls in the foreground, each containing one of the classes of tobacco used in the Arcadia Mixture. From the Island of Cuba a ribbon descends to the bowl containing Havana tobacco; from Louisiana a ribbon runs to bowl containing perique, and so on. Canisters containing the Arcadia Mixture are also displayed in the window, together with a placard reading:

These Tobaccos are from all over the world, are used in ARCADIA
So delicately blended that they make a mild, aromatic smoke.

The United Cigar Stores Co. has taken the store at 136 Fifth avenue and will arrange it in the usual way for an opening in a few days.

The funeral services of David Block, of Block Bros., Maiden Lane retailers, who died suddenly, last Tuesday, at Bayport, L. I., took place last Thursday, interment being made in Long Island City. Mr. Block, who was young man left a wife and child.

Leslie Pantin and family, of Havana, are in this city where they will remain some weeks. Mr. Pantin is well known in the trade, and expects to get around a good deal while here.

Avelino Pazos, of A. Pazos & Co, is on a southern business trip which will last about a month, and will take in a number of points in Florida and Havana.

Wm. Catlin, the energetic representative of Victor Thorsch C., of Allentown, is certainly having hard luck. He is suffering from a bad attack of rheumatism, and to Mr. Catlin, no small part of the annoyance results from the enforced inactivity.

C. Schlesinger is again running a store on Broadway. Mr. Schlesinger formerly conducted the store at 1393 Broadway but sold his lease. He has now taken a place, a block or so further down, and is already prepared to look after his trade.

The Falk Tobacco Co. is offering to the trade some Brazilian tobacco which seems to be giving satisfaction. The tobacco, which looks like perique, is shredded and packed in tins, for use either in pipes or with cigarette papers. The flavor of the tobacco makes it especially suitable for blending purposes.

It is now expected that the Royal Co.'s store at 37 Wall street will be opened to the public in about ten days. The store will be one of the handsomest in the city, and the stock will be made up largely of high class goods, it is probable that some of the financial big guns will do business here.

—Griffith & Sherrill's tobacco warehouse, at Mayfield, Ky., containing 600 hogsheads of tobacco, was burned. The loss was $60,000; insurance, $30,000.

SHORT TALES OF DRAMATIC INDIANA—No 2

The scene is in Indiana's most splendid city. An avenue where dwell only the elite. It is midnight. One of the most imposing mansions in the stately row flings out light from roof to basment. Strains of gay music are wafted out into the night mingled with the silvery laughter of beautiful women.

A ball is in progress, attended by Indiana's proudest sons and daughters. Wit, mirth and happiness prevail. It is one of the great social occasions of the year. Handsome, clean limbed men, garbed in the conventional black and white, saunter through the rooms pausing occasionally before beautiful dames in dazzling gowns.

All are heedless, careless, giving no thought to the morrow.

Up the deserted street come soft-footed men, in uniform and in marching order. On each suspender gleams a menacing, tin shield. They are headed by a stern faced captain, alive only to his duty. His set features, relieved only by the bristling chin beard, sticking straight out in front, betoken the man never to be turned aside from his purpose. The men pause before the entrance of the mansion.

In the rear three other men have silently climbed the iron fence and are drawing up to the house.

The captain raises hands to his mouth, and the crow of a cock resounds oddly against the music from inside.

It is the signal. The men rush up the steps, throw their combined weight against the door, dash past the frightened butler, and on into the ball room.

There is instant confusion. Across the room is the son of the house, leaning indolently over the fairest debutante of the season. She peeps up at him with timid admiration. Upon this young man, the captain's eyes fall. Straight at him he points a finger.

"Thar he is, b'gosh," he says determinedly. "Men, errest thet feller!"

He, himself, leads the rush across the room. The officers seize the young fellow and handle him roughly.

"What means this highhanded outrage?" he demands.

"I allow yew know," replied the captain, undauntedly. "Best put th' darbies on 'im, men," he added as he draws a warrant from his pocket. "Here, read thet thar," he says.

The prisoner takes the paper in his manacled hands and glances through it. For the first time his face is pale, and fear lurks in his steel grey eyes.

"It's a lie," he falters.

The guests, transfixed with astonishment, begin to murmur.

"Easy, thar," admonishes the captain pulling a sinister horse pistol from his belt. "Jes, to show thar's no hard feelin's we'll sarch the feller."

Regardless of the blushing, terrified women, his men go through the prisoner's clothes. Five form a close ring around him as a screen, while another prosecutes a closer search. Nothing is found. The prisoner's face grows brighter.

"Oh, we ain't through, yit," says the captain. "Off with 'is shoes."

Off they come, off come the silk half hose, there is a sudden, eager movement from one of the searchers, and he holds something up so that all may see. The captain smiles grimly; there is a shriek of agony, and the prisoner's mother sinks unconscious to the floor. The prisoner hangs his head in guilty shame.

The finder slowly revolves the damning evidence above his head so that none may fail to witness. Alas! too, true! It is a crumpled cigarette paper.

FRENCH TOBACCO MONOPOLY.

Receipts, Imports and Sales Show an Increase in Consumption.

Washington, D. C., June 13.

United States Consul General Skinner, stationed at Marseilles, France, has written to the Department of Commerce and Labor, stating that the report of the French tobacco monopoly for 1903 has just been made public. The receipts for the year amounted to $87,534,516, an increase of $2,634,900 over those of 1902, and the expenses amounted to $15,609,745, a decrease of $305,429 from those of 1902. The sales to the public were:

Kind.	Quantity	Perc't'ge
Cigars,	5,796,647	6.87
Cigarettes,	4,695,495	5.56
Scaferlati*	61,361,865	72.69
Roll tobacco and chewing tobacco,	2,522,036	2.99
Powder,	10,039,708	11.89
Total.	84,415,751	100 00

*Scaferlati is the name given to cut packet tobacco, the superior quality of which is composed principally of American tobacco, the product of French cultivation being used for the ordinary quality.

The increase in net profits was due in part to the natural increase in consumption and in part to the increase in the price of scaferlati of Maryland.

The average rate of consumption per individual in 1903 was 34.54 ounces, of which 4.128 ounces represented tobacco in powder and 30.412 ounces smoking and chewing tobacco. Of the total per capita purchases of tobacco—12.11 francs ($2.33)—11.14 francs ($2.15) returned to the treasury. The production of domestic tobacco is authorized under supervision in twenty five departments.

The following shows the amount of tobacco imported into France in 1903:

Kind.	Quantity	Average price per 220 lbs
	Tons	Dollars
Leaf tobacco from Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio and Virginia,	13,972	21.25
Leaf tobacco from Habana, Mexico, Brazil, Sumatra, Java and the Levant,	3,174	44.56

ON THEIR OWN HEADS.

The foolish anti cigarette law in Indiana has reacted to the very benefit of those whom it was expected to harm most in a business way, namely the American Tobacco Co., so that that concern can now boast of a profitable and extensive mail order business which it could not possibly have built up under any other circumstances.

Indeed, the new business is such a good thing that it is an open secret that the combine no longer thinks it worth while attempting to attack the measure in the courts. By selling cigarettes directly to the consumer through the mail, the company saves the jobber's price and all bother of collection, as every transaction is for spot cash.

The company advertises widely throughout Indiana offering prompt and reliable mail order facilities, and the result is a considerable sum of money being steadily sent out of the State. It is not improbable that this sum is larger than was formerly spent for cigarettes, as the natural tendency to reduce the bother and trouble of securing the goods by getting a larger quantity at a time, would be likely to induce a smoker unconsciously to increase his regular allowance.

This fact should cause the reformers to weep and gnash their teeth, which operation isn't like to improve the situation. The only thing is for Indiana Solons to go a little slower in future when they are attempting to deal with restrictive legislation.

TRULY A CHINESE PUZZLE.

In speaking of the Indiana cigarette law, the Chicago Record Herald most aptly nominates it as "a law that is worse than a Chinese puzzle," basing the assertion on the fact that no one has yet been discovered that was able to give a definitely clear reading of the law.

One putative authority says one thing, another says another, another says another and the poor, befuddled consumer reading one decision after another, wishes heartily that cigarettes had never been invented. Those who, so far, are ahead of the game, are the ones who have accepted Judge Leather's decision, who defined that Indianians may smoke, provided they have obtained the materials in an original package from outside the State, in other words, by mail.

He can smoke thus, but he can't give a cigarette or the paper and tobacco to a fellow smoker, to save his life. That is Judge Leather's decision and it is about the easiest one for the smoker yet made. Others slide backward from this to complete prohibition.

The Record-Herald in expressing the vague and confusing character of the phraseology of the law says:

> The exact scope and meaning of the law no one seems to know. Editors and judges differ, and some intimate that the law may not mean anything at all, so vague and confused is its phraseology.
> Cigarettes may not, by the terms of the statute, be sold, bartered or "given away" in the State. Does this apply to dealers only or to individual smokers as well? Does the law, by implication at any rate, prohibit smoking under any circumstances? No one knows, and the Supreme Court alone can unravel or cut the legal knot.

In regard to Judge Leather's decision, the Indiana newspapers in general seem to believe the decision about as fair a stab at the ambiguous wording of the statute, as mere man can hope to accomplish.

THIS MAN had the courage of his conviction at least, and it seems as if he deserved a better fate than incarceration. History has recorded numerous instances of men who were willing to go to any length to get hold of a drink; seldom has anything been chronicled so strenuous as this man's appetite for tobacco. A Utica, N. Y., special to the Washington Post says:

> While a fast freight on the New York Central road was speeding along east of Rome before dusk last night, the attention of the engineer was attracted by a man standing on the track ahead frantically giving the stop signal. The train was brought to a halt and the engineer climbed down from the cab to learn the trouble. The engineer asked the stranger what was wanted, and the stranger replied: "Give me a chew of tobacco."
> The train went on to Rome where the incident was reported. Officers went to the scene of the hold up on a shifting engine and arrested the individual who was found importuning a switch tender for a chew of tobacco. He gave his name as James Hill.

Perhaps though this is only another of the million advertising dodges.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers. With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

Next Wednesday is the day of the picnic when Quaker City retailers far and wide will garb themselves in outing dress, hie themselves to Maple Grove and proceed to have a good time. As has been mentioned before, an entertaining program has been arranged and there will be "doings" all day. The money brought in by the affair will be used in the fall to take a delegation from the Philadelphia Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association to the Tobacco Show in New York. Every dealer who can should put in an appearance Wednesday and be prepared to help make the function a success.

Jos. E. Tuck smiles on the world these days, owing to the handsome business he is doing.

R. M. Bock & Co. have an attractive display in their window on Broad street this week. Mr. Bock is fortunate enough to have a very desirable class of trade.

Hancock & Adams, Seventh and Chestnut streets, also invariably have something worth seeing in their window.

George O. Keefe says May business with him showed no great decrease, but was not as good as it might have been. This seems to be the consensus of opinion among the dealers who think that if business is ever going to brace up, it ought to under present conditions. It seems likely that the real reason after all, is that the market is simply too crowded. There are as many smokers proportionately, in this city as elsewhere, and it stands to reason that if business month in and month out, is not good it is be cause there are too many avenues for the smokers' money.

Several dealers report the sale of Turkish cigarettes to have increased lately and if this is so the sale has grown more than the dealers allow for, as no small number of smokers now buy their cigarettes by mail "made to order." Once a man commences this practice, he seldom gives it up, and if the legitimate sale has grown as much as seems the case, there must be a decidedly large aggregate increase in consumption.

James I. Hassan, who has the neatest store on Woodland avenue, will be one of the most active figures at the picnic, next week.

From all accounts, the local factories are doing a better business than for some time, all plants being busy, and a number working over time right along. Orders average well with everybody, and there is a steady demand not only for the best known brands, but for the new ones that are being pushed. The unfortunate part of this activity is the fact that no other branch of the local trade is getting the benefit. The manufacturers are not buying very heavily of Philadelphia leaf dealers, and not selling heavily to Philadelphia dealers. Many of the manufacturers' own buyers have bought their leaf in the open market in Havana, Holland, Pennsylvania, etc., and the majority of the finished cigars are being shipped West.

One manufacturer, who is doing a good business is A. D. Engel, at Broad and Porter streets. This house is making a specialty of Havana Noodles, a 5 cent cigar that is made in five popular sizes. This is a Havana filler and is making good wherever placed.

Jacobs & Hilbronner, of North Eighth street, have been showing samples of their new goods, and in a few days will be prepared to fill all orders.

The Keystone Tobacco Co., of North Ninth street, is said to be in financial trouble owing to the old complaint, delinquent collections. The liabilities of the company, which is composed of three well-liked young men, are said to be about $3,000.

The El Draco manufacturing Co., Second and Arch streets, is having good business on all its leaders and Manager Comber is much gratified with the outlook.

H. D. Narrigan says business isn't as good as it ought to be. Mr. Narrigan's place always looks pretty busy, though.

B. Lipschutz, of 44 North Twelfth, says that sales are still keeping up on the Bride and "44" brands. Mr Lipschutz's delivery wagons are to be seen everywhere about town.

The Queen City Tobacco Co. certainly believes in unique advertising. A number of baseball clubs in Philadelphia have been the recipients of Red D caps, and as these look very smart, the boys are extremely proud of them.

Application for a patent on a new bunching table has been made by E. A. Harris and B. N. Berman, of E. M. Schwarz & Co. Some of the tables are now being used at the Schwarz factory, and it is said they will make bunches as well as those made by hand.

Stewart, Newburger & Co., (Ltd.), are very busy and their cigarmakers have been forced to work a good deal of overtime.

Sheinfeld & Batzofin, jobbers and subjobbers, at 434 Market street, are now ready for business and invite all their friends to call in. The first floor of the building has been fixed up in up-to-date style, and with the large window at the front of the store, the appearance is everything that could be desired.

Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

The leaf market did not move much either way this week, transactions on the whole not being so good as the week before. There was demand for cheap filler which was very hard to get, and there will continue to be a demand without any adequate means of satisfying it. The brokers do more or less dickering with the customers, but in cases where they have any tobacco to sell, it is very hard to get big enough prices to save themselves on the deal. The atmosphere was not very encouraging this week, and the market seems as if it would be likely to remain dull for some time to come.

At the inscription held in Amsterdam on June 9, B. Labe purchased the lot of Deli My | P. B. This adds to some fine Sumatra that Mr. Labe had already secured.

E. A. Calves & Co. are managing to keep pretty busy, considering. It will soon be time for Frank Dominguez to be taking one of his periodical trips to buy Havana.

It is nearly time the local dealers who handle much Havana tobacco were finding out something definite about the new crops. Favorable reports have come so far on the Vuelta Abajo.

The Amsterdam Sumatra Company is doing as well as could be expected under the present dullness. Both Mr. Colgan and Mr. Kolb are young men of energy and ability, and the firm has made out well so far.

The Loeb-Nunez Tobacco Co. has bought considerable tobacco in Havana lately. This firm manages to keep as busy as any along the street.

NUBBINS FROM YORK.

How York County Farmers Could Realize More on Crops.

York, Pa., June 12.

H. W. Heffener, the pioneer cigar box manufacturer of this city, was highly honored last week by being elected secretary of the Ninth Pennsylvania Cavalry.

Myers & Waughtel, cigar manufacturers, at Red Lion, are erecting a new factory building on East Broadway in the rear.

J. B. Brady, of Hanover, who was a delegate to the convention held last week, was held up and robbed on South George street, this city, near College avenue, and as a result, four men of the Tenth ward, are under arrest. Mr. Brady had two hundred cigars in his possession when three colored men sprang upon him, threw him violently to the pavement and made off with his cigars.

The cigar and tobacco store of D. McGee Newcomer, of Hanover, was very badly damaged by fire, which occurred there last week and which entailed a heavy loss. W. H. Miller, of Windsor, has completed the erection of the addition to his cigar factory.

According to a local reporter, a York tobacco dealer, and his identity may be guessed, is responsible for the statement that York county farmers could earn thirty percent more on their crops every year if they knew how to sort their tobacco. He says if more pains or skill were taken during the few days at stripping time to sort properly there would be that percentage less loss. The dealer says if the tobacco was brought to him after having properly been sorted he could "make more money and still pay thirty percent higher price if the tobacco growers of this county would sort their tobacco properly. Pennsylvania leaf is the very best for many purposes but the

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut loaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. LANCASTER LEAF TRADE THE SAME

May Revenue Returns Show Big Increase on Last Year.

Lancaster, Pa., June 12.

The local leaf trade is keeping at about an even tenor, although attention is now necessarily directed more and more to the 1901 goods for the reason that there is little else left that is available. Packers have already begun to overhaul the new goods and to remove such damage as may be found.

Copious rains have fallen during the past week, much to the gratification of the farmers, but up to the present, the weather has not been as warm as might be desired for the young and tender plants.

This district has again done itself proud in the output of cigars, having to its credit 65,087,000 for the month of May, which is all but 5,000,000 more than during May of 1904. This is an agreeable surprise to the entire trade as reports were continuing to come during the entire month, reporting rather a dullness among the cigar manufacturers.

C. Ruppin is erecting a large addition to his cigar factory at Akron, which will nearly double his capacity. It is stated that his trade is growing at an enormously rapid rate, making the addition most necessary.

An accident occurred last week in the cigar box factory of M. Kinports, in Ephrata, when Charles Johns was caught in a trimming machine sustaining several ugly wounds, and severing a number of tendons. The injuries were dressed by Dr. John F. Mentzer, head of the firm of A. W. Mentzer & Son.

H. S. Hartman, of this city, is now energetically pushing his Dorcas, a four and one half inch, Havana filled five cent cigar. This is the newest of all his brands, but in a conversation with the writer he stated that the quality of the leaf that he was using in the manufacture, he felt confident would prove an excellent success. Mr. Hartman is one of the most active of the younger members of the trade here and deserving of the fullest benefit of his enterprise.

L. S. Stauffer, of Akron, is running with a full force, and reports sufficient orders on hand to keep him busy for some weeks to come.

CANADIAN CASE SETTLED.

Imperial Tobacco Company Wins Suit Brought by Hay & Co.

Toronto, Can., June 10.

Judge Snider, of Hamilton, has made his award in the arbitration of Hay against the Imperial Tobacco Company, and it was taken up by the plaintiffs solicitors, Nesbitt, Gauld & Dickson.

The Judge holds that the quality of the veneer supplied by Hay & Co., of Woodstock, to the defendant company, England, was not up to the standard agreed on, and the defendants were entitled to cancel the contract. His Honor holds that the Imperial Company paid for all the goods under the contract. No allowance is made for the counter claim.

The action was brought to recover about $30,000 for veneer contracted for by the English tobacco manufacturers, and the case was referred by the High Court to arbitration.

The arbitration cost $690.90, without the lawyers' fees. The Judge's fees were $522.50. George Tate Blackstock, K. C., Toronto, and John G. Gauld were for the plaintiff, and Walter Cassels, K. C., Toronto, and S. F. Washington, K. C., for the defendants.

THIS POINT NOT WELL TAKEN.

What Independents Really Complained About is Very Different.

The Western Tobacco Journal prints the following defence of the method of awarding the contract for tobacco to be used in the navy as a part of its Washington correspondence:

The navy contract for tobacco which has been awarded to Butler & Bosher, of Richmond, Va., is so out of the ordinary in the manner of letting the bids and finally awarding the contract that few persons not intimately associated with the workings of the Government understand how it was done.

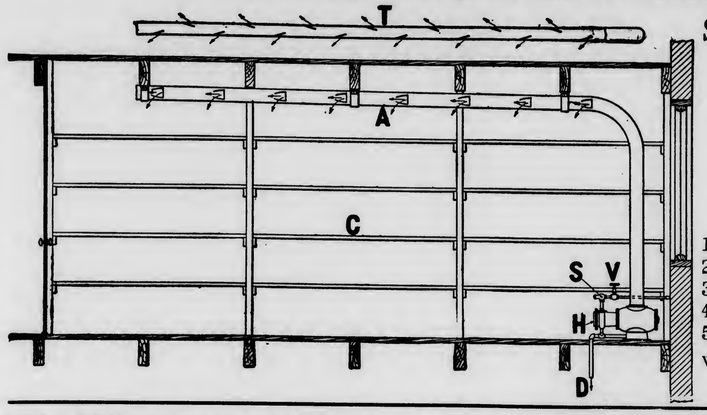
In the first place, the Government a short while back, asked parties desiring to sell tobacco for the officers and jackies of the navy to show what they had to sell. The call resulted in twenty two bidders being represented. Each bidder had the privilege of submitting four samples, and each bore a different price, if he wanted it that way. The outside of each box bearing a sample was marked with the name of the bidder and his individual sample mark. There was no mark on the tobacco itself.

The bids were then opened and the bidders and prices were made public. Then the department opened the samples of one bidder and marked that A. then opening the box of another bidder and marked that B, and so on. After the department had arranged all the samples thus, the key to these secret marks was locked up in a safe, and no one could use it.

With these new marks on them the department sent half a dozen plugs of each samples to the commandant of the New York navy yard at Brooklyn, who appointed a special board of five commissioned officers to try the tobacco by taste, smell, chewing, smoking, and every other possible way.

The examination, however, was not completed until the navy yard chemist had analyzed the samples and the blue jackets and workmen at the navy yard and on board the receiving ship had a chew and a smoke to determine the relative merits. After excluding all of the samples which the board considered unsatisfactory for any reasen the board voted on the merits of the several satisfactory samples and submitted their report in writing through the commandant to the Paymaster General of the Navy as to the relative qualities of the various brands.

These test were made and the report submitted without any knowledge of who the various samples belonged to, so that when the report reached Washington it was neccessarily a report on tobacco and nothing else whatever. It was impossible, with all the precaution used, for the slightest discrimination in the matter in any way.



The Government does not buy this tobacco for its men, as is sometimes misunderstood. Tobacco purchases stand on a different footing from all other supplies. The Government merely handles the weed under an appropriation from Congress, and sells it to the blue jackets or officers, if they want it, at cost price, plus a very small charge for expense of handling.

It is not probable that anyone supposes that government officials deliberately jockeyed the contract. Nobody ever did suppose such a thing. The complaint from the independents was made purely on the ground that according to the law of percentage, the companies controlled by the American Tobacco Co. had more chances than should have been allowed according to the specifications which limited each bidder to four samples. The independents claimed that the combine was thus enabled to submit a much larger number than any other bidder, and if these samples were examined without marking and there was not a great deal of difference in quality or prices, the concern that had the greatest number of entries stood the best chance.

MICHIGAN'S FACTORIES FIRST REPORTED ON BY CENSUS BUREAU.

The first report to be made on the quinquennial census of manufacturers which was taken by the Census Bureau of the United States Department of Commerce and Labor is from the State of Michigan. For the cigar industry of this State the figures show that the number of factories operated increased from 600, at the close of the previous decennial census, to 696 in 1904 5—an increase of exactly 16 per cent. The annual value of output in the same period increased from $5,558,982 to $7,995,2 0, or approximately, 44 per cent. There is an increase in working capital invested in lands, buildings, equipment and cash on hand (exclusive of stocks and bonds) of about 25 per cent. Detroit contains one-third of the total number of cigar factories, and turns out one-half the total annual value of the output.

The number of factories turning out chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff increased from 8 to 10—all but one in Detroit. The capital invested increased from $894,400 to $1,684,501, or approximately 88 per cent. The value of the annual output, however, was only $3,868,729, as against $3,746 045 in 1900—3 per cent increase. Notwithstanding the fact that large quantities of lower grade goods are turned out, yet the item for cost of material shows a heavy increase, while, on the other hand, the item of general expenses shows an equally striking decrease, suggestive of changed methods of keeping accounts.

The number of employes in this branch of the business declined from 1,173 in 1900, to 937 in 1904—a decrease of about 20 per cent. The aggregate of wages paid declined from $322,817 in 1900, to $306,615 in 1904, but the average annual earning, per individual, of wage workers, increased from $275 in 1900, to $327 in 1904, or, approximately, $1 per week Consolidations of tobacco manufacturers and subsequent starting of new enterprises in consequence, after the consolidated plants had been closed for some time, preclude a fair comparative estimate being made with conditions existing prior to these consolidations taking effect.

NEW MOVE IN TOBACCO INQUIRY.

Supreme Court to Pass Upon Right to Investigate Under Sherman Law.

New York, June 14.

William H. McAllister, secretary of the American Tobacco Co., was adjudged guilty of contempt in the United States Circuit Court for having refused to answer questions before the Federal Grand Jury in the so called Tobacco Trust inquiry, and to produce papers and contracts concerning the export business of the American Tobacco Company.

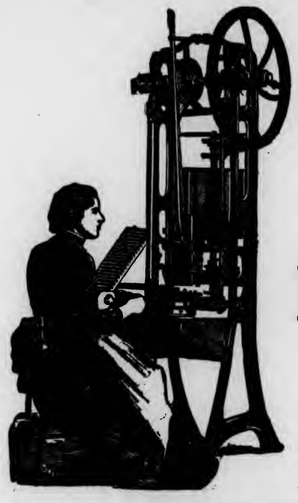
A writ of habeas corpus was denied, but McAllister was released on $1,000 bail pending an appeal to the United States Supreme Court. The higher court will be asked to pass upon the constitutionality of the requirement that he answer the questions and produce the papers.

This involves the right of the Federal Grand Jury to conduct the investigation under the Sherman anti trust law.

QUEEN CITY TOBACCO COMPANY'S NEW OFFER.

The following notice has been issued by the Queen City Tobacco Co. to jobbers, regarding drop shipments:

"Until further notice, we will bill Red Devil drop shipments from factory to your customers, in 100 pound quantities as 90 pounds; and 60 pound quanties as 55 pounds, freight paid. This will net you the full profit on the goods, and we trust that you will find it to your advantage to make this known to your trade."



—The American Tobacco Company has declared a dividend of 1½ per cent on its preferred stock, payable July 1.

CAN'T REDEEM TOBACCO BAGS.

No Traffic on Boxes or Bags That Have Been Removed From Factory.

Washington, D. C., June 10.

According to a decision just handed down by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, manufacturers can no longer offer to redeem empty tobacco bags by the payment of a half cent each, even if the purpose in securing them is to destroy them. The decision which was rendered as a result of a letter to the Commissioner, read as follows:

SIR:—This office is in receipt of your letter of the 3d instant, Inclosing a 1 ounce package of ——— smoking tobacco put up by the ——— Company, factory No. —, your district, to which is attached, by pasting across one side so that it can be easily detached, a "sticker" on which it is desired to have printed "This empty bag worth one-half cent each at any dealer all this year, the purpose, as stated by the manufacturer, being to have the dealers receiving these empty bags redeem them at one half cent each and then destroy them, as they are not intended to be returned to the factory, or to be re-used; and you desire to know whether there is any reason why this is not permissible.

In reply, you are advised that traffic in statutory boxes or bags which have been removed from the factory, and which have contained cigars or tobacco upon which the tax has been paid, is prohibited by section 3455 of the Revised Statutes, from which I quote so much as relates to this subject as follows:

Whenever any person sells, gives, purchases, or receives any box, barrel, bag, vessel, package, wrapper, cover, or envelope of any kind, stamped, branded, or marked in any way so as to show that the contents or intended contents thereof have been duly inspected, or that the tax thereon has been paid, or that any provision of the internal revenue laws has been complied with, or whether such stamping. branding, or marking may have been a duly authorized act, or may be false and counterfeit, or otherwise without authority of law, said box. barrel, bag, vessel, package, wrapper, cover, or envelope being empty, or containing any thing else than the contents which were therein when said articles had been so lawfully stamped, branded, or marked by an officer of the revenue, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than fifty nor more than five hundrd dollars. * * *

It was the evident purpose of this law to prevent the accumulation in the hands of any person of empty boxes, bags, wrappers, etc., which have contained tax paid products and which still contain the stamp (although it may have been broken) the caution notice or any of the marks or brands purporting to show that any provision of the internal revenue laws has been complied with in respect to such emptied packages, and to guard against the fraudulent re-use of such emptied packages.

The use of empty ——— tobacco bags as proposed by the ——— Company would be regarded as a very dangerous practice and as being clearly in violation of the law, and you will so advise them.

The regulations No. 8 (pp. 44 and 45) permit manufacturers of tobacco to place within their statutory packages of tobacco or snuff small advertising cards. coupons, certificates, paper bands, circulars, trade mark tin tags, and trade mark strips of inappeciable size and weight intended as an advertisement of their business, and which concern the manufacture and sale of their tobacco and snuff, and no other business, provided the manufacturer s name and address and registered factory number shall appear on each card, coupon, or certificate placed within a statutory package; and as further provided on page 25, such advertising matter will not be prohibited although intended to be returned to the manufacturer, or to some person designated by him on the coupon, and exchanged for other articles, provided the distribution of the prize article does not depend upon the event of a lottery.

The company mentioned will be required to bring their advertising matter within the scope of the law and the regulations as above outlined.

REVENUE SHAKE-UP IN BOSTON.

Small Dealers Guilty of Refilling Will be Wiped Out of Existence.

Boston, Mass., June 12.

The Boston revenue officials are inaugurating a campaign directed against crooked traffic in cigars and cigarettes by small dealers which they believe is going on in this section. Several arrests will probably be made in the near future. Collector Gill and Internal Revenue Agent Kincaid being in charge of the movement.

Penalties have been assessed thick and fast of late, but this has not been sufficient to stop illicit trade. Smaller dealers are selling in boxes which formerly contained the products of reliable companies cigars of the cheapest make. Many of the popular brands of cigars have been counterfeited by smaller dealers, and in the North End some of the peddlers have had the effrontery to sell as popular 10 cent cigars, unboxed goods which they have bought for 80 cents a hundred.

The commonest violation of the law with which the agents have to deal is carelessness and ignorance of smaller manufacturers in the cancellation of stamps. The stamps and the boxes are to be destroyed when the box is empty, and the failure to do this by larger dealers has made it possible for the boxes to get into the hands of dishonest smaller dealers. The box is then refilled with a cheaper grade of cigars and sold at the regular price of good goods.

In the North End it is alleged that there are several "still" cigar factories running without being registered at the collector's office. These "stills" supply peddlers and the small grocery stores with cigars in bundles, which are never boxed and stamped with the revenue stamp as required by law. Many of these cigars find their way into boxes formerly filled with high grade cigars, and are sold at stands in the district.

Some of the small cigar factories in the district are also charged with complicity with peddlers in their efforts to defraud government.

What is said of cigars is also true of cigarettes. Different brands of Egyptian cigarettes are counterfeited, and old boxes filled with the inferior brands.

The smaller dealers are the only violators of the law, as the larger companies are never penalized. On the contrary the larger dealers are after the smaller fry tooth, and nail, and often furnish important evidence.

The penalty for selling, buying or refilling stamped empty cigar boxes is a fine of not less than $100, or imprisonment for one year. The penalty for not cancelling stamps is a fine of $50, or imprisonment for six months.

Collector Gill said that the office had treated the less important violators of law with great leniency in the past. The penalties for violations have been assessed, and the violators of the law let go without criminal prosecution.

"It will be the policy of the office hereafter to deal most severely with the box stuffer and refiller," he said:

"Leniency in many of these cases teaches the men nothing, and after raising the money to pay the penalty, they go right to work again to violate the law. In the future we are going to prosecute the cases, and have the offenders given a good stiff term.

"Lesser violations of the law are to be stopped as well, and we are going to see that customers shall get what they pay for in the cigar and tobacco line."

NORTH AND SOUTH CAROLINA CROPS

Of Interest to Buyers Who Deal in Palmetto State.

Richmond, Va., June 12.

Farmers from the tobacco growing sections of North and South Carolina report crops to be in favorable condition. Although they have suffered from rain in certain sections, the North Carolina crop has increased 25 per cent.

W. C. Scott, of Drake's Branch, Va., gives out a report on the condition of the tobacco crop in South Carolina, which will prove of interest to buyers of this city, who frequently go to the Palmetto State to purchase the weed. Some of the South Carolina tobacconists write as follows:

B. B. Anderson, Fairbuff: "In this immediate section the crop is about doubled over last year's. The weather has been very unfavorable, raining nearly every day; the crop is very grassy."

D. K. McDuffie, Mullins: "I am holding up to my estimate, that the crop will be 33⅓ per cent of the 1903 crop, or about 30 per cent increase over the last one. The tobacco has not been worked until this week on account of the wet weather. I believe the tobacco is being better taken care of than any other crop. I see fields of cotton looking like fields of oats and grass. Corn is three feet high and has not been plowed for the first time."

Mr. Scott says: "Taking these letters, I estimate the increase for the South Carolina crop to be 30 per cent over that of last season, about 40 per cent of the big crop in 1903. We sold in South Carolina in 1902 about 22,000,000 pounds, in 1903 about 42,000,000 pounds, and in 1904 about 11,000,000 pounds. I estimate the next crop to be about 16,000,000 pounds.

MORRIS S. WISE, EDITOR TRADE-MARK RECORD DIES.

He Had Been in Poor Health for Some Time and the End Was Not Entirely Unexpected. He Was an Important Man in the Tobacco Trade.

MORRIS S. WISE.

The trade lost an important man last Thursday, by the death on that day of Morris S Wise, of the law firm of Wise & Lichtenstein, who publish the "Trade-mark Record." Mr. Wise had been in poor health for some time, and the end was not entirely unexpected. He had been able to come to his office but seldom, of late, remaining at his home in Bayshore, L I., where his death occurred.

Mr. Wise was very widely known, and not only respected for his ability, but universally liked because of his genial qualities. He was a valuable man, and the trade will miss him very decidedly.

Morris S. Wise was born fifty-five years ago in New York, in which city he received his education. At the age of eighteen he entered the law office of Boardman & Boardmen, as a clerk. He also read law, and was admitted to the bar about four years later. In 1873 he formed the firm of Wise & Jacoby.

After two years spent in this connection, Mr. Wise practiced law by himself until about 1880, when he formed another firm, Wise, Jaros & Mayer. Mr. Jaros finally retired from this firm, Mr. Mayer died, and S. K. Lichtenstein, who was in the employ of the firm at the time, was taken into partnership, under the present firm name.

Mr. Wise founded the "Trade mark Record" and acted as its editor. He was a member of several social and commercial organizations and had wide connections. He left a wife, a daughter and a son, the last being a member of the firm, The funeral took place on Sunday.

JOTTINGS FROM BOSTON.

What is Happening Among the Trade in New England.

Boston, Mass., June 12.

There was no material change in business last week, the weather being very changeable. One day was very cold here, in fact not more than 200 miles from here in the State of New Hampshire, the white mountain section was visited by quite a downfall of snow. Yesterday the temperature was 82 degrees, and the crowds hastened to the near-by summer resorts.

It is understood that the cutting in prices on the American Tobacco Co.'s plugs and cut plugs to the retailers, will end tomorrow, and these tobaccos will be advanced to their old price. McGreenery & Manning's salesmen are pushing the sale of the new brands of cigars of which their firm recently became distributors, such as Anna Held and Buck cigars, two brands manufactured by the American Tobacco Co.

JACKSON THE GREAT 10¢

There are many rumors going around to the effect that a large independent tobacco concern doing business here, has been purchased by the trust.

Tom. Allen, of the Allen Tobacco Co., New York, spent two days here this week and went the rounds in company with Ed. Leader, their local representative. The Allen Tobacco Co. has come up with a new package goods, similar to the Buffo Grand, only the cigars are made without heads, the title is Tellmeall, 12 for twenty cents.

John Phillips, cigarmaker here, has filed a petition to go through bankruptcy; liabilities $401, and no assets.

James Greatorex, a Scotchman who keeps a tailor store at 54 Leveret' street, was before Judge Parmenter, on complaint of Patrolman McDevitt, of Division 1. He alleged that on Monday night the defendant broke into the store of Joseph W. Higgins, 212 Hanover street, and stole 1,000 cigars and 25 French briar pipes, all valued at about $110. The case was adjourned until June 15.

The Cigar Factory Strippers' Union donated $10 in aid of the striking collar starchers, of Troy, New York. The Cigarmakers Union 99 also donated $25 for the same cause.

An outing took place yesterday at Apollo Garden, by the Cigarmakers Union, for the benefit of John Harrington, a member, who is at present an inmate of the Consumptives' Home, at Rutland, Vt.

Asa P. French, of Abington, has followed up his announcement of his candidacy for attorney general with preparations for a fight that will place him as an active man on the list of those who aspire to be the successor of Attorney-General Parker. It has been reported that the tobacco trust was preparing to defeat him. Mr. French has been fighting the trust in his county carrying on a long war that has been watched with interest in other parts of the State.

Sam. Marcuson, with the American Tobacco Co., is kept quite busy booking Hassan orders here which are taking well.

BEN ALI.

—The Queen City Tobacco Co., of Cincinnati, has increased its capital from $50,000 to $100,000, consisting of 500 shares at $100 each. F. W. Gailbraith, Jr., is President and J. W. Pinkerton is Secretary.

CUBAN INTERNAL REVENUE TAX.

Must Not Ordinarily Be Added to Invoice Prices.

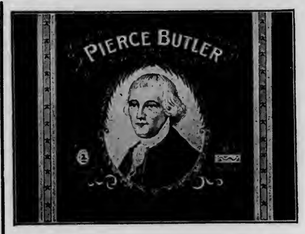
Washington, D. C., June 10.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury James B. Reynolds has decided that the Cuban internal revenue tax of $1 per thousand on cigars should not be added to invoice prices unless it appears that the amount of such tax is customarily actually added to the export price thereof upon the sale of home consumption.

The decision is issued as the result of a letter to that department, and reads as follows:

SIR:—Referring to your letter of the 11th ultimo, relative to the addition to make market value, under T. D. 25516 of August 3, 1904, of $2 per thousand upon cigars imported from Cuba, to cover the internal revenue tax levied by the government of that country on such cigars and remitted upon exportation, I have to inform you that it appears upon further investigation, and from evidence submitted to the United States General Appraisers upon reappraisement proceedings, that in many instances such internal revenue tax is not in fact charged to the purchaser of such cigars for consumption in Cuba, but is paid by the manufacturer out of his profits for the purpose of keeping such brands of cigars on display in the home market, and also to dispose of cigars which, by reason of color or roughness of the wrapper, would not so readily find a market in this country, the manufacturer's price for home consumption, tax paid, of such cigars remaining the same as the price for export.

You are, therefore, advised that such internal revenue tax should not be added to the invoice prices of such cigars to make market value, unless it should appear from information in your possession, or from consular notations on the invoice, that it is customary to add such internal revenue tax to the export prices of the particular brand or kind of cigar covered by such invoice upon sale thereof for home consumption.



The Secretary of State has been requested to instruct the American consul general at Havana to make consular notations upon all invoices certified by him covering cigars upon a sale of which for home consumption the amount of such internal revenue tax is added to the export prices.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT TOBACCO CONTRACT IS AWARDED.

The French government contract for 1,500,000 pounds of American leaf tobacco has been awarded to G. Haufer & Co., of Paris. The American leaf tobacco required by the French government, which holds unto itself a monopoly of tobacco manufacturing in France, is mainly very dark tobacco, some of which is bought on the Richmond market, some on the Louisville and Cincinnati markets.

A. B. Eddins represents Hufer & Co. in Richmond, Va., and will buy for them the Virginia grown tobacco necessary to fill the French order.

It is understood that the board of governors of the Tobacco Association of the United States, of which T. M. Carrington, of Richmond, is President, will hold their annual meeting at Old Point, July 4th-6th.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The injury to the tobacco crop resulting from heavy winds, dry weather and frost has been nearly corrected, so far at least as the missing plants are concerned, and in fact much that was almost a total failure. A large part of the transplanting has been already done by the large growers, and by some of the smaller growers, although these as a rule need to wait until the large growers are through. The people have outgrown transplanting by hand, and as they do not possess a setter they have to wait for a machine and team

Our correspondents write:

Conway, Mass.: "Transplanting of tobacco is progressing very well, although some pieces have had to be set three times. What has started is growing well, and will be ready for hoeing this week. Very few cut worms are troubling the plants this year."

Bradstreet, Mass.: "Tobacco setting is proceeding slowly. There is considerable complaint of wire worms, also cut worms. Tobacco plants are in demand. It is feared there will be quite a shortage of plants."

East Deerfield, Mass.: "No tobacco has been set here yet. A few will set this week, but more next week. Tobacco beds are mostly very poor. Several growers will buy all of their plants."

North Hatfield, Mass.: "Several of the large growers have finished setting their tobacco, and are all ready to start the hoeing. Some have already begun to hoe. Mr. Oscar Belden & Sons have hoed out two pieces. R. M. Swift has an acre or two hoed. Tobacco is looking very well, considering the weather we have had. This week we have had light showers, and a very fine mist fills the air. We need lots of it."—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The buying movement is dwindling so that scattering transactions embrace most of the business being done in local markets. But few buyers are yet in the field, while growers are extremely busy preparing for the new crop soon to be set.

There is inquiry for old stock, but sales are largely of the cheaper grades. Good binder stock is in demand, though the supply with local packers is none too large. A. Wallach, of Chicago, has purchased a hundred cases, or such a matter, from local packers during the week.

The weather of the week has improved the prospects of the new crop by bringing along the plant beds so that transplanting can now go forward as rapidly as the fields are prepared to receive the plants. This work will be well under way in all sections the coming week.

Our receipts this week were 1,259 hhds, (our receipts include the Association tobacco); offerings on the breaks, 591 hhds; total sales, 613 hhds.

The market was firm to strong on all desirable sorts—common nondescript leaf was a shade easier, and lugs were rather stronger. But few lugs appear upon the breaks, most of them being bought privately and held on speculation.

About 90 per cent of the proposed crop has been planted, with generally a good stand The weather is now hot and dry, and good rains are needed to finish the planting and replanting, which may come at any time.

National Cigar Clipper

It Clips a V in Ends of Cigars---

A LITTLE vest pocket instrument for the smoker that puts a V in ends of cigars—neatly—accurately—without breaking wrapper, no matter how dry or brittle the cigar is.

It doesn't bite and pull and squeeze; but cuts "shear ways," the common sense way—a way that can't dull the the cutter and disfigure the point of cigar.

Design is elegant—nothing like it on the market anywhere. Finest tool steel—nickel plated, and polished.

Makes an effective and lasting piece of advertising for the cigar manufacturer and distributer because of its ability to attract attention—its utility and durability.

The dealer can't put a better selling novelty before a smoker. Hits two ways,—snug profit when sold—fetching advertising with name on.

Sample 15 cents. Dozen lots without ad. $1.25.

Gross lots without ad. $14.00; with ad. if not more than three lines, three eighth of an inch long, $16.50.

GERMANS ARE CLOSE-MOUTHED.

Government Warns Manufacturers Not to Give Out Trade News.

Washington, D. C., June 17.

Writing from Frankfort, Germany, where he is stationed, U. S. Consul-General Guenther addresses interesting information to the Department of Commerce and Labor regarding the extreme cautiousness of the Germans in their manufacturing affairs.

He says: The chamber of commerce of Sorau, Prussia, recently addressed a communication to the manufacturers and selling agents of that district in which it warns them against giving information of the condition of the markets and of the manufactring interests in their reports to the press, etc. The circular letter says in part:

The reports in our technical and trade papers are most assiduously studied abroad, and by representatives of our foreign compecttors residing in Germany, especially by the consuls of the United States.

The articles published in our journals and trade papers should not state selling prices of our manufactured articles, how their cost compares with that of similar goods produced in competing countries, of what ingredient the articles are composed, what the tariff rates are, etc. Such detailed descriptions, which often expose even the secrets of manufacturing, form an excellent weapon in the hands of our competitors and serve to injure German business interests. All public reports should refrain from giving details. The chamber is careful not to mention such in its annual reports. No complaints about bad business should be published, as this is hurtful to our export trade.

We therefore beg of you to promote German business interests by (1) Spreading this warning; (2) abstaining from giving publicity to any details which should only be confidentially communicated to the proper authorities; (3 urging this upon your employees who may have intercourse with newspapers, and (4) keeping your factories shut to foreigners or strangers.

"How do these German chambers of commerce which represent the manufacturing and commercial elements of their country reconcile this illiberal spirit with the fact that Germany sends individuals, official delegates, and even ministers of state to the United States to inspect our factories, for the purpose of obtaining knowledge and benefitting German interests?" asks Consul Guenther.

FIRST LAND TRIED BY GOVERNMENT FOR TOBACCO IS SOLD.

Houston, Tex., June 16.

Information has been received at the Southern Pacific headquarters that the remainder of Redfields at Nacogdoches, the famous tobacco lands owned by Col. S. F. B. Morse, had been sold. This was the first land to be tried for the raising of fine cigar tobacco by the United States Agricultural Department. It is land that Alice Webb Duke exploited and over which there was so much talk.

The land was purchased by Ohio people who will develop it at once. It is learned that a good price was obtained for the land. There was about 800 acres of the land left.

ACREAGE OF TOBACCO IS GENERALLY INCREASED THIS YEAR.

This Is So For All Types of Cigar Tobacco, For Burley and Regie. Virginia Dark District Acreage Remains the Same, But Old Bright Belt Decreases.

Washington, D. C., June 17.

The Crop Reporter has issued its annual exhaustive report on the acreage of tobacco in 1905 which statement relates to the acreage planted, in tobacco during the present year, and is based upon the information obtained from some 1,200 special tobacco correspondents in various tobacco sections of the country to whom special letters of inquiry were sent.

Some of it, principally concerning cigar leaf tobacco is reproduced here, and bears out reports that have already been printed. It is not easy, however, to ascertain the probable acreage with accuracy thus early in the season, and this year it is especially difficult as the season has generally been backward and transplanting late.

In general, it may be stated that there will be an increase in acreage for all types of cigar tobacco, for Burley, and for the Regie or dark tobacco grown in Kentucky, Tennessee, and a small section of Indiana. In the Virginia Sun-cured and the Virginia Dark districts the acreage remains about the same as last year. In the Virginia Bright district and the old Bright belt of North Carolina, the acreage will be decreased to some extent. In the new Bright belt of North Carolina and South Carolina, the acreage will be increased, the increase in South Carolina to be quite large.

In Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, a considerable increase in acreage is indicated, but reports from other tobacco growing counties of the State are too meager to base any statement as to acreage upon. Reports from some points state that scarcity of labor may result in the planting of corn on ground intended for tobacco. Some damage has been done to the seed beds by frost, and in a few sections a scarcity of plants and a consequent high price is reported. Many farmers are hesitating as to whether to plant binders or narrow leaf Connecticut.

As a whole, a small decrease in acreage is reported for Wisconsin, Dane county, the largest producing section, showing at this time an apparent falling off of at least 10 per cent. Reports show, however, an increase of from 5 to 10 per cent in the acreage in Rock and Vernon counties. The causes assigned are cold weather, excessive rains, high wages for farm labor, poor markets, and the fact that in many places sugar beets are being raised on ground which formerly produced tobacco.

From Georgia and Florida, where the shade grown Sumatra is grown, principally in Decatur county, Ga., and Gadsden county, Fla., complaints are received of cut worms and other injurious insects, but reports indicate that with no unforeseen calamity this district will this year produce the largest crop ever grown The present indications are for an increase in acreage of at least 30 per cent. The season has been unusually fine, and transplanting is over. Some reports show 95 per cent of the sun grown tobacco already contracted for at from 15 to 20 cents per pound.

HEAVY SEED GROWS BEST PLANT.

Bureau of Plant Industry Explains This Fact.

In a bulletin of the Connecticut State Station, A. D. Shamel, of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, calls attention to the fact that the most vigorous and productive tobacco plants can be obtained only by using the heaviest seeds.

This is partly because the heavy seed has the most perfect embryo or plantlet in it and the largest supply of available plant food to support the seeding until it has developed roots and leaves so as to feed itself.

One of the causes of freak tobacco plants—that is, such as top out prematurely or differ in shape and quality of leaf from the bulk of the crop—is the sowing of small and light seed. In a series of extensive experiments in the Connecticut Valley, the writer separated samples of seed of the varieties grown in this region into light, medium, and heavy grades. In all cases the small and light seed produced the earliest plants in the seed bed, and these plants when set in the field developed a large percentage of undesirable plants which are almost a total loss to the grower. * * * Heavy seed produces large, healthy, uniform, and well-developed plants. * * *

Many of the light and inferior seeds are of the same size as the heavy and desirable seeds, and the difference generally between large and small seed is slight, so that it is not possible to separate the desirable from the undesirable seed by screening with any kind of sieves.

The common method of water separation was found to be thoroughly unsatisfactory.

A seed separator making use of an air current was therefore made and was successfully used. This consisted of a glass tube 1 inch in diameter and 5 feet long, and a glass receptacle for holding the seed, having the diameter of the long glass tube, and so arranged with a finely woven wire screen in the bottom as to hold the seed in the receptable and at the same time freely admits a current of air directly into the seed. The top of this receptacle is fitted with a coupling into which the long glass tube can be set and held in place. The current of air is generated by a common foot bellows, and regulated with a valve.

The seed to be separated is poured into the receptacle usually about 1 to 2 ounces at a time, the glass tube set in place, and a current of air pumped into the seed. The largest seed and the chaff are first blown out of the tube, and next the small seed. Small seeds of the same character as the larger seeds have proportionally more surface than the larger; consequently the small as well as the light seed is removed by this machine. It is believed that machines constructed on this principle will be found satisfactory.

A large number of tobacco growers in Connecticut are this year following Mr. Shamel's advice to separate their seed and grow their tobacco only from the heaviest and best seeds they have.

BUTLER & BOSHER WIN OUT.

Protesting Manufacturers Are Given a Hearing, but Contract Holds.

Richmond, Va., June 16.

Notwithstanding the fact that the independent bidders for the contract to furnish the navy department its tobacco for this year protested against the award of the contract to Butler & Bosher of this city, and were given a hearing this week before the pay-master general of the navy and Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling, the firm mentioned will be allowed to fill the contract.

Junius Parker, counsel for the American Tobacco Co. and Mr. Butler of Butler & Bosher were at the hearing and had no remarks to make further than the brief which had previously been filed in their cause.

Of the protesting manufacturers, C. D. Larus, of Larus & Bro. Co., Hugh Campbell and E. P. Crump were present. These and the other independent bidders were greatly disappointed at the decision rendered as they claim they will have very little chance in the future, owing to the fact that under this ruling, the American Tobacco Co. will be able to enter thirty-five or forty bids by using its various companies. One man said at the close of the hearing:

"We submitted packages of tobacco manufactured by the P. Lorillard Co. and Butler & Bosher's brands, which had previously been manufactured by Butler & Bosher and recently the same brand manufactured by the P. Lorillard Co., showing that they were virtually under one control. Notwithstanding this, the acting secretary of the navy decided they were separate concerns and entitled to bid. He also held that the American Tobacco Co. is only a holding company."

The Old Salesman's Musings.

HOW MANY LIVE RETAILERS ARE THERE IN PHILADELPHIA?

In a large number of cities are Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Associations. Philadelphia has one which was organized between two and three years ago. It is not a member of the national association but it has a fair list of members which include some good workers. Just who those workers are it is not necessary to name here, as every one in the association will know.

Now, perhaps, some may think that it is not in the province of the old salesman to hand out knocks on retailers but he has been watching a certain existent condition of affairs for some time, and has lately heard a number of complaints from others. So let her go.

Let me state at the start off that there are some retailers in Philadelphia who haven't got enough initiative to lick a stamp. They will fall out of bed in the mornings, crawl into the store and loaf there all day, complaining bitterly of business and wondering what they have done to be so persecuted. Bah!

It was not a particularly hard matter to get retail dealers to join the association when it was started, for it sounded like a good thing. The idea of union, and working in a common cause, combining for protection and all that, seemed like a fine proposition and lots of dealers joined in and came to the first meetings. They came and sat around, and whether they expected gold ingots to be given out, I don't know, but they soon began to miss meetings and it would take a feast for the gods, the prospect of a scrap, or a bomb to bring out a representation.

This may be slightly exaggerated, but it was seldom indeed that any were present but the faithful little band that was doing all the work. And certain influential dealers in town who were approached to join refused because they said the members didn't think it was worth while attending their own meetings and it didn't look like a good game.

As far as that goes, it was up to those dealers to come in and show them how to do things, if they felt that way about it, but they didn't care to take that much trouble.

It just goes to show that Philadelphia dealers evidently don't care, or else are convinced that every man is better off going it alone and cutting prices. It appears to me, though, that if they were really convinced of this, they would do less kicking over no profits.

I will now produce what I think is very striking evidence of a wholesale lassitude that absolutely precludes the possibility of organization. Sometime ago, the retailers' association decided to make another effort to work up interest, and sent out a circular letter to the retail trade.

It offered several prizes to retailers who would sit down and write in good suggestions as to how to increase the membership of the association.

Let me state again, lest anybody should overlook the fact, that the association is a co operative organization formed purely for the universal good of the independent retailer. Such organizations in other trades have done wonders. The one in this trade in New York has done a tremendous lot.

The Philadelphia association, then, was paying dealers to suggest a way by which they could benefit themselves. Moreover it was submitting no problem that ought to have been difficult.

Nearly four thousand of these letters were sent out in this city. That means that practically the whole trade was covered. Now let me say it again Nearly four thousand of these letters were sent out.

Precisely one reply was received.

The letters were sent out two or three months ago, and there has been plenty of time for any man, however chary of ideas, to dig up some sort of a suggestion.

The man who did answer, certainly would seem to be wasting his talents in Philadelphia. It cannot be presumed that he is the only cigarist in the city who ever learned to write or that he is bribing all the others to remain out of the contest.

Perhaps if hundred dollar bills had been offered as prizes there would have been as many as three replies. I don't know, though. Three are a good many out of four thousand, and, a man isn't going to slave his life away getting up a whole letter, address and everything, and putting the stamp on it, and mailing it, unless he has to. The fellow with the store on the opposite corner wouldn't do it and there's no use being a sucker.

Meanwhile, the poor neglected prizes "remain uncalled for."

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

"I VE about made up my mind," said an enterprising cigarist the other day, "to start what I believe is a new scheme, this summer, and one which I am confident will be a success. I really thought of it, or at least got some idea of it, late last summer.

"It's this. You see my store is fixed so that it has a room directly in the rear. When my family lived here they used this room as part of the living quarters but since we moved out and they altered the dwelling part for business purposes, I have retained the room to keep part of the stock in, an ice cooler, two or three chairs, etc. It was these things that gave me the idea.

"I'm going to fix that room up into a lounging room. If I can get any comfortable mission furniture that doesn't cost too much, I'll fit the room out in that style. I'm going to have electric fans put in and have the place just as cool as anybody could want. It'll be like the back rooms of some of the saloons that make a specialty of summer trade and it is going to be so attractive that I expect I'll want to be in there all the time myself.

"There will be a few tables, matchsafes and ash trays, and I'm going to have a girl in attendance. This will necessitate my taking another little room in the rear of this one and in that room we're going to brew the best iced tea you ever tasted. Now do you sabe?

"Iced tea is the best summer beverage that was ever invented. It invigorates, and it actually cools, it's good for one's stomach and it's a delicious drink. I have taken the trouble to find out from a number of restaurants, that the habit is largely increasing and that those who try it for the first time, though they may say they don't like it, invariably ask for it again, and finally drink nothing else.

"I'm going to have a big placard outside the door with a thermometer on it, and some reading matter depicting the horrors and danger of heat prostration and then telling the readers that half an hour in my little cosy cooler will set them right, for three or four hours. Beside the thermomter will be a photograph of the room, fans and all for the benefit of those who have never been in yet.

"Now, how's that for a 'spider and the fly' frame-up. Only I'm a very benevolent spider. I'm not benevolent enough to run behind though, like I did last summer. Of course this will involve a good deal of expense, but if it works out all right, I may work it for tea and coffee in the winter.

"The iced tea game is the best though, for a whole lot of men who are thirsty go into a saloon and get beer or something stronger because they don't want to go up against a soda water fountain, for a number of reasons, one of which is that a man doesn't as a rule like soda water, and another that he likes to sit and smoke a few minutes while he is resting.

"No one who comes in my place will have to buy anything, but very few would take advantage of that fact. I'll charge ten cents for a glass of tea which, everything considered will be worth it, and I'll make a handsome profit. It won't be long before I'll have a regular list of business men who will make it a point to get around once or twice during the day and refresh themselves for a little while.

"And if there is a demand, I'll serve more stuff and go just as far as it is a money-making proposition.

"Yes sir, it's the scheme of a lifetime," concluded the dealer sanguinely, "and if I don't win out I'll give you my stock next fall."

On its face, the scheme does seem like a good one, and one which any dealer whose store has extra space, could put into operation with profit. There is a tremendous amount of drinking of iced drinks during a hot summer and men like a cool place to sit and smoke while they are drinking them. Much good could be done by judicious advertising of the proposition and as any novelty is bound to attract attention, there would be plenty to come in the first time. Whether they repeated, would depend on how comfortable they had been made.

THE BIRTH OF THE STOGIE.

"THE good little stogie, that willing economizer for those who haven't an educated palate," said a tobacconist, holding up one of the unhandsome little rolls, "had a rather curious origin. It is distinctly an American form of cigar making, and if it obtains in any other country was copied from our model. It was a good many decades ago, I think along about the time of the revolution, that it came into being. There is a strong grade of tobacco grown in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, near Conestoga, and the town was virtually supported by the freightage business to Philadelphia.

"The teamsters on the Conestoga wagons were fond of smoking their native Lancaster tobacco, but found it difficult to manage teams, pipes and heavily laden wagons at the same time. So they took to rolling up the natural leaf in forms roughly similar to the stogie of today. It was easy just to roll a few leaves together, twist them at the end, and the result made a smoke possible without very much trouble, such as that attending the pipe.

"Gradually the rolls were better made, and soon the strong smoke of the teamsters came to be known in Philadelphia, and in the West as far as Pittsburg. Men who liked such smokes began to place orders with the teamsters, and for want of a better name the cigars were known as Conestoga's, which soon came to the abbreviation of 'stoga's.' and the transition from that to 'stogie' was very easily made. The wagoners and Lancaster people generally called them 'rat tails,' however, and by that name they are known in the town and county of their origin even to this day."

—The four story building at Broadway and Wall street, New York, now leased by the United Cigar Stores Co., was recently sold for $700,000.

WHERE F. H. POWELL'S "OXUS" CIGAR IS DISTRIBUTED.

The above picture represents the store at 126 Federal street, Camden, which is headquarters for the famous Oxus, manufactured by F. H. Powell. The cigar is widely known for its excellence as a five center, and those who smoke it usually refuse everything else. As will be noticed, Mr. Powell has an eagle eye for window displays, and his place, on this account, is one of the most attractive in Camden. This cigar has a good sale in Philadelphia.

A LITTLE TALK ON CIGARS.

THERE are fads in cigars, just as well as there are in hats, cravats and wearing apparel, said a well known cigar dealer today.

"Long cigars of the panatela shape are the stuff right now," he said. "A year ago if you wanted to be in it you had to smoke a club house shape, one of those big fat cigars that were so cumbersome."

"What is the weight of an average cigar?" queried the reporter.

"It all depends upon the tobacco. One cigar that sells for ten cents, weighs a quarter of an ounce, while another exactly the same size and price, weighs half an ounce."

In answer to the question of whether the trend was toward bettter or poorer cigars, the dealer stated that he believed the trade on five cent cigars had increased recently. He accounted for this by the effect of the anti cigarette law. He stated that a cigarette smoker did not want a Key West or clear Havana cigar, but a mild smoke that he could inhale readily and thus bought a domestic five cent cigar.

Speaking about the peculiarities of the custom of the store, the dealer remarked that he did not have over half a dozen patrons who invariably smoked the same cigar. He stated that the ordinary smoker wants a change occasionally, and while each has his preference, he is fickle to that cigar at times. It is not because the cigar is different, but because his taste becomes depraved. A few days' change and he will return to his first love rejoicing.

THERE is a particular way in which all dealers can appeal directly to the people who pass their stores, by the nature of the window display. It is evidently starting out to be a hot summer, when men will fag along the streets gazing lustfully at every cake of ice they spy. Anything to remind them of something cool.

The dealer wants to take advantage of this fact by arranging winter picture scenes. Put in a Santa Claus figure, a toy church and house or two, which can be bought cheap, get some scenic snow and sprinkle it around, and if you like, hang some snow scenes higher up in the window. You can add to the effect by getting some newspapers, printed the preceding winters, cutting out the blizzard and "frozen to death" accounts. Capping all this could be a sign something like this:

With Our Electric Fans
WE FEEL ALMOST LIKE WINTER
Inside This Store.

And under this you should announce a good leader that you are offering. Of course your window dressing can't do more than attract attention to the store, but on a hot day many men will go anywhere to cool off and stop mopping.

PROFITS GUARDED BY SYSTEM

Costly and embarrassing mistakes mean loss of customers and loss of trade. You should insure against mistakes. A careful customer gave the following reason for preferring to trade with a merchant who uses a National Cash Register:

"Mr. Hardy is so anxious to avoid mistakes that he pays a money penalty to any customer who does not receive a printed receipt from his cash register for the amount of each purchase. With each sale he gives this printed check on which he announces to pay this penalty.

"He advertises special bargains on this check. This gives me notice of sales I would otherwise overlook."

A National Cash Register insures your profits by enforcing carefulness and accuracy among your clerks. This prevents disputes and increases trade.

Let our representative call and explain our system to you.

SHORT TALES OF DRAMATIC INDIANA—No. 3

It is after midnight. This time the scene is in the business section of Indianapolis. Occasionally a minion of the law passes along, idly swinging his club and tramping heavily for the company of the echoes.

Now there is an interval. The rounds man will not be along again for an hour. Up the street come three men. Each wears a loose rain coat and wide felt hat. In appearance they might be Sabbath school superintendents.

They walk easily, even carelessly, yet there is an indefinable air of purpose about them.

As they approach a particular corner they look sharply about them. Not a soul is in sight. They turn into the side street, which is darker, and continue up perhaps a block and a half. They stop directly before a store door. A drug store.

Their appearance is no longer indifferent. Their faces are set and grim. One man produces a jimmy from his pocket, while the others draw revolvers.

Are these men burglars? Merciful heavens, perhaps they are murderers! In the name of Indianapolis, where are her policemen?

But no, it cannot be. For see, the man with the jimmy is turning to another and saying:

"Before we go further, Brother Palmleaf, wont you lead us in a brief word of prayer on the success of our mission?"

They kneel, there are a few words of exhortation in a low tone, they are on their feet again, the jimmy is applied, the door flies open and the men are inside the store.

Brother Palmleaf, evidently familiar with the surroundings steps quickly to the wall and flashes on the electric light. A startled, sleepy clerk is just emerging from his night couch behind the screen.

At sight of the intruders he gasps with fright, but pluckily runs for the cash drawer. He is looking into the mouth of a gleaming revolver.

"Up with your hands, brother," is the stern command.

Reluctantly he obeys and is soon bound and trussed up on a chair. Then these strange marauders proceed. With practiced eyes they go through all the stock, in the show cases, through the drawers, back of all the bottles, cans, in in the soda water fountain, even down cellar they pursue their relentless search. They have broken open the cash drawer but after a glance leave its contents untouched.

At last they stand, looking helplessly at the clerk, chagrin in their countenances.

Suddenly Brother Palmler catches sight of a cabinet of pills that had somehow escaped the search. He notes a flicker of the clerk's eyelid. He springs to the cabinet. It contains remedies for every malady in the world, prepared by the distinguished savant, Dr. Bunyon.

HAVANA MARKET NOT ACTIVE, BUT CHANGE EXPECTED.

If Receipts from the Country Continue to Increase There Will Soon be Sufficient Quantity on Hand for Buyers to Select. Fifty Per Cent More Already Received Here This Year Than Last.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, June 12, 1905.

Last week in the Havana market was not so active, as the number of buyers in town was limited, but it would not cause surprise to see a complete change here in July, and if the weekly receipts from the country of the new Vuelta Abajo and Partido continue to arrive in steadily increasing numbers of bales, there will be a sufficient quantity on hand for the buyers to make a selection.

Comparing the 1905 crop with that of 1904, it is readily seen that we have received nearly 50 per cent more already this year than at the same period of the previous year, which favorable result is owing to the early commencement of the packings in the country, as the rainy season set in fully one month sooner than usual.

Of Vuelta and Semi Vuelta we have received nearly double the number of bales, while of Partido we are over 30 per cent short in quantity this year. As principally the temperature—or light—part of Vuelta Abajo has come to market, this style of leaf will be ready for working quite early, say in July and August.

Of Partido there is a small proportion of temprano growth which can be worked at once, while the balance may need more time to cure thoroughly. A few sample bales of new Remedios have arrived and denote a good, heavy quality, althought it is stated that there will be enough of the lighter styles later on. The escojidas are just as backward as last year, as the weekly receipts from the country indicate, so it will be July before any quantity may come to market; and as this class of tobacco is unsuitable for early working in the United States, there is no necessity for buyers of these styles to come here before November or December, particularly as there are no old lots for sale in first hands.

As an indication, however, of how prices may rule, it can be stated that for 3d Capaduras one seller was asking a figure 50 per cent higher than last year, and as the new tobacco is bound to shrink heavily in weight the cost to the buyer would be still more enhanced. It needs two parties to make a bargain, though, so it remains to be seen whether the American dealers and manufacturers are willing later on, for the sake of obtaining Remedios tobacco, to pay near the asking figures or not.

Some party was ready to make a bet at heavy odds, however, that by December 1, all suitable Vuelta Abajo and Partido tobacco (for the clear Havana industy) would be no longer in first hands. This prediction was based on the belief that the crop would prove to be from 25 to 30 per cent shorter than last year, owing to the personal inspection made by this party on going over the whole Vuelta Abajo district.

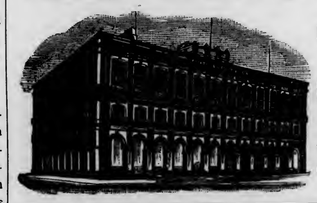
Sales

last week were 3,223 bales, or 2,167 of Vuelta Abajo, 700 of Partidos, and 356 bales of Remedios. The American buyers took 2,423, the local cigar and cigarette manufacturers 674, and European exporters 126 bales.

Buyers Come and Go.

Arrivals—Leonard Friend, of Friend & Co., Manuel Alvarez, of Manuel Alvarez, New York; M. Garcia, of Perfecto Garcia & Bro., Tampa and Chicago; Salvador Rodriguez, of Salvador Rodriguez, Tampa and New York.

Departures—Domingo Villamil and Arturo Ruiz, for New York; Edgar J. Stachelburg, for Tampa; A. Kaffenburgh, for Boston (omitted last week).



Havana Cigar Manufacturers

are still lacking orders in sufficient quantities to create the longed for revival in the factories, and there are but few exceptions to be noted amongst the independent manufacturers, who work high class Vuelta Abajo leaf and have thus secured a reputation of excellence, which the smokers of the world are quick to notice.

The article in The Tobacco World of May 31st headed "Cigars Deteriorating in London" was commented upon in independent manufacturing circles as not being quite explicit, as the New York Herald of May 21st stated that the retailers in London blamed the inferiority of the imported cigars upon the trust, which also has cut down the profits of the retailers by raising the prices to such an extent that the consnmer would not notice it. The trust has made a heavy purchase of 650 bales of the shade grown Partido leaf, besides which it is said to be in treaty for more wrappers of this nature.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Edgar J. Stachelberg, when seen by your correspondent, was enthusiastic about the good qualities of the new Vuelta Abajo crop, and while he stated that he had purchased more than 4,000 bales before he left, other parties claim that the firm of M. Stachelberg must have bought fully 5,000 bales in all. Don Edgardo pronounced the shade grown Partido leaf as not very good. The Fama Universal ought to do a splendid business this year, with Don Edgardo's experience as a connoisseur of the best grown leaf and his thorough acquaintance with the secrets of blending different vegas, in order to get the most aromatic but mild smoke. Other manufacturers may succeed in making equally good cigars but none will do better.

Manuel Lazo was again the heaviest sellers last week, as he disposed of 1,500 bales of Vuelta Abajo. Don Manuel has just returned from a trip to the Vuelta Abajo, and very likely will leave again to invest more heavily in this year's crop.

Fecundo Arguelles, who just left here, has also commenced to purchase quite liberally of the new Vuelta Abajo crop, So Arguelles, Lopez & Co. will have a choice stock of leaf on hand for the coming season.

Luis Marz turned over 650 bales of his high class shade grown wrappers.

Arturo Ruiz, who left on Saturday, secured from 200 to 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Rz. Bautista & Co. sold 467 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido new crop.

Leonard Friend has been seen all over the market and doubtless must have already purchased some goods, although your correspondent could not get particulars yet.

Loeb Nunez Havana Co. disposed of 306 bales of Remedios to Northern customers.

Manuel Alvarez has bought 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo since his arrival.

Grau, Planas & Co, made several transactions to local manufacturers of 100 bales of Remedios and Partidos, old crop goods.

Garcia & Co. are making an escojida in Las Ovas among which is one extra choice vega which will yield about 350 bales when complete. This is destined for R. A. Bachia & Co., of New York. Don Manual Garcia returned this week from the fishing excursion to Key West, via New York, looking the picture of health, and ready to regale his listeners with a story about the big tarpon and sharks which he caught while in the yacht of John Wardlow off Key West.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. sold 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

One wrench and the door is open. Anxious eyes search the interior. The contents are tumbled out regardless. Poor Dr. Bunyon!

Ha!

Hist!

The first from the three, the other from the clerk. Brother Palmleaf snatches forth a little box. He passes it to the others. They shake their heads in sorrowful but righteous indignation.

"We need no more evidence than this" says the leader. On the label of the box flare out these damning words:

"10 Cubeb Cigarettes 10. Guaranteed to relieve all cases of asthma, hay fever, or colds with like symptoms."

The clerk stirs miserably in his chair. A gleam of defiance lights his eye.

"We never thought you'd look there," he hisses.

"Let us again give thanks for the success of the Anti cigarette League," says Brother Palmleaf.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 19, 1905.

The trade has at last reached the belief that the Federal Grand Jury means business. The summary way in which Secretary McAllister, secretary of the American Tobacco Company, was adjudged guilty of contempt of court, as told in last week's paper, for refusing to show his company's books, appears much more significant than did the same action in regard to Edward F. Hale

The purpose was to learn what sort of an arrangement exists between the American Tobacco Co., and the Imperial Tobacco Co, of England. Mr. McAllister refused to produce the papers but would answer no questions, on the advice of his counsel, Nicoll, Anabel & Lindsay, who took the ground that the witness's constitutional rights would thus be violated.

The grand jury duplicated its action in the case of Hale, by going before Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court and the latter after receiving another refusal from McAllister fined him $5 and committed him into the nominal custody of the U. S. Marshall, Application was made for a writ of habeas corpus which was denied, and McAllister was compelled to furnish $1,000 bail before U. S. Commissioner Shields pending an appeal to the United States Supreme Court which will settle how much investigating a Federal Grand Jury can do under the Sherman act.

Until this is definitely decided, nothing much can be done, but should the court decide that the books must be produced, the trade will expect some lively doings for awhile.

The Exposition Committee of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers Association of this city have sent out a very handsome prospectus of the Tobacco Show to be held in October together with some other literature calculated to draw the favorable attention of the manufacturer. The main pamphlet on the outside bears a picture of Grand Central Palace, where the affair will be held, and is illustrated by large halftones. The reading matter is as follows:

As a result of the competitive strife in all lines of business, especially those of a character where the connection between manufacturer and consumer is so vital, yearly public expositions have become a necessity, and have proven of vast importance and benefit. Where advertising is so essential a factor, especially have pleasing results been obtained.

Recognizing the value of such a method of publicity as being almost indispensable for manufacturers and dealers alike, a Tobacco Industrial Exposition will be held in Grand Central Palace, New York City, during October, 1905.

The Grand Central Palace is one of the most spacious exposition halls in New York City and is located at a point easily reached by all surface and elevated lines, and is practically within a stone's throw of the Grand Central Depot. The building has every convenience, and on this occasion will be fitted out in a way that will insure all requirements in the way of edibles, etc.

It will be held under the auspices of the New York Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association.

The purpose of the association, in holding this exposition, is further to carry out their aim, which, as is generally known, is to protect the rights of all independent retail dealers, as well as the independent manufacturers, and to advance their interests at all times.

It is simply another advance step on the part of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association to effect a closer relation between manufacturer, retailer and customer. The Association believes that in order to be successful it is obviously necessary for the manufacturer to keep in close touch with the consumer, and that through such an exhibition as hereinbefore stated, this object will be brought nearer to a satisfactory realization.

It is clearly an impossibility for the individual manufaturer or retailer to attract public attention so effectively as can allied capital—millionaire combinations—who use daily half page advertisements in the most expensive newspaper mediums.

The Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, through the proposed exposition, affords an economical opportunity for the aggressive, independent manufacturer to make effective display of his goods and verify their merits.

Past experience has proven in New York City, as well as other large cities, that such expositions, of whatsoever trades, have drawn large crowds. There is every assurance that the Tobacco Industrial Exposition will be no exception. Conservative estimates from competent sources places the probable daily attendance at from 25,000 to 35,000 persons. Even though not so many should visit each day, the vast deal of good to the tobacco trade in its varied branches cannot be over estimated.

If each manufacturer and each retailer will put his "shoulder to the wheel," the Exposition will be a grand, overwhelming triumph for the independent tobacco interests of the United States.

There will be ample space allotted for exhibitors and visitors. There will be 275 spaces set aside for exhibits, leaving ample aisles and "cosy corners" for visitors.

The committee has already prepared every item of comfort for exhibiters and those who attend, and has engaged the services of one of New York's best military bands. Every convenience will be provided, and no pains will be spared to have the large industrial hall clean, well lighted and in perfect order. Every precaution will be to maintain the best order, and make it a place safe for any who may attend.

Business was very good last week. The retailers did well, some of them reporting a red letter week. The weather was pretty fierce some days, but it did not prevent people from buying. Men are beginning to drop out of town now, though, and it is probable that the retail trade will drop off a little until late in August or September.

The manufacturers say they are still rushed and all the factories are busy. Road sales are good, and city sales, still pretty good. The various resorts have booked large orders, and these mount up very largely in the season's aggregate business. All good brands are ordering well, and the manufacturers expect to remain busy.

Buying in the leaf market was rather free last week, high prices prevailing, but being accepted. There is very little old stock in the market, but almost any kind of binder can find a market. The new Sumatra is now selling well, and there was more demand during the week for Havana. It is evident that the manufacturers must have the leaf and are making the best bargains they can.

The Edwin Cigar Co., which now has three stores in Harlem, has taken the place at 130 Nassau street and will shortly open it. This is decidedly a new departure for this company as it hae been regarded as a Harlemite exclusively. Their sudden entrance into one of the busiest sections of the city may precede the establishment of another chain of stores.

Charles A. Campbell, junior member of the firm of Breslin & Campbell, manufacturers of seed and Havana cigars, died suddenly a week ago at the Waldorf-Astoria. Death was due to heart disease. Mr. Campbell had not been robust for some time, but his trouble was not thought to be serious. The funeral services took place in Boston where Mr. Campbell lived and conducted his business. This will probably now be conducted by a brother of the deceased, Wallace M., who since the death of the senior partner, some years ago, has been important in the affairs of the concern.

With his package of Royal Bengal little cigars, the consumer now gets a picture of a famous Japanese general.

H. G. Taussig, of Taussig & Co., left on Friday for the West.

Don Marcelino Sola, of M. Sola e Hijos, is on his way to New York from Porto Rico, and is expected to reach here about the last of this week.

Announcement was made on Thursday of last week at the appraiser's warehouse, that the government will hold a public sale at the seizure room next Friday of miscellaneous goods, including a large quantity of cigars and cigarettes.

The offerings comprise 9 475 cigars; 123,514 cigarettes, 377½ pounds leaf tobacco, 142 gallons liquor, 2 panama hats and one suit of clothes All of the goods may be inspected on the day of sale between the hours of 9 and 11 a. m.

E. Locker & Co., jobbers of Brooklyn, comprising John A. and Elma Locker, have commenced their suit in the Supreme Court for $100,000 damages against the American Tobacco Co., or its old branch the Metropolitan Tobacco Co. The firm declares that it is fighting for its life, and will present testimony to show that the defendant company practically ruined the plaintiffs' prosperous and long established business, by its hazing methods, applied because the Lockers resisted, in an effort to save their identity. The trade is watching the suit very eagerly, as it is regarded as a test case.

LOTS DOING IN BOSTON.

All Goods are Moving Well Over the Retailers' Counters.

Boston, Mass., June 18.

Business with the retailers for the past week has been fairly good and on my rounds I heard very few complain of lack of trade. The weather has been very warm and the nearby summer resorts have been well patronized.

Yesterday was a holiday, "Bunker Hill Day," and it was, as usual, celebrated in grand fashion in Charlestown. There was a large parade including the "Jackies" from the various United States warships which are in the harbor: Missouri, New York, Illinois, Prairie and West Virginia.

With the jobbers business is all that can be expected at this time of the year. Many of these firms have their salesman canvasing the nearby summer resorts and they are having quite a demand for cheap Pennsylvania cigars.

Last Monday the prices of plug and cut plug tobacco of the A. T. Co. advanced to their old prices. Cigarettes, etc., are being sold at cut prices, but this, too, will soon end.

McGreenery & Manning's salesmen are giving the cigar end of their business special attention. The Anna Held and Buck, two trust made brands of 5 cent cigars are being pushed with vigor, and dummy cigar boxes and show cards are liberally being given gratis. Turkish cigarettes and short smokes of all description are enjoying a good sale during this hot spell.

R. Schwartz, a New York cigar manufacturer was in town this week and succeeded in taking many orders for Tres Sellos, a clear Havana piece of goods. Julius O. Cohen the Merchant Row tobacconist, tells me he purchased 2,500 as a trial order.

McGeenery & Manning have placed a large order for Leroy little cigars with L. Miller & Son's agent, S. A. Frank, who is the latter firm's local representative.

Mr. Van Losberg with the American Tobacco Co. is here doing missionary work and making numerous window displays on Royal Bengals.

Sam Harris, of the Khedivial Co., New York, was here Thursday and Friday calling on the many jobbers, in company with Mr. Swick the firm's new local agent and departed well satisfied at the way Turkish Delights are selling here. Victor Sheppard is expected here on Monday and will in conjunction with Mr. Swick, attempt to paint the town red with Turkish Delights.

The Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co., of New York, which not long ago opened an office here has secured the entire cigar privilege at Paragon Park, Nantasket Beach, which is run similar to Luna Park at Coney Island.

A handsome window display of Golden Eagle little cigars can be seen this week at Beiringer Bro. Co.'s store, 12 Dock Square. Last week Puritan little cigars were featured. Mr. Beiringer enjoys a good sale on all classes of short smokes, and is ever ready to add new brands in this line.

Hassan, the new cork tip 5 cent package of Turkish cigarettes made by the trust, is selling well, in fact the company is rushed with orders. As there is a noticeable falling off in the Tolstoi, it is evident that the Hassan is taking its place with the smokers of that class of goods.

On Wednesday there was a break in the 24 inch pipe in the subway workings on Newspaper Row. The water leaked into the cellar of Daniel Frank & Co., cigar dealer at 232 Washington street, but not in sufficient quantity to cause much damage. D. Frank & Co. are the New England distributors for the Barrister cigar, also for Regensburg's American clear Havana cigar.

H. Traiser & Co. notified the jobbers on Friday of a discontinuance of their deal with every 500 Pippins and 100 Harvards. In one shipment to the retailer there was a rebate of $1 on the Harvards.

Goldsmith, Silver & Co., makers of the celebrated M. C. A. 10 cent cigar, are placing with the trade a new nickel cigar, Black Hen, the price of which is $32 per M.

At Revere Beach a nearby summer resort, can be found plenty of handsome advertising signs of the Harvard and Pippins cigars.

Mr. Rosenfield the New England representative of Geo. Flattauer, New York, is certainly "making good" on the Union League 5 cent cigar. He has it well placed, and it is duplicating in large quantities.

Chas Ellis is also plugging away, continually getting new trade on the Cortez clear Havana cigar, made by the Cortez Cigar Co., of Key West.

I. Dane, of D. Bendetson the wholesale tobacconist, informs me that he soon will enter the field of matrimony. Mr. Dane's best friends were shocked at the sudden news as they considered Mr. Dane a confirmed bachelor.

Frank Ciambelli & Co. have opened a cigar and tobacco store at 8 Prince street, and the indications point to a successful business venture.

Harry Mandel who recently opened his cigar store on Cambridge street, reports a very satisfactory business. El Cafe little Havana cigars are taking well with his new customers.

Morris Wolfson, corner Friend and Traverse streets, is serving all sorts of cool drinks during the summer months. Mr. Wolfson enjoys a good retail cigar trade, but informs me that there will be no cutting in prices on his tonic trade like on his cigar trade.

Seldom has there been an election of officers in trade union circles which has caused the intense interest among all crafts as that of cigarmakers Union 97 which was held last Tuesday. The result of the election was made known at a special meeting held Friday night at Faneuil Hall. Henry Abrahams who has been Secretary for the past fourteen years was re-elected, receiving a vote o 887 against 736 for his opponent Chas. Claus. The result of the election shows that the Socialist vote was split as the Socialists are in the majority in the organization. The officers elected are as follows: President, Chas. J. Lamb; Vice-President, James Blyth; Secretary and Treasurer, Jack Lipp; Recording and Corresponding Secretary, Henry Abrahams.

BEN ALI.

It's Traiser & Co.'s Famous HARVARD
::In a New Package::

Look the cut over, for it shows a hundred of the HARVARD cigar, manufactured by H. Traiser & Co., of Boston. Both brand and firm are known everywhere in the United States.

The firm was established in 1852, has been selling good cigars ever since, and now runs the largest union factory in the United States.

The HARVARD is one of the best and widest known brands the company puts out.

The cigar had so well earned that reputation that it was thought deserving of a new label. It's a handsome label and you'll see it in a good many places.

Now, a last word. H. Traiser & Co.'s output is so much larger than that of other manufacturers, they are able to secure the pick of raw material. And in selling their goods they so far consider the Retailer that they were the only factory in New England to stop ruinous cutting on their brands.

TOBACCO CROPS INJURED.

Heavy Rains in Clinton County do Great Damage.

[Special to The Tobacco World.]

Lock Haven, Pa., June 21.

During the past twenty four hours we have been experiencing deluges of rain which were accompanied by hail, causing great damage in this section. Fields have been almost stripped of growing crops

It was the most disastrous storm since the memorable flood of 1889; over there inches of rain has fallen, and it is still raining. Reports of immense damage to crops are coming in. Much tobacco has been completely ruined and replanting will be absolutely necessary if any crop at all is desired.

At least one barn and tobacco shed has been struck by lightning and burned. The storm's path seems to have been through the centre of what is known as the Clinton county tobacco belt.

It has already become known that the loss sustained by farmers and tobacco growers has had a depressing effect, and to estimate the probable loss would be the merest guesswork. Neither is it possible to indicate to what extent reparation can be made, at least in part, by replanting, but it is believed that many will do so, although the shortage of desirable additional plants will prove another serious obstacle.

REMOVED FOR WEAVER ROBBERY.

Phila. Police Lieutenant Negligent in Allowing Burglary of Cigar Factory.

With the sanction of the Mayor, Director of Public Safety Potter, of Philadelphia, this afternoon, dismissed from the police force, Lieutenant John J. Lynch and Special Policeman David McBeth. The discharge was due to the finding of a recent Police Court of Inquiry that they had been guilty of neglect of duty in not having prevented a robbery at the cigar factory of Henry Weaver, No. 155 North Sixth street. Other officers and policemen of the district, who were also before the Board on the same charge, were found "not guilty," and continue in service.

Ex Lieutenant Lynch was appointed a patrolman on March 4, 1887, in the Nineteenth district, and was made house sergeant there in 1892. On November 6, 1898, he was demoted and transferred to the Third district, after he had been accused by his wife of association with the notorious Annie Fries. On January 11, 1901, Lynch was sent back to the Nineteenth district, and on March 17, 1902, was made house sergeant. He was appointed acting lieutenant December 29, of last year, and on January 17, 1905, became a full fledged lieutentant.

This doesn't bring the cigars back, though.

The columns of the paper are also open to readers for the discussion of current trade topics. If you have a decided opinion on a matter, express it, and see if some one else has good reasons for thinking otherwise.

It will be rather a relief when the Government finds out whether the American Tobacco Co., and its various subsidiary concerns is a trust or not. Judging entirely by actions of federal representatives, one minute the corporation is a blood sucking corporation, or at least in a fair way to be proven so, and the next "the American Tobacco Co. is not recognized."

To the ordinary lay mind it would seem that the independent manufacturers who bid for the navy contract, found themselves sadly handicapped, because they did not do business under two or three different names, and so made a strenuous effort to get what they regarded as only fair play, had a just case.

After definite specifications had been laid down to the effect that "if more than one bid be offered by any one party or his partner, all such bids may be rejected" which is interpreted to mean that "a bidder shall not be interested in more than one bid on the same class without violating the statute, which will be deemed sufficient cause for the rejection of all bids in which he is so interested"—after these had been put before the bidders by the Government, it seemed senseless to disregard them.

Why institute them in the first place, if they were to be ignored? In answer to the argument of the independents at their hearing, that the American Tobacco Co. had, through its concerns, Butler & Bosher and the P Lorrillard Co., subjected more than its quota of bids, Assistant Secretary Darling said that the department did not recognize the American Tobacco Co., nor know of it in the question, that it was simply dealing with the individual firms.

This may be all right, but what seems so odd, is the contrast between this cheerful official ignorance on one hand, of a fact that every consumer knows, and the definite announcement which has emanated from the Department of Justice during its investigation of the American Tobacco Co. that such and such smaller concerns were the property of the large one. This, in addition to the fact that one of the American Tobacco Co.'s principal attorneys was present at the hearing, to represent the Butler & Bosher Company.

It is a Biblical injunction not to grant your left hand any information concerning the doings of your right, and it is evident that the Government finds it a good policy. It makes a queer perspective though, to witness a Government pounding the mischief out of a concern with one hand, while it breaks its own rules to give it contracts with the other.

IT SEEMS they are forming cigarette clubs out in Indiana now, in order to get more cigarettes into the State at a time. Not the sort of club a man goes to for dinner with a friend, but a subscription club. A chips in so much, B chips in so much, C chips in so much, and so on through the club and as many cigarettes as the aggregate resultant amount will buy, are ordered by mail.

If there can be said to be any meaning at all in the anti-cigarette law, this scheme is an infraction of it, as even under Judge Leather's decision, the goods can be shipped to but one person, who cannot transfer them.

No one in particular cares, however, as it is but one more turn in the inimitable legal gymnastics that have been amusing the country.

THE JAPS, as usual, come out ahead on the "sale of smoking to minors" problem, with a scheme that really works.

According to Viscount Hayashi, of Japan, who informed the Scottish Anti-Tobacco Society of the fact, the "smoking instruments" of any youth under 20 years are confiscated by the authorities, as well as his tobacco if he happens to have any. Parents and guardians who knowingly permit the offense are liable to a fine of 50 cents for each time, and dealers who furnish a minor with the wherewithal are subject to a fine of $5. This law was passed in 1900.

FINED $25 FOR SELLING CIGARETTE PAPERS.

L. E. Stultz, of Terre Haute, Ind., was arrested on a charge of selling cigarette paper and fined $25. The evidence showed that he carried the paper in a satchel and had regular customers in the red light district, whom he supplied with the goods as needed.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

Here and There With the Retailers.

Although the past week brought Philadelphia the first sweltering weather of the summer, business kept good among the retailers. It apparently wasn't too hot to smoke and several of the larger retailers reported a lively trade. The box trade was not particularly good and few cigars were sold this way except to persons who were going away. As usual in the summer, the stores and stands near the popular exits of the city, such as Broad street station, Market street ferries, etc., are doing a lot of increased business.

The Retail Cigar & Tobacco Dealers' Association is having its picnic today at Maple Grove. The monthly meeting of the association was held last Monday night instead of Thursday on account of this affair, and the final details were arranged. The picnic committee announced that everything promised success, and bespoke a good attendance.

The association adopted resolutions of deep regret at the sudden death of the mother of R. W. Boch.

Geo. O'Keefe, South Fourth street dealer, says the Golden Eagle brand of little cigars is still selling well. This store manages to keep pretty regularly busy.

Yahn & McDonnell report business as good these hot days, although there aren't so many people in that section of the city during the evenings.

The sudden death on Monday of his mother, Mrs. Annetta Boch, came as a great shock to R. W. Boch, of Boch & Co., Broad street dealers. Mrs. Boch was 76 years old, and had been in comparatively good health. She was taken ill very suddenly. The funeral services will take place today from Mr. Boch's residence 2242 South Seventeenth street.

The new establishment of Finley Acker Co., at Twelfth and Chestnut streets is nearly completed and is expected to be opened in a short time. There have already been several dates set but the work has been delayed. The store will be one of the handsomest in Philadelphia, and will include a complete cigar department which will be in charge of J. G. Atherholt, who was formerly with the Lowengrund stores and later local agent of the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co.

The United Cigar Stores Company's stores invariably do a largely increased business on the days when extra certificates are given, showing that there is a large class of consumers who watch for these and take advantage of them. The new store at Second and Market streets does a big business on Saturdays.

The store of I. Davidyan, at Ninth and Arch streets, has a nice window displays including a number of the store's leaders.

Coates Coleman, on Fifteenth street, is near enough to the Broad street station to benefit from the summer crowds.

Jacob Weiner's Sons, of Sixth and Chestnut streets, are making a handsome display of Henry Heymann's Sons well known Camela cigar.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The manufacturers are making lots of goods, whether they are selling them or not, and most of them say they are selling them. Business is certainly up to the mark although there will doubtless be something of a lull in a few weeks. The majority of road men are reporting well, particularly in the West. Business right in the city is a little better than it was.

The jobbers say they are not making any money these days on account of close margins. Another of the American Tobacco Co.'s circulars, dated June 17, was received this week, which so far as could be noticed, brought no delight to the heart of the jobber. The circular followed an introductory one to the retailers.

The circular was headed—"Union Leader Cut Plug Free," and announced to the jobber, that in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, the jobber was authorized to give to retail dealers one 5 cent foil package of Union Leader cut plug free with each 2 pounds of any of the company's listed brands of plug chewing fine cut, twist, Old Virginia cheroots and all brands of smoking tobacco, also Town Talk plug. 100 cheroots count as 2 pounds.

Should the jobber not have enough Union Leader in stock to commence this deal, he is requested to place an order immediately for the same, which will be

EXPORT STAMP ISSUED BY CUBAN CIGAR MANUFACTURERS

Authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco put up in packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut loaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

billed in the regular way and at the regular price.

The jobber is instructed to fill in a report at the end of each month, on blanks, furnished by the company, comprising all goods put out under the offer and the company will ship the proper amount of Union Leader to reimburse. The circular further says:

"No jobber will be permitted to buy from retailers the Union Leader given to said retailer, exchange other goods for it, or in any way divert it from reaching and being sold to consumers."

The tobacco must not be given to other jobbers or to any direct customer of the company, and the company states that:

"This offer will be withdrawn from any jobber who violates or evades its provisions, or who does not act in good faith with us in carrying out all its provisions in letter and spirit."

The jobbers feel that "withdrawing the offer" means nothing less than withdrawing all goods, and while they are by no means stuck on making out these lengthy reports each month, just because they are told to do so, it is not likely that any particular jobber is going to volunteer as a personally conducted sacrifice.

The offer is largely regarded as an attempt to pump interest into the Union Leader, which has not sold well for some time. These schemes are not always successful, however, and some jobbers do not think this one will be.

J. Harvey McHenry, of Arthur Hagen & Co., who has been South on a business trip for the concern, has returned and is in his usual good spirits. He is a busy man at the retailers' picnic today, handling the enterprises conducted by the various firms represented by Arthur Hagen & Co. For instance there will be a Red Devil orchestra and a Red D. ball team which will play a team made up from the retailers. The Berry Suhling Tobacco Co. has a display of the leaf tobacco from which its Staff of Life plug is made. With the display is a jar full of tags. Every retailer is entitled to a guess on the number of tags in the jars, and several prizes are offered for the best answer. The Butler Butler Co. is giving away cigarettes and a number of other manufacturers are advertising in various ways. Up to last night, several thousand cigars had been presented to the association by Philadelphia manufacturers and these are being sold at the grounds today to help swell the exposition fund.

The Henry H. Sheip Manufacturing Co., manufacturers of cigar boxes, ribbons, labels, etc., is greatly pleased with the new lumber drying house which is 133 x 70 feet, and has 14 departments. The building is fire proof throughout and one-half will be used for storing the lumber after it is taken from the kiln.

Bayuk Bros. are still tremendously rushed on their BB blunts and find it hard work to keep up to orders. The firm seemed to hit it just right on this smoke.

Goldsmith & Arndt, Eastern distributors for the El Provedo Co., have taken on Bondy & Lederer's Tom Keene cigar, which is widely known as a first class nickel smoke. The firm intends to do hard work on this brand, and it is easy to foretell results.

The Stewart Newburger Co., (Ltd.), is having a big run on its John Hay, Jr., and Mr. Newburger reports everything as in the best of shape.

E. Oppenheimer, of the Vicente Portuondo Co., is back from New York, and will start immediately for the West. Mr. Kors, of this firm, is also just from New York State where he had about the best trip ever.

Vetterlein Bros.' factories are running full force, and goods are moving fairly well in all directions. A. B. Carpenter, the Southern representative of this firm is receiving the sympathy of the trade on account of the death of his wife.

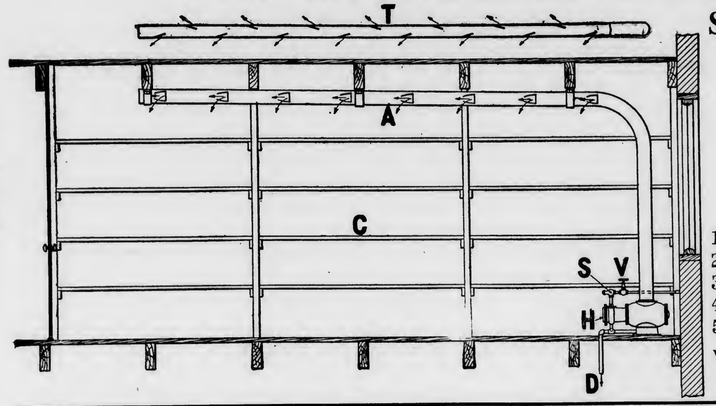
Leaf Dealers' Jottings.

There was a little business in the leaf market during the week, but not enough to make anybody rich. There was a demand for Pennsylvania broadleaf if anybody had any to sell, but little demand for Havana. So far, in this grade of goods, June has run behind May. A little of the new Sumatra is being sold at good prices, as the manufacturers have to have it and are consequently forced to pay the price. On the whole, business has been much worse than it was during the week although it was not "what it used to be."

Carl Haeussermann, who is in town again after a selling trip through the State, said on Monday he was hunting for a cool place. He had no fault at all to find with his trip and said all the manufacturers were in good humor.

Jacob Labe, of B. Labe & Son, came back last week from a Western trip and said things were very fair. This firm reports good average business.

Frank Dominguez, of E. A. Calves & Co., will not go to Havana until about August, unless he decides to go there via Europe.



There was a report on the street during the week that a Third street leaf firm had failed, but it was apparently impossible to trace the rumor to any definite source.

—The Ogden corn cob pipe factory at Columbus, Ind., one of the five factories for the manufacture of this article in the country, has been purchased by Louis and George Mellinger, of Muncie, Ind., who will probably remove it. The new firm has arranged to have a Chicago house take their output.

GROCERS DON'T LIKE TAGS.

Want to Secure Legislation to Do Away with Tobacco Premiums.

Theodore Melchers, President of the South Carolina Wholesale Grocers' Association, has sent out the following circular letter to dealers in general in the State:

"This association has been approached by certain retailers here and at interior points to solicit your aid in the abolishment of the tobacco tag nuisance.

"You are fully aware of all the bad features connected with the use of these tags as a cash or premium value, the frequency of having to sell a tag or two worth of merchandise, and such petty annoyances, inconveniences which you many times suffer to redeem them, none of which you are compensated for, as manufacturers invariably add the cash or premium value to price of tobacco.

"Why, then, should we have a method continued that pays no extra profit, but gives instead trouble and annoyance? We want your aid in having this movement brought to the attention of Congress through our Senators and Congressmen, and have Congress make it illegal to put avalue of either cash or premium on tags or bags.

"The State Legislature of Ohio has already passed such an act and our own legislature should give us the same relief and protection.

"If Congress will hear our prayer, this great country will be relieved of a burdensome tax, not only in a monetary way, but also a tax on time. The nuisance of this tag and premium tax is growing in greater proportions every day and should be vetoed.

"If you are in favor of this movement, and we feel that you are, kindly affix your signature to the four copies herewith enclosed, forwarding one each to our two State Senators, one to the Congressman from your district and the other to this association.

"When the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association meets in Norfolk on the 20th we will take the matter up with them and through their influence secure similar action, from all the wholesale associations in the South.

"It is most probable that the Eastern, Middle and Western States will join us in this fight, which certainly is for the good of the country.

"Please do not delay therefore in giving this your prompt attention, as it is most important that we should receive your reply previous to the meeting of the association. THEO. MELCHERS, Charleston, S. C. President."

This looks like business, and reports from grocers in that section of country indicate that the movement is a well concerted one. Indeed the grocers are doing harder work on it than the tobacco trade itself.

There has been much grumbling for a long time, as the system is growing to such an extent that many consumers would rather use the tags than real money in making purchases, and the work of calculating and taking care of these accounts involves a tremendous amount of labor for which there is absolutely no return.

The consumers themselves are by no means pleased at this attempt on the part of the grocers to get back to straight business principles, as they have become firmly rooted to the tag habit, so that some of them say they will feel as if they had no mission in life should the incentive for saving them be removed. The thing has long been voted an unmitigated nuisance by the dealers, however, and there is little doubt that the circular letter will receive large returns.

DETROIT FORMER JOBBER DIES.

John Buehler, Once Quite Prominent, Succumbs to Long Illness.

Detroit, Mich., June 19.

John Buehler, former prominent wholesale tobacconist of this city, but for several years retired, died at his residence, 364 Brush street, on Saturday, following a long illness from a complication of maladies.

Mr. Buehler was born in Wittenberg, Germany, in 1846, and came to Cincinnati at the age of 15, enlisting shortly afterward in the Fifth Ohio cavalry, in which he served three years until the close of the war. Subsequently he went to work for John R. Becker, in Cincinnati, remaining there many years and rising to high place in the company. In 1880 he moved to Detroit, where he founded the John Buehler Company, tobacconists, and continued active in the commercial life of the city until a few years ago, when he retired to private life.

He was a member of Detroit Post, G. A. R., and of the Loyal Legion. A widow and two children, Oscar and Miss Bertie Buehler, survive him.

ABOUT INDIANA'S TOBACCO.

Acreage is Continually Increasing and State Will Soon be a Factor.

Richmond, Va., June 18.

Although Indiana is not known as a tobacco raising State, comparative figures for 1904 and 1905, compiled from township assessors' reports by Jos. H. Stubbs, chief of the bureau of statistics, show that the acreage used in tobacco culture increased about 70 per cent in 1905 over the acreage in 1904. The figures indicate that about 13,500 acres of Indiana land is devoted to the raising of tobacco this year. There were 8,361 acres of tobacco in Indiana last year.

Six Indiana counties raise the bulk of the tobacco, and in each of them the acreage this year shows a large increase. Jefferson county increases in tobacco acreage from 726 to 2,308: Switzerland from 2,106 to 2,232; Spencer from 1,388 to 2,201; Vigo from 563 to 2,181; Warrick from 1,032 to 1,770, and Ohio from 399 to 635. Nevin township, Vigo county, had the largest acreage of any, the number being 2,165. Even Marion county had 113 acres in tobacco, as compared with 31 acres the year before.

ABOUT SO-SO AT LANCASTER.

Some Inquiry and Fair Business. Good Weather For New Crop.

Lancaster, Pa., June 19.

There has again been some little movement in the local leaf market during the past week. Considerable inquiry was rife concerning Pennsylvania and Ohio tobacco and several local packers report a fairly active business.

The weather for some days has been most favorable to the new crop. The cigar industry seems in a more prosperous condition than for some weeks past. Cigarmakers are more anxiously wanted by manufacturers, many of whom are making strenuous endeavors to increase their working forces.

Visiting traveling salesmen report uniformly quiet but fairly satisfactory business in all sections.

In the vicinity of Wrightsville, York Co., tobacco growers have an unusual amount of difficulty with cut worms.

CIGARETTE CLUBS NOW.

Indiana Smokers Find a Convenient Way to Beat the Law.

Indianapolis, June 18.

Cigarette clubs the object of which is to provide them in bulk outside of the State have been formed here and in other cities of the State, and thousands of packages are now coming into Indiana through the mails and by express.

In nearly all the outside counties the decision by Judge Leathers, holding that cigarettes so bought may be smoked legally, has been generally accepted. Local dealers who refuse to handle cigarettes are taking the orders for the clubs.

GOOD MARKET IN KOREA.

A taste which has been enormously developed in Korea lately is one for cigarettes, and in view of this fact the American Tobacco Co. has had some of its brands protected by imperial edict.

Native tobacco is used by the countrymen in their long pipes, but in the cities and even among the laboring classes, when they can afford it, the use of the cigarette has become almost universal.

Cigarettes were heretofore imported almost exclusively from Japan, made partially at least of American tobacco. In 1902 a cigarette factory, on rather a large scale for Korea, was opened by a British concern at Chemulpo, but for some reason did not prove a success.

There is at present, however, a small factory at Chemulpo making cigarettes from a mixture of American and native tobaccos, which is reported to be doing a good business. Recently the American and British company established an agency in Korea and will bid for a share of this growing trade. The figures show an increase in value of imports of over 85 percent for the past two years.

HENRY HEYMANN'S SONS' SUPERIOR 10-CENT BRAND.

ONE of the progressive young manutacturing firms of Philadelphia is that of Henry Heymann's Sons, which is located at 614 Betz Building. This firm, as its style implies, is composed principally of the two sons of the late Mr. Heymann, Joseph C. and Roy, who are ambitious and energetic to a degree.

The accompanying picture is a reproduction of the label of the firm's successful brand of 10-cent cigar, "Henry Heymann." The portrait is one of Mr. Heymann, the father, who, during his business life, was extremely well known in the trade. This firm also gets out a winner in a five-cent cigar named "Camela," which is daily gaining new friends and placing the firm name favorably before the consumer.

MATCH FIGHT IN ENGLAND.

One Concern Fighting for a Corner, While Tobacconists Benefit.

The Tobacco Weekly Journal, of London, England, in its last issue, says "There is every prospect of a very pretty fight in the match trade during the next few weeks, by which the tobacco retailer is sure to profit. The attempt made by Bryant & May to acquire something like a monopoly has been met by the London Wax Vesta Company, who, we understand, have got the contract with Messrs. Salmon & Gluckstein, till recently held by Messrs. Bryant & May.

"This means, we presume, that outsiders will now have their chance. So long as the Salmon & Gluckstein shops were supplied with Bryant & May's matches at a price which enabled them to sell to the consumer over the counter at ½d a box, or 6s a gross, the tobacconists who were asked 6s 9d a gross for the same goods were, of course, out of it.

"But now we hear the new wood core vestas are expected to change the situation and the market will be flooded with cheap matches, and the outside retailer will be in as good a position, if not better, than the Salmon & Gluckstein shops have been with the Bryant & May goods. The wholesalers, too, are entering the fight with zest, and we shall see sparks flying. At all events, Salmon & Gluckstein no longer have a monopoly of the ½d box of vestas.

OLD CIGAR MANUFACTURER DEAD.

John Auer, of Middletown, Well Known Throughout United States.

Middletown, O., June 15.

John Auer, aged 71, a retired tobacco manufacturer, died of heart trouble yesterday at his home here on Clark street. He was well known in tobacco circles throughout the United States. He was a prominent Democrat and Elk.

He was born in Bavaria in 1834, came to this country in 1844 and was engaged in the manufacture of tobacco in Cincinnati from 1864 to 1869, removing to this place, where he formed a partnership with the late Paul J. Sorg and built a large factory. A widow, daughter in-law and two grandchildren survive him.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CO. BOUGHT LARGELY IN RICHMOND.

Richmond, Va., June 17.

The American Tobacco Co. bought a large number of packages on the exchange here yesterday. Prices were about the same, but a better feeling was maintained, and the market seemed a little firmer.

IMPROVEMENT OF TOBACCO BY BREEDING AND SELECTION.

Archibald D. Shamel, Scientific Assistant, Plant-Breding Laboratory, Bureau of Plant Industry, has written a lengthy article for the Department of Agriculture which contains a mine of information, important and interesting not only to growers, but to manufacturers and leaf dealers. In order to give our readers the benefit of this, we have decided to print it in serial form, the first installment following:

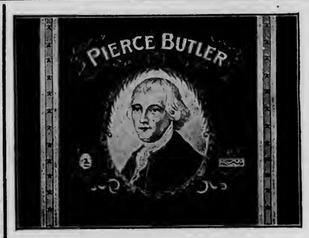
The production of different types of tobacco adapted to the many demands of the manufacturers is one of the most important problems confronting the growers of this crop. The market grades are clearly defined and classified according to the character and quality of the manufactured product. The value of the crop depends upon the ability of the grower to produce a type conforming most nearly to the market standard for each particular grade. Of particular importance is the production of a superior grade of cigar leaf tobacco. We are dependent today upon tobacco from foreign countries for most of the wrappers and fillers used in the manufacture of the better class of cigars. It has been demonstrated that there are certain well defined areas in this country where the soil and climatic conditions are favorable to the production of types of tobacco suitable for the manufacture of the best grade of cigars. These areas will produce more profitable crops than are at present grown of this sort of tobacco, when uniform types have been developed and established by careful breeding and selection. The value of this addition to the tobacco industry lies in the fact that the money now expended for the imported article will be distributed among the American growers.

The inferiority of a large proportionof the tobacco produced in the long established tobacco regions from native varieties may be attributed in part to deterioration of yield and quality due to lack of systematic and careful seed selection. It is a well known fact that the proportion of the poor grade tobacco in some of these districts is increasing, resulting in a corresponding loss to the growers.

Pennsylvania and Ohio fillers sell for 10 cents to 25 cents per pound, while imported Cuban fillers bring from 50 cents to $1 25 per pound. We can certainly produce a filler that will take the place of the ordinary to medium Cuban. An increase in yield in the native varieties due to improved methods of cultivation and fertilization involves greatly increased cost of production. Some other means of increasing the value of the crop is necessary and new types more nearly approaching the Cuban standard should be developed in order to supply the demand of the trade for a better grade of filler tobacco. The development of such types depends upon seed selection as well as upon improved methods of cultivation and fermentation. Wrapper tobacco grown in Massachusetts and Connecticut brings from 40 cents to 80 cents per pound, while the imported Cuban and Sumatra varieties bring from $1.50 to $3 per pound, to which must be a duty of $1.85 per pound for Sumatra, and $1.48 per pound for Cuban tobacco. To produce a wrapper leaf in the Connecticut Valley which will compare with the Cuban and Sumatra standards, new types must be developed which will more nearly approach the standard of the imported varieties and possess their desirable qualities. This can doubtless be done by careful breeding and selection. In the varieties grown for plug wrappers and fillers, the export trade and the manufacture of pipe tobacco, the development of new types is less important. In these types, however, there is need of a general improvement of the crop, more especially in yield and quality.

The many varieties of tobacco now in existence are supposed to have had a common origin, and the different types are the result of seed selection or hybridization, either accidental or intentional. The value of selection in tobacco is shown by the origin of some of the most important varieties now under cultivation. These varieties for the most part have been developed by the selection of seed from sports or striking variations, which have accidentally appeared in the established varieties. The differences which now exist among these varieties, and their marked and continuous variability, is sufficient evidence of the possibility of the production of new and improved types superior to those now under cultivation. The purpose of the selection of a variety depends on the use of the crop by the manufacturer; as, for instance, the qualities of aroma and flavor are important in filler varieties, but not so important in wrapper types. The general methods of seed selection, however, apply to all types and varieties.

Tobacco is more highly specialized and grows under a more intensive system of cultivation than any other general farm crop. It is a well known fact that the tobacco plant is exceedingly sensitive and responds readily to soil and climatic conditions. Varieties grown in the Connecticut Valley are recognized as cigar wrapper type, while varieties produced in Pennsylvania and Ohio are used for the most part as cigar fillers. Owing to the great influence of soil and climatic conditions and methods of culture on the yield and quality of the crop in areas adaped to tobacco growing, highly improved machinery and methods of cultivation have been developed by the growers in order to increase the profits from the crop. Instances of this tendency to adopt the most advanced methods of culture are shown by such practice as the application of $100 worth of commercial fertilizer per acre, coving the fields with slat or cheese-cloth shade, and the installation of extensive systems of irrigation, in some cigar wrapper districts. This attention to certain phases of tobacco production has resulted in the partial neglect of the equally important factor of seed selection. Methods of selection have not kept pace with the improvements along other lines, and today are essentially the same as those used by the pioneer tobacco growers.



The suggestions which are made here for the improvement of tobacco by breeding and selection are based on the result of a careful study of cigar wrapper varieties conducted by the writer. The experiments of the Bureau of Soil and the experience of planters in Connecticut in the growing of Sumatra wrapper tobacco demonstrated conclusively that the industry would not prove successful in that section unless new and improved types of the Connecticut Sumatra could be developed which would give a much larger proportion of leaves of the uniform size, shape, and quality than the original imported seed. Experiments were accordingly undertaken by the writer in the production of such uniform types, and the results already obtained, show conclusively that new types of the kind desired can be produced, and the application of the methods of seed selection and breeding developed in the course of these experiments is recommended to the growers of all classes of tobacco as a means of increasing the yield and value of their crop.

WEATHER-CROP BULLETIN.

Department of Agriculture's Weekly Report on Tobacco Plants.

Washington, D. C., June 16.

The latest reports of States from the weather crop bulletin of the Department of Agriculture on the condition of tobacco plants throughout the country show that in Maryland, Virginia and Kentucky the transplanting of tobacco is nearly finished, but in New England, New York, Ohio and Wisconsin this work has been retarded. The States follow:

New England — Tobacco backward, but setting progressing well, and outlook good.

New York—Tobacco being set but too cool to do well.

Pennsylvania—Tobacco planting well advanced and condition fair.

Maryland—Tobacco transplanting finished, good stands, quality good and average quantity.

Virginia—Tobacco retarded somewhat by cool weather and injured locally by cut and wire worms, transplanting unfinished.

North Carolina—Tobacco improving slowly.

South Carolina—Tobacco poor.

Tennessee—Tobacco growing well.

Kentucky — Tobacco mostly transplanted except where moisture is deficient, some cultivated.

Indiana—Tobacco doing well.

Ohio—Transplanting of tobacco unfinished, weather unfavorable.

Wisconsin—Tobacco setting progressing slowly.

Leaf Tobacco Markets.

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The transplanting is well along now. Probably three fourths of the land is set. Some have their crops nearly hoed the first time, and some have finished their first hoeing. The crop looks very well, considering what it has been through—four frosts since setting began.

Our correspondents write:

Wethersfield, Ct.: "The welcome rain of the sixth enabled those who had plants large enough, to set them, and for the others it will give the plants in the beds a good start. The rain was very much needed."

Hatfield, Mass.: "The tobacco crop is mostly transplanted and hoeing is now in order. In a few cases worms have been working somewhat. The crop has had a good start, and with warm weather should make rapid growth."

Conway, Mass.: "Tobacco is not yet

Our receipts this week were 1,069 hhds; offerings on the breaks, 493 hhds; total sales, 520 hhds.

The market was animated, strong and higher for all desirable Leaf, which could be used for spinning or cigars. The market opened strong, closing irregularly ¼ to 1c higher, except for the nondescript Leaf, which was dull. Lugs continue bashful, and but few parade themselves to the public view

The weather remains hot and dry, but rains may fall at any time. It is estimated that 10 per cent of the area laid out is yet to be planted, and 10 per cent to be replanted. Plant beds, or what is left of them, suffer under the dry weather.

We quote:

Low Lugs	$3.50	to $4.00
Common Lugs	4.25	to 4.50
Medium Lugs	4.50	to 5.00
Good Lugs	5.00	to 5.50

Sales from first hands are now reduced very largely to scattering lots which are all the time being hunted out and absorbed. Dealers assert there has never been a time when the country districts were so thoroughly cleaned up as the present and very shortly there will be little if any tobacco left to trade in. Sales of the '04 crop coming to notice are:

A. Skolaas, 30cs and 3c
K. Midland, 5a at 8c
John Melass, 30cs at 7½c

Andrew Jenson & Sons have succeeded in picking up about 400cs of '03 goods recently, in part 160cs from Thomas Thronson, 41cs of L. C. Jordalen, 39cs of C. Berge, 35cs of K. Jordalen, 41cs of Lars Lein, 19cs of Edw. Attlesey, and 20cs of Jens Johnson.

Packers report a very fair inquiry for old leaf, though the bulk of the sales is confined to the cheaper grades.

The new crop is now being transplanted o the fields very rapidly. The weather of the week has been decidedly favorable for this work and growers are able to secure a satisfactory stand.

National Cigar Clipper

It Clips a V in Ends of Cigars---

A LITTLE vest pocket instrument for the smoker that puts a V in ends of cigars—neatly—accurately—without breaking wrapper, no matter how dry or brittle the cigar is.

It doesn't bite and pull and squeeze; but cuts "shear ways," the common sense way—a way that can't dull the the cutter and disfigure the point of cigar.

Design is elegant—nothing like it on the market anywhere Finest tool steel—nickel plated, and polished.

Makes an effective and lasting piece of advertising for the cigar manufacturer and distributer because of its ability to attract attention—its utility and durability.

The dealer can't put a better selling novelty before a smoker. Hits two ways,—snug profit when sold—fetching advertising with name on.

Sample 15 cents. Dozen lots without ad. $1.25.

Gross lots without ad. $14.00; with ad. if not more than three lines, three eighth of an inch long, $16.50.

CUTTING TEXAS TOBACCO.

Houston County Crop is Contracted For at 15 Cents a Pound.

Crockett, Tex., June 23.

In a few days, the tobacco crop of Houston county will be ready for cutting. Considering the extremely wet spring, the crop is very good. It is believed it will cut from 500 to 600 pounds per acre, principally all of which has been contracted for at 15 cents a pound,

The farmers here are very much elated over their success with this crop, since Houston county has an abundance of orangeburg soil, so richly adapted to the growth of tobacco. It is a well known fact that the tobacco crop requires less than half the work of a cotton crop, the entire crop being cut and moved by July 1, while at that time the cotton crop is less than half made. And, then, the farmer derives from $75 to $90 per acre for his tobacco, while he often gets less than $10 per acre for his cotton. The success of this year's crop has led many farmers to express the desire of planting from thirty to forty acres each next year.

There is a vast amount of this orangeburg soil in Houston county which can be bought for such a reasonable sum as to enable the purchaser to pay for it out of his first crop of tobacco. The Crockett Cigar Company can manufacture all the tobacco that can be raised, thus giving the farmer not only a sure market, but a home market for his product.

The government expert who is here superintending the growth of the tobacco crop, expresses the belief that as soon as the tobacco growers over the country learn of the abundance of the cheap orangeburg soil, which is very rich with potash, Houston county will be a great tobacco center. The growth of tobacco here has long ago passed the experimental stage, and it is beyond any question that a superior grade of tobacco, producing the very finest cigar fillers, can be grown in Houston county.

LOCKER SUIT AGAINST COMBINE AN IMPORTANT ONE.

Plaintiffs Declare that Their Brooklyn Jobbing Business has Been Damaged $100,000 by American Tobacco Co.'s Refusal of Goods, and the Suit will Determine a Manufacturer's Liberty.

The suit which E. Locker & Co., of Brooklyn have brought against the American Tobacco Co, is chiefly remarkable for the dogged persistance with which the plainiffs have laid their plans. Months ago the Locker peoplo sent out a circular to the independent trade fully presenting their side of the case, and asking for suggestions or comment of any kind.

The suit is brought to recover $100,000 from the combine for alleged persecution which the Locker firm claims laid waste its business and gave it the alternative of being bound hand and foot to the American Tobacco Co., or going into bankruptcy.

E. Locker & Co. are one of the old concerns of Brooklyn, and they have prepared their case with the greatest care. It is not to be supposed that the American Tobacco Co. will let the case go by default, so that the result will determine accurately how far a manufacturer can coerce a jobber in the way in which he shall handle the former's goods.

Some months ago the story of the bringing ot the suit was printed in The Tobacco World with an account of the relations of the Locker Co. to the American Tobacco Co., as told by the former. In view of the importance of the case it is well to review some of these facts.

The plaintiffs are John A. Locker and Elma Locker, comprising the firm of E. Locker & Co., wholesale and retail tobacconists, at 267-273 Bushwick avenue. The concern, which was established in 1862 by the late Henry Berbert, is known in the trade as the largest independent dealer of its class in Greater New York, and one of the largest in the United States. The defendants are the American and Metropolitan Tobacco Companies. The attorney for the plaintiff is Lawyer Frederick P. Bellamy, of 204 Montague street.

The fight by the Lockers is for legal protection against what the firm declares and believes to be an unlawful combination in restraint of trade, whereby they are restricted in the free pursuit of business in New York State. They even go so far as to declare that the whole weight of the combined capital of the two defendants, is thrown against them in an effort to either crush the firm out of business, or to buy them out at the trust's own valuation.

The plaintiffs claim that they have already been damaged to the extent of $100,000 through the alleged unlawful acts of the defendants, and they ask the courts to declare unlawful and void the combination, agreements and arrangements between the defendants complained of; also that the defendants, their officers and agents, and each of their respective managers, officers, servants and attorneys, be perpetually enjoined and restrained from acting with the combination and under the agreements and arrangements; also that they be restrained from refusing to sell their tobacco or its products to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs further ask that the defendants be enjoined from resorting to threats of any sort, intimidation, force or fraud, either oral or written, calculated to interfere with any purchases of tobacco, or its product, by the plaintiffs from those who are customers of the defendants, and from inflicting or threatening to inflict penalties upon customers of the trust who do sell to the plaintiffs.

For more than forty years the Bushwick avenue concern has been in business as jobbers and dealers in tobacco in the same place. Under the management of the founder and the successors, the plaintiffs, was built up a business said to be second to none in the United States, doing both a wholesale and retail business. In the complaint in this suit the plaintiffs say that they enjoyed the advantages of competition until after the formation of the American Tobacco Co. in 1890. This was followed by the absorption of nearly two hundred tobacco manufacturing houses; then, in 1899, by the incorporation of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, a combination of the tobacco jobbers of New York City to control distribution in Greater New York. In this way, say the plaintiffs, the two companies, closely allied, got control and market at least 90 per cent of the tobacco output, which is marketed in Greater New York, thus leaving about 10 per cent to be handled by independent dealers.

Following the organization of the tobacco trust, the American Tobacco Co., say the plaintiffs, solicited their business and through the representatives of the trust urged them to do business with them, promising, the plaintiff declares, that at all times the firm's orders would receive prompt attention upon the most favorable ruling terms. The plaintiffs say that they relied upon the representations of the American Tobacco Company and finally handled almost exclusively the products of the company.

This situation continued, says the plainiffs, until 1899, when the Metropolitan Tobacco Company was incorporated. The latter company is made up of jobbing concerns in Greater New York and has a capital of $1,000,000.

Just what happened after the formation of the last company, according to the plaintiffs, is told in the circular sent to the tobacco trade by E. Locker & Co.

"The American Tobacco Co.," states the circular, "having quietly secured and put out of business all the concerns of which we could buy the merchandise which had thus by its act become indispensible to our business, notified us in substance that, under arrangements made with the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., the tobacco trade of Greater New York, including ourselves, would thereafter be supplied with goods only through the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., as its representative and distributer, and that thereafter it would not fill any further orders in Greater New York, except those which came through the Metropolitan Tobacco Company."

The plaintiffs say further that in compliance with this arrangement the firm did business through the Metropolitan Tobacco Co. until May or June of last year, when, without any just cause or complaint of the firm's course of business, and in defiance of the previous understanding, the Metropolitan Tobacco Co., as they believe, through the direction of the American Tobacco Co., has refused to fill the firm's orders at any price for any of the merchandise marketed or controlled by the American Tobacco Co. The reason for this move, from the standpoint of the plaintiffs, is indicated in their complaint as well as in the circular quoted from above.

This Correspondent Says Indiana Law is a Dead Letter.

Brazil, Ind., June 25.

In spite of the fact that at several places over the State arrests have been made for violating the anti cigarette law, it is felt that to a large degree the law is a dead letter. In nearly every instance in the State where arrests have been made there was something back of the cases, usually the victim being a stranger.

An arrest under the new law was made at Terre Haute, the victim being a poor fellow that was trying to get a few dollars together by selling cigarette papers. There can be no doubt that cigarettes are smoked here, some of them on the street, but usually it is done a little more slyly than in the past. Still the sticks are smoked.

There is no trouble experienced in getting cigarette papers, although they are not being sold here. The big tobacco people, as soon as the law was passed, set about to find some way of eluding the law. They saw to it that the law did not apply to the furnishing of cigarette papers to private parties from out the State. Hence these companies furnish papers free. While the authorities here are as anxious as could be to enforce the law they are finding it very difficult to do so.

WEATHER HELD UP CONNECTICUT CROP FOR A FEW DAYS.

New Haven, Conn., June 23.

According to the reports as given out by the main office of the weather bureau the peculiar recent antics of the weather have been favorable instead of a hindrance to the crops throughout the country with the possible exception of the tobacco crop in Connecticut.

The work of transplanting, which had been begun when the unfavorable weather started, was retarded to some extent, necessitating especial care of the crop while the weather lasted. The work has been started again, however, and no serious results are looked for, the only trouble being on account of insects,

The Old Salesman's Musings.

DON'T GET TOO FAMILIAR.

I believe that some, in fact a good many, salesmen, after they have swung around their territory two or three years, and got so they could call half their customers by their first names, begin to believe that neither their own concern or their customers' could possibly get along without them.

They acquire a cock sure, always at home air that to some men would be maddening. Years ago, I may have done it myself, I don't know, but it really appears to me that the younger breed is a good deal perter than the preceding generation. For instance I was in an office the other day when a youngster stepped in with a couple of cases.

"Hello, Chollie," he said to the boss.

"Good morning, Mr. Green," was the answer.

"Chollie" is a man of about sixty, and he has always had so many friends, that a large proportion of those who enter his place will address him—by right—by his Christian name. This young fellow had been in a half dozen times, had heard others call the man by his first name, and had promptly followed suit.

Whether it's in the copy books or not, there is a respect due from youth to maturity, that is too frequently disregarded these days of butt-in and climb over.

But to go back to the original proposition, I don't want to knock my own craft except for its own good, but if you'll notice, you will see that I am speaking the truth when I say that too many salesmen are getting to be matter-of-course loungers.

I have in mind one man in particular. I have never come into personal contact with him, and I dare say he is a fair enough fellow in his own way. What I have seen of him, though, has not produced a very favorable impression. We all have our faults and virtues, and this fellow is probably no worse than the average, but he ought to keep his faults out of his business.

The man has his own route, and ever since I have been seeing him, has never deviated from it. That fixes it so that he stops in the same places in the same towns at regular times. He works for a house that puts out cracker jack goods, and though this fellow originally built up his territory, I think anybody could go in now and sell the goods, not because the customers have been cinched, but because the goods have won such a reputation.

Well, this fellow don't do great deal of work. He stops in and chews the rag for a while at his various places, shows what new samples he may have, finds out how much his customer has a chance of handling and shoots in his order. Occasionally he will visit some new people, and they say that when he sets his mind to it, he can usually get the order.

But much loafing and easy prosperity has made a boor of the fellow. He enters a place loudly, says whatever he has to say (which is considerable) whether anybody else is talking or not, and generally wears an air of tolerating the others present purely for business reasons.

The man is one of those hang on till grim death arguers who will drive a subject into the ground, stamp on it and then mount guard over it. He's got an opinion on every subject in the world and on a good many subjects that aren't. All he needs to produce an opinion at length is to be given the subject, and he will at once shout out all about how it happened.

Mind you I haven't a thing against the man, but judge him simply from having been in an office two or three times when he dropped in.

There is one man who fairly hates the salesman. He took one of those violent, unreasoning dislikes the first time he ever saw him, and he's never lost it. Mild-mannered enough as a rule, too. This man was sitting in a certain office in Philadelphia one day not long ago when the salesman came in. There was a discussion of some kind going on about the Russian war.

"Hello Jim," yelled the salesman, to the proprietor of the business. "How's your liver? I'm going to leave my cases here. Not by a —— sight, he wont," he continued, butting into the discussion. He yelled out a few sentences [setting everybody right about the war, settling it alone and single-handed, and then left as abruptly as he had come.

"Would you consider it a personal question if I asked who that animal is?" said the visitor.

The boss laughed. "Oh, that's only

THE REALM OF THE RETAILERS

TIMELY TALKS WITH ENTERPRISING DEALERS.

DID it ever occur to you that in hiring a clerk, you are simply investing the amount of his salary, and if the clerk soon becomes worth more money, instead of increasing your expenses, he is causing your investment to appreciate?

A man gets some of his money out at five per cent, and after a fair trial, it is determined beyond a doubt that the investment is a safe and permanent one. He finally has a chance to put some more of his money into the same thing at the same or better interest. He will tumble all over himself getting his money down, and consider himself mighty fortunate.

The retailer with the clerk that he is forced to admit is improving, getting to be worth more to him, is in practically the same position. It may look to him as if the money was going the other way, but it is not, any more than is the principal which the man offers in order to get the five per cent.

The writer has always believed, and has never seen any reason to change his belief, that the character and success of a store of any size depends on its clerks. They can make or mar it. Of course, the proprietor is on hand, and his personality goes a good way, but there are times when he is not on hand and lots of times when he is, that clerks who don't care can find opportunities to do harm. Not that they do so deliberately or intentionally, but simply that they are dumb, ignorant or indifferent.

The under paid clerk is the greatest curse of the retail cigar business today. A certain retailer in Philadelphia in reply to a question as to how his business was, replied that it hadn't been very good for the past week. "I've been away, you know," he said, "and we didn't do a great deal."

"But you've got your manager and clerk," was the comment. "They know the business."

"It's not the same," said the dealer. "I know everyone of my customers by name, know their business, know where most of them live, I've made good acquaintances of the majority of them, when I have anything new I make it a point to show it to them, and we have a talk about it, and it's a fact that they admit themselves, that I can sell a box of cigars to any one of them, if he'll let me talk to him for a half hour. Further than that, I bring new customers into the store every week."

"But why can't your manager and clerk do the same thing?" was the question.

"Because they ain't built that way. They can take care of the regular day's trade, but they don't go much farther."

"Do you mind telling me what you pay them?"

After a little hesitation the dealer named two sums, and then as if in defence, said, "You can get all you want at that price."

"I don't doubt it," was the answer, "all you want of that kind. But don't you think it would pay you to spend a little more and get a live one."

All the dealer would say, though, was that a number of other dealers he mentioned were paying no more, some of them even less, and he thought he would be foolish to do any different. The sums mentioned were such as would attract but two kinds of men. Either good men, broken down by poverty, drink, bad luck, or anything in fact, so that they would be continually cursing their fate, or dull plodders who would never as long as they live have an idea of their own.

Many a dealer has by his energy and close attention to business built up a trade that began to get beyond him. He would be forced to spend practically twenty-fours a day at his store, or feel that he was not making the most of a good opportunity. The usual step has been to hunt around for a partner, be moaning the fact that he was thus compelled to cut a good thing in half.

He wasn't compelled to. If he were to secure the proper sort of manager or clerks he would find that everything would go along smoothly. He could have done that by training up a clerk and paying him decently, making him understand that there was always a rise of pay coming when the business warranted it, and that the job had all sorts of possibilities. He could have done that, or he could have scoured around until he found the proper sort of manager. This man would probably have cost him quite a little more money than the dealer would like to think of, but in return he gets a man with brains, who has to make good to hold that sort of a job.

You can't hire a man with brains unless you pay for him, and this is where the majority of dealers make their mistake. In appropriating the current expenses of the store, they allow so much for clerks. They are likely to regard that money as an expensive but necessary evil, and to make the sum as small as they think will possibly procure the help.

As a rule they don't expect much, and they certainly don't get it. The money they pay out each week, is practically wasted, just as they believe it is. But if they were to increase it 50 per cent, or even 33⅓ they would get the full value of their money, and probably more. So they would be in the position of saving the whole of their money, by spending a third or half of it.

It is true that the average dealer counts on running his business pretty closely himself, and needs or thinks he needs his clerks only to help him out, but in this he is making a big error. He is liable to sickness at any time, he is likely to have to leave the store and go away at different times, there are a hundred and one things that he can't expect to be able to do himself, and he is compelled to be continually haunted by the feeling that unless he is on deck, everything is going or likely to go wrong. It's worth money just to get away from that feeling, and in view of the fact that every successful cigar and tobacco retail business in the country owes its success to the personality or personalties back of it, it would seem a self evident enough proposition that the dealer would be making money when he is buying assistance, to buy some brains along with it.

A HEART TO HEART TALK WITH THE CLERK.

LET every clerk ask himself once in a while, unless he is above such old-fashioned ideas, whether he is working ten or twelve hours a day just to draw his pay at the end of the week, pay his board and spend the remainder on his night off, or whether he is a clerk because it is necessary to be a clerk before he becomes something more important.

As a rule a cigar clerk does not make enough to buy many diamonds, and if he is young he will probably a good many times a week, wish he was as well fixed as some prosperous looking customer.

It's easy to wish, but outside of fairy-tales, wishing never brought any tangible results. Moreover, the great majority of the prosperous customer, never reached their condition of prosperity by wishing, but by years of hard work.

Advice is always tiresome to the young, and it's the easiest thing in the world to write when you have a pen in your hand. But it still stands to reason that if a man has a job that he thinks is no good, his only hope is to get a better job, or make the one he has got worth more. If he is capable of holding a better job right off, let him go ahead and get it. If he isn't, the thing to do is to forget his troubles and plug away to make the one he's got size up more like a real position.

If by your actions you make it evident that you are "on to your job," that you know your business, and that, as your mind is on your work all the time, you are a little quicker than the next man to understand a thing, your boss isn't going to loose you. He may think he can't afford to pay any more, but when it comes to the point of losing you he'll come up. Besides that, you'll gain confidence and self respect. You'll get that feeling of knowing that you are worth something and can command something. That asset alone, is worth more to a man than the best of luck.

This is not to be mistaken for the know it all air. That manner is possessed by the man who never took the trouble to learn anything, but at the start off knew more about it than the inventor. He can always be detected, so if you have got the real goods, you don't have to worry about any such rivalry as that.

Now while you are going along trying to improve yourself, remember that in addition to working so many hours a day for your employer, you owe just as much to the customer. Every customer pays a percentage of your salary, and is entitled to some of your work, just as much as the man who actually hands you your money. If the customer could get along without you, he would not have to pay as much for his cigars or cigarettes. You have a right to count each pleased customer, as a step toward a more important position

Remember another thing. Nothing gains a customer's confidence so much as an evident desire to see that gets what he wants and his money's worth. The customer is quick to appreciate such an attitude, and he will invariably go out of his way to come to you again, if he can. He will take your word for it, and he will depend on you. And the proprietor is very quick to notice these little things.

There is an old, but true story which perhaps you have heard, of a millionaire who walked into a friend's jewelry store in New York to buy a wedding present for his daughter. He was one of the self made variety, and his clothes made him look more like a Sunday farmer than what he was. The supercilious clerks looked him over and when he approached looked another way.

Finally the old chap got way back in the store in front of a young fellow who was anxious to make good. The strange looking customer asked for some dinner plate, and the young clerk brought out a set costing a couple of thousand dollars or so. He was all attention, listened closely to everything the old man said, and did all he could to follow his wishes.

The millionaire looked at several sets that didn't seem to suit, each one more expensive than the last. Finally he said: "Haven't you got anything better than this junk?"

The clerk hesitated a moment and then said that they had. He remembered a set that had nearly been finished for a royal family of Europe, but which for some unavoidable reason had been refused before the crest had been put on. He brought it out. It tickled the old man immensely. "I'll take it," he said.

"Yes sir," said the clerk. "How large a deposit do you care to make?"

"Oh, I'll pay for the whole thing," said the farmer looking customer indifferently. He drew out a check book, and wrote his check for fifty thousand, the price of the set. The clerk took the check into the office and showed it to one of the firm. "Is this good?" he asked.

The firm glanced at the signature. "Good as gold," he replied and hurried out all bows and smiles.

The old man came back Christmas, and though every clerk in the store bowed low as he passed, he trudged back to the young fellow in the rear and bought thirty thousand dollars' worth of stuff from him. And, of course, the young clerk has now got a very good job with the firm, for a clerk with an eighty thousand dollar a year customer is not to be treated lightly.

And the young fellow got his good luck, if you can call it good luck, because he was not too good to treat a mean looking customer civilly.

Make Change Without Loss

Mistakes that occur in making change are avoided by system. A customer gave this reason why she trades with Mr. Hardy:

"Mr. Hardy's National Cash Register counts the money that is taken in, and if a mistake is made in making change you can always have it corrected.

"I once made a 10-cent purchase and handed the clerk $5. He handed me 90 cents. I did not notice the error until I reached home. I called Mr. Hardy's attention to it and he opened his National Cash Register and balanced his cash. It showed that there were four dollars more in the drawer than called for by the sales record."

A National Cash Register accurately records each transaction, whether cash, credit, money received on account, money paid or money changed, and shows the clerk's initial.

Let our representative call and explain our system to you.

THE OLD SALESMAN'S MUSINGS.

——, travels for So & So You don't have to pay any attention to him."

At that time, a deal was in progress, by which the visitor entered into partnership with the man he was talking to. And the next time the salesman came around, he was installed at the main desk, the other man being out of town.

The salesman came in like a ton of coal, as usual, threw his cases down and fell into a chair.

"Gawd, I'm tired," he shouted.

As it happened, there was no one else in the office but the new member of the firm and myself. That gentleman never made a move to look up from his work.

"Where the ——'s Jim," continued the salesman, brightly. "I'll bet the old son of a gun is off on a drunk."

Still no move. The salesman didn't seem to mind it much, for it had never entered his head that anybody was trying to snub him. He lighted a cigar, puffed it for a few seconds, and threw it into the cuspidor.

"Gimme a decent cigar," he said. "This one burns like a bum rag."

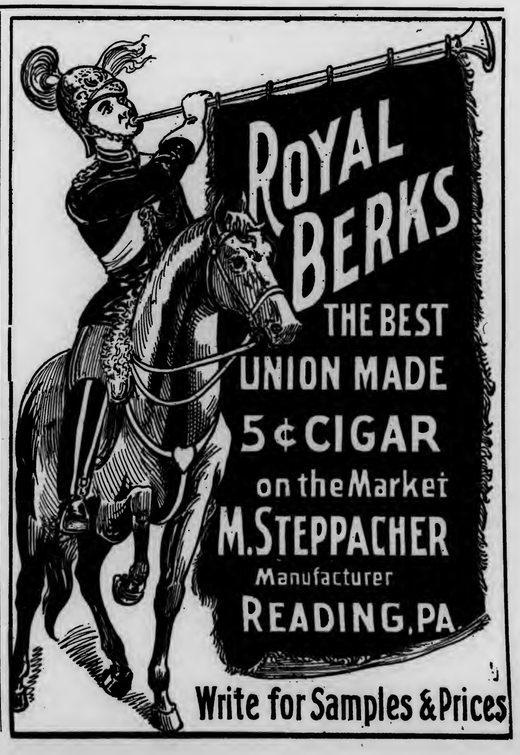
Still no sign.

"Say, this place is like a damn morgue," went on the salesman, apparently in a soliloquy. "Nobody around, Jim on a drunk, and the joint run by a guy with a shy receiver."

At this, the man at the desk turned around very dignifiedly, and said: "If you mean in your peculiar patois to imply that I am deaf, I am not. If you mean by your frequent mention of 'Jim,' Mr. ——, my partner, I am pleased to inform you that he is out of town. If you have anything like a business proposition that we are likely to be interested in, and that you can reduce to three minutes, that much of my time is at your disposal. If you haven't I must say good morning. I'm busy, and you seem rather noisy."

The salesman opened his mouth and shut it about three times, and then, literally speechless with wrath and wonder, grabbed up his case and hiked out. When he got about a block away he recovered himself enough to ejaculate, "Well, what d'y'u know about that?"

When the senior partner of the firm returned, the other man, after discussing some immediate matters, said:



"Do we absolutely have to do business with So & So?" (the salesman's firm.)

"No, I don't suppose we have, to but they sell good stuff on good terms."

"Well, it will be a great favor to me, if you will write them either to send another salesman, hereafter, or make us out a statement up to date."

The letter went, but it was only a little while ago, and I don't know how it has come out. As I said at first, though, there are a whole lot of salesmen who are likely to be a little too confident and too much at home in another man's office, and it doesn't always pay.

BUYING ABOUT TO BEGIN IN HAVANA MARKET.

Many Clear Havana Manufacturers from the United States are Arriving to Have a Look at the New Crop, and as Lowland Vuelta Abajo is Ideal Light Filler, Buying Will be Brisk.

[Special Correspondence of The Tobacco World.]

HAVANA, June 19, 1905.

Quite a number of Northern buyers, principally from Tampa, made their appearance in the Havana market last week, and while the reported transactions do not show a large volume of business closed, there is no question but that this week will see some sales of importance put through.

Evidently the heavy purchases made by Don Edgardo Stachelberg, of Tampa, some two weeks ago, have created a desire on the part of the large clear Havana cigar manufacturers to come over here and have a look at the new crop, and that the majority will not leave the island empty-handed need hardly be mentioned.

The new Vuelta Abajo from the lowland section is to a large extent an ideal light filler crop, and just the kind of leaf which is absolutely needed and wanted by the clear Havana industry; although so far as wrappers are concerned Partido will have to do service as in former years, at least until the craze for light colors shall have died out.

Receipts from the country are still increasing from week to week, thus showing that the escojidas in the country are in full blast. While the dealers pretend higher prices this year than last and undoubtedly paid better figures to the farmers for their bundle tobacco in the beginning, they must, however, have been able to reduce the average by later purchases, upon more reasonable terms, so if the better yield is taken into consideration prices will not vary greatly in the cost of this year's leaf to the manufacturers. This of course only holds good as far as Vuelta Abajo is concerned, and perhaps Partido, while Semi Vuelta and Remedios will be dearer, without a doubt.

As far as old heavy and medium heavy styles of Vuelta Abajo are concerned there are still some good tobaccos to be had, but the owners are asking such stiff figures that it has frightened off the few buyers who came here with the purpose of investing in this class of tobacco. Evidently they are figuring that the heavy bodied leaf of the 1905 crop will be scarce and perhaps less suitable. Whether their supposition is a sound one and based upon facts remains to be seen later on. Old Partido fillers are a drug upon the market and there is no demand for them. Cheap, trashy Vuelta Abajo may be had at low figures, but the buyers in town have not seen fit to tackle them.

Sales

during the past eight days amounted to 2,050 bales in all, of which 1,075 consisted of Vuelta Abajo, 925 of Partido and 50 bales of Remedios. The American buyers have acquired 1,575, and the local cigar manufacturers 375 bales, while 100 bales were purchased for European account.

Buyers Come and Go.

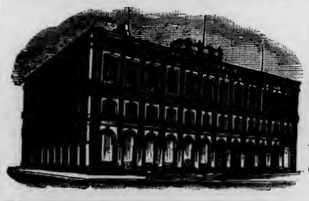
Departures—Leonard Friend and L. Greenhall, for New York; Pepin Rodriguez, for Europe via New York.



Havana Cigar Manufacturers

in general are still complaining that business has not picked up yet, although the large independent factories are doing a steady and increasing trade notwithstanding the off season. The good cigarmakers are kept employed, only the less skilled ones being out of work just now. Some of these are making their annual pilgrimage to Tampa and Key West to tide over the dull months, but will return here as soon as their services are required.

H. Upmann & Co. shipped 600,000 cigars last week of their own and other independent brands. Their factory is well supplied with orders from all countries.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co. have increased their force of cigarmakers, as contrary to their expectation, the demand for their Flor de Tabacos de Partagas & Co. has augmented so much that they are again turning out 40,000 cigars daily. Don Manuel Cifuentes, through his presence in London, easily obtained large orders from the importers of the metropolis of the world.

Por Larranaga, under the management of Don Ricardo Rivero, is doing a very satisfactory business, although a large share of the credit belongs also to Don Antonio J Rivero's propaganda in Europe.

Ramon Allones and Cruz Roja is doing well likewise, so Rabell, Costa, Vales & Co. are quite satisfied with their share of the orders that are coming in.

Sol has already received large orders for new cigars from Germany, a proof that the samples sent out some time ago have been very acceptable. Behrens & Co. have made some heavy purchases of the finest Vuelta Abajo lowland vegas, a guarantee to the smokers that the Sol cigars will be extra choice this year.

Eden has steady customers who always ask for them, therefore, Calixto Lopez & Co. are working with good forces to fill orders for the United States, England and Germany.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

Mat Berriman, who came over here in company with his foreman Jose Sanchez, has made some heavy purchases amounting to over 1,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido, part of which came from escojidas packed expressly for Berriman Bros.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales sold 600 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to Northern buyers and local manufacturers. If more vegas had been completed they would have done a larger business still.

Leonard Friend, who left here on Saturday after a ten days' stay in Havana and the country, has purchased close to 500 bales of the best styles of the old Vuelta Abajo leaf, and it is stated, that he has made arrrangements upon some special vegas and packings of the new crops of Vuelta Abajo and Partido for his firm of Friend & Co., New York.

Jorge & P. Castaneda were sellers to the extent of 300 bales of their choice Tumbadero leaf.

Joseph Mendelsohn, of Manuel Suarez & Co., has been very busy the past week with several customers.

Bruno Diaz & Co. disposed of 200 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido to Northern buyers, but several large transactions are still pending.

Simon Batt and his son Jesse have been seen all over the market, and will leave for the Vuelta Abajo tomorrow.

Gonzalez, Benitez & Co. turned over 100 bales of Vuelta Abajo last week.

Avelino Pazos, who arrived this week, has come principally for the purpose of inspecting the receipts of the new Vuelta Abajo from his own packings, and says he is highly pleased with the appearance of the 1905 crop.

The death of General in-Chief Don Maximo Gomez, on Saturday evening, has caused a deep felt sorrow in the whole Island of Cuba, as next to the invaluable aid given by the United States in creating the Cuban Republic, his services as commander in chief of the Cuban liberating forces during the ten and three years war will never be forgotten. Havana is draped in mourning, all amusements were stopped as soon as the news of his death had been spread, and the funeral services tomorrow will be observed with the same pomp as if he had been the President of the Cuban Republic. His body is lying in state in the red room of the palace, and there is a ceaseless stream of people trying to say a last goodbye to his mortal remains. Officially all business is closed for three days, in respect to his memory.

BIGGER NEW YORK CROP THIS YEAR.

Prospect of Good Prices Induces Farmers to Plant.

Rochester, N. Y., June 26.

The warm weather is a very welcome change for the tobacco growers of this State. The work of putting out the plants is about to begin, although some growers prefer to wait a little longer even, on account of possible chilly weather; but the beds are looking thrifty and there are plenty of plants.

Wayne county was formerly an important tobacco producing section, but the low prices which prevailed for several years drove the farmers from the business until last year the acreage was the smallest that has been known for more than twenty years. Not more than twenty-five acres were raised in all of Wayne county, where formerly hundreds of acres grew. This year the prospects are better and the acreage will be increased.

TOBACCO NEWS OF GREATER NEW YORK

NEW YORK, June 26,

Although the weather has been out rageously hot, dealers in various parts of the city say they did pretty well. There is no doubt that trade is beginning to verge on midsumer dullness, however, and it is very unlikely that there will be anything like a boom in the retail trade again until fall.

It is a noticeable fact that one of the effects of this hot weather, is to stimulate the trade in short smokes. Of course cigarette smokers stick to cigarettes, but a great many cigar smokers come down to little cigars such as Goldon Eagles, Telonettes, or a half dozen other similar brands. Consumption of these is also helped by the fact that competition in them is very keen just now, and they are being well advertised and energetically pushed. Most dealers say they are moving at a much livelier rate.

Business is good with the manufacturers, but it is probable that not all the goods that are being made are being sold. Practically all factories are working full time, and while some of them are working on orders, some others are accumulating a little surplus which they should have no difficulty in working off in the next two or three months. One manufacturer who has a number of standard brands was complaining the other day on account of the way certain new brands are put into the stores.

"It hurts legitimate business," said he, "and there is no excuse for it, because it very seldom pays. A manufacturer gets out a new brand that he wants to get into the retail stores. He knows he will have hard work to get the retailers to buy his cigar, unless he is doing a tremendous amount of advertising, and even then it wont be easy, and so he is willing for them to put it in to be paid for when sold.

"The salesmen who are working on the brand go out among the trade and hunt up their retail friends. They tell them what a fine cigar it is, how much the firm is going to advertise it, and how it will soon be replacing all the leaders, and when the dealer says he would rather wait awhile, that his stock is full up and he's got a lot of dead ones on his hands already, the salesman says:

'Well, I'll send you a thousand and you can pay for them when they are sold. And remember that I've always been a good friend to you, so speak a good word for them when you can, will you?

"The dealer accepts them on those terms and on account of his desire to do the salesman a favor, does try to sell a few. The cigar may go all right, and it may not. The chances are that it wont, for a good many more brands will fail than succeed. Anyhow, while four or five hundred dealers are trying to make the thing go, the business on the regular brands is hurt just that much, for it stands to reason that a good many people will be willing to try at least one of the cigars and so buy one less of the standard kind.

"Now if this were confined to one instance, it wouldn't be so bad, but as it is going on all the time, it has a pretty large general effect. Of course I don't mean to say that the manufacturer hasn't a right to do what he chooses to get his new brands on the market, but I think a little more care ought to be taken in the placing of them, which would react to the general benefit of the manufacturing business. As it is now, the salesman starts out with the new brand, and feels that he has got to get a lot of it out any old way in order to make good with the office. He puts it out on any terms the office will stand for, or he thinks it will stand for, and it breaks business all up. And I know pretty well what I'm talking about," concluded the manufacturer.

There was no noticeable run on any particular line of goods in the leaf market last week, business being generally fair in small transactions. It is evident that a great many manufacturers need leaf badly, but they hate to lay in much of a stock, going on the assumption that by waiting they will be able to get better prices. Where it has been imperative that they should have leaf quickly, they have bought, but grumbled at the prices. It seems to be the general impression among the manufacturers that when the new crop opens, lower prices will prevail on all important grades. There is absolutely no good reason for supposing this, and it is the positive opinion of all leaf dealers that the market prices will remain stiff and may increase. It is certain that the farmers will be able to demand good prices for their tobacco, and the packer will be obliged to pay them or go without. Naturally he will be obliged to charge the manufacturer, so that nothing will be gained by the delay. As a matter of fact there have been numerous instances where manufacturers have ended by paying quite a little more for certain lots of tobacco than they refused in the first place.

Considerable disappointment is manifested among the trade at the apparently necessary postponement until fall of the trial of E. Locker & Co.'s suit against the American Tobacco Co. Everybody was watching the case and was eager for the developments which it is promised it will bring out. Then again the outcome will be very significant to jobbers in their relations with the American Tobacco Co., and it is with much impatience that those interested prepare to wait until November.

A number of jobbers, manufacturers, dealers, etc., were visited during the week by special agents of the department of justice who are collecting investigation evidence. So far, nobody has been found who was willing to repeat categorically a conversation with one of these gentlemen, and so it is not possible to say how well they are making out. When it gets down to the pinch, however, a good many jobbers who feel that they have a grievance, don't like to go on record, even in confidence as making their charges in detail.

J. W. Surbrug, of the Surbrug Co., is back in town from an extended trip through the West and Northwest and has nothing but good to say of how the Surbrug goods are moving in these sections. The new Grain Plug Cut has made a killing and Mr. Surbrug says he was really surprised at the way it caught on everywhere it has been placed.

Charles Wasserman, of the B. Wasserman Co., will spend a couple of months in Europe. He left last week on the steamer Grosser Kurfuerst.

George Wyatt, of E. A. Kline & Co., left last Thursday for Cuba, where he will spend two or three weeks for the house.

George V. Watson, leaf importer, and William J. Hazlewood, of Leopold & Co., are on a fishing trip in Canada which may last as long as the sport is good.

Samuel Hamburger, of Hamburger Bros & Co., is another one to join the colony of American buyers in Havana. Mr. Hamburger left last Saturday and will be away a couple of months.

Sam. H. Harris, president of the Khedivial Co., who has just returned from a trip to New England, states that the firm is about to put a new plain tipped cigarette on the market called the Oxford, which will go to the trade at $10.50 and sell to the consumer at ten for fifteen cents.

The Allen Tobacco Co., has announced the withdrawal of all gratis offers on their Telonette extra large little cigars to take effect after July 1. All orders mailed prior to this date will be accepted on the present arrangement.

The A. H. Hillman Co. is giving two packages of Patterson Cut Plug with each dozen packages of Patterson Seal, at 47 cents. This deal has been in affect since June 19.

On last Tuesday the board of United States general appraisers made an attempt to settle the controversy between importers and customs officials regarding the monetary values used in making out invoices of goods from Cuba.

The protests decided by the customs tribunal stood in the names of the Havana Tobacco Co., G. S. Nicholas, and the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Co., all of New York. Most of the merchandise affected by the decision are cigars and cigarettes. It seems that the phrase "Spanish gold" is used upon the invoices, to express the monetary unit in which they are made out. The collector of the port assessed upon the merchandise the proper rate of duty, reducing the money in which the invoices are expressed to the money of the United States, giving each unit the value of 96.5 cents.

It is against this action that the importers protest, contending that the value should have been found to be 92.6 cents. Two grounds are assigned by the importers as the basis for their contention. That a clerical error was made in making out the invoices, in that they should have been made out in Cuban pesos instead of Spanish gold, and that the collector erred in the value which he placed upon the monetary unit used in the invoices.

Although the director of the mint officially recognizes the Cuban peso, General Appraiser Hay, who writes the decision for the board, thinks the director's action has no weight of authority for the reason that Cuba has not adopted a national currency. The board finds that inasmuch as Cuba has not a monetary standard, it will be incumbent on importers to prove to the satisfaction of collectors of customs the exact amount paid by them for the merchandise appearing on the invoices.

Mr. Hay acknowledges that his ruling will work a hardship to importers. Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, recently issued a letter stating that the Cuban peso should be converted into United money on the basis of 91 cents. As the protests acted upon by the board were filed prior to Mr. Shaw's order, it is possible that the importers and the treasury authorities may reach an agreement.

ANOTHER PA. CIGAR FACTORY.

One Being Built at Emaus to be Occupied by Jeitles & Blumenthal.

Allentown, Pa., June 26.

Ground was broken at Emaus, a few days ago for the erection of a cigar factory which is to be built by George Raab, of Reading, owner of the Exchange Hotel. The dimensions of the building will be 100 feet long and 40 feet wide, three stories high and of brick.

The building will contain a basement which will be occupied by a steam heating plant and a sweating room for the tobacco. The first story will be occupied by the cigarmakers while the second floor will be the apartment for the tobacco strippers and part of the same to be used as a sorting and packing room. The space on the third floor will be used as a hall and will be occupied by the Emaus Band, as well as for fairs, anniversaries, etc., whenever such an occasion might present itself.

The building, when finished, will be occupied by Jeitles & Blumenthal, who at present are occupying the Charles Kemmerer's building on Railroad street.

BAD WEATHER AT THE HUB.

Continual Rain Made a Difference in Week's Retail Receipts.

Boston, Mass., June 25.

Five consecutive days of rain this past week caused quite a shrinkage in the receipt of many of the retailers. Yesterday was a nice day, and many dealers claim their Saturday's business was better than it usually is.

The American Tobacco Co. has salesmen here selling Union Leader cut plug who are securing all available windows for a display of the same. Sample packages of this tobacco in 1 ounce tin foil are being distributed freely to the consumer of such class of tobaccos. A new deal is in force this week, to the effect that with every purchase of 2 pounds of plugs or cut plugs of the American Tobacco Co. brands, the retailer is getting one package of Union Leader 1⅔ ounce gratis.

Horseshoe snuff in the form of a 5 cent package has made its appearance here.

Peter Woodland, a 5 cent cigar guaranteed strictly long Havana filler is being placed with good success at Revere Beach.

A new 5 cent cigar is being advertised here on the bill board thus: "Get the Happy Habit. Sir Jonathan cigar made since 1893."

Kozak, the new 5 cent mouth piece Turkish cigarette of the Khedivial Co., New York, with 10,000 guarantee that the cigarette contains nothing but pure Turkish tobacco is being successfully placed by H. Swick the local agent for this concern.

James J. Condon the popular salesman for McGreenery & Manning was recently married to Miss Mary E. Healy an assistant editor on the "Youth's Companion." The happy couple spent their honeymoon seeing Niagara Falls.

Myer J. Haim, with Shinasi Bros., is here once more, and as usual is kept busy booking orders for Naturals and Egyptian Prettiest.

H. Block, of Chas. Goldsmith & Co., leaf dealers, New York, was a recent visitor here, and managed to put through a few deals with some of the prominent cigar manufacturers.

The Sweet Cherry Tip Cigarette Co., of 60 Merrimac street, is placing with the retailers a novelty in the line of paper cigarettes, viz., a cigarette with a cherry tip in the fashion of a cork tip cigarette.

Frank P. Norton, of F. P. Norton & Co., well known in business circles of this city, and for more than 35 years interested in the manufacture of cigars, died Monday morning and was buried on Thursday. Mr. Norton was a member of Boston Lodge Protective and Benevolent Order of Elks, and about 100 members of the lodge attended the funeral.

The Allen Tobacco Co., of New York, has come out with a circular notifying the jobbers that on and after July 1, all gratis on Telonettes extra large will be discontinued, and all orders received prior to that date will be shipped in rotation to the best of their ability, and must be paid for within 20 days after shipment to obtain benefit of full discounts.

A. Goldsmith, of Goldsmith, Silver & Co., left last night on an extended trip through the West. It is Mr. Goldsmith's intention to open many new accounts throughout the West and to put the M. C. A. cigar on a good footing in that territory.

The United Cigar store located on Bowdoin square now closes evenings at 8 p. m. This store formerly kept open evenings until 11 p. m.

J. Halpersohn, of the Hub Leaf Tobacco Co., was a recent visitor to New York, and reports that the leaf dealers there are asking high prices for all kinds of desirable leaf.

"Old Sport" Zugsmith, with the American Stogie Co., is once more in our midst.

At Harry Mandel's new store on Cambridge street, Harry says business is getting better daily and the constant clicking of his new cash register would verify his statement. El Cafe Bouquet cigars are getting to be favorites with many of his patrons.

Gordon Bros., of 999 Washington street, reports trade quiet since the Columbia Theatre opposite closed for the season. Although many worthy competitors sell the popular brands at cut prices, Messrs. Gordon are averse to this kind of business, and believe that successful cigar stores are the ones that sell goods at regular prices.

It was decided by the label committee of Cigarmaker's Union 97 last Tuesday night, to address a letter to the labor unions of New England regarding the use of union made cigars and tobacco, and asking each union to make special efforts in its vicinity to advance the cause.

Chas. L. Polep, a Hanover street jobber, made a big purchase of cigars, tobacco and cigarettes, from a revenue sale in New Hampshire and is now very busy disposing of the same.

Porto Rico cigars must be coming into demand once more; Julius Cohen, the Merchants' Row cigar dealer tells me he has just purchased almost 50,000 of these cigars, and that his many customers prefer them to our popular domestic brands. Mr. Cheinstein, the manager of the cigar department, contemplates sailing for San Juan, P. R., on or about July 1. BEN ALI.

AUTOMOBILE WITH 1,000 CIGARS.

Some One Will Get Horseless Carriage at a Low Figure.

There have been coupon schemes and coupon schemes, premiums and premiums, but here is one that is perhaps hard to beat—a locomobile to the purchaser of 1,000 cigars at $30. Seems almost impossible, doesn't it? Yet it isn't. To be sure, there is not going to be a locomobile given with each thousand cigars purchased, but someone is going to get a locomobile valued at $750 for a purchase of 1,000 cigars at $30.

The proposition comes from Shively, Miller & Co., cigar manufacturers, at Pottstown, Pa., and is made by them in absolute good faith, and will be carried out, as they are thoroughly responsible and are not in the business of "promise breaking." This is the way it is done:

With their F. F. V. brand of cigars, which are regularly sold at $30 per M, there will be issued to each purchaser of 1,000 cigars a ticket, which tickets are numbered consecutively. When the whole number of tickets allotted to this purpose shall have been distributed to purchasers a drawing will be held, and the holder of the coupon to the third ticket drawn will be presented with the locomobile.

Not a bad scheme, that; is it? The manufacturers of the F. F. V. brand claim that the cigars are a combination Havana filler and Sumatra wrapper, hand made. If you want it, write them for full particulars.

HOPEFUL BUDGET FROM LANCASTER

Slight Improvement in the Leaf Market, What the Manufacturers are Doing.

Lancaster, Pa., June 26.

The local leaf market showed some slight improvement during the past week, and at least one transaction worthy of more than passing notice was reported.

Tobacco growers are being favored with excellent growing weather, and the plants are showing it too.

Manufacturing generally throughout the country seems in a more prosperous condition now than it has been for some weeks, and many factories continue to advertise for more cigarmakers.

John Slater & Co., the well known stogie manufacturers, contemplate the erection of a new factory building in the near future, which will afford largely increased facilities. The new site is on Columbia avenue, almost opposite their present building, the ground having been secured. Business with this firm has been exceptionally good this year, and it is now believed the year's output will exceed that of any previous year by nearly 50 per cent.

A. B. Levinite, of this city, has just returned from a short business trip to Philadelphia and New York. Mr. Levinite is having the best year's business in his experience. His last trip increased his orders on hand to a considerable extent.

A. D. Killheffer, of the Eureka Cigar Factory, at Millersville, states that he can scarcely get goods out fast enough to meet the demand. This is undoubtedly one of the busiest factories in that section. Mr. Killheffer is placing on the market a new brand of goods under the title of Louise de Valois, which is a ten cent product, put up in highly artistic packages. It is made in eight sizes.

J. G. Shirk, of this city, who is one of the best known wholesale tobacconists in the entire State, has been on a short business trip to New York, Philadelphia and other points, and placed considerable quantities of his special lines of goods with dealers.

David Bricker, son of Capt. J. R. Bricker, formerly a well known cigar manufacturer of Liberty, this county, is spending a vacation period with his father. For over three years Mr. Bricker has been studying tobacco growing in the South, a short portion of the time having been spent in Florida, and the remainder in Cuba. He will return to Florida, to remain perhaps permanently.

THIS OFFER IS THE BEST YET.

The coupon scheme may be dying, but during its life it has certainly given birth to some weird propositions for the giving of the consumer something for nothing. Years ago, the presentation of a boy's suit of clothing to a man for the faithful consumption of some thousands of cigars, would have seemed to exploit rather unusual business methods, but now, a little thing like that is quite in order.

Here is a scheme, though, placed before the consumers of the United Kingdom, which for startling originality takes all bets. A certain firm has issued the following circular:

"The ingenuity of the keenest brains has been taxed to the utmost in evolving new advertising ideas. Many and strange have been the devices submitted to an admittedly critical public, but we venture, with all humility, to submit that never in the annals of advertising has so novel and for the public, so advantageous, an advertising proposal been suggested as that which we have the pleasure of presenting in this little pamphlet.

"If you desire to be beautiful, if you desire to be healthy, and yet you are not possessed of sufficient means to invoke the highest art in the attainment of your object, we propose showing you how you may be both healthy and beautiful.

"It will cost you nothing. We shall get a good advertisement, and you will get the health and beauty. And what could you wish for more?

"The scheme, like all good things, is simplicity itself. We supply a full range of tobaccos and cigarettes in ¼ lb. tins and boxes at popular prices, to suit the pocket and palate of any and every smoker. Each ¼ lb. tin contains a numbered coupon. All you have to do is to collect 40 of these coupons.

"Upon bringing to us at —— 40 dental coupons, we will give you an order on our own dental surgeon, who is a duly qualified Licentiate in Dental Surgery of the Royal College of Surgeons, and is also appointed a dental surgeon to one of the largest local institutions.

"This gentleman is one of the finest scientific dentists in the country. The order will direct the dentist to do all that is required and everything that is necessary. You will be able to have hopelessly decayed teeth taken out painlessly under gas or chloroform. Other teeth which may be useful you can have painlessly filled or crowned, and in addition, you will be supplied with as many perfectly fitting artificial teeth as you may require, or, as may be necessary, and lastly, you will be able to call upon the dentist at any time you desire and as often as you choose, and have your teeth kept in perfect order for the space of 12 calendar months. In fact, you will have everything that the most advanced dental science can offer; that which costs the average person from £5 to £10, you will receive free of any cost or expense of any kind. The dentist will be paid by us. We shall get a valuable advertisement and you will receive incalculable benefit.

"We want you to fully understand, that in the ordinary sense of the word, this offer does not, and obviously cannot pay us. We shall, however, receive our reward by the benefit we shall derive for the advertisement which this extraordinary proposal will give us. Our standing in the tobacco trade is a guarantee that the offer will be carried out to the letter.

"The name of every person taking advantage of this proposal will be kept strictly private.

"The 40 coupons are available for any one person, man, woman, or child. Should you not wish to use them yourself, you are at liberty to nominate any one person you choose. This offer will hold good until December, 1906."

To get forty of these coupons it would be necessary to invest only about $13, for which one is supposed to get full value in tobacco. And armed with the forty, a man with a mouth like a decayed graveyard, can calmly camp out in the dentist's chair and stay there until he looks like an advertisement of fancy tooth powder.

It seems to us that for ten more coupons, the company ought to dig up a Licentiate in Corns and Bunions and fix a fellow's feet up.

THE Philadelphia retailers are so pleased with their picnic, held last week, that they are considering making it an annual affair. Seems like a good idea.

LET OUR CONSULS HELP THE AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS.

In response to a request, made by the bureau of manufacturers at Washington, the Massachusetts State Board of Trade has addressed a communication to the chief of the bureau, comprising several suggestions for the promotion of manufacturing interests in the United States.

One of these suggestions appeals particularly to The Tobacco World as a good one and it hopes for the benefit of its subscribers, that the bureau will consider it favorably.

This part of the communication from the Board of Trade explains that in the last 30 years the publications known as trade papers have come to be of very great importance in the industrial and commercial world. Each trade paper of standing is carefully read by all progressive and ambitious merchants and manufacturers in that trade, and each paper is resultantly anxious to print all the helpful information it can secure. The communication then says:

"If, acting through the medium of the editor of the consular reports, every member of the consular force could be made an occasional correspondent of every considerable trade paper in the land, information could be disseminated in far greater abundance than at present.

"This would mean the systematizing of the collection of news and suggestions from our corps of consuls, in place of what appears now to be a somewhat haphazard method of reliance, in whole or in part, on the enterprise and ingenuity of the consul himself. Today it seems much as if a managing editor were to say to his staff: 'If you run across any news, write it up.' You have at hand 200 or 300 trade journals anxious to print any good matter you can get for them. Why not organize the collection with the system and thoroughness that a great newspaper office would devise?"

There is no doubt that a consul with his wits about him has a splendid chance to size up trade conditions in the vicinage of his station and to appreciate generally neglected or special opportunities for American manufacturers. A great deal of the matter now written by certain consuls shows what can be done when they set about it particularly, and if the Government decides to urge that they do, there is no doubt that business in the United States will receive no little benefit.

Philadelphia Tobacco Trade.

The leaf market is rather spiritless these days, and no one is doing a great deal of business. A little Sumatra is being sold, because manufacturers can't get along without it, and good prices were obtained, as the buyers were evidently convinced that there was no way out of it. But little domestic tobacco was sold for the reason that there isn't much to be had. There was a light demand for Havana, but manufacturers are evidently waiting, whenever possible to learn more about the new crop before they consent to pay the prices that are asked. This will avail them nothing, however, as it is a practical certainty that the new crop will bring just as stiff prices.

In a news way there was nothing stirring in the leaf market. There were no changes, and no fluctuations in prices to record. The market has apparently settled down into a summer listlessness which won't be broken until time for the new crops.

Here and There With the Retailers.

The hot weather of the last week or so hasn't helped the retail market any, and though something like a fair trade was done, there was no snap to business. Little cigars, cigarettes and the like, sold pretty well, but the cigar trade fell off, and the box trade seemed as if it had been struck by lightning. The stores in residence sections are doing better for the reason that more men sit around on their porches and stoops at night and smoke steadily to keep the mosquitoes and flies away. Business is never very brisk in Philadelphia in the summer time, and it is not expected that there will be much doing until fall.

B. Frank Batten is learning to converse largely by signs. During the busy part of the day, the constant stream of trolley cars at the foot of Market street make a terrible din, and as Mr. Batten's store door is always open, there are times when he can hardly hear himself think. This by no means interferes with his business, though, which is all that could be desired.

Notaro Bros. are comfortably fixed in their new store at Tenth and Chestnut street, where they removed from a location a block above. This firm has been quite successful in this city, and has succeeded in getting a very good class of customers.

Barney Greenburg, city manager of the United Cigar Stores Co.'s local branches, declares that his stores are all as busy as they can be, and that the number of regular customers is increasing.

Jos. Way is selling plenty of goods at his two Market street stores, and says that the hot weather hasn't affected his business any to speak of.

There were a number of traveling salesmen in the town during the week, some of whom reported that things were slowing up a little on the road in anticipation of the summer dullness. Business seems to be better the farther West a drummer gets.

If the red devils in the hereafter are as entertaining individuals as those that were at the retailers' picnic, the bottomless pit won't be such a bad place after all.

Robert H. Driver, for years extremely well known as one of the prominent retailers and jobbers in Philadelphia, was killed last week by being thrown from a carriage. The accident occurred near Fifteenth and Dauphin streets where the horse attached to the carriage became frightened at some passing cars and bolted. Mr. Driver was thrown violently out, and died almost instantly. The former retailer was about 65 years old and lived at 1631 Francis street with his sisters. Until a few years ago he conducted a large store at the intersection of Broad street and Ridge avenue, and built up a very wide acquaintance. He was intensely fond of horses and was well known among horsemen generally. Mr. Driver was regarded as a wealthy man, and owned considerable real estate in Francisville. The funeral took place on Sunday.

Wm. Watkins, retail dealer at Sixteenth and Race streets, who carries a rather exclusive line of goods for his patrons, is now devoting some space to a display of the new Match It cheroot advertising cartoons. Mr. Wilkins is one of the few dealers of this city who carry a line of H. F. Fiddler & Co.'s famous El Rocco brand of nickel cigars.

With Manufacturers and Jobbers.

The manufacturers report that business is keeping up, and the factories are still working full time, and some of them overtime. Eisenlohr factories have been outdoing themselves and so many Cincos are being made that it is a wonder how they are all smoked. The firm is constantly enlarging its territory, and it will not be a great while before their famous cigar will be known in every town from coast to coast.

The men who are on the road are still returning satisfying lots of orders and expect to be able to continue them for some weeks to come. The manufacturing end of the trade is the big end just now, but it will probably have to take its turn at being dull during midsummer.

The firm of Teller, Kleinsmith & Co., which was recently organized in this city, has been dissolved by the withdrawal of Mr. Kleinsmith, and the style of the new firm is now Leopold Teller & Co. The company will continue to manufacture a high grade of goods.

The El Draco Manufacturing Co. is working its factories hard and everything is being rushed to keep up to orders. This firm has several brands that have earned decided pobularity so that there is a steady run on them.

Dempsey & Koch are being kept busy in their new home. A great many of this firm's goods go West where they seem to have hit the consumer's taste just about right.

It is a pleasure to announce that Lieut. Lynch, the police official through whose carelessness the factory of Weaver & Son, Sixth and Race streets was recently robbed of $600 worth of stuff, was discharged from the force after an investigation by the police board of inquiry. This is decidedly a step in the right direction, as the undertaker says.

A. L. Valentine & Son, in their enlarged quarters, are managing to fill the space all right. The firm says it has about all the orders it can handle. Maybe those fine looking signs do it.

Shively, Miller & Co. are pushing their Thos. A. Edison cigar on this market by various advertising methods. The latest is the extensive free distribution of caps made in two or three colors, which bear the name of the cigar.

Those who deal with Harvey D. Narrigan & Co., and few retailers don't, have noticed that one of the features of his place are the bright little girls who see that a customer gets what he wants in the shortest possible time. Everyone has a good word for these girls, who are attentive and capable. One of them was Miss Josephine M. Saunders. As the daily papers told at length, Miss Saunders took two of her younger brothers to Washington Park last Sunday evening for a breath of fresh air, and while engaged in hunting for one of the boys who had become separated from her, fell through a hole in a platform and was drowned. The girl was barely nineteen years old. At

Authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba

Either the name of the Manufacturer or that of his Brand will appear printed in the blank space of this precinta or stamp.

. . . IMPORTANT NOTICE . . .

The preceding cut is a fac-simile, in its actual size, of the new PRECINTA or warranty stamp which, as authorized by the Government of the Republic of Cuba is now used by the members of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba as a guarantee that cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco packages which bear these stamps were manufactured in Cuba.

The consumers of these goods, who wish to acquire the genuine article made in CUBA from pure CUBAN LEAF, should buy no other cigars, cigarettes, or cut loaf packages but those which have this PRECINTA or stamp of the Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers' Union of the Island of Cuba, who, jointly with the Government of the Republic of Cuba, or separately, will prosecute before the courts, anyone who may attempt to counterfeit, imitate, or in any way render useless the guarantee covered by this stamp. Colors of the PRECINTA fac-simile: black with pale blue ground; fac-simile of the seal of the Presidency of the Republic: dark blue.

times the power which selects those of us who are to go first is most certainly inexplicable.

The Havana Tobacco Co. is advertising its Bock panetela by a quarter of a page ad. in the local daily papers. An actual size fac simile cut of the cigar is printed and the rest of the ad. is taken up in a description of the brand. The price is 15 cents or $12.50 a box of 100. The ad. states that "the cigar itself weighs two pounds per thousand heavier than it used to—costing $7.50 more import duty on every thousand, yet the price remains the same." The ad. further states that the Bock panetela is on sale in all reputable cigar stores where imported goods are sold.

The advertising cartoons recently adopted by the Manchester Cigar Manufacturing Co., for the well known Match-It cheroots are now much in evidence, and a number of attractive displays are noticeable throughout the city. Thos. F. Fitzgerald, jobber and dealer at Forty third st. and Lancaster ave., is devoting one of his fine large bulk windows this week to a display of the Match-It cartoons and the other to the Golden Eagle little cigars, with telling effect.

F. B. Robertson, factory representative of the Match-It cheroot, has been on a week's trip through eastern and central Pennsylvania. The itinerary included Trenton and Phillipsburg, N. J., Easton, Bethlehem, Allentown, Reading, Milton, Altoona, Harrisburg and Lancaster, Pa.

Judging from the numerous window displays of the Tom Keene cigars now being made in this city, there is every evidence of energetic work, on the part of the newly appointed distributors of those goods, Goldsmith & Arndt. One of the most attractive window displays of the Tom Keene cigars is now on exhibition at Davidyan, Jr. Co.'s store at Ninth and Arch streets.

THE RETAILERS' PICNIC.

The first picnic of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of Philadelphia was held last Wednesday, June 21, at Maple Grove (Fox Chase), and has been pronounced a success, financially and otherwise; so much so that a strong sentiment has arisen favoring it as an annual occasion. The atmospheric conditions were not very favorable and no doubt were responsible for the fact that there was not an even larger attendance. Various games and sports were provided and all were fully enjoyed.

The Ball Game.

One of the most interesting and exciting events of the day was the ball game. The opposing sides were the "Red Devil" and "Arrow" teams. J. Harvey McHenry was captain of the former and H. J. Miller of the latter. It was found necessary to call the game in the seventh inning on account of the lateness. The final score was:

Red Devil	18
Arrow	17

There was some fairly heavy batting produced by the Red Devil team in the second and fifth innings. The Arrow team got in most of their runs in the first, fourth and sixth innings, but the strong lead that was secured by the Red Devils in the fifth inning could not be overcome. The excellent work of Clapp, Patterson, Fitzpatrick and Sheldon, of the Red Devil team, overweighed the efforts of H. J. Miller, W. C. Miller, Groves and Evans of the Arrow team. As an umpire D. A. Schaible was there with the goods.

The score in detail:

Advertising Features.

Full advantage was taken of every opportunity for advertising. "Red D" signs were much in evidence, and following closely in their footsteps was the advertising done by H. J. Miller, representing "Arrow" cut plug, who had arranged some effective displays. John T. Taylor, for Shively, Miller & Co., Pottstown, Pa., manufacturers of the "Thos. A. Edison" cigars, distributed advertising caps for the benefit of that brand.

A unique exhibit was made by Arthur Hagen & Co., representing the Berry-Suhling Tobacco Co., on the latter's "Staff of Life" plug tobacco, and in conjunction with it, a guessing contest was held which proved a great attraction and an unqualified success.

In a sealed glass jar were a certain number of tin tags such as are used on "Staff of Life" tobacco. Tickets were issued which entitled the bearer (provided he was a retail dealer in tobacco) to a guess on the number of "Staff of Life" tags contained in the jar, which was exhibited. Seven prizes were offered, as follows:

1st Prize.—6 pounds Duke of Athol, 5½ ozs.; 5 pounds Federation, 1⅔ ozs.; 3 pounds Staff of Life, 5 to lb.

2d Prize.—6 pounds Duke of Athol, 5½ ozs.; 5 pounds Red Raven, 2½ ozs.

3d Prize.—3 pounds Duke of Athol, 5½ ozs.; 3 pounds Staff of Life, 5 to lb.

4th Prize.—3 pounds Duke of Athol, 5½ ozs.

5th Prize.—5 pounds Federation, 1⅔ ozs.

6th Prize.—3 pounds Staff of Life, 5 to lb.

7th Prize.—5 pounds Red Raven, 2½ ozs.

The goods serving as prizes were, of course, donated by the manufacturers.

During the course of the evening the exact number of tags in the jar was announced to be 4,032, and an examination of the tickets which had been deposited in a receptacle provided for the purpose, revealed the fact that guesses were ranging from 1,215 to 9,810, and that the seven prize winners were as follows:

First—F. Sontag, 158 North Second street.

Second—J. E. Groves, 4201 Lancaster avenue.

Third—A D. Engel, Broad and Porter streets.

Fourth—H. W. Wiggins, 1101 Cooper street, Camden.

Fifth—R. Adams, 362 East Chelten avenue, Germantown.

Sixth—J. I. Hassan, 6635 Woodland avenue.

Seventh—N. Elwell, Seventy third street and Woodland avenue.

An orchestra composed of several pieces was furnished by Arthur Hagen & Co. All the musicians were dressed in "Red D" costumes.

J. Harvey McHenry, of Arthur Hagen & Co, entertained a number of invited guests at supper on the grounds.

At a reasonably early hour the party started on its return trip to the city mostly by trolley, and although somewhat fatigued, they were none the worse for the wear.

Now They Say:

That D. A. Schaible was the most graceful dancer on the floor.

That A. M. Griffis showed good taste in his selection of a dancing partner.

That Thos. A. Edison Taylor was the heavy weight in the ball game.

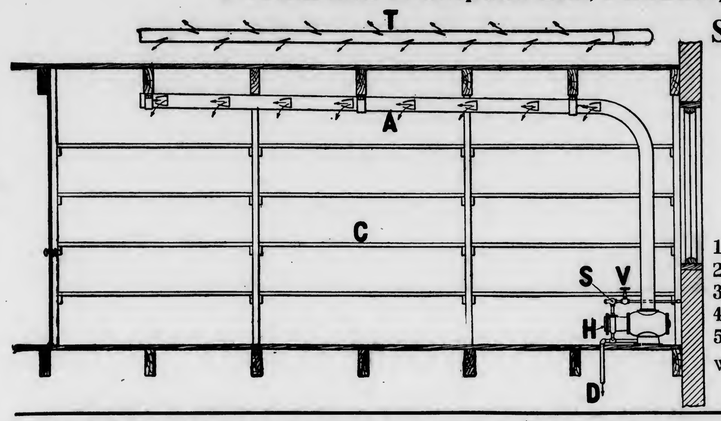
That Leda Clapp was the champion runner.

That Jesse Groves was little, but—

That several pairs of trousers suffered misfortune in the ball field.

That the ladies regret that McHenry is a groom.

That Jas. A. Halfpenny had a very popular job.



That Jimmy Hassan was everywhere at the same time.

CLEARING SKIES IN YORK COUNTY.

Cirgar Manufacturers Expect Improvement in Their Business.

York, Pa., June 26.

York county business is beginning to look up. The clouds of uncertainty which darkened this section for several weeks are clearing away, and gleams of hopes are beginning to be felt. Reports from various sections of the county indicate these facts, and in other ways there is evidence of a speedy improvement.

Greater activity is being assumed by nearly all members of the trade, and we now venture the assertion that ere long the improvement will be an accomplished fact. Whenever one sees a united effort in a certain direction it is almost sure to bring its result, and that is just about what is going on now.

Warren Beck, of Warren Beck & Bro., who is well known in the trade for his reliability, states that while the demand for their lines of higher grade goods has been fairly good all the year, there is indication of considerable early improvement.

Jacob A Mayer, of J. A. Mayer & Bros., of West York, has returned from the West, where he met with a hearty reception everywhere, and again shook hands with many old customers, some of whom he had not seen for years, and some of whom he had not met personally before. He speaks most encouragingly of prospects.

H. F. Kohler, of Nashville, this Co., reports progress, for ever since the first of the year he has been unremittingly busy, and the only change he says he has noticed is that the demand is running stronger and stronger in the line of finer and higher priced goods in his products.

Peter McGuigan, of Red Lion, is erecting an addition to his factory on East High street.

Blochinger & Co.'s new factory is practically completed, and will soon be ready for occupancy.

Some days ago an excursion was given to the employes of Miller Bros' Cigar Box Factory, of Red Lion, to their lumber camp at Mt. Washington, Md., which was thoroughly enjoyed by all the participants.

S. F. Snell, formerly of Red Lion, but now living at Dowagiac, Mich., where he is still engaged in the cigar manufacturing business, was a recent visitor to Red Lion,

GOOD REPORTS FROM READING.

Factories Busy and Competent Cigarmakers are in Demand.

Reading, Pa., June 26.

The cigar industry in this section can be said to be good. There is scarcely an idle cigarmaker, who is worthy of his hire, to be found anywhere, and some factories seem desirous of employing more hands, if the right kind of help can be secured.

The cigar factory of Eisenlohr & Bros., at Seventh and Washington streets, is one of the busiest in Eastern Pennsylvania. Owing to the rush of orders the place is working until 9 p. m. on Tuesday and Thursday of each week. The factory, which is equipped with every convenience, is gradually filling up with employes and the force has now reached 170 hands, of whom 130 are cigarmakers. The outlook is regarded as bright by Mr. Eisenlohr, who visits the factory every week. The firm makes only high grade cigars and expects within a year to employ 400 hands. Their Reading factory contains more floor space than the Boyertown plant, which has an annual output of 10,000,000 cigars. Curtis E. Crouse is the superintendent here.

H. S. Hosler, now sole proprietor of the Continental cigar store, at Ninth and Elm streets, had a gala day at the reopening of his establishment, which has been thoroughly altered, Saturday a week ago, upon which occasion he had a band of music in attendance from 9 to 11 o'clock, and a souvenir was given to each caller.

John J. Seitz has opened a cigar factory and retail store opposite Carsonia Park, one of Reading's famous resorts.

W. W. Riegel is running a full force, principally on fine nickel goods.

Fleck Cigar Co., Ltd., reports an exceptionally good business.

SHORT TALES OF DRAMATIC INDIANA—No. 4

The young man boarded the express and selected a seat in a corner of the smoker. He did not smoke, but he watched the other men with cigars between their teeth, with a mixed expression of contempt and triumph.

Just as the train was about to pull out, a quiet looking man stepped aboard, and after giving one keen lightning like glance around the smoker, from behind half shut lids, settled himself not many seats from the young man. He wore a slouch hat, which he pulled down over his eyes and settled himself as if for a doze.

But dozing? No. An unusually acute observer might see that those colorless eyes lost not a movement made by the young man.

On flies the train carrying the watcher and watched, each apparently intent upon his own thoughts.

At last a station well in the country is reached, one of the few stops the train makes. The young man gets up from his seat, brushes the dust from his clothing and descends upon the platform. The other man also alights from the train—but on the other side. He crouches low in the sparse bush.

The train steams away from the little station leaving the young man apparently alone. He heaves a sigh of delight and strikes out across country. Occasionally he chuckles, and had there been anyone near to observe, they would have noticed the malevolent purpose which his countenance denoted.

But softly as an Indian, a hundred yards back, comes the passenger who was so quiet and seemed to doze.

At last, after a mile and a half has been covered, the first man comes to a hut. He is practically in the woods, although the village is close by. A sharp look around him and he enters the hovel.

With a sudden intaking of breath the man in the rear comes to a stop. And now he advances more cautiously. He is but fifty yards away. Down on his stomach he goes, and the rest of the distance is fairly crawled.

He reaches the door. He peers in. For a full minute his eye searches the interior. And then, his face deadly stern, he whips a wig from his head, tears off his false mustache, draws an air gun from his trousers and steps inside.

There, he stands, grimly silent.

The young man looks up. "Bingerton!" he gasps, and then, utterly broken, he moans in terror. Something drops from his nerveless fingers.

"So I've tracked you at last, have I?" says Bingerton, his face tense with awful satisfaction. "Through jungles and across plains have I followed you, in the midst of silent forests and through the wicked din of busy cities. At last I've found your lair. Here is where you perpetrate, aye perpetuate your crime, and here is where the death knell of your career is sounded."

He advanced to the sobbing man and picked up the thing which had dropped from his hand.

"I have even seen you in the commission of your unspeakable fault," he continued. "I have seen you in your secret shame. Your race is surely run.

"Geoffrey Tinkletop," he said with intense earnestness, "I arrest you in the name of fair Indiana on the charge of keeping a cigarette paper." He held out that which he had picked up.

But there was no one to see. Tinkletop, seasoned criminal as he was, had fainted.

SALES SMALL IN DANVILLE, VA.

Little Coming in and Loose Market Entirely Without Interest.

Danville, Va., June 24.

Sales on this market have been very small for several weeks, not averaging thirty minutes a day, and are expected to continue small for some weeks to come. The loose market is entirely without interest. There is so little coming in that there is a small corps of buyers and very little interest taken in the sales. Most of the larger buyers are entirely off the market, and have left the buying to the smaller concerns.

Prices are without change and are not altogether regular. Occasionally some very cheap tobaccos sell, and then again high prices are occasionally paid for something special. There is nothing selling in the way of good to fine tobaccos, and no wrappers in the breaks at all.

The weather has been fairly favorable on the crop. There is some little trading in round lots, but no large transactions have been consummated.

TURKISH TOBACCO IS BEING GROWN IN VIRGINIA.

The tobacco trade and the United States Department of Agriculture are watching with interest the developments in growing a cigarette tobacco in Virginia to resemble Turkish tobacco. R. W. Boch, of Philadelphia, requested a sample, which was immediately forwarded by the officers of the Department.

This sample on which experiments in plant breeding are being made in Virginia has proved of a quality resembling closely the Turkish cigarette. It is claimed to be the first Virginia tobacco which does not become soft and tend to cake with heat.

FAILURES DUE TO CREDIT GIVING.

Dealer Should Prefer Small Cash Trade to Large Shaky Credit One.

An article which should be read and heeded by every cigar and tobacco retailer who is in business to make a living is printed in the last number of "The Irish Trade Journal," under the title "On Giving Credit." There is a great deal of truth in every sentence of it, which applies just as forcibly in the United States as in the country in which the article was written. The writer says:

"The subject of giving credit to customers by retailers is of such vast importance to the trade that we make no apology for devoting our leading article this month to discussing it. It cannot be disputed that four fifths of the failures amongst Irish traders may be traced to bad debts made through giving indiscriminate credit. When a trader finds himself unable to pay his accounts and the inevitable meeting of creditors follows, very probably his explanation is: 'I would not be in this position if I could collect the money that is due to me. There are hundreds of pounds owing to me throughout the country which I cannot get.' Very true, but in the eyes of business men it makes the trader's failure look worse for being such a gullible fool.

"Competition is very severe, and it is to this competition that the giving of indiscriminate credit is attributable. Indeed, the competition is generally so keen that one shopkeeper looks with jealous eyes on another if he notices any of his customers patronizing the latter's shop; consequently, in order to retain his customer, a trader has very frequently to 'oblige him' with credit 'until he comes in again.' Considerable discrimination must be used in such cases, for the usual result is that in nine cases out of ten when the customer has some ready money about him, he will round the corner to the opposition shop that does not give indiscriminate credit, and buy his requirements for cash. The very fact of owing money to one house is sufficient inducement for him to bring his ready money custom elsewhere, and doubtless a good number of our readers have learned this to their cost.

"It is against this system of giving in discriminate credit that we would warn our readers. The desire to secure a big turn over and have a large number of clients on one's books is a praiseworthy one, but the trader should bear in mind that one bad debt is more than sufficient to wipe out the profit on the cash sales on many days. Besides, even if such credit transactions do not end by becoming bad debts they often, as we said before, hamper future dealings. We have known parties who, having obtained credit from traders, on being asked to pay, deliberately transfer their custom elsewhere, and if the trader puts on any pressure, although he gets paid, he will make, perhaps, a life-long enemy for the future of his former customer.

"We do not, of course, mean to impute that every man who asks credit of a trader intends to swindle him, but from experience we have found that it is the wiser plan to refuse credit unless the trader is fully satisfied as to the bona fides of the applicant, and that prompt payment will be forthcoming. How to manage this must be left to his own discretion. No general rules can be laid down, as he must be guided by circumstances.

"Perhaps the most general method of obtaining goods under false pretences is by means of the post. A trader gets a letter on fine-toned notepaper handsomely embossed, with perhaps a crest, and signed with an aristocratic name, ordering some goods on approval. The trader is impressed with the magnificence of the notepaper, and without hesitation forwards the goods, without the least chance of ever getting paid. A case in point is that of the Wexford 'gentleman' who, some weeks ago, wrote to several Dublin houses for goods, styling himself Captain or Major—we forget which—amongst the goods being some valuable jewelry. He got the goods, but he afterwards got some months in one of His Majesty's prisions, as it was found that he had no means whatever, and was never in the army.

"Let traders remember that a small, safe, cash trade is infinitely better than a large, shaky credit one, and that it will show up considerably better when the scales are being balanced at the end of the year."

TOBACCO ASSO. MEETS NEXT WEEK

At Old Point, Va. Questions of Importance Will be Discussed.

The Tobacco Associatton of the United States will hold its fifth convention on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, at Old Point, Va. From indications there will be a good attendance, and there will be a number of interesting discussions on methods by which the members will be benefited.

Among the questions that will come up will be those of Parcel Postage and the Insurance System, which in most States is arbitrarily controlled. It will also be argued as to whether, from the standpoint of the American shipper, it is desirable to have reduced excess duty on strips in England. This question is being actively agitated in England, and it is believed by some that the next Parliament will bring about the reduction.

—Another Red Cross scandal has developed near Kazan, European Russia, through the discovery that a contribution of 5,000 pounds of tobacco, intended for distribution among the soldiers in the field, is now on sale at Harbin.

IMPROVEMENT OF TOBACCO BY BREEDING AND SELECTON.

The Adaptation of Tobacco to Soil and Climatic Conditions.

The general principle of the necessity for the adaptation of seed to soil and climatic conditions, which is recommended by the best authorities in plant breeding, is forcibly emphasized by the experience of the writer with tobacco. In the case of cotton and corn Dr. H. J. Webber has made the observation that evidence is accumulating which shows that these crops must be bred and adapted to soil and climatic conditions, and that in order to obtain the best results growers must select their seed in the locality where the crop is regularly grown. From the fact that the tobacco plant is influenced in such a marked degree by soil and climatic conditions, this crop is a particularly striking example of the benefits to be derived from the selection of seed in districts where it is to be grown.

During the seasons of 1901 and 1902 Florida-grown Sumatra seed was introduced into the Connecticut Valley by the Bureau of Soils and grown extensively on the tobacco plantations of that region. This tobacco seed was imported into Florida from the island of Sumatra several years previous to its introduction into the Connecticut Valley and had become adapted to Florida conditions. The crops grown in the Connecticut Valley from this seed showed a lack of uniformity, which resulted in the breaking up of the variety into a number of distinct types. A small proportion of the plants in these fields held true to the Sumatra type and produced a satisfactory yield of desirable wrapper leaves, but not more than 5 per cent of the first generation were typical Sumatra plants, and the remainder were divided into a large number of distinct, clearly defined types, most of which were radically different from the parent variety. Some of these types were apparent reversions to varieties not adapted for wrapper purposes, the leaves lacking the proper shape, body, elasticity, gloss, and other characteristics of the Sumatra tobacco. The individual plants in these types also showed great variability, and the cultivation of such a mixed and variable crop entailed a great loss to the growers on account of the small proportion of high-priced tobacco obtained and the increased cost of sorting this irregular product. The crop of 1903, grown from seed saved from that of 1902, according to the ordinary custom of tobacco planters, showed continued variability and a reproduction of the undesirable types. In 1903 typical plants of all the different types were selected for seed purposes and the seed protected from cross fertilization by covering the flowers with paper bags. In 1904 the plants grown from seed saved in this manner were strikingly uniform in type and closely resembled the parent plants in all characters.

One of the best illustrations of the effect of the change of soil and climatic conditions upon tobacco is the experience of the growers who used imported Cuban seed for the production of wrappers in the northern districts of the United States. The crops grown from such seed produced a large proportion of the so called freak type of plants, which are very undesirable and bear a large sucker or branch at the axil of every leaf. The leaves of such freak plants are very small, sharply pointed, thick and heavy, and practically worthless for wrapper purposes. According to a very careful estimate this type of plant constituted at least one-third of the crop grown from freshly imported seed from Cuba. Among the types constituting the remainder of the crop were typical Cuban plants producing a desirable tobacco which was used as a substitute for Cuban grown wrappers. This variation in type was commonly attributed by the growers to the Cuban practice of saving seed from sucker plants. However, seed selected in the season of 1904 from the most desirable plants that could be found in Cuba, and taken from the main stalks, produced crops in the Connecticut Valley which showed only a slight improvement in uniformity of type over previous crops grown from the ordinary Cuban seed taken from suckers in the usual way. The crop in Cuba from which this especially selected seed was harvested was particularly uniform in shape and size of leaf and general type; therefore, the variation in type observed in the northern-grown Cuban plants must be attributed to the effect of the change of soil and climate conditions. In 1903 plants grown in the Connecticut Valley from Florida grown Sumatra seed were grown in South Carolina with a view to producing cigar wrappers. The leaves harvested from these plants were very thick and heavy, resembling the South Carolina plug-filler type of tobacco. They possessed none of the characteristics of cigar wrappers except the shape of leaves. This change of type was doubtless due to the influence of the soil and climatic conditions in this section of the South.

It has been frequently observed that when a variety of tobacco has been grown in a particular region for a number of years it undergoes a gradual change, and produces a type peculiar to that region or locality. This condition explains the adaptability of certain sections for the production of types of tobacco supplying special market demands. In most of these crops a small proportion of plants is found which produce leaves most nearly conforming to the market standard for this class of tobacco. By saving the seed from these plants according to the methods of selection to be described later, a uniform crop of the desirable type may be secured which will be adapted to the local soil and climatic conditions.

The character of the soil in any region varies to such an extent that every farm presents a different set of conditions peculiar to its location. In view of the effect of a change of conditions upon the character of the plants, it is important that the grower select his tobacco seed on his own farm. After a variety has become adapted to the grower's conditions of soil and climate the yield and quality of the crop can be improved by the selection of the most desirable plants in the field for seed production. In buying seed the grower has no evidence from the seed itself as to the nature or quality of the plants which it will produce, and he is likely to lose a crop owing to the use of undesirable seed. The type of tobacco grown on the individual farm establishes a reputation in the market and determines to a considerable degree the value of the crop produced. The careful selection and improvement of the type by the grower not only increases the yield and quality of his crop, but the reputation thereby acquired insures a high price and a ready market for such tobacco.

Many tobacco growers follow the plan of saving a large amount of seed from a desirable crop, and using this seed for several years, instead of depending on the selection of seed from every crop. They entertain the idea that vitality of tobacco seed does not deteriorate with age and that the continued growing of the same tobacco on one farm causes a deterioration in the yield and quality of the crop. Such a practice may be ad visable where the farmers give no attention to seed selection or follow the ordinary method of saving seed without a careful study of the seed plants and the quality and yield of leaves they produce. Tobacco seed is known to retain its vitality for several years if kept under the proper conditions, but it has been demonstrated that the vigor of germination is reduced and the value of the seed impaired by age, even though the circumstances of storage are very favorable. Owing to the possibility of the failure of a crop, due to unfavorable seasons or the destruction of the plants by storm or other accident, enough seed should be selected from every successful crop to produce plants for two or three seasons. The surplus seed need not be used for planting, unless the resulting crops are injured or destroyed by unfavorable circumstances, in which case this plan will prevent the loss of the type grown and selected by the farmer. The yield and quality of the crop will certainly deteriorate where the best plants are topped, where proper attention is not given to the principles of seed selection, and where the injurious effects that may follow from cross pollination in the tobacco plant are not recognized.

BURLEY SCHEME IS REALLY DEAD.

Efforts to Revive the Growers' Association Meet with No Success.

Lexington, Ky., June 24.

Efforts to revive and reorganize the defunct Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, which went to pieces last year after a futile attempt to control the Burley crop, are not meeting with the success hoped for by the reorganizers. According to the statement of a prominent tobacco grower here, who has heretofore been identified with the movement, but who has declined to be further allied with the organization, the scheme is as dead as free silver, so far as resurrecting it on the old lines is concerned. Discussing the question of reorganization from he standpoint of the grower, the gentleman above quoted said:

"The tobacco growers, of which I am one, are going to be very careful in the future before they enter such an arrangement. Believing they would win, they went into the association with enthusiasm, blind to the consequences that ensued, when the failure of the scheme was announced. Hundreds of farmers and growers had signed the contract, giving the association an option on their crops, and this tied up their tobacco so completely that it was difficult for them to dispose of it when it was discovered that the association was unable to redeem its promises and pay for the tobacco it had bargained for conditionally.

"This worked a great hardship on the tobacco growers. When it finally dawned on them that they must sell or keep their crops at a ruinous sacrifice, they found that the Continental Tobacco Company, which was the head and front of the tobacco trust, would not listen to negotiations looking to the sale of their tobacco.

"Hundreds of growers in the counties surrounding Lexington made frequent trips to the Continental plant in this city hoping to find a market, but were turned down. The manager, assured them that the Continental would like to have their tobacco, but that it did not want to buy a law suit with each crop, thus intimating that the grower was tied up by contract with the Burley Association and any violation of that contract meant legal proceedings. Thus it was that many growers were compelled to hold their tobacco until very late in the season and when they finally let it go, it was at a sacrifice and at the risk of a law suit."

CONNECTICUT VALLEY

The crops are growing very fast, especially tobacco that was set before the last shower. I have seen some fields where dining plates would not make a cover for the plants, and some that will stand eight or ten inches high.

Such a field gives good promise of growing tobacco that will pay to raise. The crop will probably be early enough to cure down before the cold weather of fall comes to pinch the sap out of the hanging plants. It may be too early to suit some of the late setters. But keep in mind the old saying: "If you do not mow you cannot cart hay," and a crop of tobacco got into the sheds and cured down and stripped out early is the crop that sells. But the one that the frost threatens is the crop that comes down late, is stripped late and sold late, if sold at all.

Our correspondents write:

Feeding Hill, Mass.: "Tobacco setting is practically finished for the year, except where the cut worms and wire worms have worked. These worms have been more numerous this year than usual. I have made a practice of plowing in the fall and seeding to rye and am not troubled to any great extent."

Northfield, Mass.: "Those who intend raising tobacco this year are busy setting it out. Plants are scarce. There will be a smaller acreage this year. The old crop is all sold."

Bradstreet, Mass.: "Tobacco setting has been finished here and the crop is started. We notice some pieces where plants were thick on the beds there is occasionally a large plant to fifty small ones. We had a fine rain Sunday night and since, which gives a new lease of life to all growing crops. Sunday the thermometer was 91 degrees in the shade, hot enough to satisfy all.—American Cultivator.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The work of transplanting the plants from the beds to the fields is occupying the attention of growers early and late. The close of the present week will see the bulk of the crop safely transplanted, and the weather continues especially favorable for securing a good stand. Many of the progressive growers have finished and report the plants well rooted and but little replanting necessary. The indications now are that the crop will go out at a trifle earlier date than usual in this State.

Trading in cured leaf in first hands has dropped off almost entirely, only an occasional lot being marketed.

Just a moderate business is transacted among packers, though a firmer demand is reported, and good binder stock is being sought after in all the markets.—Reporter.

National Cigar Clipper

It Clips a V in Ends of Cigars---

A LITTLE vest pocket instrument for the smoker that puts a V in ends of cigars—neatly—accurately—without breaking wrapper, no matter how dry or brittle the cigar is.

It doesn't bite and pull and squeeze; but cuts "shear ways," the common sense way—a way that can't dull the the cutter and disfigure the point of cigar.

Design is elegant—nothing like it on the market anywhere. Finest tool steel—nickel plated, and polished.

Makes an effective and lasting piece of advertising for the cigar manufacturer and distributer because of its ability to attract attention—its utility and durability.

The dealer can't put a better selling novelty before a smoker. Hits two ways,—snug profit when sold—fetching advertising with name on.

Sample 15 cents. Dozen lots without ad. $1.25.

Gross lots without ad. $14.00; with ad. if not more than three lines, three eighth of an inch long, $16.50.
